GALT (CP)—Carl Hall and Ivan Tennant scored in the last two minutes to give Galt Hornets a 6-4 victory over Guelph Regals and push the Hornets into the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series finals.

Hall broke the tie with a screened backhand shot at the 16:00 mark and Tennant, with his second of the night, clinched the win with a goal into the empty net after Regals had pulled goalie Stat Hurley.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Moodymen of Meaniewurs, Boys and Gals (how's that for bilingualism), please note that tonight's hockey hassle down Merryall way could very well be the one that causes the puck cookie to crumble definitely in the direction of one or t'other of the combatants.

The Chicago Black Hawks ride into town, insecs at the present, their battle loins girded ready for combat in the faces of some 14,000 hostile natives.

The Montreal Canadiens, trailing two points in the one-two positions at the top of the National Hockey League heap are poised and ready for the jousting of their lives.

As if you rabid Hawk chasers and Habs faithful didn't know, after tonight's tilt, the Windy City crew has three games to play and the Canadiens four.

Between now and the first puck drop the Hawks are out in front by two scant points. If they win and extend the lead their chances of the league flag are good. If they lose—and the Habs square the points race, the battle from here in will be tighter than a downpour of rain.

In any event, it leaves the Hawks facing Detroit at Detroit Sunday night (this should be a dilly); the Rangers at Chicago next Tuesday, and a schedule winup fracas with the Bruins at Boston a week from Sunday.

Meanwhile the Habs tangle with Boston tomorrow night in the Bruins' lair, are at home to Toronto next Wednesday, entertain the Bruins next Saturday and pull down the curtain against Rangers in New York a week Sunday.

And there's top battles brewing for the lower bracket of the playoff spots holders. Detroit are only two points behind Leafs but have five games to play to Toronto's six. If Rangers clip Leafs tonight it will leave the teams even-steven.

Leafs play back-to-back games with the out-of-place Blues over the weekend, but, as was noted, Detroit faces a toughy tomorrow night when they tangle with Chicago in the riverside city.

But while you are pondering over what teams at the top four to buy the income-tax money on, don't forget those pesky Blues and the surprising Bruins who can prove to be the greatest "upsetters" yet as far as playoff spots are concerned.

An off-the-beat story says that the feeling is mutual. Bobby Hull says he would rather play the Red Wings in the Stanley Cup semi-finals and the Wings would rather meet Hull and the Black Hawks than the Montreal Canadiens.

"We've played better against Chicago all season than we did against Canadiens," says manager coach Sid Abel.

"Sure we won a couple of games in the Montreal Forum and we didn't win one in Chicago. But there also were games where Montreal just ran right over us with their skating."

But with the pressure on the Wings and Hawks increasing all the time in the desperate fight for the one-two spots, Abel thinks the closing fireworks will take a lot out of these clubs. Which would help the Wings' cause immensely.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

Teammates are always checking the clock and checking the man in the penalty box to see how much time he has left. Because a lot of goals are scored just after a penalty is over.

The penalty box, in a lot of cases, is just over the blue line. So you get out of that box just as fast as you can and on the right side of the blue line to take a pass.

I know I've scored a few when I've just stepped out of the penalty box and the puck was thrown up to me. There wasn't a man near me and I walked in alone to score.

You'll see the player in the box signal with his fingers how many seconds he has left. The coach will point his finger towards the ice, or the bench.

He's telling him to get back to the bench as quickly as possible, or if the play is in our end, to get back into our end and get that thing out of there.

Many times, when a penalty is over, maybe a defenseman is just getting back to the ice. So they'll have two forwards and three defencemen out there. This can be a disadvantage, unless the defencemen is quick of foot, and present you with a scoring opportunity.

By the same token the same situation can back fire on the team that had the manpower advantage. They put out five forwards for the power play.

If they're still out there when the penalty is over, if you're not watching it and get a quick change yourself, the opposition will come back into your zone. They might be fresh as a unit.

There'll be five of them. You're lost because you haven't got a proper defense back there. They'll take advantage of your confusion to score just after you've missed your chance with a man advantage.

Should Stay In Canada, Says University Head

Plans To Stop Athlete Exodus To USA

The flow of young men to United States colleges for expert instruction can be stopped, he says, and he plans to do so as chancellor of the new Simon Fraser University.

Dr. Shrum, in an interview Friday, said he will press for three things at Simon Fraser when it opens next year:

1. Athletic scholarships;

2. Top - flight coaches, hired from the U.S. if necessary.

3. Tutorials for athletes as necessary.

Government funds could not be used for athletic scholarships, Dr. Shrum said, but he is sure outside funds would be available.

"I would not lower our academic standards but for any athlete capable of doing university work, I am in favor of scholarships and bursaries.

Until Canadians grow in coaching experience Americans will have to be imported for the job, he said.

"Personally, I would like to have a person like Russ Jackson as our football coach," he said. The Ottawa Rough Rider quarterback, a Canadian, "is a brilliant young man, a mathematics teacher and an excellent football player."

The chancellor said he could think of a number of happy examples of men who stayed in Canada. One was Prime Minister Pearson, who used earnings from semi-professional baseball to help him through the University of Toronto.

"Think how much history might have changed had Mike Pearson accepted a scholarship to an American school," said Dr. Shrum.

Rideau Region CNR To Hold Bowl Tourney

C.N.R. employees and pensioners from the Rideau area, covering Eastern Ontario, Ottawa and part of Quebec province will hold a big five-pin bowling tournament in Belleville on Saturday, April 18.

The Rideau area trophy will be up for grabs, as well as cash prizes for individual high five game totals, high singles and high team scores.

The tournament is open to all C.N.R. employees, pensioners or members of any C.N.R. team now bowling and it is hoped to have a large number of entries from the host Belleville area and other surrounding Eastern Ontario districts. The tournament will be held at the Plaza Bowling Lanes.

Team representatives in this area are asked to contact Bill Lloyd at the C.N.R. Station, Belleville, concerning entries and other matters pertaining to the tournament. The deadline for entries is April 8.

Morrisburg Drubs Kingston

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Morrisburg Combines defeated Kingston Aces 5-1 Friday to tie their Ottawa-St. Lawrence Senior Hockey League semi-final series at two games apiece.

The fifth and final game will be played here Monday.

Fred Curran scored for Kingston.

North, Junior Semi-Finals

Espanola Eagles and Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. Greyhounds finished third and fourth respectively in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series this season but they are making their presence felt in the league-leaders in the playoffs.

Eagles shaded North Bay Trappers, first-place finishers during the regular schedule, 5-4 Friday to win their best-of-seven semi-final series at two wins apiece.

Greyhounds edged the second-place Sudbury Cubs 3-1 to take a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven set.

Real World Champions Never Quit

Dempsey Speaks

WASHINGTON (AP) — "A real champion doesn't quit sitting on his pants in his corner," Jack Dempsey said Friday in a reference to dethroned heavyweight champion Sonny Liston.

"As for Cassius Clay, the man who deposed Liston, Dempsey said, "I don't think he's a real American. I don't know much about the Black Muslims, but if it's true they hate all white people, then I don't think it's right."

Dempsey, 68, one of the greatest heavyweight champions in ring history, also said he doesn't think much of today's boxing.

"Either clean it up or get rid of it," he said. "Either I'm right or it's wrong. But if you honestly feel you've got bootleg boxing and that would be worse."

Dempsey, champion from 1919 to 1926, said Liston obviously hadn't trained properly for the recent title bout, which he said he watched on closed circuit television. Clay won the title when Liston failed to answer the bell for the seventh round.

In his day, Dempsey said, world champions "didn't quit." When Liston did, "he proved to me he was not a real champion.

"You fought with broken arms, broken legs, jaws, whatever you got."

City Squirts Sweep Honors At Tournament

YOUNG CHAMPIONS — The Belleville Squirt All-Stars proudly display trophies from the Napanee Tadpole tournament where they captured both the "A" division and the grand championship trophies. Plans call for the team to play in Peterborough, Trenton and Brampton tournaments within the next few weeks. Standing, at back, are coach Lionel Roth and manager Ed Adamson. Back row, Peter Ackerman, Gregg Duffy, Paul Reid, Brian Cousins, David Taylor, Doug James, John Mulvihill and Peter Fralick. Kneeling are Danny Lupinette, Dennis Cole, Rick Meagher, Roger LaMoore, Bobby Foster, Cliff Janitsch and John Feasby.

Semi-Finals Opener

Marlies Dump Flyers 5-2

◆ NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Toronto Marlboros, league champions of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, Friday dumped Niagara Falls Flyers 5-2 to take a 1-0 lead in their best-of-seven semi-final series.

Marlboros weathered a total of 17 minutes in penalties and scored twice in the first period but came on strong to roll up their winning margin.

Ron Ellis, Marlie captain, had a 1-0 lead midway through the first with Toronto holding a man advantage. But Gary Dineen scored less than two minutes later to level the count.

Marlies, with his second of the night, and Nick Harbaruk fired goals in the second part to account for all the scoring in the second period.

The Marlboros built their margin to 5-1 in the third on goals by Andre Champagne and Grant Moore before Glen Marcotte scored for the Flyers.

The opening playoff loss of the series was Toronto's first setback handed Flyers by Toronto this season.

Second game is scheduled for Toronto Sunday.

Yankee-Taming Curve Awes Mexicans

Koufax, Sanford Look Sharp In Practice

PHOENIX, Ariz. (CP) — Jack Sanford, the burly righthander, who nearly scared New York Yankees to death in the 1962 series, and Sandy Koufax, who finished the job a year later, haven't lost the knack.

Koufax overawed Mexico City Tigers with his Yankee-taming curve ball Friday, striking out the side when he first faced them and completing three perfect innings as Los Angeles Dodgers opened their exhibition baseball schedule by thrashing the Tigers 8-3.

Sanford, picking on people closer to his own size, pitched six impressive innings against Cleveland Indians at Phoenix, giving up three hits and one run in the longest stint by a San Francisco pitcher this year as the Giants won the game 5-2.

Chicago Cubs benefited from two errors and a wild pitch to score three runs in the ninth inning at Mesa, Ariz., and defeated Los Angeles Angels 6-5 while the other baseball action game played. The other major league clubs, based in California, start their Grapefruit League activities today.

COLAVITO SIGNS

There was news no good for Kansas City Athletics, who finally signed Rocky Colavito, their reluctant slugger. Colavito, who Rocky lost out in his bid for an extra $25,000 if owner Charles Finley chose to trade him before the season ends.

Things were less rosy for the Dodgers as Frank Howard, their only experienced long-ball hitter, confirmed that it will be "virtually impossible" for him to play this year because of personal problems. He declined to discuss his problems but said "a combination of things hit me all at once."

Meanwhile everything was lifting Don Drysdale at once at Mesa Loma park as the right-hander made his first start of the year against the Tigers and yielding two runs and four hits in his two-inning stint.

Drysdale's teammates saved him from the indignity of defeat by pasting the Mexican pitching for three runs in the first inning and five more in the third. Then Koufax took over, Bob Miller following him with three more shutout innings and Joe Moeller blanking the Tigers again in the ninth.

Sanford, who slumped mildly to 16-12 last season after a 24-7 record in 1962, is chiefly remembered for the 1-0 heartbreaker he lost to the Yankees that year in the seventh game of the World Series after shutting them out on three hits the week before.

He was sharp against the Indians Friday after second-baseman Chuck Hiller tripled home a run, scored another on Willie Mays' single and got Sanford out of trouble by starting a second-inning double play.

The Cubs matched the Giants' 5-1 spring training record by overcoming an early 4-0 lead with the help of Leo Burke's three-run homer and wrapping it up in the ninth when Bob Duliba uncorked a wild pitch with the bases loaded.

Australian Grabs Golf Lead

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Australian Bruce Devlin shot a sizzling second-round 64 Friday and grabbed a four stroke lead at the halfway mark in the $125,000 St. Petersburg Open golf tournament.

The eight - under - par round came within a stroke of the record for the 6,715-yard Lakewood Country Club course. Devlin's 36-hole total was 130.

Four strokes back at 137 were Bob Shave and defending champion Raymond Floyd. Shave shot a 67 and Floyd 69.

The field was cut for the two final rounds to the 62 professionals who had scores of 143 or better.

Failing to survive the cut were Jerry Magee of Toronto, 69-76—145; Al Mengert of Montreal, 76-73—149, and Jack Mc-Gregor of Val Morin, Que., 81-72—153.

Two players quit the tournament. Charlie Sifford, the cigar-chewing Negro pro from Los Angeles signed for a wrong score and was automatically disqualified.

Minor Hockey Results

Frontenacs and Quinte qualified for the Bantam "A" championship series last night while Canadiens climbed into the "B" finals against the Rangers. Both utilar series got under way this morning.

Canadiens defeated the Tee Pees 4-2 in last night's game, giving each club four goals on the round. Canadiens got the nod by getting the most shots on goal in the overtime period.

W. Storms scored twice and assisted on another for Canadiens. P. Goyer had a goal and one assist and J. Sled also scored. A. Ray had a goal and an assist for Tee Pees with T. Waite netting the other goal.

Frontenacs shaded the Leafs 2-1 last night and won that series 4-2. D. Middleton and R. Mitchell were the winners' marksmen. R. Reeves potted the Leaf goal.

In the other half of the "A" semi-finals, Quinte lost a 3-1 decision to Royals but captured the round by a 5-4 score over the Frontenacs.

C. Janitsch scored the only Quinte goal, unassisted. W. Garrison, J. Holgate and D. Loder were the Royals' marksmen, Armstrong picking up one assist.

In a pair of exhibition games, Trenton Peewees edged Belleville MacCormack's Peewee All-Stars 2-1, while Belleville Oddfellow All-Stars tied Picton 4-4.

Trenton Peewees scored two first - period goals and held MacCormack's off except for a single marker in the middle frame. Ferguson scored one goal and set up the other, fired by Bigger for Trenton. The Belleville marker was scored by D. Fobert with T. Meagher assisting.

Belleville Oddfellows led 1-0 after one period and trailed by after two beats before getting the tie with Picton Bantams. C. Wilson, R. Carter, P. Fleming and J. Holgate scored

Australian Grabs Golf Lead

Baun Will Consider Politics

TORONTO (CP) — After seeing the two worlds of Leonard (Red) Kelly, Bobby Baun says he will wait until he is finished playing hockey before he seeks a political career.

Rumors began circulating in Ontario hockey when Baun, a bruising defenceman with National Hockey League Toronto Maple Leafs, accompanied his teammate, Kelly, who is also a Liberal member of Parliament, to the capital.

Baun, a confessed Liberal, also met with Keith Davey, national Liberal organizer, he said in an interview Friday.

The defenceman's family lives in Saskatchewan.

Coincidentally, at the moment there is a vacancy in the Saskatchewan riding of Saskatoon following the death of Progressive Conservative Harry Jones last week.

However, it turned out that Baun and Davey were old friends, having worked together at radio station CKFH, and his visit was strictly social, he said.

Baun was asked by the Liberal party to run in the last provincial election in the Toronto - Beaches riding, but he refused it then.

However, he said Friday he would seriously consider a political career after his hockey days are over.

KIDD WINS AWARD

TORONTO (CP) — Bruce Kidd, the Canadian middle distance runner, Thursday won the Thomas R. Louden award for outstanding performance in the advancement of athletics at the University of Toronto. Kidd, a third-year physical sciences student, is the third recipient of the award honoring Professor Louden, of the department of aeronautical engineering and a former rowing coach at the university.

Indians Hit Warpath In 10-1 Victory

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pittsburgh Hornets strengthened their lead atop the Western Division in the American Hockey League Friday night and but it was the tail-end Springfield Indians of the Eastern Division who made the loudest noises.

The Indians suddenly found the goal-scoring range and took out their wrath on the second-place Hershey Bears, dumping the latter 10-1. The loss left the Bears nine points back of the idle Quebec Aces.

Hornets opened a three-point spread in the week, trouncing the second-place Cleveland Barons 4-1.

Centre Brian Kilrea fired a goal and assisted on three others for the Indians to tie the Reds' Willie Marshall for league scoring leadership. Each has 76 points after Marshall collected both goals in the Reds' win.

TWO FOR WILCOX

Cobourg Wins Cage Tourney Opener 64-51

BARRIE (CP) — Teams from Thornhill, Sudbury, Cobourg and Bradford won their games as the Ontario high school basketball Golden Ball tournament opened here Friday.

Thornhill defeated Smith Falls Falls 59-46, St. Charles College of Sudbury defeated Oshawa Central 64-51, Cobourg collegiate downed Barrie Central 56-44 and St. John's College of Bradford defeated Ridgemont high of Ottawa 53-36.

Dale Crouter scored 28 points for Thornhill while Smiths Falls was led by F. G. Allard with 14 points.

G. Polano led Sudbury with 20 points and D. Calder and Al Bruno scored 18 each for Oshawa.

Jim Carroll scored 22 points in the Bradford victory while P. Scobie had nine for Ottawa.

Six games will be played today and the winners advance into the tournament semi-finals and the losers go into a consolation pool.

Regina Wins Farmers Curl Title

Skip Bob Pickering and his rink finished with an unbeaten record of six wins and no losses in the seven-rink, round-robin series.

Ontario gained a 3-3 record. in other final round play, Mel Watchhorn of Northern Alberta defeated Dale Fagen of Alberta 6-4 and Ray Grant of Markham, Ont., clipped Stan Autman of Hanley, Sask., 5-4.

'Arry, 'Arriett Eye Big Double

British Tracks Open Monday

LONDON (CP) — Britain's 1964 flat-racing season opens Monday, whetting speculative appetites for the big "spring double."

This combines the Lincolnshire, a one-mile handicap run Wednesday in the cathedral city of Lincoln, with the Grand National, a steeplechase held at Aintree, a Liverpool suburb.

Both events draw big fields and usually result in box-car payoffs, assuring a banner season for the few who link the winners.

Irish horses dominated racing last season and it may be the same story this year. Ireland's Vincent O'Brien trained by phenomenally successful Paddy Prendergrass, is 10-to-1 favorite for the Lincolnshire and Flying Wild, a grey mare from Ireland, is top choice at Aintree along with Kilmore, of the man of the party at 14.

Racing writers are wary about English prospects. There have been too many "talking horses" and sensations in the making go belly-flop in the racecourse test.

Irish - trained Sasta Clous heads the Epsom Derby hopes and French invader Paulina seems to have the fillies' class slot at her mercy. The only English hope advanced with confidence is Showdown, favorite for the Two Thousand Guineas.

The Queen has a large but mainly untried entry. It includes two - year - old Kilmiat, presumably named for the big development in Scottish Cohoirhis.

Legalized betting shops and television broadcasts are causing a slump in racecourse attendances, giving rise to fears that Britain may become a second-class racing power. Purses are much higher in France, where bookmakers are illegal, and doping scandals are causing worry in Britain.

Wow! And They Call Boys Tough

WINNIPEG (CP) — Members of a girls' community club hockey team attacked an opposition club here off the ice after losing an exhibition match 1-0, it was reported Friday.

Mrs. E. M. McKinnon, president of the Broadway Optimist Community Club, said she was shocked and disgusted at the conduct of her club's team.

Reports of the Monday evening incident said members of the Optimist team waded into the 13-year-olds during the Riverview Community Club with sticks and skates.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Now, whoever said the nine-team Canadian Football League is a penny-ante outfit? There's nothing wrong with our $8,000,000-a-year pastime that a few more bucks thrown to players in the Grey Cup final wouldn't cure.

This has been a touchy subject for years, specifically since 1960 when the Grey Cup champion Ottawa Rough Riders of that year decided the $900-a-player payment was ridiculous.

"Hell," said one Rough Rider at the time, "I lose money by getting into the Grey Cup game. That three hundred bucks is a quarter of what I made per game during the season. So why should I or any of my teammates take a big cut in salary for playing in the Canadian final?"

Rough Riders formed a players' union and they had high hopes of getting the other clubs to follow their example and eventually make it a national organization. Nothing came of it — except that the Ottawa players got through to the CFL.

Grey Cup payments gradually were increased and last year players on the champion Hamilton Tiger-Cats got $800 each and the losing British Columbia Lions $500 apiece.

That proved the CFL was listening.

TO INSURE PLAYERS

Then, just a month ago, the league set up an insurance plan for its players that will provide each with a $20,000 life insurance policy, including a year-round disability clause. This will cost the CFL an estimated $25,000 a year.

At the same time the league announced it would throw an additional $25,000 into the kitty for the Grey Cup players. Now, each player on the winning team will receive $1,250 and each on the losing team gets $500

This, with playoff player pools in the Eastern and Western Conferences, means a maximum of $2,350 to each player on the cup-winning team. The losing team's players' share is $1,600 each.

Not bad, but let's take other big league sport.

In 1963, the Stanley Cup-winning Toronto Maple Leafs received $5,000 a player and Detroit Red Wings, defeated in the final, $2,700 each. Here's how it worked:

Last players' received $1,500 for their National Hockey League first-place finish. They got another $1,500 for beating Montreal Canadiens in the semi-final and an additional $2,000 for beating the Red Wings in the final series.

BASEBALL BONANZA

Each Red Wing received $250 for the club's fourth-place finish. $1,500 for its semi-final win over Chicago Black Hawks and $1,000 for its appearance in the final.

Gross gate in the Stanley Cup playoffs totalled $845,000. Gross gate in the Grey Cup final at Vancouver was close to $500,000.

In the world series, members of the winning Los Angeles Dodgers received $12,794 each and the losing New York Yanks got $7,574. Gate receipts for the four games were $1,200,000 and the players' pool was $1,017,546.

In the National Football League final, each member of the winning Chicago Bears received $8,000 and the losing New York Giants $4,500. Gross receipts totalled about $1,500,000.

The CFL could go further towards player payments in the Grey Cup final. After all, they are the fellows who attract up to 34,000 fans at seat prices ranging from $3 to $12.

Thomasburg

THOMASBURG — Mr. and Mrs. Thomas White and Mr. and Mrs. Harold G. Morton have returned from a two weeks' holiday in Florida and southern U.S.A.

The sympathy of the district is extended to the bereaved family of Mrs. Mathew English of Tweed, a former resident of Thomasburg, whose funeral took place in the W. M. Bush Funeral Home, Tweed, on Thursday afternoon with interment in Thomasburg cemetery.

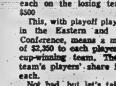
Mr. and Mrs. Fred Agnew attended the funeral on Thursday last at Orono of Mr. Gordon Agnew of Newcastle. Out Thomasburg, was the editor of the "Newcastle Independent," and an uncle of Mr. Fred Agnew and had visited with Mr. and Mrs. Agnew here quite frequently in the past.

Miss Sharon Carleton, Belleville, visited Miss Jean Anne Goss over the weekend.

Mr. Ambrose Donoher who has been a patient in Belleville hospital has returned home.

Mr. Lewis Adams, who has been confined to his home by illness is much improved and able to return to work.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Vance of Perth, were weekend guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Vance and family.



On Saturday evening about 30 guests gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Fisher and family to honor Miss Marlene Robinson and Mr. Ambrose Donoher, both of Thomasburg, who are to be married in March. They were presented with a blanket. A tray supper, served buffet style, was enjoyed, around midnight.

Mrs. Don Geen, who has been a patient in Belleville hospital for some time and who underwent surgery on Monday, is improving and is expected to return home in the near future.

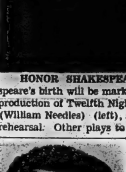
'Artistic' Counterfeiter Gets 7 Years

VANCOUVER (CP) — Convicted counterfeiter Stephen Humen, 34, whose lawyer contended Friday he was involved in an "artistic" crime rather than a serious crime, was jailed for seven years by Magistrate Gordon Scott.

Humen, a former member of the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra, was charged following seizure of $200,000 worth of U.S. $10 and $20 bills made by Humen.

City Prosecutor Stewart McMorran said two of the three passers caught have been jailed in Toronto and the third man is awaiting sentence.



He said the counterfeit bills have turned up in eight cities in the U.S. and Canada.

HONOR SHAKESPEARE'S BIRTH — The 400th anniversary of Shakespeare's birth will be marked this year by the CBC with a $100,000 television production of Twelfth Night. Two of the characters, Sir Andrew Aguecheek (William Needles) (left), and Sir Toby Belch (Douglas Campbell) are shown in rehearsal. Other plays to be televised are Othello and Hamlet. (CP Photo)

AT THE BELLE — Cary Grant is the affable adventurer who instigates and supplies assistance as he unchants and baffles Audrey Hepburn in "Charade", an unusual Technicolor mass of love, laughs and adventure, tied with the usual conventional charm of an amour in Paris in the forties. "Charade" is continuing at the Belle theatre today through Tuesday, matinee daily.

AT THE PARK — Mickey Spillane as two-fisted private eye Mike Hammer, and Shirley Eaton as Velda portrays the beautiful young widow of a communist-fighting U.S. senator whose murder causes a sudden pause in Mike's pursuit of a vicious international assassin in "The Girl Hunters" opening Monday at the Park theatre. Based on Spillane's latest Mike Hammer book. On the same program is "Twice-Told Tales", "The Vampire". Two thrillers are first showings. Complete shows at 7.00 and 8.55 p.m.

CBC Marks Shakespeare's 400th Anniversary With Drama, Documentary, Music

By DAVE PIKE

TORONTO (CP) — A wealth of programming rich in drama, documentary and music, observing the 400th anniversary of Shakespeare's birth, begins on CBC-TV next month with the network's own $100,000-production of Twelfth Night.

The comedy, which rides several minutes over two hours, was produced and directed by George McCowan, who directed The Tempest last year at Stratford, Ont. It will be telecast April 8.

Other highlights include the BBC's ambitious Hamlet and a repeat performance of the CBC's Othello, the Verdi opera that received critical acclaim when first broadcast last season.

Hamlet, to be telecast April 15 on the festival series, was filmed at Kronborg Castle, Elsinore, Denmark, and stars Canadian Christopher Plummer.

The two-hour and 50-minute production is described by former Canadian TV producer Sydney Newman, now BBC-TV drama chief, as the "most wonderful, complicated and exacting production ever done for television."

In directing Twelfth Night, McCowan has cut the text by 20 or 30 minutes for the sake of relieving some of the obscurities of the peculiarly temporal puns.

PLAY IT STRAIGHT

CBC programmers originally wanted to pay homage to the Bard on a grander scale with Hamlet, a Macbeth and the Lear, but McCowan disagreed, contending that the "big plays are too big for the living room." In a production, say, of Lear, the "ideas, emotionally and intellectually, are too great in scope of the language, are too large for television." He felt the "intimate kind of relationship of a play like Twelfth Night would have a better chance of getting across on this medium."

Describing it as a dark comedy, rather than a farce—the play revolves around mistaken identity and complicated love—McCowan decided to play Twelfth Night "quite straightforwardly to mark the contrast quite clearly between the ornate nobility and the gutter, to blend these two worlds essentially through comic figures."

McCowan gave the setting—the indeterminate land of Illyria—a Venetian atmosphere. Fifty tons of water were hauled into the studio for canals.

Most of the cast principals are current or former members of Canada's Stratford Festival company. They include Douglas Campbell, one of the world's foremost players of Shakespeare's comic characters, as Sir Toby Belch, Douglas Rain, Bruno Gerussi, William Needles, Martha Henry and Michael Learned. There are about 35 cast members.

OPERA IN ENGLISH

Othello, based on the Shakespearean tragedy, will be telecast April 22. Verdi's Othello, it stars tenor Richard Cassilly in the title role, soprano Ilona Kombrink as Desdemona and Louis Quilico as Iago. Ernesto Barbini conducts a full symphony orchestra and a chorus of 54.

CBC-TV's Horizon, a Sunday night public affairs program, will carry a one-hour special, This Was a Man, April 12. Set in Stratford-on-Avon and London, England, it features offcamera readings from Shakespeare by Douglas Rain, Diane Maddox, Hugh Webster and Ruth Springford.

CBC Radio programming gets under way April 10 with the first of four dramatized episodes of Julius Caesar, to be presented on National School Broadcasts. Cast members are Douglas Campbell, Barry Morse and John Colicos.

Radio productions will include a series of five talks on Shakespeare beginning April 19 on CBC's University of the Air, with Sir Tyrone Guthrie or a member of the authorities discussing the Bard and his plays, and A Day in the Life of Shakespeare, a 90-minute program written by Arnold Edinborough to be aired April 25. The CBC Stage series has scheduled a 90 - minute dramatized biography of one of Shakespeare's most colorful characters, entitled The Fortunes of Falstaff, on April 24.

To wrap up the programming, the Sunday Night series will feature performances of Tudor music from Toronto and Vancouver April 26, May 3 and May 10.

New Set-Counting Gimmick Could Upset Rating System

By RALPH DIGHTON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Discovery of a new way of counting how many television sets are tuned to a particular show could revolutionize the controversial program-rating industry.

The inventor says the system, which involves trucks with revolving circular antennas that pick up signals from each home set as they roll down the street, will make obsolete rating methods including Internicker and diaries kept by pre-selected viewers and recorders attached to sets.

Tanner says his system can sample thousands and that no viewer will know he is being sampled.

One of the few outsiders who has seen the device is Jerry Champion of ABC television's transmission engineering department, says: "I haven't felt so strongly about anything since the advent of videotape. There is no question about it working —it is very accurate."

SETS ARE TRANSMITTERS

The device works on the principle that each home television set is in a sense a transmitter as well as a receiver. The signal the set picks up from the broadcasting station is converted into a beam of electrons that strike the screen in the tube.

The make-up of this beam differs according to the program.

The revolving antenna on the truck is so sensitive that it can pick up scattered signals from the beam of electrons at a distance of 100 feet or more, Tanner says.

By electronically comparing signals given off by the set with signals transmitted from the station the device instantly identifies the channel to which the set is tuned.

MEETS DE GAULLE

PARIS (AP) — French President de Gaulle and Algerian President Ben Bella met in a secluded Chateau Friday for talks believed to bear on Algeria's vast oil and gas resources. It was the first meeting between the head of the French republic and the Algerian who was a political prisoner in France for six years before Algeria gained its independance.

CANADIANS' ARRIVAL CALMS CYPRIOTS

Famed Van Doos Winging Way To Cyprus

Governor-General Sees First Airlift Off

By GERRY McNEIL

Planes carrying more men were to leave Ancienne-Lorette airport every hour on the hour today on the 30-hour trip to the Mediterranean Island, where about 1,150 Canadian soldiers have been called to help keep the peace.

Traffic at Ancienne - Lorette airport was jammed for three miles as the first RCAF Hercules took off for Cyprus with 21 men, four jeeps and 720 canned meals.

Two hours later, another big Hercules left with 43 men and two jeeps. Then three roaring Yukons departed with 53 men each.

The Hercules were to stop at Goose Bay, Labrador, Marville, France, and Athens before landing at Nicosia at about noon EST today.

The faster Yukons were expected to make the trip in about 16 hours, without stopping at Goose Bay.

ADDRESS BEING

As wet snow fell on the puddled parade square at Camp Valcartier, high in the Laurentians 15 miles north of Quebec City, General Vanier told the troops:

"In the course of two world wars, the regiment has achieved an honorable tradition of fortitude and sacrifice in the defence of liberty."

Today the reason for your leaving us is not war, but the will to prevent war. This task, which demands the highest qualities of head and heart, is not less noble.

"But I have confidence in you."

The men of the 1st Battalion are nearly all from Quebec and nearly all French - Canadian, with a few not speaking any French. About 80 per cent haven't been service outside Canada before — others generally are experienced—many having fought in Korea, served with the United Nations in Israel or The

Elizabeth, Richard Married

MONTREAL (CP) — Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton, stars of a widely - touted romance, are likely to leave Montreal today after an unannounced ceremony at a downtown hotel which made them man and wife.

The simple, single-ring wedding Sunday capped a courtship that began on a movie set and continued in a glare of publicity until two divorces ruling-left the couple free to marry.

They were expected to return to Toronto today where Burton, born the son of a Welsh coal miner, was to continue as leading man in a production of Shakespeare's Hamlet.

The couple arrived from Toronto with nine other persons on a chartered airliner Sunday, then they whisked to the Ritz-Carlton Hotel where the marriage ceremony was performed by a Unitarian minister.

Miss Taylor wore a yellow chiffon gown as she and the rugged - looking actor were joined in marriage in the royal suite of the hotel.

IS BEST MAN

Bob Wilson, a friend of the groom from New York City, served as best man as 11 of the couple's friends and associates from Canada and the United States looked on.

Lou Herman, a Toronto lawyer, made arrangements for the wedding in collaboration with two Montreal lawyers, Max Bernfeld and his son, Edward.

Rev. Leonard Mason, minister of the Church of the Messiah, officiated. His church is located not far from the hotel.

Miss Taylor, three times divorced, is a convert to Judaism, while Miss Burton, divorced from his first wife last December, said in 1962 he had no conventional religion.

Miss Taylor's dress was designed by a friend, Irene Sharaff. Her hairdresser, Ronald Dean Mann, was among those attending the ceremony.

Tax Cuts Unlikely In Budget

By ALAN DONNELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—Some longstanding questions likely will be answered tonight when Walter Gordon delivers his second budget speech in the Commons.

Issues of tax rates, economic growth, foreign investment and federal-provincial affairs may all be affected by the decisions announced by the 38-year-old finance minister. His speech will start when the Commons reassembles at 8 p.m. EST following the supper adjournment.

Mr. Gordon faces the same dilemma he had last year—a lack of room to manoeuvre.

He has another large budget deficit behind him—$685,000,000 for the fiscal year ending March 31—and with pressures on him to reduce the deficit, major tax cuts are unlikely.

MUST BE PALATABLE

But the other side is the political pressure on the minority Liberal government. Although its defeat in the Commons appears unlikely, this isn't out of the question—and the government must be prepared to contest an election at any time. Thus the budget must be politically palatable.

The budget will contain a forecast of the economic weather ahead, probably predicting that the current economic upswing now entering its fourth year will about match in 1964 its performance last year.

The actual tax measures in the budget will show whether the government has decided to give a further impetus to the economy, particularly in problem areas of slow growth and high unemployment.

Foreign investors, especially those controlling companies in Canada, will be waiting to see whether Mr. Gordon carries further his avowed intent to slow down and eventually reverse the extension of foreign control in Canadian industry.

Provincial premiers will be listening too for any sign of Ottawa's attitude on their hopes for increased revenue from federal - provincial tax - sharing arrangements. No change is likely this year, beyond the extra $87,500,000 announced last November. But a new federal - provincial review opens in Quebec City two weeks from Tuesday.

WAITS FOR REPORT

On the question of tax changes, Mr. Gordon has almost said he preferred to wait for the report of the royal commission on taxation, expected later this year.

He has been under heavy pressure to do away with the 5 per cent imposed by his last budget on building materials and goods and services tax. The tax originally was set at 11 per cent, but Mr. Gordon stretched out the impact by reducing the levy to four per cent, with an additional four per cent to be added April 1, 1964, and the three-per-cent tax to come next Jan. 1.

It has hinted at the possibility of an adjustment in last year's controversial 10 per cent ownership applied to prefrigeration-certified subsidiaries into making a minimum 25 per cent ownership available to Canadian investors. For companies which don't do this, withholding tax on dividends transferred out of Canada is scheduled to rise to 30 per cent from 15 next Jan. 1.

It has been suggested that the 5 per cent corporate tax cuts in the United States may make the change in withholding tax unnecessary.

GETS NEW LIFE

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Council of Christian Education, which a year ago considered voting itself out of existence, decided Sunday to take a new lease on life. The action followed 17 months of study by members of the council, composed of representatives of the Baptist, United and Presbyterian churches, Society of Friends, Disciples, Evangelical United Brethren, Salvation Army and the YMCA and YWCA.

Tension Is High But Isle Becomes Unusually Quiet

Five More RCAF Planes Due in Nicosia Today

CP from AP-Reuters

NICOSIA — An additional 223 Canadian troops were due in Cyprus tonight for the United Nations peace force. The island itself was unusually quiet.

Although tension remained high, a lull in the fighting between Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots continued into the sixth day. Arrival of the Canadian troops was considered to have had a calming effect.

Five more RCAF transport planes were due in Nicosia today. Additional troops were to depart by air today from Quebec and Halifax. The Canadian aircraft carrier Bonaventure was being loaded at Halifax for departure Wednesday with 100 soldiers and 60 vehicles.

Canadian officials hope to have the entire Canadian contingent of 1,150 men in Cyprus by March 24. An advance party of 106 officers and men came in three planes during the week-end.

PROMISE TROOPS

Finland, Sweden and Ireland also have promised troops for the international army, but there was no word when they or any would arrive. Secretary-General U Thant hopes to create a UN police force of 7,000 men, including 2,500 members of the present British peacekeeping contingent on Cyprus.

Ireland's Premier Sean Lemass told reporters upon arrival in London Sunday for a trade show that there was a flood of volunteers for his country's pledged contingent of 500 men.

Although the Greek - Cypriot population has denounced British for its efforts to enforce a truce on the island, their government called the arrival of the Canadians. In an airport welcome, Interior Minister Georgeos Georgadjis said, "The contribution of the UN force to efforts of the Cyprus government to restore law and order will be immense."

The meeting was reported on Cyprus Sunday.

A Cypriot government spokesman said Turkish Cypriots set a fire to some unoccupied Greek-

Four Ont. Doctors Censured

TORONTO (CP) — Four Ontario doctors have been found guilty of a variety of offences and three of them disciplined by the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Disciplinary measures listed in the semi-annual report of the college discipline committee, received by doctors Saturday, ranged from a reprimand to erasure of a doctor's name from the rolls of licensed physicians.

The four named were Robert Ringsley Graham, Franz Joseph Wuss, Kenneth Douglas Johnston and John Robert LaCroix. None was identified as to his place of practice.

Dr. Wuss had his name erased after being found guilty, in absentia, of "infamous and disgraceful conduct in a professional respect." The charge dealt with an attempt to procure a miscarriage.

IS REPRIMANDED

Dr. Graham received a reprimand, the silliest post-graduate, on three charges of improper conduct.

The report said he "admitted to declare a professional colleague as to the necessity for and/or the result obtained by a surgical procedure upon a patient," for entering "on a hospital operation record a post-operative diagnosis that he knew to be untrue," and for publishing "a reckless disregard for the interest of a patient by permitting his decision in regard to her to a hazardous surgical procedure, notwithstanding the opinions of colleagues and clinical evidence that such procedure was not called for."

Dr. Lacroix was severely reprimanded after being found guilty of disgraceful conduct.

In the other case, the disciplinary committee postponed imposition of a penalty against Dr. Johnston, guilty of professional misconduct in that

Ruby's Lawyers Prepare To Appeal Jury's Verdict

DALLAS (AP) — Jack Ruby remained alone in a jail cell today while his lawyers prepared to appeal the verdict of a Dallas jury which sentenced him to death for murder.

"Maximum security" surrounds Ruby, Sheriff Bill Decker said.

But Ruby's counsel, Melvin Belli, said he is worried about a possible attempt on Ruby's life and has asked for extra protection for him.

Whether or when he has actions lusted to the jolt of the verdict, he probably will be in a large cell with other prisoners," Decker said. "He's had maximum security from the beginning and he will continue to have it in jail."

Dallas authorities refused to "signify by comment" a statement Belli has made several times since Ruby was convicted Saturday of killing Lee Harvey Oswald, accused assassin of president Kennedy, last Nov. 24. The lawyer said:

"Ruby is worried, and so am I, that they may slip, someone in his cell—another prisoner—with a shiv (knife) in order to prevent our appeal. Then they would make it appear as a suicide and this vicious city would have him off their hands."

Throughout the 23-day trial, three guards sat near Ruby in court—so near, in fact, that once Belli once protested they were listening to his conversations with Ruby. They were seated in such a way as to be able to watch the spectators.

Saturday, before the verdict was handed down, Decker put three more in the front row of seats.

"I haven't gambled since they brought Ruby here," the sheriff said, "and I'm certainly not going to gamble today."

Belli continued to rage against the Dallas oligarchy and insist that Ruby was "railroaded."

To Probe Press Gallery

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—The Parliamentary Press Gallery, unchanged for several years by MPs in the Commons privileges committee, seems headed for a searching investigation by the Commons committee on privilege.

The committee's main task is to review the rules under which the House of Commons operates and to make any recommendations on them, or other matters, to strengthen Parliament and make it more effective.

Under this general directive, the procedures committee presided over by speaker Alan Macnaughton is considering the facilities provided by Parliament for the press to use in reporting Parliamentary and government news.

The main criticism of the gallery has involved the manner in which it exercises control over who may hold gallery membership—and the right to refer to certain physical facilities in the Parliament building such as press rooms, desks, and space in the gallery overlooking the Commons chamber.

The gallery has confined accreditation to full-time, salaried correspondents of newspapers, magazines and broadcasting outlets. Anyone else, such as a part - time correspondent, has had to make his own arrangements about Parliamentary coverage with the Speaker.

A number of MPs have objected to what they regard as the gallery's barrier to use of public facilities to report Parliament. They have tried, so far without success, to change the gallery's practice.

These efforts have been confined mostly to the Commons privileges committee but the

De Gaulle's Foes Are Encouraged By Regional Council Elections

PARIS (AP) — Opponents of President Charles Gaulle took some heart today from the indifferent showing by his Union for a New Republic (UNR) in elections for regional councils throughout France.

After the second round of voting Sunday, de Gaulle's party had won 123 of the 1,522 local council seats at stake. That was a gain of 33 seats but was a far cry from the party's great success in the 1962 elections when it won almost half the seats in the National Assembly.

"What counts most is the defeat suffered by the UNR," said Guy Mollet, secretary-general of the Socialist party. "Certainly it is only the beginning of a reawakening of the democrats, but it is a start full of promise."

De Gaulle stayed aloof from the campaign but local leaders also played a big part. His party realized all along it was waging an uphill fight.

The Socialists won the most seats of any party, 286, a gain of 102. The Communists almost doubled their seats, going to 90 from 50. The big losers were the Radical Socialists, who lost 84 and got a total of 199, and the National Committee of Independents, which won 165, a loss of 64.

Half the councils are elected every three years. In the first round of voting a week ago, 909 candidates were elected by majority votes. The remaining 593 seats were filled Sunday, with 1,206 candidates going to the second date with the largest vote in the race.

De Gaulle Begins Campaign To up French Influence

MEXICO CITY (AP). — A million Mexicans were expected to turn out in Mexico's capital today in an enthusiastic welcome for President de Gaulle as he begins a campaign to increase French influence in Latin America.

De Gaulle was to arrive in a French air force jet in the afternoon after a quick change of planes at the Yucatan Peninsula city of Merida, 635 miles east of Mexico City.

The French president and his wife spent the night on the French Caribbean island of Guadeloupe after a nine-hour trans-Atlantic flight from Paris aboard an Air France Boeing 707 jetliner.

At Merida, de Gaulle was to be joined by Mexican Education Minister Jaime Torres Bodet and French Ambassador Raymond Offroy for the last leg of his trip to Mexico City. Mexico's President Adolfo Lopez Mateos and other ranking government officials and the diplomatic corps were to welcome de Gaulle to Mexico City.

De Gaulle will spend four days in Mexico in an effort to boost French prestige and trade as a prelude to visits to Argentina, Brazil, Peru and Uruguay this fall. He is the first French president to visit Latin America.

French officials insist de Gaulle will not attempt to undercut traditional U.S. influence in Latin America, but Washington has its misgivings about what the visit will do to the bruised U.S. image in the area.

St. Jean Baptiste Society Wants Montrealers to Use French Only

MONTREAL (CP) — The key sectors of national life or stop speaking French altogether."

Montreal St. Jean Baptiste Society wants Montreal to become unilingual and to develop a French culture.

A resolution at a weekend meeting fixed this as the objective of the French-speaking population of the city's more than 900 members in Montreal.

The resolution called on the federal executive committee and city council to take the necessary measures to have French language the basic language for all city activities.

The resolution called on Ensign Montreal's French character and to take an interest in giving Montreal "a French face."

The theme of a planned campaign will be "in Montreal, French is spoken."

It called on all French-speaking Montrealers to speak none but their mother tongue in the streets and that French be used as the language in trade and communications.

It recommended that enterprises and institutions refusing to apply the principle should not be dealt with.

Maurice Beaulieu, director of the French language office of the Quebec cultural affairs department, told the meeting that French Canadians must either impose their language in the BANFF, Alta. (CP)—Professor Guy Dozois of the University of Ottawa told French Canadians find it more comfortable to live with their people than to try to understand French Canada.

Blair Fraser, Ottawa editor of Maclean's magazine, said questions concerning bicultralism are answered by most English-speaking Canadians "in an astounding order of ignorance and a descending order of good manners."

Prof. Dozois and Mr. Fraser were the main speakers at the basis of Confederation for the graduating class of the Banff School of Advanced Management.

He said French minorities in the provinces should enjoy the same privileges as minorities in Quebec.

Mr. Fraser said one of the "rudest, most ignorant and most insulting questions" of English - speaking Canadians is that the French "are a conquered nation defeated on the Plains of Abraham in 1760."

He said agreements subsequent to the Plains of Abraham battle gave the French certain rights concerning language and religion which must be honored.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Colder air will move across the Great Lakes tonight and Tuesday morning. Cloudiness will spread in ahead of the cold air later today and light snow is expected overnight throughout central and Northern Ontario with its arrival. A few showers or snow flurries are likely across southern Ontario. Mainly cloudy, windy and cold er is the prospect for Tuesday.

Y's Activities

Last Friday evening the boys Grey-V club got an early start on the summer with a sleepout at the Y.M.C.A. Fourteen boys (8 to 13 years old) along with their leader met at the "Y" with sleeping bags and grub in hand ready for an evening of fun and fellowship.

The evening was spent in swimming and various gymnasium activities. At midnight dog, buttered pop corn (popped on the spot) and candie roasted marshmallows; while listening to some favorite records (Beatles, etc.), concluded the main activities before bedtime. The sleeping bags were then pulled out on the tumbling mats and the boys were bedded down.

After a few interrupted hours of sep, everyone was up early for a morning dip before a hearty breakfast. The regular Saturday meeting was cancelled and the boys went home happy and tired.

This is one program which helps to fulfill the club purpose. "As members of Grey-V of the Young Men's Christian Association, it is our purpose to be strong in body, mind and spirit and to live in a Christian way in our homes, schools, churches and neighborhoods."

Mayor Will Attend Sportsmen's Show

Mayors and reeves from a number of municipalities in Ontario, including Mayor Jack Ellis of Belleville, will be guests of Mayor Philip Givens of Toronto at the 17th annual banquet and reception of the Canadian National Sportsmen's Show in the Coliseum, Toronto, on Wednesday.

Mr. Ellis, and the other mayors and reeves will pass through the four huge floors of the Coliseum where various exhibits of latest and old gear for sports, recreation, travel and camping are located.

Around the Tee

Mac White was booking up for his trip to Toronto in the Canadian finals for the mixed curling championship and with Ron Fralick, Roly Belanger and "Bud" Drury won the St. Patrick's spiel sponsored by the Trenton Curling Club on Saturday under the direction of the genial Gerry Cherry. There were sixteen rinks entered from the district with the Quinte Club supplying two and two of them came home with prizes. Mac had a terrific score a 49 out of a possible 54 for the three games, getting 17 points in his last game. Hal Haverstock of the RCAF was the runner-up in the three-game total, tucked with 44 points.

The two-game high winner was a rink from Trenton skipped by Neil Ramsay with a score of 26 points and closely followed by another Trenton rink skipped by Pete Aziz. In the one-game bracket was a rink skipped by Bill Riley for two games and the third by Bob Lanning. He had as his helpers, Al McCallam and Stan Beaton. The lone rink from land, James Duncan, came from away back in the first game to force an extra end against Riley and then drew close to the button for the winner.

The players were bedecked with fish and many wore the shamrock, the music was Irish and it was continuous and the finest of hospitality prevailed. It was an annual event and grows more popular year by year.

An Angler's bonspiel will be held at the Quinte Curling Club on Saturday, with two draws of eight rinks in each draw. The draw will be made away at nine and followed by one at eleven. There will be eight outside rinks competing against a like number from the local club. A couple of local rinks are required to fill out the entry so get your name up on the bulletin board. It is understood the meal to be served will be something special. This will probably be the last spiel of the local club this season. Murney Johnson will chair the event.

White's Rink Starts Against Northern Ont.

Mac White and his Quinte Curling Club Ontario Mixed champions faced the biggest test of their lives today.

Tonight at eight o'clock the Belleville rink meets seven Northern Ontario champions skipped by Wilfred Heron in the first draw of the National Curling Championships for the O'Keefe Trophy.

The week long tournament is being held at the Royal Canadian Curling Club, Toronto.

The White rink is drawn against the Prince Edward Island champions on Tuesday starting two p.m. Six hours later it faces the New Brunswick title holders.

In the rink drawn a bye in the Wednesday morning draw but meets the Saskatchewan champions at two p.m.

On Thursday it meets Nova Scotia at three p.m. and at eight o'clock throws stones against the Quebec title-holders.

In the Friday draw the Quinte curlers play against Newfoundland at two p.m. and Manitoba at seven p.m.

On Saturday the White-Bens rink meets Alberta at 10 a.m. and British Columbia at two p.m.

If a playoff is necessary it will be played at eight o'clock Saturday evening.

Home and Sport Show Success

The Quinte Home and Sports Show ended here Saturday night on a wet note, but members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce were pleased with the success of the show, held for four days at the Belleville Armouries.

Chairman of the Home and Sports Show Committee, Donald Dafoe, said that Saturday night's attendance was down from last year, possibly due to the rain.

Mr. Dafoe stated this morning the highest bid on the boat, which was purchased for a ticket draw, was received from Mr. Carl Hills of the Trent Road. The ticket draw had been cancelled and sealed tenders were then called by the Jaycees.

Mr. Dafoe also said that due to the success of the show, plans are already under way for the 1965 Home and Sports Show, which is expected to be held sometime toward the end of March next year.

BILINGUAL FITNESS

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)— Bilingualism has spread even to reducing classes here. The local YMCA has announced its upcoming keep-fit courses for women will be bilingual.

$1,300 Damage In 4-Car Crash On Bridge Street

Damage totalled nearly $1,300 Saturday evening when four cars—three of them parked—were involved in the same accident. There were no injuries.

Kenneth William Naylor of 14 Rumewood Drive, was eastbound on Bridge St. East about 6.50 p.m. when his car struck a car owned by Tracey Quinn, of Tweed, parked in front of the house at 315 Bridge Street East.

Mr. Quinn's car was pushed forward to strike a car owned by the International Hardware Co., and this car struck a car owned by Irene Margaret Tatham, of 233 Dundas St. W.

Damage to the Naylor car totalled about $400, to the Quinn car about $600, to the International Hardware car about $250 and to the Tatham car about $125.

BARRAGE — In loving memory of a dear father, Stanley Barrage, who passed away March 16, 1962.

Time may bring the old days back, but it cannot bring you back.

That is why we have to miss you.

Your memory is our treasure,

Which death can never steal.

—Wife Dorothy, daughter Joan and Mrs. Marjorie Barrage and husband Mac Rumball and grandson Ronnie.

MOSKIN — In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Ruth Moskin, who passed away March 16th, 1962.

Dear Ruth, you were taken from us so soon,

We do not know why,

But that tells more hard to climb.

In the Angel's choir you're singing,

And whispering to God above,

Please look down on those we've loved,

How sweet the memory still must be,

For we still love you so,

The world can never fill.

—Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by Mother and Dad, sisters, brothers and relatives, also son-in-law Ruth.

Jarko Zavi of Brighton, above, demonstrated his techniques in ceramic sculpture at a meeting of the Eastern-Central Ontario Art Association in Brighton yesterday.

Ceramics Demonstrated By Artist, Jarko Zavi

TRENTON — The work of Jarko Zavi, Canada's foremost professional ceramic artist, can be easily recognized by a characteristic "flow" of line.

"Ceramic doesn't lend itself to angular presentation," Mr. Zavi told the close to 100 members of the Eastern-Central Ontario Art Association at the all-day conference in Brighton yesterday.

Mr. Zavi demonstrated his techniques in hollow sculpture to the members of the art club. One member of the association, a Trenton man, Max Bellyou, is so convinced that Mr. Zavi's work will one day "be worth a fortune," that he is buying up every piece of sculpture he can afford, to add to his Zavi collection.

A native Bavarian, Mr. Zavi lived in Toronto for a number of years before moving to Brighton where he and his wife conduct art classes in oils and watercoloring. A few years ago, he won a gold medal for Canada at an International Ceramic Exhibition in Italy.

The 30-some members of the art association in Trenton and Brighton are branching out into ceramic work this year and work in silk screening, a technique ably illustrated at yesterday's session by Mrs. Kathleen Cardiff of Islington.

Mrs. Cardiff's work is recognized throughout Canada and her originals and reproductions on Christmas cards, head scarves, etc., are much sought after.

The association will sponsor an art exhibition, starting May 8, in the public library at Oshawa. Artists have been invited to submit three paintings and categories for judging run from strictly amateur, to semi-professional and professional.

Later this summer, the association means to spend a painting weekend somewhere in this area. Co-operative for yesterday's demonstration at the Brighton Legion hall was Mrs. Georgina Graham of Brighton.

Rumored 3 Stores Intend To Open on Good Friday

TRENTON — The rumored intention of two or three Trenton store managers to keep their stores open on Good Friday and the fact that two grocery stores in town, at least, are remaining open on Sundays, is causing concern among Trenton businessmen and the members of the Trenton Ministerial Association.

The executive members of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce are to meet this afternoon to discuss the issue and Rev. Douglas Wilson, president of the ministerial association said this morning that the association would meet in the near future to consider its stand.

Meanwhile, the law defines Good Friday as a "statutory holiday," but says "the law does not require private business firms to close on statutory holidays (except Sunday) or to pay employees unless they work on such days."

Nostrand Sprague, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce summed up his reaction to the proposed Good Friday opening today, "I was brought up to believe that Good Friday was the most holy day of the year. I'm against keeping stores open on that day."

Mr. Wilson indicated that the members of the association he had contacted would also be against the Good Friday opening and that a strong statement on the issue would be forthcoming from the association.

Airmen Return To Lead Loop

TRENTON — Trenton Airmen have returned to the lead in the Trenton Dart League standings and the playoff positions are now: Airmen, 7; Sgt. Mess, 6; Ted's Amigans and One Half Hundreds, 5; Glen Miller Wickens and Bear Cats, 4; Bar Flies and Eric 2; Hasty Pees Toppers, 2; Hasty Pees, 1.

Hidden score of 56 was taken by L. Bowman of the Sergeants this week.

ART EXHIBIT HELD

More than 20 local artists exhibited canvases at the Art Exhibition and Tea held Saturday in Broadner School, sponsored by the Middleton Park Local Association for Guides and Brownies and convened by Mrs. Sue Hunt. In charge of the art display was LAC Geoffrey Bowden. Ceramic work were displayed by Mrs. Frances King and the display featured carvings by Coker.

Among the local artists showing their work were: Bert Curtis, Mrs. Rhoda Bain, Mrs. McLeish, Mrs. Henry L. Lester, Mrs. Clark, Jean Vickery, Gerry Mrs. Dorothy Schroeder, Joan Anderson, Mrs. Gorman, Kenneth Blaind, Heather Izard, Donald Sharpe, Donald Refuse, Mrs. M. Bradley, Mrs. McNally and Mrs. Richards.

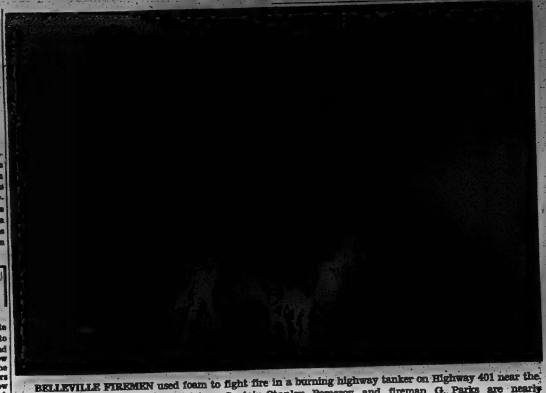
Legion Juveniles Trim Orillia In First Game

TRENTON — Trenton Legion Juveniles downed the Orillia Juveniles, five to two in the first of a five-game series for the quarter provincial playoffs at Trenton last night. The teams will play at Orillia on Tuesday and Friday of this week, returning to Trenton on Sunday, March 22.

Music Column

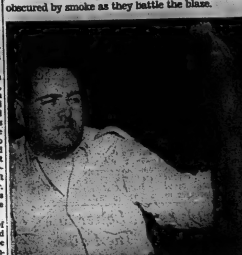
By HELEN WOOD

On Monday March 9, Quinte Secondary School was asked to enter their Senior Concert Band in the Home and Sport Show parade on Wednesday. As the slogan of musicians and actors all over the world is "The show must go on," we accepted although examinations started the following week.



A frenzy of preparation commenced at Quinte and at 6.15 p.m. Wednesday evening, sixty excited young students gathered at the Federal Buildings on Station Street.

Rising above the blast a strong soprano voice screamed, "Where is my music?" When a count was taken half the band had no music. Bob Woodward then borrowed Mr. Hafford's car to rush a few last minute students up to the school to get instruments, uniforms and the missing music. It was not until after he left we discovered several students had left their instruments in the car. With the car gone the students did not have a place to leave their empty instrument cases.



The remaining members of the band casually assembled and tuned their instruments in the lobby of the post office. Returning with the equipment Bob arrived just in time to see the band marching down the street without music.

The first of the four marches was played quite well but after we had completed the second march the players improvising gave up. At this point in the parade several woodwind and brass instruments began to not to mention the players. The few woodwind players that remained started the third march while the brass section played their own new version. I am sure we are the first band to play a march in Line but this accomplishment only brought laughs. The last march was played by approximately two players, none of whom, could read the music.

The highlight was reached at the armouries when the band was dismissed. We then rushed off to see Miss Canada, Lou Fontinato and the successful Home and Sports show. Although the band was not near its best we all tried and enjoyed doing it. We know that the people watching the parade will not judge a book by its cover.

BELLEVILLE FIREMEN used foam to fight fire in a burning highway tanker on Highway 401 near the Salmon River bridge Saturday. In picture, Captain Stanley Pomeroy and fireman G. Parks are nearly obscured by smoke as they battle the blaze.

THIS DRIVESHAFT broke and may have caused the fire that destroyed the tractor of a tractor-trailer highway tanker on Highway 401 Saturday. In the picture, driver of the tanker Marcel Le Beouf inspects the broken section of the shaft.

Fire Destroys Tractor of Fuel Tanker

The broken driveshaft of a tractor-trailer truck Saturday evening punched through the vehicle's gas tank and started a fire that destroyed the tractor. There were no injuries.

Marcel Le Beouf, 34, of Valleyfield, Quebec was driving the empty hydrofluoric-acid tanker back to Valleyfield. It was on highway 401 just west of the Salmon River bridge about 5.15 p.m. that the driveshaft broke and the vehicle took fire. The tractor was a near-total loss, the tank-type trailer was scorched, but not badly damaged. Belleville firemen, working under Deputy Chief Ted Foat, extinguished the blaze.

For several hours the fire and the resulting wreckage blocked the eastbound lane of the highway. Eastbound traffic was diverted across the median and along the westbound lane. Provincial police constable Wil-tiam Stephens investigated the incident.

Those who have it say it's great:

BELL'S BUSINESS INTERPHONE

Executive Command Post describes it best. Here's how it puts you in charge:

The intercom part gives you direct access to your key people (up to 17 of them). One push of a button—you're there. (They don't have to do anything; when they answer you, their voice does the switching.)

They can reach you equally fast. If you don't want to be disturbed, a little lever gives you privacy.

Mike and speaker, of course, are beautifully sensitive. You can move about your office, or have a group there to talk and listen—everybody will get every word.

Then the same set is hooked up to your outside lines—up to 11 if you need them. You can make your own calls, you can add others in on any call, you can hold an outside call while you use the intercom—in fact, as you can see, there isn't much by way of voice communication inside or outside your office that the Business Interphone won't do.

Our reps will be glad to tell you all about it. For an appointment, just call your local Bell Office!

Times Good, Results Poor

Canada's deficit for the fiscal year now drawing to a close is estimated at $325,000,000.

The best that can be said about this deficit is that it is lower, slightly, than that for the previous year.

Some find reason for optimism in the fact that, in the words of Finance Minister Walter Gordon's "white paper," the economic upswing which began in 1961 "shows no signs of weakening."

Nobody could twist this happy fact into bad news. Still, it should serve to remind us that we are, today, enjoying prosperous times. The fact does nothing to lessen the seriousness of the continuation of large deficits.

Canada is like a poker player who is being dealt pair hands but who yet loses money.

What is going to happen when the cards are poor?

If we cannot ply our own way now, what will our national deficits be like when the economic tide ebbs, as it almost certainly will?

New Hampshire King-Makers

Those Canadians who take an interest in U.S. politics—and what thinking man does not?—will find the results of the New Hampshire primary thought-provoking.

Henry Cabot Lodge, a man whose name was not on the ballot, headed the Republican presidential preference ballot, running away from two supposedly serious candidates in Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York State and Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

Canadians are likely to shed few tears over the rebuff to Goldwater. He is the darling of the U.S. conservatives, but their conservatism is of a kind long since obsolete in Canada, where those who proudly wear this label have patterned their development after that of their namesakes in the United Kingdom. Goldwater himself might conceivably have considered linking the words "progressive" and "conservative" but the bulk of his support comes from people who would be shocked by policies long espoused by Conservative party members in Canada and Britain.

Nelson Rockefeller is a man of an altogether different stripe, in step with the times and probably the most liberal-minded Republican of any stature since Wendell Willkie. Though he shared Goldwater's fate, it can hardly have been for the same reason. His failure is generally ascribed to the implications of his divorce. Adlai Stevenson, another divorced man, was twice defeated in presidential elections. There is no clear-cut proof that Stevenson's divorce was an important factor in these results—but Republicans apparently do not want to take chances.

Henry Cabot Lodge himself may not bear a name to conjure with in Canada, but in New England it is different. In one person he combines the lineage of two illustrious Boston families, one of which is reported to speak only to the other and the second only to God.

It is interesting to speculate whether, in this sudden turning to the aristocracy, the Republicans are consciously seeking to emulate the Democrats, who rode to victory on the appeal of another aristocrat, John Fitzgerald Kennedy. Kennedy, though, for all his father's immense wealth, was a new-comer, his family only lately having emerged into those circles in which Cabots and the Lodges have walked for generations.

Meanwhile the Democrats in New Hampshire were busy trying to retain the magic of the Kennedy name, without risking any dangerous switching of horses in mid-stream. Write-in votes established President Lyndon Johnson as the choice for re-election, but gave him Attorney-General Robert Kennedy, the assassinated President's brother, as a running-mate. With two vice-presidents having been elevated to the presidency in less than two decades, a position which once was regarded as virtually meaningless is becoming carefully attended.

Johnson and Kennedy appear a probable Democratic team. Despite his victory it is much too early to regard Lodge as a really serious contender for the Republican nomination, but both Rockefeller and Goldwater have seen their chances dimmed. As a result, we may look for the name into the lists of other Republican hopefuls, who might have stayed on the sidelines had either Goldwater or Rockefeller shown convincing strength.

If it were not for the fact that President Johnson appears likely to win re-election, the voters of one small New England state might thus have played a key role in deciding the future of the world during the next decade.

It Is Easier If You're Poor

Down at the level at which ordinary citizens live, the annual struggle goes on this time of year with the unavoidable delays, if not the cries.

The T1 Short is said to be simpler this year, as the result of it is computed on data filled in per cent of all the taxpayers make their return. This year's edition has been broadened, the makers claim, to cover 80 per cent of taxpayers. If you're poor, you have to think a little harder than city wage-earners. As self-employed people, they use T1 Long, a man who is expert in crop rotations and beneficiary formulations can still be defeated by T1 Long, and many farmers now shy away from the word entirely when income-tax forms are mentioned and someone else to grapple with the T1 for them is hired.

One of the agreeable aspects of making out income tax this year is that we are not likely to be confronted with those three-letter words, T2036, T2037 and T2038. These high numbers in the T series are to go from Ottawa to the Queen Anne, in the next two weeks, to a select group consisting of those who reported in their 1963 income tax returns made in 1963, an income of more than $25,000 in 1962.

People who were self-employed in 1963 will get T2037. Employers of people who work on salary and earned over $25,000, will get T2038. On one form or the other, the Department of National Revenue has a lot of questions to be answered, by the taxpayer or his employer. The questions are designed to ferret out cases of "expense-account living." The Department of National Revenue, for example, says that a man who took his wife on a trip to Europe, and charged up vacation trip expenses, is suspect.

One question on T2038 enquires: "Did you pay him a salary unaccountably disproportionate to, or equal to $30 a day or higher to cover travel (excluding transportation) expenses, entertainment or promotion or car expenses?" If the answer is "Yes," details and explanations are required, to explain in detail the amount and nature of such expenses.

That's how complicated things are 13 such questions, craftily designed to uncover the use of company cars, owned summer cottages, the use of company automobiles for transportation of relatives of the taxpayer, the payment of automobile mileage at any rate in excess of 12 cents a mile for the distance actually travelled on company business, and so on.

Form T2037, for the self-employed, only has 11 questions. Simply stated, they boil down to a request that costs of renting or operating a house trailer, aircraft, yacht, houseboat, racing horse, hunting lodge, summer cottage, house apartment, household furniture, or fireplace or similar property used by you or someone related to you (T2037 has a question for "Yes," further answers and explanations are required. There are 10 more such questions.

The two forms should uncover a few cases of people who cheated, when making out their income-tax returns a year ago now. It will also, obviously, impose a lot of extra labor in filling on people who were honest in their tax returns, and did not cheat.

In a Pollyanna mood, anyone now preparing his income tax file, little T1 Short should be grateful that he made less than $25,000 in 1962.

Letter to The Editor

Oral French Classes Local Responsibility

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

Enclosed is a clipping from the Wednesday, March 11th, Toronto Star, regarding a discussion between four members of the Ontario Legislature in committee on Children and the Deputy Minister of Education regarding the teaching of oral French in public schools.

The most interesting part of this article is the statement by the deputy minister that the ultimate responsibility for introducing French in elementary schools lies with the local school board.

Mr. L. A. Kelly, as spokesman for the Belleville Public School Board, in answer to a resolution presented to the local board by Avondale Home and School Association on February 17th, requesting that oral French be taught in Belleville public schools said that Belleville should make haste slowly and should not introduce such a programme. The Department of Education had submitted one.

In view of the statement by the deputy minister and the ardent support given to the oral French programme in the present unwieldy and unsatisfactory form it is suggested that the Belleville Public School Board reconsider its position on oral French. Mr. Kelly's statement now has a ring of "after you my dear Alphonse" "no after you, my dear Gaston."

The deputy minister emphasized that French in elementary schools is not a compulsory subject in this area. If the school board refuses to reconsider this matter, perhaps a plebiscite could be held in conjunction with the next election of Public School Board officials. This may clarify a point which the Home and School Association have been trying, unsuccessfully, to make for some time.

Yours truly,
Sheila C. Lavigne.

Stricly Personal
Pipe-Smoking Ritualistic Amongst Pros

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

What with all the ominous medical talk about the cigarette-and-cancer link, I've been toying with the idea of taking up a pipe. That is, I was toying with the idea, until I read Dunhill's snoop around my pipe-smoking friends.

These chaps need more equipment and resources than a corps of engineers in the field. It is not merely a matter of buying a pipe and sticking a fistful of tobacco in the bowl. Any pipe smoker caught doing this is considered a bounder who wants to probably shoot a grouse sitting.

The real sport in pipe smoking is to discover a pipe for yourself, in setting up almost insurmountable handicaps to pipe-smoking afterwards. The really rigidly structured form of asceticism, more than a pleasure.

The gentleman pipe smoker, first of all, has to hunt down a special tobacco. He will say his tobacco that is sold only in a shop on the Left Bank on an outpost along the Hudson Bay. Then he imports his "dun" at Dunhill's, and it comes in under number like X-38, Private Stock.

If he finds it can be easily bought in Toronto, he feels he goes out of it, and he has to look around for another hilious tobacco that has been brought from Nome by dog pack.

Very often even this does not satisfy him for a moment, and when the tobacco arrives he adds to its his own mixture of whole Virginia leaves, chopped-up rubber bands, a dash of paprika, and passes it around proudly to his fellow pipe-smoking colleagues. Sometimes they curl up and die on the spot.

But this is only the beginning. It is necessary to have at least 15 pipes, all specially constructed, of course, by a firm in California, one for each day in the week as well as holidays and mornings-after.

These pipes must hang in a sanctified container and any woman of the house who dares to stick the Monday pipe in the Friday rack is faced with instant dismemberment. Talk about religious fanatics.

We must not forget the reamer, the tamper, the scraper, the poker, the mesher, and the dozen or other mysterious gadgets that are closely guarded in a locked drawer. Overhauling a pipe, I gather, is something like taking down the rear end of a car, and soon becomes a life work, like building ships in bottles.

Despite these delicate and loving operations, the pipes have to be taken to the tobacconist's every three months to have their valves ground or something. And when they come back, bright and shining, they stink as outrageously as before.

But to a pipe smoker, this odor is Nirvana in its purest form. Boy, bring me a pack of those cancer-laden cigarettes.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

March 18th, 1944.

The annual report of the County Public Library, submitted to the Library Board at their recent meeting contains information of definite interest to the ratepayers of the city, in that it is revealed that the library is being used to good advantage by almost all its persons. During the year there were 981 new members added to the library's roll of borrowers, making the total membership for the city 8,983, which is considerably more than half the population of the city is registered. Circulation figures for the year were 102,842, showing a slight decrease compared to the total 1943.

The distributing times in which we live have created a thirst for knowledge. People demand more and better books dealing with the social, economic and spiritual problems of the day. The library has tried to meet this demand by diligently studying reviews and criticisms of books and so provide as far as our limited budget permits, the best books on these topics for the Belleville reading public. To acquaint the readers with books that have been added the newer books were reviewed in The Library Corner," a space headed weekly by the Ontario Intelligencer to keep the readers of the library before the public.

For books on specialized subjects, we must resources of Queen's and Toronto Universities' libraries are available to Belleville through inter-library loan; one book was borrowed from the library of Congress, Washington, D.C., through inter-library loan.

30 YEARS AGO

The warmer weather has caused tenants to be on the march around the city. Monday night 22 men were given shelter at the police station.

Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Maybee of Bloomfield will celebrate their golden anniversary of their wedding. They were married on Sunday March 15th, 1903 at the home of Mayne in Cherry Valley at which the members of the lasse Maybee were present. Mr. Maybee is in his 82nd year and Mrs. Maybee is in her 80th year. They spent their honeymoon driving by horse and buggy and visiting relatives. They were both born in Cherry Valley and moved to Prince Edward County.

After their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Maybee went to reside in New York, which was a small farm at that time, and there were there during the American revolution. Eventually they returned to Cherry Valley where they farmed on the old home stead. Later they went to Newburg and from there to Odessa where Mr. Maybee conducted a general store for forty years. Twelve years ago they moved to Bloomfield to spend the balance of their lives retired. Mr. Maybee is the last of a family of twelve children and Mrs. Maybee is the last of a family of ten children. They have one son, Stanley.

To Your Good Health
Ask Present Physician to Recommend Doc in New City

By JOSEPH C. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My wife (she is 66 years old) and I (77) expect to move to another city. Can you advise us on the proper procedure in selecting a family physician there? — A. F. G.

You are one in a thousand, my friend, because so many people don't think about selecting a doctor until there's an emergency.

Ask your present physician to recommend someone in the new city, or else to refer you directly.

Your religion may or may not be a consideration. If it is, you will doubtless want to go to a man who practices in a hospital of your faith. (Not that this matters, so far as your care is concerned.)

If you have any chronic problem that needs watching, your doctor may know, or be able to discover for you, a specialist there.

He may know a surgeon or ear-nose-throat specialist or gynecologist or urologist (urologists know who is who in their community) who can advise you or recommend someone who will suit your needs.

If none of these ideas fits and you have to move "cold," you can always learn from friends and neighbors which hospitals have the best reputation. Be sure that you will have friends in the new city, or you aren't going to be completely strange in a place. Then write or phone the administrator of one of these hospitals, and he will gladly suggest two or three doctors from his staff, or you can choose one in your neighborhood-to-be.

If, at worst, you can't get any help from any of these ways, write or phone the county medical society in your new area or ask the health department.

Once established, have your new doctor send for copies of your medical records.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is a carunele and can it be cured by surgery? — MRS. D. L. H.

A carunele (not to be confused with a carbuncle) is a benign (non-cancerous) tumor which bleeds easily and may be very tender. It is more likely to be known around menopause age. Yes, it can be removed surgically, sometimes by an electric needle. Nothing to make you worried, however.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it true that stuttering in a young man can be corrected by surgery? What would the operation cost? Where could I get the proper surgeon? I am 23 and due to much teasing I have developed a pretty serious complex. Please don't print my name. — S. E.

Okay, I'll even give you some new initials. Yes, when this condition is resulting in an emotional complex, it is possible to correct it by plastic surgery in many cases. It is not a simple one. As to cost, and where to find a plastic surgeon, go to your regular physician, and ask him to refer you, or call the County Medical Society for names of plastic surgeons.

NOTE TO M. G.—The fact that the man had TB 15 years ago and now has only one lung would have no effect on his marrying. He is rid of the tuberculosis germ, or he would not have been in the hospital. Having one lung, he has to be extra careful of his breathing capacity, but that's the whole story right there.

NOTE TO MRS: The day of the month (as the 1962, or 63rd, or fifth, or whatever) usually has nothing to do with the menstrual cycle. A 28-day cycle is average; some departure from this, a few days or less, is perfectly normal for some.

"Vitamin starvation" is possible even in a rich city, I bet. In order to check your diet to make sure you are getting necessary vitamins, write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, 211 E. Ohio St., Chicago, Ill., for a copy of the pamphlet, "Vitamins — The Alphabet of Health." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 10c in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dear Dr. Molner: We have lived in Florida for five three years, but would like to return to New York. Our present residence is New York. We have been warned that after living here a few years we are making our health in going back to New York. I am 68 and my wife 67. I am diabetic and my wife suffers from high blood pressure and arthritis. — H. B.

You'll miss the sunshine in winter, but you aren't "risking your health." Diabetes is the same in either place. And high blood pressure — And what's the hot sun might (or might not) help. I was recently there still make heating pads in New York. Live where you'll be happiest.

Note to J.C.: Yes, plastic surgery is sometimes used successively heavy breasts, and standard procedures have been developed.

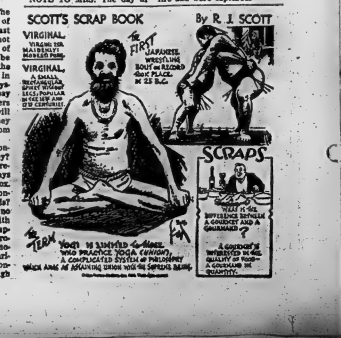
Played Ball In Battle

St. Thomas Times-Journal

Frank Edwards was an infantryman in World War I. He died in London the other day and nobody remembered him except a few old buddies.

But Frank had something in his knapsack that was more precious to him than a field marshal's baton.



It was a deflated football bladder which he had hardly had to inflate when there was a chance of a game with another unit.

After the battles of Loos, one of the biggest of the whole war, Edwards inflated his football and when the signal was given the Germans could see the football on to the field as he clambered over the parapet.

Then he would forward, kicking the ball from man to man and thus making progress. The Germans watched, lying in front of them were so surprised that some of them forgot to fire and were captured.

Husband Follows Fire Trucks To Blaze, Finds Wife Is Dead; One Killed at Eldorado

A Belleville man yesterday followed fire trucks on an early morning alarm, found them halted outside his own front door — and his wife dead by fire.

Minutes before, said police, Mr. McMurter had been in a service station at Camifton Road and College Street when the reels went by and — from normal excited curiosity — decided to follow them to the alarm.

Mrs. McMurter's death was one of two violent fatalities in the Quinte district during the weekend.

Late Saturday night 28-year-old Ronald Grant Robbins, a Toronto hospital worker, died when his car went off a curve on Highway 62 at Eldorado.

The fire alarm to the Mc. Murter home was turned in at 8:27 a.m. by neighbors who spotted the blaze in the vicinity of a bedroom on the north end of the one-storey house.

The same neighbors made several despairing attempts to rescue Mrs. McMurter, in bed at the time the fire started.

CAUSE UNKNOWN

They were frustrated by heat and smoke.

When firemen broke into the room, Mrs. McMurter was still on the bed.

Cause of the fire is unknown.

Born in Tweed, Mrs. McMurter had lived in Belleville all her life.

Besides her husband she is survived by a son, John Douglas of Belleville, three brothers and five sisters. Funeral services will be held tomorrow in Belleville.

At Eldorado, provincial police said Robbins, employed at Sunnybrook Hospital, was en route to his parents' home at Bancroft when his car plunged off the highway and was wrecked.

Scene of the fatal mishap was a steep curve just south of a railroad level crossing. The spot has seen several serious accidents in recent years. Police said Robbins died on his way to hospital in Belleville.

CNR Traffic Resumes After Derailment

KINGSTON (CP) — Railway traffic on the CNR's main line resumed during the night after being disrupted for several hours by a minor derailment. No one was hurt.

A car on a Montreal-bound freight jumped the tracks Sunday about a mile from the Kingston station, tearing up some 100 feet of track on the westbound line.

Trains heading in both directions were delayed for a time, until repairs were made.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP) — The United States dollar in terms of Canadian funds was unchanged at $1.08 1-32.

Pound sterling was unchanged at $3.02¾.

Parked Car Catches Fire, Heavy Damage

Considerable damage was caused when fire started in an automobile early Saturday night in front of 133 Pinnacle Street.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance said the 1953 vehicle was registered to Carl Thompson of 12 Harriet Street. An exact estimate of damage is not known.

Firemen were called out again early Sunday morning on a false alarm to Purdy Street.

Irish Cream Scones For St. Patrick's Day Tea

by Mary Moore

You will bless me for these scones for they are tender and delicious served fresh from the oven. If you do serve them for tea on St. Patrick's Day choose your finest jam or honey to serve with them.

IRISH CREAM SCONES (15 or 16):-

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons (1 tablespoon) single-acting baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1-3 cup butter or margarine, 2 eggs, 6 tablespoons evaporated milk or table cream.

Sift together into mixing bowl the sifted flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Cut in butter or margarine finely, with pastry blender. Beat eggs and add to cream or evaporated milk. Make a well in centre of dry ingredients, add egg-milk mixture and stir just enough to make a soft dough.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Cream of Vegetable Soup; Steamed Wieners on Sauerkraut; Mustard Sauce; Potatoes au Gratin; Butter Tarts; Canadian Camembert; Coffee.

Turn out on lightly floured board, shape into ball and knead for minute only. Divide into 2 parts and shape each into smooth ball. Roll out one ball of dough into a round 9" thick. Carefully lift to buttered cookie sheet. With long knife cut into 6 or 8 even pie shaped pieces. Draw these out so that pieces are 1" apart. Repeat with second ball of dough on a second buttered cookie sheet. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes. If these are to be served on St. Patrick's Day, immediately brush with cream or evaporated milk and at once sprinkle delicately with green granulated sugar. If not for St. Patrick's Day, combine 1 tablespoon granulated sugar with 1 tablespoon cream or evaporated milk and brush tops at once with this to glaze.

NOTE:

If you would like to feature these for dessert for St. Patrick's Day dinner, serve as an accompaniment warm apple sauce or canned fruit or some of your own homemade preserves or with:

GREEN JELLY MOULD:

Make up one package lime jelly powder using only 1½ cups boiling water to dissolve it. When beginning to congeal add drained sections from 2 medium grapefruit. Pour into mould or into 6 sherbet dessert glasses and chill until set.

NOTE:

See Thursday, March 19th, for my Hot Cross Bun recipe.

Albert College Guild Views Slides of Trip

In her opening remarks, Mrs. Fred Davidson, the president of the Ivy Rose Guild of Albert College Guild, in the hospital living room of the Old Manor.

The program arranged by Mrs. Taylor Franklin, gave the members great pleasure in bringing the Guild gifted members of Albert College staff—including Mr. Franklin who generously gave his services, operating the lantern.

Slides of a trip around the world provided delightful armchair travel, with Miss Karen Walker, instructor of physical education at the college, as commentator. Miss Walker, whose home is in Lakefield, recently graduated from the Baptist Training Institute at Brantford, which trains for Christian leadership in the local congregation.

ATTENDED CONFERENCE

Last summer Miss Walker, with 16 other Baptist young people from Canada and United States, attended the Baptist Youth World Conference in Beirut, Lebanon, an undertaking that took them around the world. This conference gathered for the serious business of studying and assessing the mission of the Christian Church and their place in its world-wide program.

The subjects of the rarely-beautiful slides, catching the color and atmosphere of the countries visited, were closely related to the important matters under discussion in the conference. The quality of both slides and commentary gave the group a wonderful degree of participation in the thrilling experience of these young people.

In the hour, Miss Walker, wearing the Indian sari, with the first stop, Berlin, carried on to Geneva, the Holy Land, India, Thailand, China and Hawaii. The story ended with a picture of serious-minded delegates evaluating the trip.

During a short intermission Mr. Angus McLeod, ALCM, a recent arrival from Glasgow, Scotland, teacher of piano and voice at the college, rendered two piano numbers.

Mrs. F. Townsend voiced the appreciation of the Guild to Miss Walker, Mr. McLeod and others assisting in this distinctly Easter program.

At the tea table where Mrs. Winifred Graham and Mrs. Franklin presided, the daffodil centrepiece was a breath of spring. During the social hour the dessert bridge was the main topic of conversation.

Shirley Wilder To Speak On Antiques

Shirley C. Wilder will address the March meeting of the University Women's Club of Belleville and District.

Mrs. Wilder was born in Napanee, attended Albert College and St. Agnes Anglican Ladies' College in Belleville, and became a music teacher and elocutionist.

After her marriage she spent many years in the Prairie Provinces, where she started the first Sunday School in her district. During World War Two she returned to Ontario with her family of three sons, one of whom now teaches in Belleville.

About twenty years ago Mrs. Wilder's "antique hobby" became a business and research project and she has continued to operate an antique business from her home in Kingston since that time.

The subject of her address on March 19th will be, "Antiques — Do's and Don't's at auction sales."

U.C.W. Meeting

UNIT 3 FRANKFORD

Unit 3 of Frankford United Church Women met at the manse on Tuesday evening.

Vice-President Mrs. L. Hoyle opened the meeting reading a hymn followed by prayer.

Mrs. R. Rumsey read the secretarial report and roll call showed 17 members and 4 visitors present. Mrs. D. Reid gave the treasurer's report.

Several items of business were discussed, among which was a fashion show to be held in April.

A short worship service was conducted by Mrs. E. Carson and Mrs. R. Rumsey.

Mrs. L. Sykes gave an interesting and informative talk on "The Home Mission in Nepal", describing its medical centres and work of lay persons who demonstrate and teach the gospels. In India, missionaries who go upon invitation only, are striving to unite nine denominations toward a common belief and worship.

Mrs. R. Stevens presented a "Did You Know Chart" showing a few pertinent facts of India.

Successful Living

Advice on How to Pack When Going to Hospital

DEAR DORIS — I read your "Successful Living" stories all the time and enjoy them. I see you have helped many people.

My problem is I have to go to the hospital. I have not been in a hospital since 1944, thanks to the good Lord. I should like to know what I should take of my own to wear. I love my pyjamas.

Could you help me? I am 75 years old. — OPERATION.

DEAR OPERATION — Take the pyjamas by all means. My nurse-counsellor says you can probably wear them a good deal of the time. The hospital gown may be more convenient at the time of your operation and following it for a few days when it might be a little difficult for you to move around.

DORIS CLARK

What else to pack? — bedroom slippers, bed jacket, warm dressing gown; comb, brush, toothbrush and paste, talcum powder, cosmetics. And you'll doubtless be glad if you tuck in letter paper, pen, stamps — to write me (and others) and say how things are going!

DEAR DORIS — Please give me some pointers on job hunting for my nephew. — UNCLE IKE.

DEAR UNCLE — To make a good impression, he should:

(1) Be well groomed: fresh haircut, best suit on, shoes polished, tie on.

(2) Be on time. Leave rubbers in outside office.

(3) Be ready with references about work and character. Know the type of work which interests him, and as much about the employer's operation as he can.

(4) Resist the temptation to ask about time off, hours of work, holidays, until he has shown at least some eagerness about the work itself.

Confidential to BUBBLES — If he's the friend of a friend, invite both when you are having other girls and boys in.

Family Honors Couple on 25th Anniversary

Last Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Burrell Hamilton, of Johnstown, were honored at a surprise party held at the home of their 25th wedding anniversary.

Upon returning home from a dinner invitation at Belleville, the couple was greeted by a gathering of relatives and friends from Belleville, Johnstown, Deseronto, Oshawa, Whitby, Cooper, and Stirling.

Mrs. Hamilton received the guests, wearing a sheath dress of green figured magic crepe with a corsage of red roses.

The long tea table was covered with a white damask tablecloth and centred with a three-tier wedding cake, flanked with silver candles in silver candelabra. The room was appropriately decorated for the occasion with pink and white bells and streamers.

Mrs. Kwin Hart and Mrs. Douglas Henry gave readings and a mock wedding put on by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Seeley and Allan and Robert Hamilton, was enjoyed by everyone.

The couple was presented with many lovely gifts from their relatives and friends. Mrs. William Harry read a short address from the couples of Johnstown and presented them with an electric coffee percolator, silver bread tray, silver butter dish and a silver casserole. The special anniversary card was signed by the 46 donors.

The couple expressed appreciative thanks to everyone of the party and the lovely gifts.

Mr. Hamilton is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Hamilton and Mrs. Hamilton is the daughter of Mrs. Harold Groves and the late Mr. Groves. There are three sons, Ronald, Allan and Robert, and one grand-daughter.

Everyone enjoyed a tasty lunch, provided by the family.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: I'm planning a large cocktail party when my sister comes to visit us for a week, so she may meet our friends. She lives in the Midwest, but her husband is to be transferred to our area soon and they plan to buy a house in a nearby town. The party will be very informal, from five to seven on a Saturday afternoon, and I'm planning to invite about 30 people. Would it be permissible to send out invitations on regular postcards? I'll be very busy with other preparations, and thought this would be a time-saver. — Mrs. S. L. D., New Rochelle, N.Y.

Answer: Even though the party is informal, an invitation still is considered social mail, and, properly, should be enclosed in an envelope. A postcard would not be correct. Besides, since the cards still have to be addressed and necessary information about time, place, etc., still has to be noted on the back, I can't see where they'd be much of a time saver anyway.

Question: A girl in our office is getting married, and six of us plan to give her a little luncheon shower in a nearby restaurant. There's one thing, though, that we can't agree on. Four of the girls say we should bring our gifts to the restaurant and that they should be opened there. Another woman and I feel this would be embarrassing, and that the gifts should be opened in the office before we take the bride-to-be to lunch with an elderly settle the argument and advise which procedure would be better? — H. B., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: I vote in favor of the latter arrangement — opening the gifts in the office before lunch. Unless the luncheon is to be held in a private room or at a screened-off table, a restaurant is too public a place to open shower presents. The activity would attract the attention from other diners and chances are the guest of honor might be embarrassed by being so glaringly in the spotlight.

Women's Institutes

MOUNTAIN VIEW — Mrs. Clifford Barber of Huffs Island was hostess for the March meeting of Mountain View Women's Institute with approximately 12 ladies in attendance. Mrs. W. Nightingale was co-hostess.

During business a nominating committee was appointed to prepare a report on the subject of agriculture with Mrs. W. Barber as convener who read papers on the subject among which was a story of the lives of a new Canadian family now living in the community. Mrs. Barber also conducted a contest and the winner was Mrs. R. Lough.

Plans were made for a desert party to be held at the home of Mrs. Clifford Barber on March 29.

The hostess assisted by Mrs. Nightingale and Mrs. H. Morley served refreshments and everyone enjoyed a social half hour. Mrs. M. Barrett expressed thanks to the hostess.

Ann Landers

Common for Women to Have Crushes on Their Doctors

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I've been bothered by a personal problem and have been watching your column hoping someone else would write in about it. Nobody has.

Why do women get crushes on their doctors? I'm happily married and have two children. I'm strictly one-man myself and have never considered having an affair. Yet I'm sure if my doctor crooked his little finger I'd topple in a minute.

Of course my husband has no inkling of my feelings or he'd insist I change doctors. That would kill me. I have a world of faith in this physician and I even look forward to my visits to his office. I confess I actually manufacture little excuses to see him more often than is necessary.

ANN LANDERS

Believe me, Ann, this isn't going to lead to anything. All I want to know is why do I feel this way? — GUILTY SECRET.

DEAR SECRET — It is not uncommon for a woman to develop an emotional attachment to her doctor. And it's understandable, because to her the doctor is a symbol of help, compassion, relief from pain, faith, hope, confidence, comfort, and peace of mind.

To a woman, the doctor is the strong, wise, considerate, saintly man who listens patiently to her complaints — unless of course the doctor happens to be her husband.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a girl nine years old who already has a problem for Ann Landers: I did not expect one for at least three years but here it is already.

This boy I used to like lived next door to me until he moved to Kansas three years ago with his parents. I cried when he went away. He didn't write to me but I can't blame him for that because he was only six years old then.

I got a Valentine from him a few days ago. The Valentine was pretty but it was sort of late because Valentine's Day was quite some time ago. Also it was a Valentine that he had planned to give to a girl whose name was Nancy. He crossed out her name and put in my name.

On the bottom of the card he wrote, "Will you please write to me?" Do you think I should answer him even if he was too cheap to buy a special Valentine for me? Thank you.—VALERIE.

DEAR VALERIE — Why don't you concentrate on school and girl friends for the next five years? Boys will still be in style in 1969 — when you are ready for them, and they for you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My wife and I were divorced last year. We have four children — the oldest is 10.

My ex-wife has a no-good tramp of a girl friend living with her. They make the bars together at night and go with anybody who asks them.

Last week my 10-year-old telephoned me at 9:00 p.m. to say their mother didn't come home from work and they had not had their supper. I went right over, fixed them something to eat, gave them baths and put them to bed.

At about 2:30 a.m. their mother came home — loaded. She was mad because I was there. She said the sitter was supposed to come at 8:00 p.m. and that it was the girl's fault that the kids were alone.

I am worried sick that my children are being neglected. I offered to take the children when we were divorced but my wife wouldn't hear of it. What can I do? — ED.

DEAR ED: — See a lawyer. If your ex-wife is an unfit mother she should not have the children. A mother who would leave four youngsters under 10 years of age unattended, for any reason whatever, doesn't sound "fit" to me.

Women's Activities

St. Joseph's C.W.L. meeting for March was opened with prayer by spiritual director Rev. Father Beckley, and the ladies were warmly welcomed by president Mrs. Yvonne Murphy. League magazine convener, Mrs. M. Premba asked the ladies to remember, March 28, as National C.W.L. Day of Prayer, and to put forth an effort to attend Mass and receive the sacraments on this day.

The C.W.L. being the sponsoring body of the Guides and Brownies it was decided that a cheque be issued for the printing of three Guiders' hats and belts for the three new Tawny Owls.

April 16, was the date chosen for the spring tea.

Mrs. Y. Murray, thanked Mrs. M. Marte, convener of the dinner put on for Brotherhood week, the social conveners and all who assisted.

St. Joseph's tenth annual C-W.L. Communion breakfast was held in the Parish Hall, March 7, with a large group of ladies in attendance.

GUEST SPEAKER

The guest speaker was 1st vice-president of the Diocese, Mrs. Thomas Kelly, who was introduced by Mrs. Helen Hanley. Mrs. Kelly gave an interesting discourse on membership and meetings, stressing the League motto "Every Catholic woman a member of the Catholic Women's League." She urged the executive to promote an interesting meeting and to be enthusiastic, that enthusiasm is contagious and does catch on, and that each lady bring out her own special talents, which are often hidden in the daily round of household chores.

Mrs. Kelly, advised the executive on taking a Christopher course or C.W.L. leadership course, reminding the ladies of the spiritual benefits derived by active participation in C.W.L. work, and the great power of accomplishment to be attained through the union of so great a body of active women in living the League emblem "The speaker was thanked by Mrs. Muriel Whalen.

for God and Country.

In Canada, as is the case generally throughout the world, about four times as many men as women commit suicide.

Church Groups

(WOMEN'S DEPT. L.D.S.)

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Department of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints was as guests at the home of Mrs. Larry Smith of Bayside on Thursday evening.

The weekly period using the theme, "In Service of our Fellow-Beings" was under the direction of Mrs. S. C. Else. The skit, "Once Upon A Sometime Street", written by Mrs. Betty Tripp was used.

Mrs. S. C. Else taught the lesson on "Service to Others" from the book "Ambassadors for Christ", written by Marion Armstrong. "Essentialism for Friendly Visiting", by Eloise Johnston were discussed.

The business meeting was convened by Mrs. W. L. Canniff. Letters were read from Mrs. K. Westwood Jr., from church headquarters at Independence, Missouri, outlining classes for women, to be held during the World-Wide church conference to be held in the auditorium at Independence in April. She also told of the new study course for women written by Mrs. Everett Jones titled "A Righteous Generation", that will be used in all women's classes at church camps this summer.

Plans were made for the local group's "Family Night" to be held at the home of Mrs. S. C. Else in April at which time Mr. Jack McCurdy will show pictures of some parts of Europe.

During the social period Mrs. Jack McCurdy correctly completed the quiz game and refreshments were served by the hostess.

Must Convince Mothers Diapers Are a Drudgery

VANCOUVER (CP)—The diaper service operator, brings a welcome breath of fresh air to one of the less pleasant features of parenthood.

But first he must convince Canada's young mothers that diapers are a drudgery, not a duty; that a mother who sends the nappies out doesn't love her baby any the less.

"It's a psychological thing," says Walter Lavey, who owns about 2,100 dozen diapers.

"Some women have to talk themselves into diaper service. . . . A lot of women feel that if their mothers washed diapers at home, why should they send them out."

Mr. Lavey began working with a diaper service here in 1946 and he and his wife took over the business in 1953.

"There's a lot to know about washing diapers," he said. "It's taken me 10 years to really learn."

In that time he has found himself the owner of more diapers than most people can imagine — excepting queasy fathers with nightmares. He not only launders diapers but rents out his supply of them so that mothers can use the pre-folded brand he carries, use their own or combine the two.

WOMEN DRIVERS

A deodorized diaper pail goes along with the service, and women drivers deliver the new supplies twice a week to the waiting infants.

"We use women drivers for a number of reasons," Mr. Lavey said.

"Often when deliveries or pickups are made the mothers are only half - dressed and there's less embarrassment if the drivers are women.

"Also, the women have had experience bringing up children and this helps because often they find themselves being handed a baby while the mother dashes to answer the phone or something."

The man in the family, Mr. Lavey finds, can be a great help in keeping a family planned to the services his firm offers.

"Sometimes after service has been discontinued after the first few weeks or months home, I'll get a call from the father who doesn't like washing diapers.

"Or he'll suddenly notice diaper odor in the house, and it wasn't there when the diapers were being sent out."

Johnson Pledges to Help South Viet Nam But Will Not Extend War Into North

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Johnson Sunday pledged to give South Viet Nam the most "effective and efficient" help possible but denied interpretations of extending the war into North Viet Nam and dismissed suggestions that the long and bitter struggle may turn into another Korea.

He told Americans in an hour-long national television interview with the major networks that he shared the views of the late president Kennedy that if South Viet Nam is lost to the Communists, all of Southeast Asia will be lost.

He saw no quick or easy solution "but we are a patient people and we love freedom." The Vietnamese would be assisted by the development of "the most effective and efficient plans we can."

Touching on another sore point, Panama, Johnson said he has no doubt the U.S. and Panama will in time agree to end the deadlock over the Panama Canal.

The interview was recorded Saturday and broadcast at 6 p.m. Sunday.

DISOWNS BAKER

Closer to home, Johnson disowned Bobby Baker, saying the former Senate employee whose amazing fortune-making ability is under investigation, was never a protege of his.

As for reports that Attorney-General Robert Kennedy may be seeking the vice-presidency, Johnson said he is concerned about any such campaign at this time. He had talked to Kennedy about it and accepted "his word" that Kennedy was doing nothing to encourage such a campaign.

In words that seemed to rule out Johnson's choice of Kennedy as a running mate, the president said he did not feel the vice-president must be someone close to him; someone he can trust with all his secrets.

There have been many reports that Johnson and the attorney-general never have been close. Kennedy has stated he will leave his post after the November election.

IN OFFICE 100 DAYS

The taped interview followed the completion of Johnson's first 100 days in office and much of the questioning dealt with events that followed the assassination of John F. Kennedy in Dallas last November.

When Kennedy was shot, Johnson said, he wasn't sure whether this was an international conspiracy. His first job was to assure the world that though the U.S. was shaken by the event, it could still function with continuity and calm transition.

His most vivid recollection during those emotional days was the "presence of greatness" displayed by Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy.

Campbellford News

New Category For Teachers At High School

CAMPBELLFORD — The Management Committee of the North East Northumberland District High School Board reported at their March meeting that salary negotiations had been concluded with the following schedule effective in September of 1964:

Category	Min.	Max.
2	5100	8700
3	5600	9600
4	6000	10,000

Information from the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, regarding the results of the survey of employment conditions indicated that this Board is rated as excellent in attitude toward education, improvements and staff-board relations.

It was decided to engage a local contractor to complete the pass through door at the dishwashing room in the cafeteria.

The Board decided to proceed with plans for extensive renovations to be made to the grounds in order that full use may be made of the grounds and facilities improved for the Health and Physical Education Department.

R. was suggested that purchases for the school be scrutinized and local merchants be given an opportunity to tender for supplies wherever possible.

The application of Mr. Gordon Curle was accepted for the position of caretaker.

In order to assist the clerical and administrative staff, it was agreed that the regular meetings of the Board be held on the second Monday of each month.

Driver Charged After Chase By Police

CAMPBELLFORD — A 25-mile chase at top speed by Constable M. S. Rutherford of the Campbellford Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police, resulted in the apprehension of Oscar Rogers, 25, of R.R. 1, Frankford early Saturday morning.

Cons. Rutherford spotted the Rogers car speeding through Hastings about 1.45 Saturday morning. The car sped through back roads and on to Highway 45 between Hastings and Norwood before being overtaken near Norwood. Four OPP cars were eventually involved in the chase before the driver lost control of his vehicle and came to rest in a ditch, smashing the car on rocks and sign posts in his path.

Rogers was charged with dangerous and careless driving by Const. Rutherford.

Four Accidents Bring Damage To $2,700

PICTON (Staff) — — After a few weeks of having very few accidents to investigate, the Provincial Police at Picton were kept busy over the past weekend. That should probably read that one constable was kept busy, as one man had no less than four accidents in various parts of the county to investigate over the weekend.

Property damage totalled over $2,700 and one man was hospitalized as a result of the four mishaps.

In the army hospital at Kingston is 30-year-old Walter E. Welton of Camp Picton. It is feared he may have a broken back, but this will not be known definitely until Monday.

Mr. Welton received his injuries when the car he was driving left Highway 14 near Mountain View at 11.40 pm Friday. The car hit a tree on the left hand side of the road. Damage was estimated at $1,500.

At 1.50 a.m. Saturday, Franklin Kerr Ross, also of Camp Picton, came down the back hill from camp, skidded through the intersection at Lake Street and hit the checkerboard sign designating the end of the road. He was not injured, but his car received damage estimated at $500. The sign was badly damaged.

At 4.20 a.m. Saturday John Laverne Bigg of Bloomfield, was driving west in Bloomfield, his car skidded, left the road, and hit a hydro pole. Damage to the car was estimated at $300. There were no personal injuries, and no report was made as to the damage to the poll.

At 8.40 a.m. Sunday, Peter Gordon Mitchell, 19, R.R. 7, Belleville, was driving west through Ameliasburg, when he lost control of his car, it left the road on a curve, and snapped off a telephone pole. Damage was estimated at $300.

Juveniles Lose To Bancroft

PICTON (Staff) — It was a case of too little too late. The Bancroft Juveniles showed a little too much class, and were a little heavier, and took the two game total goals series by a 10-6 count to eliminate the Picton Juveniles from further competition in the OMHA semi finals.

Picton held them to a 3-3 tie at Bancroft, but were snowed under a 7-3 defeat here Sat.

Juveniles did not back away from the more experienced Bancroft team. They gave everything they had—no one can ask for more.

PRACTICE OUTLINED

Committee members and a number of other MPs and senators with an interest in the committee's work have been supplied with a memorandum which outlines practice in the British Parliament, based on an on-the-spot study on behalf of the committee.

On membership accreditation in Britain, the memorandum says the press gallery executive there "has consistently refused to take any responsibility for deciding who is to be admitted to the gallery."

"Gallery members are firm in the view that it is not up to them to decide who their colleagues should be. Accreditation of gallery members is entirely a decision of the Speaker, exercised through the Sergeant (at arms) who issues passes annually to all members of the press gallery.

"The sergeant may consult with the secretary of the gallery but the final decision is up to him and the Speaker. Any pressure from ministers for the accreditation of particular newspapermen is also firmly resisted."

The memorandum also deals with another aspect of parliamentary reporting—the physical facilities.

"The physical appearance of the working space provided for the press is remarkably neat and there is nothing that resembles remotely the disordered clutter of books, papers and assorted junk that features the working quarters of the Ottawa Press Gallery."

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Oh, it wasn't a bad day—for a workday."

JUDY UNHURT

KINGSTON (CP)—Hon. Judy LaMarsh, federal minister of health and welfare, was trapped in an elevator for about 20 minutes Sunday, but was unhurt. She entered a hotel elevator with 19 other persons. The machine was apparently overloaded and fell 1½ floors before coming to rest.

Four other doctors were found not guilty of charges laid against them.

The committee recommended in the report that every hospital medical staff should establish an actively functioning medical advisory committee.

The committee would deal with proceedings in a hospital when a doctors privileges were curtailed or withdrawn because of professional misconduct or incompetence.

The report pointed out that a doctor's work can be hidden from the public.

"It is for that reason that we expect every man practising medicine in this province to have a conscience that will keep him within his depth, keep him honest and keep him sincere in his endeavors."

The report notes that the college is empowered to act on charges of professional misconduct as defined in 1963 amendments of the Ontario Medical Act

WANTS NATURAL PARKS

TORONTO (CP) — The director of the Canadian Audubon Society Saturday called for a national parks policy allowing reversion of parks to their natural state. Dr. I. M. Cowan, a University of British Columbia professor, told the society's annual meeting here he was opposed to timber cutting, mining and hunting in national parks. Park camp grounds "should not be slums with a view." He opposed commercial enterprises and high speed roads in the parks.

That's how many times we inspect a Volkswagen.

These are some of the ok's our little car has to get in our factory.

It's easy to tell the ok's from the no's. One no is all you ever see.)

We pay 5,857 men just to look for things to say no to.

And no is no.

A visitor from Brazil once asked us what we were going to do about a roof that came through with a dent in it.

Dents are easy to hammer out.

So what we did shook him a little.

We smashed the body down to a metal lump and threw it out in the scrap pile.

We stop VW's for little things that you may never notice yourself.

In the final inspection alone, our VW has to get through 342 points without one blackball.

One out of 50 doesn't make it.

But you should see the ones that get away.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The delightful production versatility of those responsible for the annual colorful extravaganza of the Quinte Figure Skating Club has again come to the fore.

Three years ago the famous stage production "Showboat" formed the theme. Two years ago "The Four Seasons" was produced. Last year with a touch of modernism the club excelled itself in "Television on Ice."

Colorful in costuming, outstanding in individual and collective presentations, and climactic in effort of coaches, professionals, cast and others associated in production, this year's presentation promises to highlight the event's long sequence.

The 1964 classic which will be presented Friday and Saturday nights of this week is a show for the children by the children, so to speak. It is Sir James Barrie's colorful classic "Peter Pan," made famous on stage and screen by Mary Martin.

I do not want to mislead you by saying the Quinte Club's "Peter Pan" is strictly for the children. Far from it. Like the famous stage and screen productions, "Peter Pan" is an outstanding attraction for adults.

It does, however, give the younger members of the club an opportunity to show their histrionic and skating versatility. This they do to an almost spectacular degree.

Nor do the senior members suffer by comparison. Those in the major roles, most of them veterans with experience in productions of this kind, record not a cent of 100-plus that maintain the high status of entertainment for which "Quinte" has become famous.

The well known professionals of the club, Mr. Paul Tatics and Mrs. Bonny Boundy, have added another feather to their professional cap with the presentation of "Peter Pan." They have done a fine job individually and collectively, bringing the show through strenuous rehearsal to a high status of perfection.

Careful selection of cast was made. Principals were selected through ability and versatility. Ensembles were chosen with an eye to balance.

The show's famous characters, Peter Pan and Wendy, are finely portrayed by Susan and David Beattie.. The villainous Captain Hook gives Gordon Davies an excellent opportunity for his skating and acting abilities.

The famous story of "Peter Pan" is staged in brilliant ice miniature. Lynanne Rowe is "Tinkerbell" as the show moves off from the opening bedroom scene in the Darling home to the colorful climax of the defeat of the Pirates and the departure "Never Neverland."

The colorful ensembles of fairies, teadziosh, rabbits, blackbirds, clouds, squirrels, pirate crew, butterflies, lost children and Indians again reveal the costume ingenuity of Mrs. Charles Dueberry and Mrs. Olivia Weese. Brian Williamson's "crocodile" dignifies is a work of costume art.

The music has been carefully selected and taped by club president Dr. W. B. Beattie, who spent many hours taping and co-ordinating with pauses and announcements carefully spaced.

Missing from the 1964 revue will be Belleville's brilliant young skating duo, Jane and Peggy McCutcheon. The youngsters had committed themselves to a skating appearance in Kapuskasing before the date of "Peter Pan" was announced.

Adding a brilliant touch of figure skating at its best will be the guest artists, Susan and Paul Huenergard of the Upper Canada Skating Club. The young couple won the 1954 junior pair championship and are regarded as Canada's Olympic champions of the future.

Soloists and those given special roles are Lynanne Rowe as Tinkerbell; Wendy and Peter Pan by the Beatties; Roxanne Rowe and Sandra Scott as "Fairies"; Marilyn Duminie as "Forest Flower"; Anne Cronk as "Ladybug"; Rebecca Helway as a "Bunny"; Patsy Jean Allore and Janet Hume as "Bluebirds"; Robbie Cronk as "Squirrel"; Christine Scott as "Butterfly"; Brian Williamson as "Crocodile"; Peggy Foley as a "Cloud"; Cathy MacDonald as the Indians' "Tiger Lily" and Penny Walker as the Indian Princess.

The well known Peter Pan Darling family characters are presented by Don Scott and Olivia Weese as Mr. and Mrs. Darling; John MacKillican as John; Bruce Keller as Michael and Marilyn Duminie and Penny Weymark as Nanna the Dog.

Leafs Wrap Up Third Spot

Hawks Blow Pair While Habs Split

By MARVEN MOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Like any good scenario the climax is being prolonged.

Conceivable things may remain unresolved until next Sunday night, the wrapup of the National Hockey League schedule.

But based on developments through the weekend you would have to lean toward Montreal Canadiens and away from Chicago Black Hawks.

The Canadiens, riding the payoff touch of a couple of rookies in the third period, upended the Black Hawks 4-3 in a Saturday night showdown between the two title-bent rivals.

Then both clubs went out and blew their Sunday night games.

But that left the rookie-laden surprise - package Canadiens with something of an upper hand.

They have three games to play in Chicago's two. Heading in both clubs have 80 points.

Boston's enigmatic Bruins delivered a left hook to the Canadiens Sunday night while Detroit Red Wings turned back the Black Hawks 8-3 with Floyd Smith and the resurgent Norm Ullman supplying the offensive power.

SMITH SCORES THREE

Smith scored three goals and Ullman racked up a goal and four assists, continuing a superb second - half spurt that has netted him 17 goals so far. The other Detroit goal-getter? None other than old fellow Gordie Howe.

Elsewhere around the league, Toronto Maple Leafs wrapped up third place all intents, sweeping a pair of home-and-home games from New York Rangers.

The Leafs gave the Rangers a 7-3 drubbing in Toronto Saturday night. Dave Keon scoring twice and adding three assists—and followed it up with a 3-1 win in New York.

Economy-sized Keon, a so-so performer in the first half-season, picked up a goal and an assist in that one. And the Rangers, by drawing 13,507 fans, set an all-time attendance record of 463,161 at Madison Square Garden, surpassing the mark of 478,277 of the two seasons ago. With another game set for the Garden—the Black Hawks are there Tuesday night—the Rangers should go well part it.

Chicago's final game against the Bruins in Boston Sunday night. Montreal's schedule for the final week mean while has the club at home Wednesday night to Toronto and Saturday night to the Bruins and in New York Sunday night.

WINS WOULD BREAK TIE

Should the two teams finish in a point-bracket for the lead, the title will go to the club with the most wins. Still a tie? Most goals. And after that, the club that has allowed the least number of goals.

Contingent on the latter, of course, is the Vezina Trophy competition, the award for the goaltender who has played the most games for the club with the best defensive record.

In the running are Montreal's Charlie Hodge, Chicago's Glenn Hall and Toronto's Johnny Bower. The Canadiens have yielded 163 goals, three fewer than the two other clubs. But the game they hold in hand over the Hawks works against Hodge on this one.

Goals by first-year-men John Ferguson and Jacques Laperriere settled the issue Saturday night at Montreal, snapping their club's winless string at five games and giving the Canadiens something of a working cushion for the stretch run.

For some reason, the Black Hawks appeared to abandon the heavy-bumping pattern of play they have thrown against Montreal so effectively in the past and without that deterrent they were no match for the Canadiens at other fundamental aspects of the game.

HALL HINDERS HAWS

They were outshot 47-30 and the Canadiens would have popped in at least a few more goals were it not for Hall's fine work and more than a smattering of ill luck around the Chicago net.

Montreal's Jean Beliveau and Bernie Geoffrion counted to offset a pair of goals by Stan Mikita—giving him a total of 28 for the season—before Ferguson and Laperriere found the mark in the first half of the final period.

Bucyk was serving a minor penalty when Prentice scored, Awrey's goal was his first in the NHL.

At Detroit before a crowd of 13,695 Smith raised his season's production to 18 goals with his three-goal effort while Ullman ran his output to 21 goals and 27 assists after adding two four goals and six assists in the first half of the season.

HULL SCORES 41ST

Bobby Hull, the league's No. 1 goal scorer, Red Hay and Reg Fleming were the Chicago goal-getters. It was Hull's 41st, Hay's 22nd and Fleming's third.

Tim Horton's seventh winning goal of the season provided the win for the Leafs in New York.

Ex-Ranger Don McKenney got Toronto's first one and Keon finished things off by scoring into an empty net with end second to play after Jacques Plante had been lifted for a sixth attacker.

McKenney and Andy Bathgate, who went to the Leafs from the Rangers in the same deal a few weeks ago, both scored once and picked up a pair of assists each in Saturday night's game before 14,155 fans with Keon centring their line.

For the Rangers the marksmen were Bob Nevin, Don Marshall and rookie Dave Richardson. Nevin was a principal that Toronto-New York swap.

Arranges Group Travel Plans

C. N. TRAYNE

Appointed Director of Travel for his company's sales group, Mr. Trayne's first official act was to charter a Canadien Nationalbased coach for their next season in the East. "Chartered coaches are the trend in group travel" claims Mr. Trayne. "They allow my colleagues to prepare much of the business agenda en route. Saves time and money", he said. "For example, a group of 60 people, travelling in their 'own' coach, can save as much as 33%. You can't beat this bargain!" For longer trips, Mr. Trayne charters a sleeper and also saves money. "When our group splits into smaller committees of between 10 and 22 men, we make sure they travel on CN Rail 'Bargain' or White 'Economy' Days. Even then, we can take advantage of CN's Party Fares — and save 10% to 20% more. I recommend you call your Canadian Passenger Sales Office for full information about group travel arrangements."

Lost To Czechs Saturday

Maroons Drop Second To Russia

GENEVA (CP) — Wimpey Maroons, bottled up in their own end for long periods, lost 2-1 Sunday to Russia before a crowd of 6,000 at an international hockey tournament.

It was the touring Maroons' second game in the four-team round - robin tournament. They lost their first one 6-3 to the Czechoslovakia national team Saturday.

Forward Murray Couch got Maroons' goal.

All the scoring came in the first period. Don Collins in the Maroons' goal made 28 saves.

The pro - Maroons crowd chanted "Go, Canada go," but the hard-pressed Maroons were unable to solve the Russians' hard-checking game after scoring the opening goal.

Maroons, who played with four defencemen, took four of the five penalties handed out. Their tour record now stands at four wins, five losses, two ties.

REFEREES GOOD

Maroons were reported displeased with the calibre of refereeing earlier in the tour, particularly in a game Thursday in which they lost to the Czech No. 2 team 3-2. The Czechs scored the winning goal in the dying minutes after Maroons received a penalty.

Saturday's tournament loss to the Czech No. 1 team, John Russell scored all three Maroons' goals before a crowd of 7,000.

The Czechs' superior speed forced Maroons into a series of inept passes as Czechoslovakia opened up a 3-1 lead after the first period and led 4-2 after the second.

Russia defeated a Swiss-Canadian team in the other game Saturday to tie Czechoslovakia for first place after the first day.

Cassius X Irked By Floyd P.

CHICAGO (AP) — Cassius Clay, nettled by Floyd Patterson's attacks on him for being a Black Muslim, offered Sunday to fight Patterson for charity.

Clay offered to make it a winner-take-all bout, with the Black Muslims getting the purse if Clay won and the Roman Catholic Church getting it if Patterson won. Patterson was not available for comment.

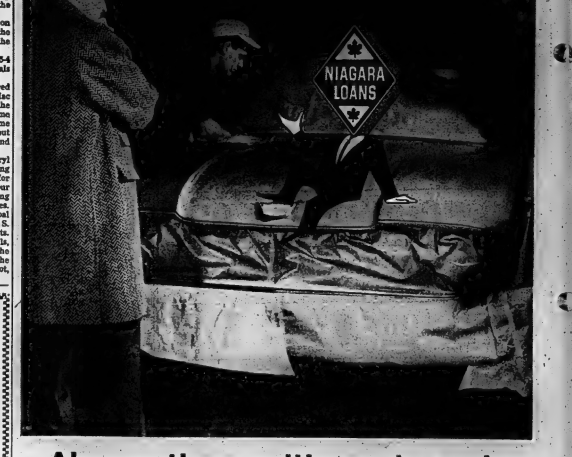
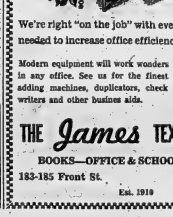
Macs, Browns Win Peewee Championships



Macs and Browns have captured the Peewee division's top team championships for the 1963-64 season.

Macs won the "A" crown on Saturday morning, clipping the Bruins 3-0 and winning the titular series 8-2.



Browns downed the Leafs 5-4 and carried home the "B" finals by a total score of 9-8.

Dennis MacCormack scored two goals to spark the Mac triumph. P. Hayes scored the other goal and D. Prudhomme drew the only assist. The game was hard-fought all the way but the Bruins were unable to find the scoring range.

Bill Storms and Darryl Demers combined their scoring duel in the Browns-Leafs tilt for "B" honors. Storms scored four of the Browns' five goals, giving him eight of nine in the series. B. Bunnett potted the other goal and assisted on two more. S. Muldoon also got two assists. Demers fired three Leaf goals, giving him six of eight in the round. R. Barber netted the other goal on a penalty shot, and had an assist.

Wellington Nips Nobleton, Enters Finals

WELLINGTON (Special) — Wellington Dukes, 1962-63 Ontario Juvenile "D" champions, climbed into the final series over the weekend by nipping Nobleton 3-2.

Kent Hill and Paul Kensie were the Nobleton marksmen.

Wellington goalie Pete De Bruyn played an outstanding game after being hit by a puck in the pre-game warmup. He was treated at the arena before the game and later received five stitches to close a cut.

It was not stated who the Dukes would meet in the Ontario finals.

Canadian Stars Win At K Of C Meet

Grelle Takes Mile

CLEVELAND (CP) — Diane Grace, 20-year-old Canadian stenographer from Trail, B.C., aped the highest 5-foot track and field career Saturday a magnificent high jump of five feet, nine inches—but it wasn't a true world record.

Actually, the tall, long-legged Canadian was six inches off the world mark held by a Romanian woman but it was the highest really challenged for several years.

Even if Miss Gerace, one of the brightest prospects for the Canadian women's Olympic team, had cleared the six-foot mark she wouldn't have been recognized by world track and field officials since it was done indoors. Only the marks set in outdoor competition are allowed to be submitted to the International federation that considers the question of recognition.

Competing in the annual Knights of Columbus Indoor meet at Cleveland, she was one of three Canadian stars to emerge winners.

Bill Crothers of Toronto won the 600-yard run and Abigail Hoffman of the Toronto Olympic Club for coeds—raced the field to win her specialty, the women's 880-yard race.

BREAKS U.S. MARK

Miss Gerace broke—with plenty to spare—the old United States record set well as her own Canadian mark.

Romanian jumper Yolanda Balas won the 1960 Olympic crown with a jump of six feet, three-quarter of an inch at Rome July 16, 1961. In Sofia, Bulgaria, she set the world record of six feet, three inches.

Miss Hoffman, 17 - year - old U.S. record-holder at the 880-yard distance, won in a half a second off O'Hara meet mark set in 1962.

O'HARA OFF

Tom O'Hara of Chicago, who set an indoor mark two weeks ago for the mile, didn't compete because of a groin injury. Jim Grelle of Los Angeles clocked 4:02.3 to win it, defeating half a second off O'Hara meet mark set in 1962.

Ergas Lops of Toronto ran a 4:05.4 mile to take second place and young Dave Bailey of Toronto was fourth in 4:15. Jim Ross of Toronto, who paced O'Hara to his record mile race, finished about 25 yards back of Grelle.

In the mile relay, the Toronto team of George Shepherd, Stan Worsfold, Jim Salder and Don McCartan placed second in 3:21.2 but set a record - breaking run than the winning Loyola team which ran the distance in 3:22.3.

Mets Off On Left Foot Again

Spahn Shows 'Em; Birds Whip Yankees

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Warren Spahn, who was winning 30 games a year back in the days when baseball traditions were invented, seems to be the only fellow around who knows that the pitchers are supposed to be ahead of the hitters at this time of year.

Elsewhere, the majors celebrated the first full-scale weekend of the exhibition schedule by scoring 129 runs in 11 games on Sunday alone.

But Spahn, with the dignity benefiting a man barely a month away from his 43rd birthday, permitted Washington Senators only one hit in a three-inning stint Sunday. His mound successors took up the case to the extent of giving Milwaukee Braves a 3-0 shutout, the only one of the day.

New York Mets also were in midseason form, committing six errors as they blew an early two-run lead and lost 8-3 to St. Louis Cardinals. Ron Taylor, the Canada, Cuba, southpaw, gained credit for the victory as all six unearned runs proved around the plate during his three innings on the mound.

Pittsburgh Pirates feasted on the pitching of Kansas City Athletics for the second straight day. This time the score was 15-7, and the Pirates had seven home runs, including three by rookie infielder Gene Alley.

Baltimore Orioles also made it two in a row over New York Yankees as they raked Stan Williams and his successors for nine runs in the second inning and won 10-1.

Minnesota Twins had a six-run seventh inning in a 9-6 victory over Detroit Tigers.

Cincinnati Reds had 17 hits as they battered Chicago White Sox 13-7.

Los Angeles Dodgers, touring in Mexico, were beaten 8-5 by Mexico City All-Stars.

Cleveland Indians got a split on the day. The varsity ended a four-game losing streak with a 4-1 victory over Chicago Cubs. Los Angeles Angels rallied for two runs in the bottom of the ninth to edge the Cleveland B team 8-7.

San Francisco Giants scored a 7-4 decision over Boston Red Sox. Philadelphia Phils trimmed Houston Colts 8-3.

In Saturday's games Houston downed Philadelphia 10-4, Baltimore defeated the Yankees 5-4, San Francisco nipped Boston 4-3, the Angels edged Cleveland's B team 7-6, same score while the Tribe's B squad lost to the Cubs 9-8, Cincinnati whipped the White Sox 9-2, Pittsburgh clobbered the Athletics 14-1, St. Louis topped the Mets 5-1, Washington blanked Milwaukee 5-0, Detroit shaded Minnesota 3-2 and the Dodgers trounced Mexico City Reds 10-4.

Aces Win Juvenile Title

Aces won the Belleville Minor Hockey Association's Juvenile championship on Sunday evening.

Aces were held to a 5-5 tie yesterday but won the titular series over the Comets by a total score of 10-6.

The final game was a penalty-studded affair. Included among the sentences was a major to the Aces' G. Pugh for a fight with the Comets' H. Babcock. R. Law drew a major and two minor ducks and C. Dyble a minor and two misconducts. Both are Comet players.

In the scoring department, R. Smith scored three goals and one assist for another for the champions. G. Pugh and D. Savage each got a goal and two assists.

R. Hallam scored once and set up three others for the Comets as Mel Wright scored two goals, M. Cooke and T. Casson one each. J. Thompson got an assist.

In an exhibition game, Horne struck the Tigers 9-4. P. Farrell scored three Horner goals, J. Harvey and J. Muldoon each scoring two, D. Button and C. Muldoon one apiece. A. Goodfellow potted three for Tigers, J. Shabell one.

Picton Jrs. Grab 2-1 Series Lead

By JACK FAWKES

PICTON — The Picton Juniors were one up in their best-of-seven playdowns as they defeated the Napanee Red Wings by a 6-3 score in a game played at Napanee on Saturday night. Picton leads the series two games to one.

Picton took a 1-0 lead into the second period on a first-period unassisted marker by Bob Thompson who beat Tom Mercer cleanly at the 2.57 mark.

Picton made it 2-1 at 1.26 of the second period as Jim Hammel fired one that beat Mercer. This was also unassisted. The 2nd Wings Jim Sherer, fired his first of three at 7.29 of the second period, to tie the score. Assists were Mike Cruft behind Larry Holmes for the score.

Napanee died it at two all, when Stinson took passes from Winston Dowdell and Mike Cruft to beat Holmes from close range. Picton came right back with Harold Hughes batting one at 4.32, with Wayne McConnell and Tim O'Grady assisting.

Big George Saltsman fired one at 8.13 after taking passes from Bill Hopkins and Bob Brown, to put Picton into a lead they never gave up. Stinson fired his last goal of the night at 12.57 with Dave Fox assisting, but Rory McDonald got that one back at 13.25 with Cruft again Brown and Hopkins helping.

There were 16 penalties called, with Picton's Tim O'Grady taking a five-minute hiking penalty at 10.15 of the second period.

The series resumes at Picton tonight, Monday. Game time 8.30 p.m.

VAL D'ISERE (AP) — A layer of soggy spring snow slid down on a party of French skiers Saturday, killing three men and two women. Three persons escaped.

'Lifters' Set Three New Marks

Three weightlifting records, one Canadian, the other British Empire, went by the boards here over the week-end.

Morris who broke four junior records a short time ago, created a new Canadian press mark with a lift of 290 pounds. The former record was 285 pounds.

Lewis, Canadian middleheavyweight champion, broke his own Canadian record and set a new British Empire mark in the snatch trials.

He lifted 294½ pounds, beating his own Canadian mark of 290 pounds set last November and also bested the British Empire record of 290½ pounds held by Lary Martin of Great Britain.

The Apollo lifters were guests at the Canadian Teen-Agers Lifting trials, part of which were held at the club here.

Harold Bawden President

Softballers Name Officials

The Belleville and District Softball League solved one of its major problems by electing a full slate of officers at an organization meeting yesterday afternoon.

Now the executive body, led by a newly-named president Harold Bawden, faces the task of lining up enough teams to form a successful league for the 1964 playing season.

Organizing heads, yesterday's initial meeting of the season was a decided success. Fifteen persons in all turned out — but only three of them were representing teams.

Represented were Trudeau Motors and Joyce Real Estate, and a possible junior entry, sponsored by Elmer Woods. An earlier phone call from Trenton said that Charlie Drake and a player from last year's RCAF Flyers would attend the meeting. No one showed up and either the air force or Trenton town.

Another meeting has been called for next Sunday afternoon, at 2.30, also at Club Canada and once again contacts will be made with Picton, Cobourg and Trenton, as well as the Bobcats from Belleville.

Cliff "Scoop" Balch, league commissioner for the past two seasons, resigned from that position yesterday and the league returned to its former president-and-officers type of executive.

Harold Bawden, who has been serving as assistant commissioner was named president, without opposition.

It was decided to divide the secretary-treasurer job into two separate positions. Beich was named the secretary's job and Al Sills was named treasurer.

Three other executive members were named. They were Ernie Simpson, Harry Robins and Gord Hutchinson, the first two past presidents of the OASA and the latter an active member of the city's minor softball body. Sills has also been active in the city's minor softball for a number of years.

These present voiced disappointment in the lack of team showing interest from centres outside of Belleville but felt that by election an executive which can now get out and do something definite about the loop's operation, in regard to contacting teams, etc., any possible entries would feel that concrete measures are being taken to keep the league alive.

Joyce and Trudeaus seemed quite sure of entries and Elmer Woods thought that he could enter a junior team if he received some assurance that the city's junior age players would come out with his club and not some other. No word whatever has been received from the Bobcats.

Don Smith, representing the Commercial Softball League, said that his organization had not held its spring meeting yet and he had no idea about the entries in that loop at this time.

Sills said that one idea which would help in years to come would be for the present-day players to give a night or so of their time each week in instructing minor league teams and players. "It would be a big boost for the kids now and will assure your league of good players as they come up in the years to come," he said. The umpires' association will also be asked to help out the minors by donating officials for as many games as possible.

The league also decided to have a representative approach the Parks and Recreation chairman, Alderman Don Tice, about better facilities and lights for softball in Belleville. A letter will also be sent.

SINGAPORE (AP) — Cigarette sales skidded in Singapore following release of a U.S. government report saying smoking is a health hazard. Liquor consumption rose in the same period.

Minor Hockey Results

Final series for both the bantam "A" and "B" championships got under way Saturday.

In the "A" series, Frontenacs took a two-goal lead by clipping Quinte 4-3. Dave Middleton scored two goals for the Frontenacs with one each by Ron Mitchell and Al Soanes. Ted Shaw, Foto Fleming and Mitchell had assists. Greg Burnett and Wayne Mac tallied the Quinte goals and Bill Janzbeck drew one assist.

In the "B" series, Frontenacs moved three goals ahead with a 6-3 win over the Rangers. F. Dorner netted a pair, Wm. Graves and J. Sled one apiece for the winners. Litchford, J. Hill and Stearns drew assists. Frontenacs was the lone Ranger marksman, aided by M. Aquafredda. Second games in both series will be played, Wednesday night.

The Belleville Minor Hockey Association's Midget series wound up its seasonal play on Sunday night but no one seems to know who won the division championship.

Bruins shutout the Black Hawks 3-0. The game was the last for Ron Mitchell and Al Soanes. The first game was played last Tuesday but no score sheet was turned in for that game, either at the newspaper office or at the Recreation Centre, where all league records are kept.

At any rate, R. Summers scored both goals for Bruins in the last night's 2-0 win over the Hawks. R. Wills drew assists on both goals.

Bulldogs Shade Chatham 4-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fort Wayne Komets and Windsor Bulldogs picked up valuable ground in the International Hockey League during the weekend.

The Komets dumped Muskegon Zephyrs 5-5 Sunday to open up a three-point spread over the second place Toledo Blades. The Blades went pointless over the weekend, taking the short end of a 5-5 overtime decision with Des Moines Oak Leafs.

The fourth - place Bulldogs shaded Chatham Maroons 4-3 in overtime Sunday to take a five point margin over Muskegon Zephyrs. The Zephyrs had trimmed the count to three points Saturday edging the Maroons 6-5.

Ted Wright and Merv Dubchak each fired three goals to pace the Komets' attack. Norm Waslewski and Len Thomson added the others. Muskegon's Kastelic also produced three goals, with Moose Lallo and Stan Konrad getting one apiece.

World Curling Gets Under Way

CALGARY (CP) — Europeans rinks wrestled with a common problem — artificial ice—in the Stampede Corral as they practised for the first round of the International curling championships which start here tonight.

Alois Zimmerman of Bigi Kaltaal, Switzerland, said the ice was the fastest he had ever seen. Swedish and Norwegian rinks also used practice time to artificial ice from slower, outdoor ice in their own countries.

Three other entries—Canada, Scotland and the United States —which are expected to provide most of the fight in the four-day event, also limbered up for the opening draw.

Competition is for the Scotch Cup, emblematic of world curling supremacy. The championship, sponsored by the Scotch Whiskey Association, is being held outside Scotland for the first time in its six year history.

Canadian rinks have won the world crown every year since its inception.

CALGARY (CP)—The sixth annual international curling championships begins tonight at 8 p.m. Two draws each are scheduled Tuesday and Wednesday in the round robin competition, with the semi-finals and final to be played Thursday.

The draw:

Monday 8 p.m.: Norway-Scotland; Sweden - Switzerland; United States-Canada.

Tuesday—2:30 p.m.: Sweden-United States; Norway - Canada; Scotland - Switzerland.

8 p.m.: Sweden - Canada; United States - Scotland; Norway-Switzerland.

Wednesday—2:30 p.m.: Sweden - Scotland; Switzerland-Canada; Norway-United States.

8 p.m.: Switzerland - United States; Scotland-Canada; Norway-Sweden.

Thursday—9 a.m.: Reserved for possible draw in case of ties.

2.30 p.m.: semi-finals: First- and fourth-place teams play off. Second - and third-teams play off.

8 p.m.: Final.

When the round-robin is completed, if any teams are tied for a playoff position, their record against the teams with which they are tied will decide playoff position. Extra games will be played only if position four, five and six are tied and cannot be decided in this way.

AT THE BELLE — Cary Grant and Audrey Hepburn are co-starred with Walter Matthau in "Charade" showing Tonight and Tuesday, matinees daily. The Technicolor film is a delightful blend of comedy, romance, glamour and murder, with a dash of insoluble mystery.

Johnson Covers Ground In Hour of Conversation

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — President Lyndon B. Johnson sat down this weekend with the top reporters of the three major networks for an hour of conversation.

He discussed subjects that ranged from Bobby Baker and Robert F. Kennedy to Henry Cabot Lodge and Charles de Gaulle. He covered much ground, but the principal result of the program was to give the public its first chance to see the president on an informal basis.

President Johnson seemed slightly nervous at the beginning of the program, but became more relaxed and easier as the time passed.

There were none of the kenedy leavenings of wit in the exchanges — President Johnson did not even smile often.

Actually, he did not say much on any one subject, but he never really ducked one during the hour.

Despite the time, money and effort that the networks poured into covering the New Hampshire primary, preliminary audience surveys indicate that most members of television viewers preferred the usual entertainment shows.

Blondie Wins Her Battle With Variety Artists Guild

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It 1962 at which Penny and others started because Penny Singleton wanted to drop in on a convention to meet old friends.

Several years ago the famed Blondie of 44 movies and 12 years of radio was asked to attend the annual convention of the American Guild of Variety Artists in Cleveland. Penny thought it would be fun to meet some of the troupers she had known as a child.

"So I went," she says. "and I had a great time seeing Smith and Dale and all the oldtimers."

She didn't know that the chance event was to bring her six years and 19 days of personal hell.

Her ordeal ended Feb. 27 when she was reinstated to the AGVA board and given $15,000 in settlement of her claims against the union. Recently vindicated, she now is of necessity turning down movie offers. Her first engagement is a Twilight Zone, which will appear on CBS April 3.

SCORED HIGHREST

After Penny's visit to the Disneyland convention, she was asked to run for member of the national board of AGVA. She did and scored the highest vote in the union's history.

"I went to New York for the installation, and that was when I began to think something was awry. I listened to a lot of business being presented and I didn't know what they were talking about.

"But I did notice that two of the officers presented different sets of figures concerning the same matter. I timidly began to ask questions. Then the administration moved in on me."

Despite a growing feud with administrative officers, Penny advanced in the AGVA hierarchy and even served one term as president in 1958-59. The charges and countercharges grew in intensity, and she was suspended from the union, thus depriving her of the ability to work as a variety performer.

"I was just as stubborn as Blondie," she said. "I kept up my campaign and believe me, I received a liberal education in law."

PROBED AGVA

In 1961, AGVA came under the scrutiny of Senator John J. McClellan's permanent subcommittee on investigations. Highly publicized hearings were held in 1962 at which Penny and others testified. Allegations of collusion and corruption within the union were made.

The committee's report in 1963 concluded that AGVA "not only has not defended the rights of its members, but, in many cases has operated against their interests."

Last month, Penny accepted reinstatement and the $15,000 rather than pursue her case for damages.

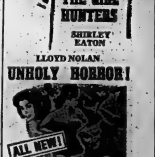
AUSTRALIAN WINS



CAIRO (AP) — Jan Lehne of Australia, defying a ban imposed by the Australian Lawn Tennis Association, won the women's singles title Saturday in the United Arab Republic tennis tournament. She defeated Christine Truman of Britain in the final 6-2, 6-1. The association has banned Australian players from competing in overseas events before March 31. Roy Emerson and Ken Fletcher have defied the order and were booted off the Australian Davis Cup squad.

Soo Bowler Tops Ont. Tenpinners

Kramer, who overtook Chibi after 12 games and turned in closing rounds of 228 and 246, will represent Ontario in the Canadian Masters Tournament at Toronto during the Eastern weekend.

Tony Hianchi, also of Sault Ste Marie, finished in the runner-up spot, Kramer's over-all total was 2,908 to 2,893 for Hianchi.

Henry Galloway of Sarnia scored the tournament's high single of 278 and came from 12th position after 10 games to finish a strong third with 2,887 pins.

Chibi, who won the title for the last four years and the Canadian championship last season, finished fourth, five pins behind Galloway.

The high series was rolled by Don Mitchell of Essex who collected 1,034 pins in Saturday afternoon's five-game block. He finished ninth in the field of 26. Chibi's opening five-game round of 1,025 was second highest.

Don Gillett of Chatham came within five points of Kramer in the 12th game with a 254 but registered 169 and 176 in his final two games to finish out of contention.

The Tracks

Grecian Princess, a chestnut filly owned by Theodore B. Buhl, Detroit, returned a whopping $60 to $2 win bettors. She paid $12.40 to place and $5.80 to show.

Jockey Kelly Broussard guided the filly over the 1¼ miles in 1:59 4-5.

Whit's Pride, ridden by Ismael Valenzuela who flew in especially to ride Mrs. Goldie Fink-elstein's colt, and Susan's Gent, the second choice of the 15,109 bettors, dueled for the lead throughout, and Susan's Gent, who finished in the runner-up spot when Susan's Gent broke down.

At Miami, Fleet Admiral had all the way to win an easy seven-length victory in the $15,-000-added Appleton Handicap at Gulfstream Park.

HAD THREE WINS

Blum won the fifth race on Col. Mengel, $7.60 to start the twin He finished second on Special Prince in the sixth race, the second race in the twin, as Africanus, $30, led all the way. Blum finished off the twin by scoring with Nashever, $6.80, in the eighth race and Frankie's Rod, $14.40 in the Appleton. A total of 15 winning tickets were sold.

The Appleton, a prep for next Saturday's $100,000-added Gulfstream Handicap, was no contest. Romancero 2nd finished second and Garwol was third.

Frankie's Pride, owned by Eugene Chaney, ran the 1 1-16 miles in 1:48 4-5 and paid $14.40, $10.80 and $5.80. Romancero 2nd paid $3.40 and $3, Garwol $3.20.

Pama Ego paid $11.40, $6.60 and $3.20; Vitamin Shot $10.40 and $9.20, and Srta. Monica $4.20.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For March 17

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Much to be gained if you don't react too far. Excellent for purchase of luxury items. Also good for improving personal appearance. Be practical, but with a special flair!

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Cycle continues high. Appeal to those with power to aid personal cause. Women to figure prominently in day's activity. Feature beauty, imagination, creative endeavors.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Tendency indicated to encounter the unknown. Welcome challenges in negotiations, difficult matters. There are some mysterious developments due. But these evolve in your favor.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Deception possible if you believe everything. Maintain skeptical attitude. Listen spoilsity but rely only on factual information. Evening fine for social activities.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Time to complete projects, tie up loose ends. Handle routine matters; catch up on correspondence easiers. Get business affairs in order. Make contacts for future needs. Plan ahead.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23): Utilize creative forces. Fine for writing, publishing advertising. Spread influence. Test ideas. Consult experts. Gain from written word. Read your paper for valuable suggestions.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): Money question due to require special attention. Stress patience, co-operation. Share knowledge. Explain rather than demand — win your way with kindness. Show off Li'l charm.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Key is expansion. You are now in position to win friends, make contacts. Your greatest asset is sense of humor. Avoid forcing tactics. Do more listening than talking.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Question arises concerning principle. You may be urged to take actions considered "safe." But you won't be happy if you break promise. Remain true to own convictions.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Excellent for making basic decisions involving change. No time to sit tight for sake of appearances. Be ready, willing and able to admit mistakes. And to make changes.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Seek to-between methods. Avoid extremes. Don't be involved in disputes. Areas exist which have yet to be revealed. You are at stage which calls for greater development.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Where travel is concerned . . . proceed with caution. Where agreement, written contracts go . . . proceed with deliberation. Time to get comfortable. But no day to become involved in adventures.

If today is your birthday . . . you surprise many people because you are strong and capable, but speak with soft voice and crude charm and a personal kind of "poetry."

Near the hospital, the unit would be ideal living accommodation and professional office for doctor or dentist. If you don't fall in that category, consider this 3 bedroom apartment and rented at $100 per month. Features include 3 bedrooms, large living room for the owner. This one investigation don't you think?

CAN YOU IMAGINE?

A car without a wheel brake? Well in a very short time, a home without a smoke detector will be just as ridiculous and about as hard to dispose of as a car without 4 wheel brakes. However, the problem need not concern you if you make your new home a safe one home through Joyce Realty

BERTRAM BLVD.
FIREPLACE

A well appointed kool home in the Bertram neighborhood. Very easy living room and dining room. Kitchen has eating area. Utility room in basement but who needs one. This house has 3 very large Utility rooms containing all laundry facilities. Forced air heating system in great space. Attached garage. Full price only $14,500.00 down to one month payment.

DRANK FOR CHARITY

LONDON (CP)—About 1,000 students from London University crowded into a Chelsea pub one night and drank 3,500 pints of beer in 4½ hours to raise money for Dr. Barnardo's Homes and other charities. Publican Angus Gowen said he still had enough beer left in the taps for next morning's "regulars."

Famed

Congo.

Lt.-Col. A. J. O. (Andy) Woodcock, the battalion commander, arrived in Cyprus Saturday with an advance party to set up a base.

Col. Woodcock was with 41 other Canadians in the group. They were followed into Cyprus by a further 64 Canadians who landed Sunday.

EXPECT 800 TODAY

A Cyprus Army spokesman in Nicosia said about 800 troops are scheduled to arrive there today in three planes.

Meantime in Halifax, the aircraft carrier Bonaventure was being prepared for departure Wednesday with more army personnel and equipment.

The Bonaventure is due to arrive with 1,100 soldiers and 60 supporting vehicles and other equipment to Cyprus.

Besides the 1,100 troops, roughly 175 officers and men forming the administrative body will be flying from here. Another 1,000 soldiers of the Royal Canadian Dragoons at Camp Gagetown, N.B., and 400 from Petawawa, Ont., will fly out of these men flying from Halifax.

Altogether, the force of 3,130 men is to be in Cyprus by March 24. In that time, nine Hercules flights and 19 Yukon flights will have been made.

The big aircraft soared into the snowclouds over Quebec City carrying a confident, eager body of soldiers.

Capt. Louis Fournier, 31, a Gaspe native who served in Korea, has managed to get to his little daughter's birthday party Sunday.

DID IT BEFORE

Capt. Fournier, asked by amazed reporters about the sudden stay in which the battalion rallied itself during the weekend, replied:

"We did the same thing in an exercise to Wainwright, Alta., last summer. Why shouldn't we do it again?"

Pte. Andre Lortie, 18, of Montreal, a soldier now for three years, said: "This is why we joined the infantry. We've been training for this and we want to go."

The husky, handsome young soldier and his comrades picked up gear Saturday — 9-mm. Parifles, United Nations badges, summer dress and parkas for the chilly nights of the Troodos mountains, as well as riot shields and clubs painted black but still showing the legend: "Babe Ruth Little League."

The 1st Battalion, on standby for three years now as the United Nations unit in Canada, has been specially trained for police duty.

General Vanier told the soldiers they will be Canada's ambassadors, and he urged them to present an example of teamwork and soldiarity.

"Be an example of unity for the troops of other nations who will be involved in the same operation.

"Don't forget that, without regard to race or belief, we are all brothers."

OTHERS GUARD ARMORIES

A company of the 2nd Battalion of the Van Doos has been in Montreal in recent weeks guarding armories. The 3rd Battalion flew to Seglea, 100 miles north of Quebec City, to carry out exercises during the weekend.

The 1st Battalion is the envy of all.

Wives, children and sweethearts, relatives and friends turned up at the camp during the weekend to bid goodbye. There were no tears.

One young soldier became engaged Friday after learning his battalion would be moving out. Others bid farewell to their families.

"My wife wasn't too happy about it but we were prepared since the battalion has been on standby for two years," said Capt. Gaston Roy, the medical officer. A surgeon also will go along.

Maj. Albini Dubois, 42, who had four needles Saturday, went out visible reaction, joined the army during the Second World War and has been in Korea and Palestine.

Capt. Dubois, one of the few there before, stopped off briefly in 1957 on a flight from Israel and found it hot.

But he also is looking forward to the mission. He found Israel "Beautiful" and looks forward to a similar experience in the mountainous, troubled island.

GOES TO MUSEUM

TORONTO (CP) — One of the last three Mosquito fighter bombers left in Canada is being dismantled at Toronto International Airport for shipment to Calgary where it will be enshrined in the Alberta Aviation Museum. The twin - engined wooden air craft won fame in the Second World War as a fighter, bomber and high-altitude reconnaissance plane.

Cypriot houses in Ayios Theocheros, a village near Larnaca in southern Cyprus. It was the only reported incident of the day.

CHURCH RIVING

Cypriot Vice-President Fazil Kutchuk, leader of the island's Turkish community, flew by helicopter Sunday to Kitma in southwestern Cyprus the scene of heavy fighting between Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots a week ago.

Kutchuk, returning to Nicosia, said the Greek - Cypriots in Kitma still had not returned 34 Turkish-Cypriot hostages.

He said the Turkish Red Crescent (red cross) was allowed into Kitma for the first time Sunday with relief supplies.

Col. Edward Amy, 45, of Kenville, N.S., commander of the Canadian contingent of the UN peace force, Sunday held a round of conferences setting up arrangements for the arrival of the Canadian troops.

Amy met with Brazilian Maj.-Gen. Carlos Chaves, acting commander of the force in Jerusalem, and with the British commander of the joint truce force in Cyprus, Maj.-Gen. Richard Carver.

HAS HOLIDAY AIR

With the threat of Turkish invasion eased, Nicosia took on somewhat of a holiday atmosphere during the weekend. Revellers jammed all of Nicosia's cafes early Sunday and sang loudly in the central square only a short distance from the city's "green line," where armed Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots confront each other.

It was the first such outburst since the two communities started fighting in December. Some plans of the Greek-Cypriot government to change the constitution and end the Turkish-Cypriot veto over key legislation.

The Greek-Cypriot press Sunday ascribed the passing of the Turkish invasion threat to the defiant stand of the Greek - Cypriot governments, and the Security Council's "hands off Cyprus" resolution last Friday.

In the Turkish section there was gloom. The Turkish-Cypriot feared Greek - Cypriots might be emboldened to step up their measures against them.

TEMPERS RUN HIGH

In Turkey, less than a day's flight from Nicosia, tempers still ran high. Almost 100,000 youths held a carefully policed, five-hour protest rally in Istanbul, chanting "Army go to Cyprus." They burned effigies of Soviet Premier Khrushchev, described as a Greek soldier and Greek-Cypriot President Archbishop Makarios depicted as a monkey.

Bill to End Resale Price Maintenance Causing Mess

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP) — It is becoming increasingly apparent that the government has got itself in a large-sized mess over the proposed bill to end resale price maintenance.

The ministers handling it obviously miscalculated both the strength of the back-bench opposition and their ability to control it.

Now there is speculation they may resort to the "guillotine" to limit opposition from their own Conservative colleagues when the bill to end price-fixing by manufacturers reaches the committee stage in a week.

To some observers, the use of this parliamentary device to cut off debate for discussing the bill would be a major humiliation. And it would rob the Conservatives of one of their traditional electoral assets — the image of a united party, thinking strictly with one mind on all important issues.

Lately, the extreme right wing of the Tory party has created rumbles frequently with the majority. So far the right-wingers have been more of a nuisance than an effective threat.

But this time their strength is greater and even if they do not succeed they could create embarrassment by slowing the bill's process while time runs out before the general election that must come before November 30.

The man in the middle, as he is in so many other issues, is Prime Minister Pearson. He has been trying to act as conciliator between the two groups.

Conciliator For Railroad

OTTAWA (CP) — Appointment of Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe of the British Columbia Supreme Court as chairman of a conciliation board in the contract dispute between the maintenance of way employees and the Canadian National Railways was announced Saturday.

Labor Minister MacEachen said Mr. Justice Munroe will be headed a 1963 conciliation board that brought about a settlement of the last previous dispute between the two parties.

SAFE DRIVER—Douglas Stewart of Foxboro, driver for the Wannamaker Bus Service on the Belleville to Batawa run, has received a 10-year safe driving award from the National Safety Council. Mr. Stewart takes Batawa employees to work in the morning and on the return run brings high school students to Belleville.

FRENCH LINK POSSIBLE

HALIFAX (CP) — Secretary of State Maurice Lamontagne says a national French television and radio network coast-to-coast may be possible in the next decade. Mr. Lamontagne, at a press conference Saturday, said a radio network was "quite feasible and relatively cheap," but a television network would be more costly.

First Canadians Settle In Camp Near Nicosia

Turk Parliament Gives Leave to Send Troops

CP from AP-Reuters

NICOSIA — The first Canadian operational troops of the UN Cyprus peace force spent their first nonfiling on this troubled island today settling in at their temporary tent camp near Nicosia.

The Canadians, wearing the blue berets of the UN force, have taken over a small section of the Elizabeth camp where several hundred red-bereted British paratroopers also are encamped.

One first thing the Canadians did was to put up a flagmast on which both the blue flag of the United Nations and the Canadian Red Ensign were run up. About 100 men fell in on a parade before flagmast to present arms as the flags were unfurled.

The first statehood of operational Canadians arrived at Nicosia airport late Monday night. Since then a steady stream of RCAF Yukon jets has been landing at the newly-bought airport, bringing in more men and equipment.

MUST FRENCH-SPEAKING

The majority of troops who have arrived so far are French-speaking Van Doos, men of the 1st Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment.

It is expected that the total 1,100-man Canadian contingent in Cyprus will be here by the end of this week.

A Canadian officer said it will be a few days before the Canadian contingent undertakes any duties on the island.

"We have to get our terms of reference first," he said.

Asked if both the Canadian troops will be allowed to enter Nicosia, four miles down the road from the Elizabeth camp, for off-duty relaxation, the officer replied this was not likely to come about for a few days either.

He explained that first it will have to be ascertained where the troops can go without interfering unwittingly in the tense situation existing along the borderline of the Greek and Turkish sectors of the city.

Two planeloads of Canadian Army men—53 soldiers in all—landed at Nicosia airport Monday night, wearing the blue berets of the UN and carrying rifles, steel helmets and tents.

The Canadians were the first operational troops of the UN peace force to arrive in Cyprus. An advance party of 106 Canadians arrived Saturday and Sunday.

Looking fresh despite a 24-hour flight from Valcartier, Que., the Canadians descended the plane ramps at the double, ran across the tarmac and smartly lined up for inspection by the aging commander of the UN force, Maj.-Gen. Carlos Flores de Paiva-Chaves of Brazil.

ANKARA (AP)—The Turkish parliament gave Premier Ismet Inonu full backing in the Cyprus crisis Monday night as Inonu's government stepped up military activity again after tension had appeared to be easing.

Warships and troops were on the move once more around the port of Iskenderun, 100 miles from Cyprus. Inonu warned that Turkey will step in if the United Nations does not protect the Turkish-Cypriot minority on the Mediterranean island.

Parliament voted Inonu full powers to act in the Cyprus crisis, and his foreign ministry announced that Turkey will abrogate a 1930 treaty under which nearly 10,000 Greek nationals living in Turkey have special residence and trade privileges. It said the decree will go into effect Sept. 16.

"The Greek government's behavior, making it seem it is on the side of the Greek-Cypriot bands and looters, has turned its face away from friendly nations against each other," he said.

"No matter what the consequences may be, we shall use our rights of intervention should the necessity arise to safeguard the life, honor and property of our Turkish brothers."

DESTROYERS SAIL

Two submarines and three destroyers steamed out of Iskenderun Monday and air force jets roared over the port heading in the direction of Cyprus.

Informants said leaves granted two days ago to troops in the Iskenderun area were cancelled and an armored brigade was heading for the port.

Two Turkish farmers, which stopped loading operations Sunday, resumed taking aboard military vehicles and troop rations.

Landing craft in Iskenderun harbor filled with military vehicles lined up along the docks were refuelled.

Nearly 20,000 troops were said to be massed around Iskenderun.

De Gaulle Aims To Increase French Prestige

Pension Debate Begins

By RONALD LEBEL

Health Minister LaMarsh planned to introduce the Liberal government's revised Canada Pension Plan almost eight months to the day after she introduced the original version.

"The most important measure before this Parliament" was how Finance Minister Gordon described the plan in his budget speech Monday.

He said it is intended "to permit all the workers of Canada to look forward to an opportunity to retire eventually with far more security and dignity than has been possible heretofore."

Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons he hopes the legislation will be approved in principle before the Easter recess, March 27, and be referred to a special committee for detailed study and public hearings.

Another politically - delicate subject—medical care for senior citizens—was brought up in the Commons Monday.

TRANSFER PLANNED

Health Minister Telliet announced that the government plans to transfer the 13 veterans hospitals, with 8,000 beds, to provincial or local authorities for use as private-treatment general hospitals. This means the government is implementing a key recommendation of the Glassco royal commission on government organization.

He laid down conditions for each transfer:

1. Immediate treatment of high standard must be available at all times to disabled veterans;

2. Treatment must also be available to other sick veterans in their own communities;

3. All members of veterans hospitals must be assured of satisfactory employment elsewhere.

Mr. Telliet said later the transfers will occur over a period of several years. His department would continue to pay for veterans' treatment.

He said negotiations already have started with the governments of Manitoba and Alberta.

The 13 DVA hospitals cost about $50,000,000 to operate annually.

Mr. Telliet said 70 per cent of the DVA patients now are aged citizens with chronic illnesses. This was discouraging staff recruiting and there was a critical shortage of nurses.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette congratulated the government.

Mr. Telliet met 30 representatives from 10 national veterans' organizations. He said many had expressed reservations, but the principle generally had been accepted.

Budget Highlights

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Income and sales tax rates left unchanged as government decides general tax cut not warranted in Canada by reason of U.S. tax-cut example.

Introduction of legislation after Easter to pay family allowances of $10 a month for full-time students aged 16 and 17.

Maximum deduction from taxable income of $4700 in 1964 tax year for children aged 16 and 17 receiving family allowance, reverting to standard $300 in 1965.

Maximum $550 deduction from taxable income for wholly-dependent brother or sister aged 21 or over if a full-time student, hitherto claimable only by a parent, effective Jan. 1, 1964.

One-third cut in deficit to $455,000,000 on 1964-65 budgetary expenditures of $7,155,000,000 and revenues of $6,700,000,000, up 3.8 and 7.9 per cent respectively.

Duration of last year's tax incentives for new industry in 35 slow-growth areas extended to March 31, 1967 from present expiry date of Dec. 5, 1965, for the three-year tax holiday for new industry and of June 14, 1965, for accelerated depreciation on new equipment and buildings.

No change in liquor and tobacco tax rates except for tax easement allowing imported Scotch whisky to enter Canada in 25-ounce bottles.

Depreciation write-offs for heavy excavation and earth-moving machinery increased to 50 per cent from 30, effective immediately.

Tax deductibility made retroactive to 1962 for research expenditures outside Canada.

Duty-free entry of aircraft and parts of a size and type not made in Canada extended one year to July 1, 1965.

Tax deductability allowed for costs of a taxpayer in appealing income tax assessments.

Effective immediately, bread allowed duty-free entry from most countries, including United States.

Emphasis in unemployment shifting from broad, general approach to area-by-area, group-by-group attack.

Forecast increase of 5½ per cent in gross national product for 1964 compared with last year's six per cent.

Federal and provincial governments must recognize Canadians cannot afford to do everything at once and should co-operate on priorities.

Finance Minister Extends Family Allowance $10 For 16's And 17's If In School

Taxes Left Unchanged; Hopes For Cut of One-Third in Deficit

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Gordon has given teen-age students and their parents the only big financial break in a 1964 budget that otherwise sees him biding his time, waiting for a supercharged economy to produce more jobs, higher incomes — and more tax revenues.

His Monday night budget looked to a payment, likely starting next September, of $10 a month to parents for each 16- or 17-year-old still in school. This extension of the family allowance would swell the annual "baby bonus" bill by $43,000,000 to nearly $590,000,000 a year.

"Mr. Gordon also gave partial tax relief to students. He will deduct all tuition fees above $25 a year in filing future tax returns. This benefit, retroactive to last Jan. 1, already is owned by full-time students.

But the minister didn't change income tax rates. He didn't change sales tax. He left liquor and tobacco taxes untouched.

There were only a few significant changes with the government reserving its ammunition for the Kennedy round multilateral tariff negotiations starting in May in Geneva.

TO REDUCE DEFICIT

What remained, largely, was to take advantage of an accelerating economy to initiate government revenues — on present tax rates — by about $500,000,000 a year, helping to reduce the 1964-65 forecast deficit to an estimated $455,000,000.

(BUDGET NEWS, PAGE 13)

This, Mr. Gordon proclaimed, is a one-third cut from his deficit of $685,000,000 in the current year ending March 31. It was the first real step toward his oft-stated goal of lower deficits and ultimately a balanced budget.

When will that day come? To this question at a post-budget press conference, Mr. Gordon replied: "As soon as jobs are pleasing men and women all over the country. . . . When the resources of the country are fully employed."

He wouldn't give a date. He said in his speech that the government's first goal is "high, level employment" but later he said he hoped no one would trap him into saying what that meant as a percentage of the labor force. No one did.

He said his key moves was extra-budgetary.

He announced that the government intends, later this session, to act to encourage Canadian life insurance companies to invest more of their money in Canadian common stocks. They now are allowed by law to keep up to 15 per cent of their assets in that form, but usually they are close to that or to hitting the legal ceiling yet.

Honeymoon Over For Burtons

TORONTO (CP)—The almost non - existent honeymoon was over.

Newlyweds Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor arrived here about 5 p.m. Monday, a day after their marriage in Montreal, and went directly from the airport to a recording session that lasted an hour.

And the groom reported for duty in the title role of Hamlet at the O'Keefe Centre by 8:30.

Mr. and Mrs. Burton touched down in their chartered CPA Viscount aircraft near an almost deserted hangar at Toronto International Airport.

The reception was far from the sendoff they received in Montreal where 1,000 persons gathered at their hotel, creating such a crush that police had to clear a path for the couple's car.

Said Mr. Burton: "Canadians are the best people in the world. Thirty-five people knew about our plans, but not one of them said a word."

That, he said, was "an extreme example of fundamental honesty."

"Their arrival at the downtown hotel—in which they have lived during their stay in Toronto—was greeted by about 100 persons at the front door.

Mr. Burton took his bride by the arm and started for the door. "Oh, no," he said when he spotted the mass. They paused, then forged ahead.

Asked if he planned an extended honeymoon, the groom replied: "I don't know. I'm richer busy than I am now."

The couple are staying in Toronto until Thursday. Gordon Broadcast-bound production of Hamlet ends its run here Saturday night.

They went to Montreal for their wedding because under Ontario law they would have had to be residents here to be married in this province.

Tobacco Growers Refuse Bids

AYLMER, Ont. (CP)—In an easy truce prevailed at the opening of Ontario's three tobacco auctions Monday. Some 3 per cent of tobacco met with prices bid, left the police-patrolled exchanges with tobacco they refused to sell.

George Demeyere, chairman of the Ontario Flue-Cured Tobacco Growers Marketing Board, said he was disappointed with the day's sales but added: "I do not intend to allow a minority to close the auctions again."

John Tarr of Niron, leader of the group that forced the exchanges at Aylmer, Delhi and Tillsonburg to close Friday, would not comment on the sales.

He said his group had agreed to a truce with the marketing board and would study the present situation for a few days.

Frank Schuster of Courtland, who said he sold 13 bales of top-grade tobacco for an average 30 cents a pound, added that he would "let the rest of the crop rot rather than bring it up for sale again."

He said he rejected bids on 80 bales of lesser grades.

Alex Frank of RR 4, Brantford, whose tobacco was waiting to be bought on the auction floor at Delhi, said: "I'm taking it back to the farm. I refuse to give it away."

PRICE LOWER

Average price at the exchanges Monday was 45.94 cents a pound, compared with 47.09 cents a pound the day the auctions were closed.

About 65,000,000 pounds of tobacco—roughly a third of the 1963 crop—remains to be sold.

Prices offered Monday were lower for certain grades than they were in February. Piles of tobacco were scattered on the floor at Tilsonburg and slowed operations.

Mrs. Erick Uvegra, whose husband grew 17 acres of tobacco at Bright, said: "If the exchanges open again, they'll be starved slowly. We've even tried to sell our farm but no one wants it."

The growers went back to the auctions on the government support, except for a 47-cent federal deficiency payment that would lift prices only if the average price falls below 47 cents a pound.

Last year the Ontario government guaranteed bank loans so farmers would be paid for some 23,000,000 pounds of no-sale tobacco removed into auctions.

Irish Sweeps Horses Drawn By Three District Residents

Three tickets in the immediate Belleville area have drawn horses in the treasure filled Irish Sweepstakes on the running of the Grand National.

The news from Dublin makes it a record St. Patrick's Day greeting for the district. It is believed to be the first time three local tickets' holders have simultaneously struck it lucky in the mammoth draw.

Next Saturday any one of them could win up to $150,000 on the English racing classic at Aintree.

Full identities of the local ticket holders were not known up to press time.

Holders of tickets on the winner may receive up to $150,000. Those with tickets on the second and third horses may win about $60,000 and $30,000 respectively.

The three local residents were among a total of 336 Canadians drawing tickets on 80 eligible horses. Total number of starters in the Grand National has not yet been decided, but the maximum is expected to be about half of the 80 eligibles.

Tickets in the world-wide lottery, all of hospitals in the Irish Republic are drawn on all the eligible horses Those with tickets on horses who start in the race but run out of the money will win prizes based on the total amount of the pool.

Holders of tickets on non-starters will win smaller consolation prizes.

Most of all horse races the English classic is notorious for fooling prophets. More often than not sheer outsiders have romped easily home as the gruelling obstacle course frustrated favored and famous thoroughbreds.

Thousands of Peru Indians Surround Surveying Party

LIMA (Reuters)—Frantic efforts were under way today to rescue a surveying party surrounded by "thousands" of wild, whooping Indians on a jungle hilltop in eastern Peru.

The surveyors were still holding out at last report but radio contact with some of them were "on the verge of madness."

A Peruvian army rescue column set out from a village about 50 miles away from the hilltop Friday, hacking its way through the jungle. It had still not reached the trapped surveyors by late Monday.

Casualties among the surveyors were set at two dead and four wounded. Thirty of the Indians, armed with bows, arrows and rifles, were reported to have been killed.

A radio message received from the surveyors Monday said the situation is desperate.

Reports said the Indians were led by smugglers who feared a plan to build a road through the jungle might restrict their operations.

City Speedily Acquires Land From Federal Govt. for Use As a Garbage Disposal Area

Federal government permission for the city to fill in the marsh east of the Bay Bridge Road for use as a garbage disposal area has been received and the public works department will proceed immediately to build the necessary berm or retaining wall.

Mayor John D. Ellis said at yesterday's council meeting that because of the low water conditions the city will be able to do for less than $1,000 work which had been estimated would cost approximately $7,000.

As result, the works department will proceed with the construction of more berm than had been anticipated at this time and sufficient wall will be built to enclose at least 25 acres.

This, the mayor said, would provide garbage disposal area to last another 10 years.

In all there are approximately 35 acres of marsh area which the city hopes to use for garbage disposal.

Mayor Ellis said that Federal approval of the city request to use the low marsh area as a disposal area had been speeded by Robert Temple, Liberal member for Hastings South.

He said Mr. Temple had personally taken the matter up with the Federal department with result that the required permission had been speedily granted.

Booth Radio Holds Tent Show

A sure sign that spring is not far away is the annual Tent Show now being held at Booth Radio and Television's Annex—just south of the four corners.

The array of different style tents set up for camping gives most people the urge to head for their favorite camping area.

Booth's tent display shop out that takes up no more space than the conventional models gives all the comfort of your own bed and comes complete with a waterproof floor mattress. Another interesting item is an air mattress than can be used for sleeping or as a float in the water. It has a built-in pump that takes the work out of inflating . . . just a few pumps with your foot and it's ready for use.

To take the work out of cooking, there are new types of stoves, warming trays, griddles, stove lighters, propane fuels, cooking utensils and other items too numerous to mention.

To assure the camper that he will have his equipment when required, Booth's have a unique Layaway Plan. Order your equipment now and lay it away with no down payments, interest charges or carrying charges 'til summer. Booth's make it easy for list old or old customers to obtain their requirements with their complete assortment of camping supplies.

Whether or not you are in the market for camping equipment, you will be interested in looking over the fine display at Booth's Annex . . . just south of the four corners. For your convenience they are open every day from 12 a.m. to 9 p.m. with the exception of Wednesday and Saturday evenings.

DIRECTOR RETIRING

LONDON (CP)—Air Pioneer Sir Alan Cobham, who developed the idea of refuelling planes in flight, is retiring as managing director of Flight Refuelling Limited. He will be succeeded by his son Michael.

Belleville city council will petition both the Federal and Provincial governments to increase capital grants for hospital construction with the view of relieving the financial burden on the individual home owners.

Council yesterday voted unanimously to petition the governments for the increased hospital grants, pointing out that the $2,000,000 or so which the city's share of the estimated cost of the new Belleville General Hospital addition would seriously hinder further capital works in the city.

Council claimed the hospital cost would delay such essential services as secondary schools, sanitary sewers, roads and bridges.

Copies of the city's resolution along with the city's proposed five year capital works budget will be forwarded to Federal and provincial health department, to Robert Temple, M.P., and W. R. Sandercock, M.L.A. and Clarke T. Rollins, M.P.

Also at last evening's meeting council passed its revised capital works programme for the next five years.

The proposed works program included the new hospital addition, a new high school, as well as additional public schools accommodation as well as roads and public utilities services.

Receive 3 Calls

City firemen were kept busy on Monday.

At 12:48 yesterday afternoon the department was called to attend a grass fire behind the Trans-Canada Credit Offices on Dundas Street East. No damage was reported.

A second call was received at 10:11 p.m. to the home of B. J. Shannon at 34 Lambert Drive. Firemen were called when an electrical heater on the furnace overheated. There was no damage. And at 10:45 p.m. a false alarm was received from the Canadian Tire Store on Coleman Street. It is believed a faulty alarm system sent the alarm.

Two Students Of Jack Green Win Medals

Six young boys, all of them students of Bandmaster Jack Green, competed in the festival and all of them attained 81 marks or over.

Jim Hodgson, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hodgson, Parker Street, competing with boys up to 15 years, won a second place medal with 83 marks, while Rickey Austin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allin Austin, South Creek Drive, received first place honors at class with 84 points.

Other Belleville entrants in the contest class were Keith Wilson, 82; Graham Brooks, 82; Robbie Crook, 81, and Paul Scott, 81.

Festival adjudicator, James Gibbs from Ingleton, England, praised the tonal quality of the entire group which he said was the best in the contest. Mrs. Jack J. Hodgson played piano accompaniments for all the Belleville soloists.

Bylaw Repeal Denied by Town Council

TRENTON — Eight of the town's 20 service stations showed up at last night's meeting of town council to ask that the bylaw restricting weekday closing by-law, passed by council on March 2, All eight had petitioned council for a petition asking for the repeal, but because they were one name lacking of the 20 per cent count, were advised that council, by law was not obliged to act on the request.

The operators were advised by Mayor Jerry McDonald to "get together with other operators," and try to come up with a plan, satisfactory to all.

"Don't be like the downtown Trenton," the mayor said, advised the mayor, "some of them don't even know if they're open or not."

The store hour question, said the mayor, was creating considerable fuss in town. "Where is it going to end, I don't know," he said.

Spokesman for the group, and specifically representing Mrs. Russell Hubbs who owns O'Malley's store and service station on north Front St. was Brighton lawyer, Arthur R. Thompson. Mr. Thompson said that the by-law, which requires stations to close at 7 p.m. would seriously hurt his client's business. He said, in effect, "fighting for her life," by asking that the by-law be repealed, he said.

Mrs. Carr, and several of the other dissenting operators operate stations in the recently annexed areas of the town.

During a review of the situation leading up the passing of the by-law, Mr. Thompson pointed out that no less than four different Planning Reports and against the by-law, had been presented to council, and in at least two cases, all four had been signed by the same persons. Two people had voted "yes . . . nay . . . yes . . . nay" in that order. Others had been almost as undecided.

"Is a man reliable if he signs 'nay' on Tuesday and 'yea' on Thursday?" asked Mr. Thompson, claiming that the by-law should be repealed on these grounds.

Request Refused To Place Banner Over Street

TRENTON — A request from the town's congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses that they be permitted to place a banner advertising the forthcoming Trenton convention (April 24-26) across the main street, was turned down by Trenton council last night on the grounds that similar requests had been refused.

Clerk-Comptroller O. W. Larry said that it should be noted that certain community groups are permitted from time to time to place banners across the street, but that these groups come under the heading of "community service."

Council Will Restrict Sale Of Stench Bombs

TRENTON — Council has been asked by police chief F. J. Taylor to update a by-law to do with the sale of stench bombs.

Recently, a local store placed the offensive bombs on sale, but withdrew them at the request of the chief. The powder for the nauseating smell had twice permeated the local theatre, forcing persons into the streets and necessitating an airing of the building.

The fact that one merchant had made the bombs available to the public sent the authorities to thinking of the possible complications. A check disclosed that while it was against the law to discharge the bombs, it was not illegal to sell them.

A by-law, to ban the sale of the bombs is being prepared by the town solicitor, Roderick Campbell.

Chamber Will Take No Action On Openings

TRENTON—The directors of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon meeting yesterday decided to take no action and make no official comment on the reported intention of some Trenton store owners to keep their stores open on Good Friday. While most merchants at the meeting seemed to be against the opening, the general feeling was that the chamber had in the past run into a lot of controversy on the subject of store opening hours and the matter should be left up to the individual store owner.

The chamber will sponsor a community dinner in the Trenton Legion Hall on April 1. To the dinner have been invited the mayor, members of Trenton and Belleville councils and the general public. At the meeting, a film on town "Spruce Up" will be shown. Initiated in Norwich, England, and sponsored by the Norwich Insurance Committee, the film outlines an economical way for the merchants to give the community a facelifting. In the English town, the insurance company made small loans available to businessmen to encourage them to re-paint the front of their stores, add an awning or otherwise fix up their premises cheaply. Other English towns and some Ontario communities have adopted the "Norwich Plan," and the Trenton chamber hopes to inspire a like program for the town. The general feeling at yesterday's meeting was that the Norwich Plan could be brought about in a year, with great benefit to the community.

Yesterday, David Lucas from the Canadian Chamber of Commerce sponsored plans for Trenton chamber to increase its membership. The directors mean to approach the Trade Fair in the community with the idea of getting local managers and merchants will be asked to contribute displays for this event.

Trenton Chamber of Commerce Week has been set for the week of April 12 to April 18. A general meeting and etsection of officers will be held April 6.

Chamber of Commerce secretary-manager, Nostrand Spragge, reported he was mailing out brochures on the town to points just across the border in the U.S.A. A special letter is being sent to prospective honeymooners whose names have been supplied by the Episcinasi chamber of commerce, suggesting that they spend their wedding holiday in Trenton.

A directors' dinner meeting will be held on April 6.

IN MEMORIAM

ILLSLEY — In loving memory of our dear father, Arthur Illsley who died March 17, 1952.

Dear father, you were so small,
To live on earth was not for all.
You were so loving, kind and true,
We can't be home and draw us,
Your memory is our guide,
And when we needed comforting
We find you by our side.
Your days were dark and dreary
Your eyes were dim,
To raise a decent family,
Was your one wish and dream,
Her face we always smiling,
Her heart was kind and true,
God said your work was finished,
He knew what He must do,
He took you home to rest dear father,
And judgment day he came,
Believed you to be a friend,
While shocks are softly sent,
A man will stand in silence,
And hang his head in shame
But God will start to trumpet
At the Lord call on his name.
Lord, I'm not finished yet,
And I pray about his youth
But life will not meet the end
Of Me who knows the truth.
The Lord will call the wheaten
To sit beside His throne,
This day will be the highest,
Of any she has known.
For she shall be rejoiced
No longer here alone
But I'll be there to meet her
At God's second home.
Lord, I'm not finished yet
I pray not a thing for me,
To teach me how to live and love,
To be a better friend,
As sure as there's a heaven
I'm sure there is a hell,
Can take her place on earth with us,
As our very own dear mother.
Always remembered by husband, Ronald, Bruno and family.

BULLSEYE! . . . Steer falls as shot strikes home

SHOOTING NEEDLE IN HAYSTACK would have been as difficult at these distances but Len Sweet (extreme left) connected with first shot in one vulnerable spot between steer's eyes. Runaway was dropped outside Plaza Shopping Centre on East Bridge Street. Second steer bolted.

MAD, MAD, MAD CHASE finally ends near dusk as second runaway is brought down north of old CNR roundhouse. Chase lasted six hours.

Runaway Steers Downed By Gunfire After Six-Hour Chase in East End of City

While crowds watched, death by gunfire came in the afternoon for a brace of young steers in Belleville yesterday.

They weren't very brave steers — just confused.

But shooting them was the inevitable end to a situation fraught with potential hazard.

In a day-long chase the young steers plowed across city streets and lawns, angered pedestrians and motorists by traffic, baffling all attempts at peaceful capture.

They injured no one, caused no property damage — but the possibility was always there until a marksman's patience paid off.

The steers first broke away from a livestock truck at an abattoir on Prince of Wales Drive about 11 a.m. when butcher John Coon was unloading them from a truck.

They took off down toward the Moira River, forded it near College Street Bridge, then headed up toward the city's eastern suburbs.

In the Farley Avenue area, the quivering butcher by this time reinforced by workmates and police, managed to corral one of the 500-pound runaways and force it into a truck. At the crucial moment before the tailgate dropped the steer made a dash for freedom. Despite a hefty belt from a two-by-four in the hands of Mr. Coon, it broke away successfully from its captors.

PURSUIT DIVIDED

The chase was on again — this time with a vengeance. Both steers by now were separated and the pursuit was divided.

One of the steers headed down across East Dundas St. and Highway 2, around the grounds of Belleville General Hospital, along Dundas again into the yard of a veterinary.

By this time—nearly noon—students at nearby Queen Alexandra public school were exhibiting cool and Mr. Coon concentrated on keeping it in the yard.

"As soon as the kids had left (the area) he made another dash for it," recalled the young butcher.

The chase then retraced itself back to the east suburbs, where steer No. 2 was by this time in a field behind St. Joseph's Church on Victoria Ave.

"They've got a queer mind. They can sense their way of direction to each other," said Mr. Coon.

Throughout the lunch-hour the pursuit swung back and forth between adjacent fields in the Victoria-Farley Avenues area.

POSSE CLOSES IN

A pick-up truck and tow-truck with a winch were marshalled and Mr. Sweet and police constable Bill Stephenson closed in on the steers.

A dare-all shot has finally been fired.

tory. Since it was a built-in area only a small .22-calibre rifle could be used at any distance, or the officer's light service pistol at close range.

The only spot vulnerable to such light weaponry was a tiny circle between each steer's eyes.

However, the steers panicked as Mr. Sweet drew his first bead. They took across nearby gardens — and the chase was on again.

This time there was another hazard. All schools in the area were out and the streets were crowded with students. The steers beat a path toward Bridge Street East — heading for the Plaza shopping centre.

Pounding in a cruiser straight for them constable Stephenson managed to turn the charging animals side at the last minute. In a quick reverse he herded them north along Bridge—directly into the path of Mr. Sweet.

While the officer hurriedly cleared an excited crowd from the line of fire, the veteran marksman took aim — and dropped a 500-lb doer on his first shot.

SIX-HOUR CHASE

As he fired again, the second steer turned its head, the shot furrowed its skull and it leapt a fence into a field.

With the cruiser, the pick-up truck and tow truck being driven by Earl Mowers, plus a bevy of students, the steer took back across East Dundas Street, along CNR track back across Dundas, around Hastings Drive and down Herchimer Avenue.

Cornered briefly on Herchimer, it evaded two more shots and dashed across a neighboring marsh to Station Street. Narrowly missing being hit by a road transport it fled across the CNR tracks.

It was here the chase ended. On the border of a swamp flanking the north end of the railroad yards it came in line of fire once more. Mr. Sweet dropped it with a single shot.

It was almost 5.30 p.m. The chase after being retraced across Belleville had lasted nearly six hours.

Cheesemakers Hold Spring Meet in City

Cheesemakers from the Central Ontario area are holding their annual spring conference at the Hotel Quinte today with afternoon and evening sessions scheduled.

Addresses from experts in the cheese manufacturing and dairy fields will be heard, while this evening a question and answer period will be held giving makers the opportunity to obtain answers to any cheese making problems they may have.

Association president Harold Elliott of Foxboro will preside over the conference, while past president Delbert Rowe of Holloway will chair the question and answer period.

Good Friday Store Openings Cause Concern

The intention of a number of downtown Belleville stores to remain open on Good Friday has drawn objection from the Belleville Ministerial Association and heads of the Roman Catholic Church.

Yesterday a letter from the Ministerial Association was read at city council objecting that open stores on Good Friday would interfere with employees' right to worship on that day and asking that a by-law be passed to force closing of stores on the Holy Day.

Council referred the matter to its executive committee which will obtain legal advice but Mayor Jack Ellis doubted if the city had any authority to pass such a by-law.

Council Declines to Discuss Houston Property Purchase For Public Works Dept. Barn

City council yesterday turned down an attempt to again discuss possible purchase of the Houston property in Foster Ward for use as a public works barn.

The matter has been before council on several previous occasions, the last being two weeks ago when it was voted to proceed with the city's application to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval to spend $175,000 on a new public works barn.

Yesterday it was revealed that a new offer had been made to the city by the Houston family.

Council refused to allow Alderman Donald Joss to introduce a motion calling for the new offers to be discussed.

NOTICE GIVEN

A notice of motion covering the same subject was later introduced, however, but it was doubted whether any action taken at the next council meeting would be in time to take advantage of the Houston offer.

Mayor John R. Ellis said the majority of council had viewed the Houston property considered it unsuitable for use as a city barn.

Alderman Ben Corke, as chairman of the council finance committee, said he was tired of hearing how the city could save $100,000 by purchasing the Houston property for use by the city works department.

"Eighty per cent of the buildings on the property would have to be torn down," he said.

May Eliminate Station-Emily Street 'Island'

The island which eliminated left hand turns onto Station Street from Albion Street, was approved last fall by city council.

For some motorists the idea seems to have worked out fine, while for others it has been a source of annoyance with the result that numerous complaints have been received by council.

Yesterday there was a recommendation in to council to remove the "temporary" island and to amend the traffic bylaw to again permit left-hand turns from Albion to Station and from Emily to Albion.

Council was told that the traffic department approved of the suggested change.

VOTE STALLED

But a vote on the recommendation was stalled by Aldermen William Jarvis and Ross Bailey and the matter was tabled for two weeks.

"Why is removal of the island now suggested?" asked Ald. Jarvis. "We were told previously that the island was required to eliminate a dangerous corner."

The alderman said he travelled Emily Street every day and felt the corner was now much safer than before the island was installed.

Alderman Bailey said he also found the corner much safer now.

But Alderman Jack Allin said there had been many complaints and stated he was in favor of going back to the old way.

The police traffic department was said to be in favor of returning to the old way, but the city engineer felt the island should remain.

"Then the reason for the suggested change back to the old way is because of pressure," commented Alderman Jarvah.

Guelph Man Has Sentence Suspended

A 40-year-old Guelph man, who claimed he was so intoxicated he could not remember committing bigamy was placed on a year's suspended sentence in Belleville yesterday.

In addition, Robert Taylor Sinclair was ordered to spend a week in jail.

Sinclair was convicted February 10 after Judge J. C. Anderson discounted the man's story he was so drunk he could not recall marrying a Trenton hotel waitress in November 1961.

At the time Sinclair had a wife and a teenage son in Guelph. He married to them shortly after the bigamous marriage at Trenton's King Street United Church.

Arrangements have been completed for an extraordinary dinner to be served and other surprises are in store for those competing. Splendid prizes have been donated by members of the local club and everyone is looking forward to an enjoyable day.

City Budget To Be Discussed In Near Future

With the 1964 city tax rate to be based on new assessment figures, Belleville property owners are beginning to wonder just what the current year's mill rate will be.

"There has been a lot of enquiries about what the mill rate will be", Alderman John Deacon said at city council yesterday. "People are anxious to know when the budget for the year will be set".

Mayor John R. Ellis said it was unlikely there would be any budget discussions for at least a week or so as all department estimates had not yet been received by the city manager.

The police commission budget was still out, he said.

When all estimates were in the mayor said council would be called into caucus to go over the budget item by item before presentation to open council.

Assessments in the city were raised approximately three times as result of the re-assessment program completed last year. Assessment in 1963 was just under 32 million, while up under the new re-assessment the figure is approximately 100 million.

Unless estimated expenditures for 1964 are higher than in 1963 the mill rate should be last year's rate of 91.9 mills residential and 103 mills commercial.

CNR Employee Falls to Death Near Napanee

Jan Tenkate, 177 Charles Street, a railway worker was working on the trestle bridge when he fell when a locomotive bore down on his work gang.

Mr. Tenkate fell to his death onto the highway. It was not certain if he had been struck by the locomotive. CNR officials are still investigating.

Born in Smilde, Holland, he immigrated to Toronto 10 years ago. He had been with the CNR about eight years and was employed here in its bridge and building department.

He was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and belonged to the Brotherhood of Maintenance Employees Union.

Mr. Tenkate is survived by his wife, Gerda, and two daughters, Ingrid and Sylvia.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at St. Andrew's.

Despite Strong Opposition Council Votes to Buy 'Y' Building for Police Station

Over the dissolved opposition of four of its members, Belleville city council yesterday gave first and second reading to a by-law authorizing the purchase of the YMCA building on Campbell Street for renovation as a police station.

Cost of the property will be $35,000 with another $100,000 estimated as the cost of renovations, to be paid for by debenture, according to the by-law.

City council will now make application to the Ontario Municipal Board for dispensation of a vote on the purchase and for approval of the project if there are no formal objections.

If there are formal objections the OMB would undoubtedly hold a public hearing on the purchase before board approval would be given.

But whether or not there will be private objection to the purchase of the "Y" there was opposition in council yesterday headed by Alderman Donald Whalen.

Alderman Whalen argued that the city was under no obligation to purchase the "Y" building and that it would be unwise to do extensive alterations without further investigation.

REPAIRS NEEDED CLAIM

"If the "Y" building is not good enough for the YMCA I cannot see how it can be good enough for the city," he argued.

"There is too much uncertainty about the architect's report. The heating plant has to be replaced, the plumbing has to be repaired, new wiring is needed and the building is not fireproof."

He said the "Y" project would cost over $200,000" and compared this figure with the cost of an entirely new building which he "generously" estimated at $320,000.

On the other hand Alderman Frank Murray felt the city was obligated to purchase the old "Y" but said the correct approach to the matter might be to purchase the "Y" property, demolish the building and erect a new police station on the site.

Alderman Jarvah supported Ald. Whalen's opposition, saying

COULD NOT AFFORD COST

But Alderman Jack Deacon claimed the city could not afford the $350,000 which he said would be the cost of a new police building.

On the other hand expert opinion was that the "Y" building would be adequate for renovation as a police station at a cost which the city could afford.

"The city is committed to buy the "Y", it is the best we can do for a police station and if will be good for 20 years," he said.

Mayor Jack Ellis felt the city was at least "morally bound" to buy the "Y" and said the cost would be written off long before the building was outdated.

NOT LARGE ENOUGH

Alderman Don Williams said the "Y" building was in much better condition than was admitted by councillors opposing purchase by the city. He said the "Y" officials would have voted to continue use of the building except that it was not large enough and there was no parking.

"Then there is no parking for the police either," retorted Whalen.

Council, however voted 10-4 to purchase the "Y" building for use as a police station. Approving the by-law were Mayor Ellis and Aldermen Allin, Bailey, Boyle, Ellis, David, Deacon, Joss, Murray and Williamson. Opposing were Aldermen Harrison, Jarvah, Bayeroft and Whalen.

One Right, One Wrong

Miss Pauline Jewett, the Liberal member for Northumberland, deserves applause for her courage in urging the appointment of impartial experts under the Pearson Government's bill to redistribute federal ridings.

Miss Jewett, however, was on questionable ground when she urged a second change in the bill as now drafted, an increase from 20 to 25 per cent in the "tolerance" population figure for ridings. It is now proposed that the population for ridings could be either 20 per cent above or below the provincial average. Miss Jewett's proposed change may look minor—but if the "tolerance" is increased to 25 per cent it will mean that the most populous riding could have five voters for every three in the least populous riding. This is too wide a difference. The 20 per cent "tolerance" would allow only three voters in the largest riding for every two in the the smallest.

Miss Jewett advances as a reason for advocating the change the old contention that rural ridings need greater representation than urban ridings. In other words, she expects the ridings with the smallest populations to be rural, those with the largest, urban. Even if one admits the validity of her argument for greater representation for rural ridings, surely one should not set out deliberately to establish such a difference. If there is a five to three ratio between the largest urban ridings and the smallest rural ridings, from the point of population, at redistribution, this difference is likely to widen greatly before the next redistribution.

The pronounced trend away from the country to the city will produce a sharp difference in riding populations, even if the riding populations are equal to start. Those who believe in representation by population could make a strong case for requiring the urban ridings to be those below the provincial average, in population, and the rural ridings above it. There is with the 25 per cent "tolerance" Miss Jewett advocates, the rural areas would probably achieve equality with the urban long before the next redistribution.

An Ugly Note

An ugly note has been introduced into Britain's pre-election campaigning.

Somebody has coined the slogan "If you want a nigger for a neighbor, vote Labor."

Labor has blamed the Conservatives and this has been denied.

Nobody seems to be taking much notice of the most disturbing implication, the fact that both sides are generally accepting it as a fact that the slogan would harm Labor's chances.

Despite the manner in which Britons have ruled "lesser races without law" in all corners of the globe, it has always been a British boast that racial prejudice did not exist at home. If the natives were considered an inferior breed under foreign suns, it was only because they were a backward people, with heathen ways. Once they achieved equality of conduct with Britons, they would be accorded equality of treatment. So went the argument. And, to give them their due, Britons at home managed to live up to this picture of themselves fairly well, in their treatment of students and visitors.

When West Indians of Negro or mixed blood started to immigrate to the British Isles in large numbers, a rift developed in this image. At Notting Hill and elsewhere, some elements of the British working class proved as susceptible to racial prejudice as people of other nationalities.

Now, it is plain, Labor considers that it would handicap its chances if it were believed that it proposed to champion the lot of Negroes in Britain.

It would have been braver, more in keeping with Labor's past and perhaps even politically advantageous had the party ignored the slogan, or used it to forthrightly advocate fairer treatment of Negro immigrants, many of whom are crowded into slums and are being exploited.

Too Much C.N.

A city works crew was patching holes on Pinnacle Street the other day, as a train inched its way back and forth along the C.N.R. tracks in a switching operation. Between the train and the city crew and the parked cars and one truck too big to manoeuvre through the small space left, traffic was blocked for about ten minutes.

And what truck was it whose driver either didn't think or couldn't be bothered to pull to one side and let the cars behind through the gap a car could pass but a truck couldn't? We'd hate to snitch, but the initials C.N. were painted on the side of the truck.

Ottawa Offbeat
Signs of Our Times as Seen By the Eminent London Times

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The good, grey Times of London, in its annual "Supplement on Canada," has stood well both and taken an unusually penetrating look at the Parliament politics of this country.

It will ground and fang in Parliament and the tumult and turmoil in and about Quebec raising such political dust, it is becoming increasingly difficult sometimes to keep a clear perspective.

Enlightening, then, to see how others see us, particularly an impartial international observer of such eminence as The Times of London, which has been keeping a clear, cool and careful eye on the world and its ways for nearly 200 years.

The Times, in brief, tells us:

Who up the situation as of Spring, 1964?

Like this:

After nearly a year in office, the Pearson Government has yet to find a secure mooring either in Parliament or in the country. In Parliament, where the Liberals are still four seats short of a majority, survival has been secured more by the Opposition's over-riding fear of an election than by the quality of the Government.

UNEASY DAYS

In the country, polls indicate that Mr. Pearson's team has lost much of the support the popular support since the General election of April last year.

"By all the statistical measurements—production, trade, employment, personal income—Canadians have cause for thanksgiving. And in these circumstances one might expect the Government to benefit from at least some of the thanks.

"But in Canada today there is no secure footing for any party.

The whole country has been thrown off balance by the surge of French-Canadian nationalism in Quebec, the demand for provincial autonomy, for new alignments between French and English speaking Canadians.

Old wounds have been opened.

Vicious young men in Quebec (these are The Times' own words) have sworn to kill or be killed for Quebec independence, and the sullen reaction is already raised in English-speaking Canada.

Mr. Pearson is the man in the middle of these historic moves towards Quebec have cost him dear in other parts of Canada.

He is accused of surrender to Quebec, of destroying Confederation, by treating Quebec as a state within a nation.

LISTEN TO DIEF

The Conservative Leader, Mr. Diefenbaker, has had his Heaven-sent opportunity for a return to power. —

"Dief Canada," he thunders, and should this be exactly what Mr. Pearson wants, too, people are listening to John Diefenbaker.

Most of the provinces are demanding larger shares of taxation revenue. The Province of Quebec...

But somewhere, a good Session of Parliament would put the Liberals in trim for a general election. Such hope of winning a majority.

It is time that they need, and the Conservative leaders, except for Mr. Diefenbaker, are prepared to supply it.

With a solid, iron-clad assurance of support from the Social Credit Leader, Mr. Thompson, the Conservatives have little fear of being forced into an election before he is good and ready.

That is it.

The political picture as The Times sees it is the party ignorance of history from London.

And it is as calm and clear-eyed an assessment of the situation as one could ask this public light of day on printed page, domestic or foreign.

Only one inaccuracy could upset this balancing of The Pros of the Canadian political scales—an accident in Parliament. A sudden issue, so hot and hard as to solidify the fragmented Opposition. That has happened before—just last year—and could again, nothing being impossible politically.

Letter to The Editor

Urges Party of Right As Balance to NDP

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

The political centres of Canada are ripe for the formation of a new political party.

Such as one manifesting such sound common sense as the refusal of the verbally powerful C.C.F. N.D.P. — socialist party to call itself dies requires the calling into existence of a balancing equally powerful party on the right extreme of the political spectrum.

The fact that the body politic, real is out of balance is evidenced by the apparently unshakable grip of both the liberal and conservative machines of the progeny of socialism and its companion by both parties into welfare legislation.

In both older parties right wing free enterprise types are becoming progressively isolated and ineffectual.

The intelligent, educated proponent of free enterprise should be a proper exponent of mission for the economic social and perhaps moral good of our country.

This voice is now substantially submerged and his advice and value lost in the two old parties.

WOULD PROMOTE CLARITY

A departure of these political values would greatly help to balance the clear and honest socialist views of the N.D.P., would promote clarity and honesty of policy in each of the older parties and, by a balance of the three political views, produce a voice for the right.

Such a political party could be the voice of free enterprise. The success of the N.D.P. lies in the acceptance of its policies by existing political parties. Its success stems from conviction and the occasional value of its views.

Is there not also much of value in the economic social and moral theory of the political right? Is the country being denied something of value in that it is not openly held and expressed with conviction?

In the present accelerated race to the left it is submitted that this country needs the voice of a similar concerted, intelligent, vocal and identified right wing party.

Advocates of the battle theory of British justice will readily recognize that a substantial group of valuable Canadians are now without the benefit of counsel before the highest tribunal in Canada — our Parliament.

The "Free Enterprise Party" — a haven for right wing diehards of both old parties, the overtaxed zealots of industry, private endeavour and incentive should have some interesting views to lay before an electorate entranced by the sugary delusions of the welfare state.

Cortisone Can Be Dangerous Because of After Effects

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain the side-effects of cortisone. Other doctors do not explain things as well as you do. — D. G.

I love your flattery, but I'm not sure I can explain. We do not know the full story how cortisone and the similar steroid hormones work. But we know what they do. They are good drugs. They also can be dangerous because of unwanted side-effects at times.

Many of these are related to the chemical balance of the body. Potassium is lost. Sodium is retained. Nitrogen is lost.

Muscle weakness can result from loss of potassium and nitrogen.

Retention of sodium causes the body to store excess water. The consequence is swelling and increase of weight, even though pain is merely eased. Nevertheless, we still don't want it. This is what causes a "moon face," often called "cushing face," when he has been taking full doses of cortisone for long time.

Sugar tolerance also can be upset and a condition resembling diabetes can appear. Patients with mild diabetes, for example, will "spill" more sugar into the urine and will have a higher blood sugar level.

There can be an effect on the blood vessels, especially the very small ones, or capillaries, causing disfiguring bruise-like discoloration of the skin.

Thyroid activity may be decreased and function of the adrenal glands may be greatly suppressed.

These are the commonest side-effects. They usually go hard time saying why they occur, knowing that they are possible gives us the warning that we need.

Some years ago, before we had much experience with cortisone and its counterparts, there were occasional cases of what could be called shock reactions. From a combination of causes, sometimes there could be a spontaneous bleeding out of bone. A temporary case of mental disturbance or psychosis could also result. Warnings promptly were given in medical meetings and literature; these consequences rarely occur now.

Dr. Molner welcomes your questions but cannot undertake to answer each one personally. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for his reply. Due to the tremendous volume of mail, there may be a delay in answering.

The really important significance of your question, I think, is that other drugs can duplicate the many good and the bothering bad effects of cortisone, so you know that they are present.

These drugs have proved themselves to be very valuable but they require constant watching. The patient, as well as the doctor, must be fully aware of the common side-effects.

The drugs should not be stopped abruptly. They should be tapered off to allow the body functions to resume their normal activity.

The effects of the drugs are "reversible." When you stop, the side-effects disappear. The drugs have given us the means of treating conditions for which we previously had no answers. Watchfulness for the unwanted side-effects, it seems to me, is a small enough price to pay for all of the benefits.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the matter with the white lining for a doctor if her two-year-old child has an epileptic fit? — A. G.

Be sure that the child does not get injured by thrashing around or biting his tongue. A wooden tongue depressor or a padded spoon handle will prevent the latter. Warm towels to the body or if possible, putting the child in a tub with a like warm water, will help relax the body convulsion. The continued use of anticonvulsant medication, if this is prescribed by your physician, will prevent or lessen frequency of the attacks.

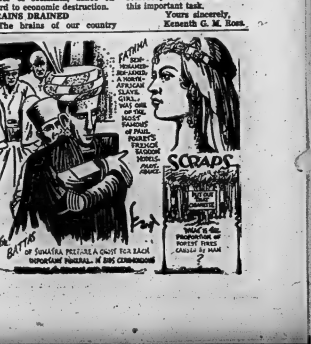
Note to "Unsigned": The Rh blood factor has absolutely nothing to do with venereal disease.

"You Can Stop Sinus Trouble!" is the title of my booklet explaining what sinus trouble really is and encouraging sinus sufferers to do something about it. For a copy write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, Box 250, Prince St. Station, Ill., enclosing a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 10c coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

bers of Canadians who are becoming progressively alarmed and disillusioned at the interest and government in nearly every receiving elements in society, at the expense of those who would produce the wealth and money in productive enterprise. We already devote 12 percent of our national income to "welfare". The British figure even after years of Labor indifference and encouragement is 8 per cent and the American 7 per cent. Since 1949 Canadian welfare costs increased while productivity terms of Gross National Product, have risen from 2.8 per cent to 3.4 per cent. (Figures from The Financial Post, 14 March, 1964).

That our graduated income tax system progressively discourages effort and encourages sloth and featherbedding is true today.

But no party today stands clearly for the principles of free enterprise.



Intelligence, education and energy can transform our faltering economy and our empty countryside.

The old parties require the active to carry on their shoulders not merely the lame and the halt — but also the lazy, the wilfully ignorant and the purposely unproductive.

Federal fiscal policies of both old parties following the Pied Piper of socialism, dance onward to economic destruction.

BRAINS DRAINED

The brains of our country

exit by the back door to the U.S. — the last stronghold of enlightened free enterprise — where a man may still speak and enjoy a fair portion of the fruits of his labor — a country with still similar social and economic problems has seen fit to cut graduated income tax — to encourage effort and the production of real wealth.

There is something to be said for a country whose President turns off the White House lights to save hydro bills!

Such a balance of welfare statism versus unlimited free enterprise has been maintained in the U.S. with a two party system.

Our three party system — I dismiss the Social Credit as an intellectual abortion without influence on government — in my submission has resulted in a political and resulting economical distortion.

We must call in a new right wing political force to redress the imbalance of the old left wing.

Salute to the new Free Enterprise Party of Canada!

As I am writing in the month of March trying to earn enough money to pay my income tax and also I believe an executive member of the Liberal party, I certainly hope somebody else will undertake this important task.

Yours sincerely,
Kenneth G. M. Ross.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP)—The federal budget introduced to Parliament Monday evening appeared to have had little effect on the stock market during morning trading today.

All sections of the market made gains, but the general pattern was unchanged from recent sessions.

Coppers again were strong. Hudson Bay Mining rose 1¼ points to 87¼ and Noranda ¼. Opemiska gained five cents to $9 and Rio Algom and Mattagami Smelting 10 cents to $8.10.

Steels were lower on the industrial board. Dominion Foundries and Steel ahead one point to 74¼ following the announcement of a proposed four-for-one share split. Algoma and Steel Company of Canada both rose ¼.

Papers, liquors and financial issues were up while chartered banks were mixed.

Zellers was the most active speculative, up three cents to 21¼ cents on 167,000 shares.

There was little activity among oils.

On index, the Exchange index advanced .22 to 133.64; industrials .27 to 142.45, golds .56 to 135.09, base metals .24 to 98.99 and western oils .13 to 94.28. Volume at 11 a.m. was 1,212,000 shares compared with 1,134,000 at the same time Monday.

STAY IN LIMELIGHT

The general increase in the price since Friday kept copper issues in the limelight Monday. Overall volume for the day was up, boosted by trading among select speculative stocks notably Calvert with a turnover of 771,750 shares for a gain of 26 cents to 73 cents. The com-

Admits Story Given Corporal Was Not True

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP) — Charles Morton Loyst, 31, of Kaladar said police, after the fatal shooting Oct. 9 of Hugh James McAdam, 26, that his rifle had been stolen two or three days earlier, a provincial police corporal told a Supreme Court jury here Monday.

Loyst is on trial for the capital murder of McAdam, shot twice in the throat in the kitchen of a shack near Kaladar, 30 miles north of the Kingston area community.

Cpl. R. S. Maddison of the Kaladar provincial police detachment testified during the fifth day of the trial that Loyst, accompanied by Mrs. McAdam arrived at the detachment headquarters after midnight Oct. 10 and "stated he had a .303-calibre rifle stolen from his car two or three days ago."

He quoted Loyst as saying: "Hugh McAdam was murdered approximately 20 minutes ago by someone firing shots into the house."

"I told Loyst if he had reported the gun stolen and he replied: 'No but I wish I had now, I guess I should. It would come to this'."

STATEMENT FALSE

Under cross-examination by defence counsel L. S. Willoughby earlier in the day, Mrs. McAdam admitted the first statement she gave Cpl. Maddison Oct. 10 was not true.

The statement, entered as #2 exhibit at the trial, quotes Mrs. McAdam as saying she did not see Loyst leave the house with a gun in his hand after the shooting. However, she told the court Monday she had seen Loyst enter the house after the incident with a gun.

"Did your husband know what your relationship was with Charlie Loyst?" Mr. Willoughby asked.

"No I don't think so," Mrs. McAdam replied.

"You mean you concealed that from him?" the defence lawyer asked.

"Yes," she replied.

"Then I put it to you madam that you were the one who wanted to get away with Charlie Loyst," Mr. Willoughby said.

The trial is continuing.

Project Sharing Subject of Talk At Rotary Meet

Members of the Belleville Rotary Club and their guests met at the Pinnacle Room of the Hotel Quinte on Monday when they were addressed by David R. Maynell, counsel and consultant for the firm of Wilson M. Kiely, Limited of Toronto. Mr. Meynell spoke to the club of management-employee "Profit Sharing".

The speaker explained the many advantages of a profit sharing for the employer as well as the employee and quoted statistics from articles written concerning company who have this plan in effect.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian K Cameron and thanked on behalf of the members by Rotarian K. Hunt.

Guests and visiting Rotarians were introduced by Rotarian Adam Stalker.

Both Sides of Moira River Between College St. and 401 Toured on Fine, Sunny Day

Sunday was a fine, sunny day for seeking the Moira River at its turbulent best. The Conservation Planning Association's fourth and final tour of the season went from College St. to 401, up the west side of the river and down the east. It was a little over a mile each way.

Apart from the unsightly clutter on a construction company's lot, and a rather bare-faced gall of rubbish just across from it, this is a very beautiful stretch of river, and well worth a visit.

The Moira River must have been picturesque a century ago when there were half a dozen dams and many stone factory buildings within the town. Some of Sunday's walkers remembered the paper mill operating where there is now a motel and the remnant of Leicester's dam. (The fine old brown stone house is said to have been built for the owner.) But no industry depends on water power now, and there is plenty of evidence that children have enjoyed playing among the rocks and trees. In summer it is a pleasant chore to drive right into the shallow water and catch one's car.

A good deal of the land on the west side is public property, and many, many years ago, the city, some by the Dept. of Highways. Presumably the owners of the remaining tracts would give us permission, but the city is to maintain a nicely landscaped footpath along the shore or the land might be bought outright by the city and the Conservation Authority.

The west side is less suitable for a footpath, being largely taken up with people's back gardens, and a survey on Sunday thought they could make it past one treacherous spot, but this would be impossible for the tour through someone's yard. There are intriguing cliffs to be explored, however, quite a "scenic sight; and there is a delightful place (difficult if a hotel advertisement) from which there is a good view of the city.

The place of wooded property with the house called River Bend, was given to the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs. It would make a lovely camp or picnic site, although it does not connect with any other possible park areas except when the river is low.

To the traveller coming into the city by Highway #2 this little wooded area is attractive, and several of the houses along the road command pleasant views. But the general effect is not good. One imagines that the Chamber of Commerce, which wishes to attract people and industries to the city, would do better to turn its attention to the beautifying of the river than to add to the eyesore that is the tar with a Miltoard, brownish decay crossroads with flowers.

The air of carelessness and decay all along the street is a real spoils badly for the city and counteracts any message of welcome the sign may speak of.

The view across the river from the bridge is impressive here. It has been suggested that a line of tall trees on the far shore would form a good background. The old quarry on the shore just north of the College St. bridge is city property. It need not remain an eyesore, but could be made one of the real attractions of the city. Our new Parks Superintendent, Mr. Eyre, seems to have the knowledge and enthusiasm to carry out a project like this. Could not one of Belleville's millionaires donate a garden here? Mrs. Butcher's garden in Victoria, B.C., built in an old quarry, are world-famous.

Special thought should be given to Jack Bath's quarry on the river near the 401. It is highly attractive from and an interesting place to walk about in. But the city must consider that this is an ideal site for residence to more than just the owner, for it is the very gateway to the city for travellers from the 401.

MANY TOPICS DISCUSSED

All these topics were discussed by the group as they walked on Sunday, and pursued further over coffee at Kemp's Drive . in on Canniffon Rd.

This series of walking tours, sponsored by the Planning Board on the suggestions that the CPAC has forwarded to Mr. Jess and the Parks, Recreation, and Arena Board. The suggestions were: 1. The historical and marina redevelopment of a block of South Front St.; 2. the use of On Fenton house and grounds as a museum and park; 3. a system of parks and parkways on both sides of the Moira from the bay to the 401; 4. a system of park drives along most of the whole bay shore of the city.

For the Front St. project, drawings were prepared and printed and slide lectures given; the area was covered by some of the Historical Society's walking tours last fall. For the bay shore project a map was prepared. A map sketching the paths and parks along the river, the shore at the Home and Sports Show, but it seems to have gone somewhat though it was ten feet high.

For enthusiastic towers there is the possibility of a house and garden tour of ten or a dozen properties, maybe arranged by the Historical Society and the Horticultural Society in connection with the Community Planning Association. June 20, a Saturday, has been suggested as possible date. The Historical Society expects to start its own tours of old houses on Sunday, April 12.

Union Protests Way Air Force Moves Workers

Alleged use of unionized workers as qualified electricians at Trenton Air Repair Depot and at Mountain Rapids, Trenton was protested last night before Belleville and Trenton Rotary Clubs by Ken Smith, business agent for Local 1151 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Belleville.

Mr. Smith said that "with the years or more of seniority), have been made to work as carpenters and labourers and pay cheques made out to them, and the fees of others, by attempting to have Local 1151 of the IBEW has been sent to local MP, Robert Temple, but no action has been taken, according to the local.

Labor council executive will be urged to request Labor Deputy Minister of Labor, Gordon Cushing, on the matter.

Street Cleaning Will Be Under General Rate

Property owners who have been in the habit of paying for street cleaning on a per foot frontage basis are going to get a break this year.

Council yesterday voted to have the cost of street cleaning paid for out of the general rate.

It seems last bookwork and other details in connection with charging on a frontage basis would be saved and that it was not worth the assets effort.

City manager J. R. Reynolds admitted that about $7,000 in revenue would be lost to the city but felt it was not equitable to charge the property owners for street cleaning and not others.

Alderman Don Whalen said he hoped the new policy would mean that the city street sweeper would be seen generally throughout the city instead of only in certain areas.

Community Concert Association To Present N. Y. Brass Quintet

The New York Brass Quintet, outstanding instrumentalists, will appear at the Belleville Collegiate, Friday evening, March 20, at 8.30 p.m., under the auspices of the Belleville Community Concert Association.

Formed seven years ago, the New York Brass Quintet is composed of two trumpets, a French horn, trombone and tuba. All members are graduates of the Juilliard School of Music and have performed individually with world-famous orchestras.

The Quintet, which is the only permanent brass ensemble in the world, chooses its program from contemporary pieces especially written for it, as well as pre-19th century works. Tickets at $2. each for out-of-town guests are available from Mrs. J. H. Bateman, WO 8-7421, for this final concert of the present series.

Following the concert Friday evening a reception for all members will be held at the Hotel Quinte.

It has been announced by the executive of the Community Concert Association that next year's series will include a performance by Czechoslovakia's renowned Prague Chamber Orchestra which will visit Belleville on its first North American tour.

The membership campaign for next year opens April 20 in the Corby Public Library.

Women's P. C. Association Entertains at Potluck Dinner

The first general meeting of the new executive of the Belleville's Women's Progressive Conservative Association, was held in the Kiwanis Centre on Monday evening, March 16, in the form of a potluck dinner on the Irish theme.

President Mrs. Stuart Howell welcomed all the members, friends and husbands, and stated that she was glad to see the hall filled to capacity.

After a short business meeting a draw took place for a potted plant, donated by Dr. and Mrs. John Stock. Mrs. Lee Grills drew the lucky ticket for the event, won by Mrs. H. Taylor.

PLAN BUS TRIP

Mrs. Howell advised the members of the planned bus trip to Toronto on Thursday, March 19, to the Parliament Buildings, Queen's Park. There had been a tremendous response, reaching the capacity load on the bus, and a limousine had to be secured as well. Mr. Clarke Rollins and Mr. Elmer Sandercock, members for Hastings East and Hastings West, respectively, kindly arranged for seating space. It is hoped that at another session, those who were unable to get reservations this time will be able to attend at a future time.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. H. Rollins and Mrs. Heath, and the ladies of Ward 2 for planning the social evening which was enjoyed by all.

An announcement was made that District No. 2 would be holding their meeting in Belleville, April 20, in the Kiwanis Centre, and a cordial invitation was extended to all.

A tentative bus trip through the north was discussed for late in September, when the fall colors are on display.

At the conclusion of the meeting, around twenty tables of euchre were enjoyed with prizes going to the following: men's high, Mr. Lorne Sawyer; men's low, Mr. T. Liddle; ladies' high, Marguerite Pringle; ladies' low, Mrs. Lorne Sawyer.

The next general meeting will be held April 20, in the Kiwanis Centre, under the convenership of Mrs. Morley Tugnett and ladies of Ward No. 3.

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

On Thursday night the Women of the Moose held their regular meeting of the month with Sr. Regent Gladys Hitch presiding.

An invitation was received by the Sr. Regent to attend the White Cane Club annual supper on March 25th.

Women of the Moose will hold a White Cane Club banquet on March 26th, and an invitation was extended to the club.

A draw was donated by Pearl Welch and was won by Alice Ayres of Trenton.

A social to be held at Ida Lake's home on March 19 and all co-workers are welcome.

The Women and Men of the Loyal Order of Moose are starting dances on Friday, March 20th, with a St. Patrick's dance. The music will be supplied by Alvin Smith and his Troubadors, for the public.

At the close of the meeting lunch was served by Pearl Welch and her committee.

Second Prize Winner, Cherry Pie Contest

BY MARY MOORE

Connie Jenner, of Blenheim High School at Blenheim, Ontario, won second prize in the Annual Cherry Pie Bakeoff last month.

Last week I gave you Barbara Tapp's first prize-winning pie and promised to give Connie's recipe this week. I hope you plan to make and compare both of these prize-winning cherry pies made by these enterprising teenagers.

TUESDAY
(St. Patrick's Day).

Dinner Menu

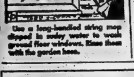
CONNIE JENNER'S SECOND PRIZE CHERRY PIE 1964

Pastry: 2¼ cups sifted pastry flour; 1 teaspoon salt; 2 tablespoons icing sugar; ⅓ cup shortening; ⅓ cup lard; 5-6 tablespoons ice-water (add ¾ teaspoon of vinegar to 1 cup ice-water and measure out 5 or 6 tablespoons)

Sift dry ingredients together into bowl. Cut in shortening until it is like cornmeal, cut in lard until it is the size of split peas. Sprinkle ice-water over flour mixture, one tablespoon at a time, mixing lightly.



Roll out one-half of dough for bottom crust and line 9" pie plate. Roll out remainder of dough and cut into strips. Lightly brush strips with cream. Cover filled pie with lattice top.

Filling: 2½ cups thawed, drained cherries; ¾ cup cherry juice (reserved after draining); 3 tablespoons cornstarch; ¾ cup granulated sugar; 1 teaspoon icing sugar; 1 tablespoon butter; ¾ teaspoon salt; ½ teaspoon lemon juice; ¼ teaspoon almond extract; red food colouring.

Drain cherries. Take 3 tablespoons cherry juice and mix with cornstarch. Heat remaining juice to a boil. Slowly add cornstarch mixture. Cook until transparent, stirring constantly. Add sugars to hot mixture and cook, stirring, for 5 minutes, remove from heat. Stir in butter, salt, lemon juice, almond extract, red food colouring and cherries. Allow to cool before turning into pastry-lined pie plate.

Bake in 425 deg. Fahr. oven for 30 minutes; after 20 minutes protect edge of pie with strip of tin foil to prevent further browning.

Next week I will give you the Robert Hall's (West Lorne, Ontario) Third Prize Cherry Pie.

Use a long-handled string mop dipped in soapy water to wash ground floor windows. Rinse them with the garden hose.

Better Deal For Widows In Budget

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is thinking about a better deal for widows under the Estate Tax Act, Finance Minister Gordon indicated Monday night.

He told the Commons in his budget speech that he has been impressed by representations from women's organization that more recognition should be given to the special contribution a wife makes to the accumulation of property by her husband.

The representations were made by several women's organizations to the royal commission on taxation.

These organizations said that under the Estate Tax Act the whole estate of a family is regarded as the property of the husband. Several of them said that only 50 per cent of the estate should be subject to succession duties.

Mr. Gordon said that while he was impressed by the representations, any action to give effect to them would affect provincial revenues more than those of the federal government.

"Death duties are under review by provincial commissions of inquiry as well as by our royal commission on taxation," he said. "We have therefore deferred any action on this matter, and hope that there will be consultations with the provinces on it, as well as on other aspects of death duties, following the reports of the various commissions."

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

Question: My sixteen-year-old daughter has been invited to a party by a boy in her school. He is a senior, and considered quite a "wheel," so she's thrilled at being asked for a date, and wants us to help her make a big impression. We've heard a lot about him, but this will be the first time he's been to our house. Unfortunately, my boy has been invited to a dinner party that night, and have to leave before he's due to arrive to call for her. Our older girl, who is 18, will be home to attend to her, but the younger girl doesn't think this is satisfactory. Wouldn't it be just as correct for her older sister to do the honors on our behalf? — Mrs. C. W. G., Baltimore, Md.

Answer: Obviously, this is a very important occasion for your daughter, and she'd like to have her parents back her up by doing the correct thing and meeting her date when he arrives. Ordinarily, one shouldn't be late to a dinner party, but, since you have an extraordinary excuse, this is one time to make an exception. If you let your hostess know in advance that you'll be slightly late, and the reason why, you'll certainly be excused for arriving a bit late and satisfy your daughter at the same time.

Ann Landers

Uninvited Guest Shows Colossal Nerve by Actions

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am shaken and I need your counsel. Can you conceive any circumstances under which it would be proper for a casual friend to telephone and say, "I understand you are having a party. I'm sure my husband and I were sent an invitation but it went astray in the mail. Of course we'd love to come."

We had not invited this couple to the party, but when she put me on the spot in this ruthless manner I was so taken aback I didn't know what to say. So — I lied politely and replied, "Yes, we did want you but apparently there was a slip-up somewhere."

ANN LANDERS

We have been entertained by this couple and have had them at our home. But they are not close friends and I am shocked by her behaviour. Furthermore, I am annoyed with myself for knuckling under. Perhaps she thinks more warmly of me than I think of her and I am too critical? Please set me straight.—N. D.

DEAR N. D. — Warmly, my eye. The colossal guts of this woman threw you off balance. Too bad you were unable to meet the challenge with matching nerve. Sample reply: "No, you were not on the list this time, but we hope to have you to another party."

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband and I have been happily married for almost 15 years. We are both in our middle 30's.

Harvey had a few grey hairs when we were married. Today his hair is completely grey and I like it very much. It has never bothered me. Fact is, I think it makes him look distinguished.

Every time his mother comes to visit us she makes some cutting remark about how grey Harvey is getting. This fries me because she puts it like this: "You must be worrying him to death, Dear."

Incidentally, his mother's hair is snow white and she is in her middle 50's. She was totally grey when I first met her 18 years ago.

Please print my letter and your reply and explain if grey hair has anything to do with worry. Thank you. — NO SHREW.

DEAR NO — Grey hair is the result of glandular secretions which affect the color-producing properties of the hair follicle. It has nothing to do with worry and often runs in families. So you can tell Harvey's mother that he probably got his grey hair from her.

A BIG, FAT, YELLOW SECTION FULL OF BIG, FAT BARGAINS

NEW MACHINERY at Belleville Brick includes this 45-foot cement elevator being hoisted upright by Finkle's crane, with a 1,000-bag cement silo visible behind the new part of the building. The new equipment will be operative about mid-April and will double the plant's capacity.

UP IN THE AIR and ready to work bare-handed on high voltage power lines, Ivan Groves of Belleville and Ed Flynn of Ottawa ride the buckets of Ontario Hydro's new folding-boom truck. The men can work on the high tension line because a fibreglass section of the boom insulates them from the ground.

Successful Living

Conference With Husband Should Bring About Results

DEAR DORIS — For several years now my husband hasn't given me money for either spending or for clothes. I use whatever I can save from the family allowance for all my needs. Though he buys most of the groceries and most (not all) of the children's clothing, I find that I must still use a good portion out of the $42.00 allowance toward the upkeep of family.

Tell me, Doris, is the family allowance considered as a husband's support for his wife? Also, would money which is gotten from cream, milk and eggs be considered by husband as money out of his pocket if she hires a car to go into town and sells about $4.00 worth each week?

DORIS CLARK

I must not forget to mention that I do the milking and looking after chickens. — MONEY PROBLEM.

DEAR MONEY PROBLEM — Let's look at a parallel situation in the city: Wife and husband both work. Where does the money go?

Often the happiest solution is for Hubby to carry all current expenses, including wife's clothing. Then her money, after deducting some for lunches and so on, goes into an account for certain large expenditures like car, washing machine, special holiday trips, furniture.

This is all a matter of mutual planning and agreement. And so must yours be. Begin keeping track of what you make, what you spend to make it, and where the family allowance has to go. Then put down what your husband makes and spends.

Your long two-side conference with him should then bring about a better state of things. (How about some helpful reports from other rural readers who have worked it out?)

TRENTON-RIVERSIDE DAIRY PRODUCTS LTD.

Arthur E. Quickert of Belleville has purchased Trenton-Riverside Dairy Products Ltd., and will take over management April 1. Mr. Quickert has been in the dairy business in Europe and in Canada since 1927, and since 1954 he has been plant manager of Black Diamond Cheese in Belleville. He joined Black Diamond when he came to Canada in 1952, and will retire from the firm March 31 of this year.

His new business includes a dairy, a cheese factory and a creamery, and employs 36 people. It was formed this year by the merger of the Trenton Dairy and the Riverside Dairy. No immediate changes are planned for the firm, Mr. Quickert says, but he feels there may be room for expansion on a long-term basis. Last week the firm's four last delivery horses were put to pasture and replaced by trucks.

Mr. Quickert is married and has the father of two married sons and one son now a student at the University of Toronto. He plans to move to Trenton after he has sold his house in Belleville.

PRESTON CONCRETE PRODUCTS

Success of a co-operative effort in the production and promotion of decorative oversized (3 inches high), concrete blocks may lead to further co-operative efforts for five Ontario concrete block firms. The five, Wilson Concrete Products Ltd. of Belleville; Paris Dunbrik Co. Ltd., of Paris; Doughty Concrete Products Ltd. of Peterborough; Nixon Building Products Ltd. of Barrie, and Rainbow Cement Products of Sudbury, decided just a year ago to have designed and built a mold to produce the special blocks. Because the project was too expensive for any one of the firms, and because the blocks are a limited-market item, only one mold is made which is used by all five firms on a co-operative basis. The only mold can make several different types of blocks, and can be used on each of several different types of block-making machines owned by the different firms. It is sent from plant to plant as it is needed. Advertising the new blocks is also a co-operative venture.

There are no plans for a merger or overlapping of directorates among the five firms, but they do like the results of their first co-operative venture, according to Wilson Concrete spokesman Jack Ellis. No specific plans have been revealed, but the five medium-size block producers are definitely interested in the fact that together they can market specialized products in competition with their biggest competitors.

DEACON BROS. LTD.

Salesmen and representatives of Deacon Brothers Ltd. are meeting in Belleville today, at the Hotel Quinte, to plan products and strategy for the coming year. The meeting includes representatives from all parts of Canada.

BATA

Bata executives from plants in 20 countries meet in Batawa Wednesday to Saturday for an international merchandising conference. The executives, all directly concerned with sales, will be trading ideas and problems during the conference and will attend a special marketing course while they are in Batawa.

INDUSTRIAL MANAGEMENT CLUB

Quinte Chapter of the Industrial Managements Clubs of Canada meets Tuesday evening in the Pinnacle Room of the Hotel Quinte. Club membership consists of supervisors from more major industrial plants in the district, according to club spokesman D. T. Watkins. Speaker at the March meeting is Dr. F. C. R. Challen, a psychiatrist, who will speak on "Mental Health in Industry."

BELLEVILLE BRICK

Machinery is delivered and is being installed at Belleville Brick to double the plant's capacity, but it won't be in operation until about April 1. The firm employed 13 to 16 men last summer and made an average of 12,000 bricks a day. With the expansion, there's room for 18 men or more for the coming summer and production capacity is near 23,000 bricks a day.

Included in the expansion are about 200 square feet of plant, a cement silo big enough to hold 1,000 bags, a 45-cubic yard-capacity set of gravel hoppers and a 45-foot cement elevator. Pat Halloran purchased the machinery from Peterborough, Toronto and Montreal. The plant is still operating with machinery in use before, but once the new equipment is operative most of the heavy manual work will be taken out of the operation.

Globe and Mail Cited in Trial, No Penalty

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP)—Mr. Justice N. C. Fraser of the Ontario Supreme Court Monday cited the Toronto Globe and Mail for contempt of court. No penalty was assessed.

The charge arose from statements in a Canadian Press story published in the first edition of the newspaper Friday, March 13, dealing with the capital murder trial of Charles M. Loyst. Mr. Justice Fraser is presiding at the trial, which still is in progress.

Mr. Justice Fraser said he was satisfied that there was no deliberate attemp to prejudice the trial, but ruled that anything likely to prejudice a fair trial, or possible second trial is contempt of court.

He ruled that while the fact the newspaper had been cited could be published, the details of the proceedings could not.

BAN CIGARETTE SALE

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — The sale of cigarettes was banned Monday on state-operated university and college campuses. When the rule goes into effect in 30 days there will be no effort to prevent smoking —only the sale. Cigars and pipe tobacco are not affected.

TWISTED WIRE joints on the Sidney transmission line, running from the Trent River to Belleville, lasted for 52 years with little trouble. They would not have lasted much longer, though, and have now been replaced with modern compression joints. In the picture, Hydro foreman Fred Murray of Ottawa and Stan Klazek of Belleville inspect one of the discarded joints.

Touching high voltage power lines without getting hurt used to be strictly for the birds, but Ontario Hydro's, "travelling crews" are moving in on the act. Picked men from two Eastern Region crews have been working—with bare hands —on the 44,000 volt Sidney transmission line for the past few weeks. Like the birds, they don't get fried because they're not grounded.

Electricity must flow in do work—or damage—and unless it can flow it's harmless. That's why a bird can land safely on a high tension wire, if there's no place for the power to flow to, the bird is safe. If the bird makes contact though, with anything leading to another power line or to the ground, the bird will be cooked.

USE INSULATED BOOM

Men can touch the lines, too, if they can insulate themselves from the ground well enough, and this is what the men of the picked "travelling crew" have done. They ride aloft from a special truck on a 46-foot folding boom moved by hydraulic cylinders. A 16-foot section of the boom is made of fibreglass, which insulates the men from the ground. Riding two at a time in buckets on the end of the boom, the men are free to handle the high-tension line in safety after they have connected metallic grids in the buckets to the line.

The connection of the buckets to the line before the men touch the line is important, because the men work with steel tools. If they touched the line before the bucket was connected, power would flow through the men to the tools in the bucket and the shock would be uncomfortable at least. By connecting the buckets first, they ensure that the power flow is through the bucket to the tools and the tools and the men receive no more than a slight tingling sensation. The sensation is common to all work near high tension lines.

USED IN RUSSIA, U.S.A.

The crew just finishing work on the Sidney transmission line is composed of the foremen of the Eastern Region's two "travelling crews"—Stan Klazek of Belleville and Fred Murray of Ottawa—and a few men picked from each crew. Later, these men will teach others in their respective crews. An instructor from Toronto is supervising the operation; he has been travelling the province for about a year now, instructing crews in the technique. Russian and U.S. power line maintenance crews developed the technique independently.

The boom truck used for the work was rented by Hydro until recently, but has been purchased now. Other crews throughout the province, trained in the technique during the past year, are slowly getting their own trucks and the Eastern Region may buy one or more of the boom trucks during the next year or so. No decision has taken yet.

REPLACE OLD JOINTS

The work on the Sidney transmission line included replacement of the twisted joints used when the line was erected by the Seymour Power Co., 52 years ago, with modern "compression joints." The twisted joints have lasted well, but they would have failed under the heavier loads the line will be carrying during the next few years. Before the days of the "bare hand" technique and the boom-truck, replacement of the joints would have involved power cuts or stringing a new line.

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment

(Following is the first of a series of articles on the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment which will be honored with the presentation of its new Regimental Color here in mid-May)

THE INDIAN MASCOT

He is an imposing 500-pounds specimen carved out of the solid trunk of a pine 21 inches in diameter. He stands seven feet eight inches high on his pedestal. His head-dress is regal as befits his regiment.

His features are pure Sioux. Finely carved and ferocious in mien. His thighs and torso would be the envy of any "He-Canada" or professional athlete.

He is the end of a line of three Indian mascots of the regiment the first of which lies in an unmarked grave in France. The second a pure Indian princess Little Minnehaha is back in custody of her country owner after one of the most daring "squaw-napings" in military history.

He is the brainchild of the late Lieut. Col. Bryson Donnan, wartime commanding officer of the regiment's second battalion. He is the "knife child" of Abe Peterson, a wood-carving artist of Pembroke whose skill is now internationally known.

He was taken on the strength of the battalion as of October 30th 1940. His entry reads "No. C. 0001. Prince, Chief Petawawa-Much."

JOINS REGIMENT

He was formally inducted into the regiment at a company ceremonial parade. Bugles blew and drums rolled as Col. Donnan presented him to the honorary-colonel of the First Battalion, Lieut. Col. A. V. Yates, MC.

He was destined to proceed overseas to replace "Little Chief."

In the fall of 1940 he was lashed to a Canadian battle-wagon at Kingston, the corvette "Napanee."

Then began a series of disasters for the proud chief whose tribal members never lowered themselves to pose in front of tobacco stores, with a clinch of cigars in out-thrust hand.

The corvette "Napanee" ran aground in the St. Lawrence—Paleface dissenters of the crew blamed the presence of the Indian interloper. This was not borne out by a subsequent board of inquiry.

The "Napanee" proceeded to sea in the spring of 1941, but Chief Petawawa faded into oblivion. Intense search and inquiry failed to reveal his whereabouts.

In August of that year some light was thrown on the disappearance. Major Colin Hepburn, stationed at M.D. 3, Kingston, tipped off Col. Donnan that one, Col. Craig, C.O., fortress at Halifax, might have some information.

By some strange quirk of circumstance the seven-foot chief had found his way to HMCS Dockyard, Halifax.

By arrangement of Brigadier Falkner, former commander of the First Battalion, the Chief was given passage on a brumgent and sped to England.

ARRIVES OVERSEAS

On September 27th, Col. Donnan received a cable from England which read: "Chief Petawawa arrived good condition. Many thanks from all ranks First Battalion," signed "Graham." (The present Lieut-General Howard B. Graham, DSO, Bar.)

Then followed a series of adventures for Chief Petawawa-Much which did not end with his arrival back in Canada.

For years now he has stood silent guard in the armouries in Belleville, his inscrutible face gazing down on parade, exercise and social functions.

PRICE OF BONOR

He is given a place of honor at all regimental ceremonial parades. He has accompanied the militia units to summer camps, summer schemes or wherever duty calls.

A fierce wooden pride has not been dimmed by efforts of would - be "miscreants" to "adopt" him as their own. His has been "purloined" "pinched" and "stolen".

But Chief Petawawa Much inevitably finds his way back to his beloved Hasty Fees in Belleville and his special place of honor in the officers' mess.

Perhaps some day when the Great Manitou, the god of his tribe, conveys on his sense of speech, he will unravel the now famous mystery of "The Missing Color".

He has had many proud moments in his colorful career.

Perhaps his proudest one will come on the day in mid-May when his beloved Hasty Fees are formally presented with the new regiment color.

INDUSTRY CAPACITY

Annual capacity of New Zealand's forest industry is estimated at 280,000 tons of pulp, 35,000 of newsprint, 40,000 of paperboard and 27,000 of fibreboard.

Finance

spur more Canadian investment in Canadian stocks.

Meanwhile, Mr. Gordon sounded the latest retreat from his first budget last June 13. He withdrew the penalty rate of withholding tax imposed on companies failing to offer Canadians at least 25-per-cent share participation.

That tax was to climb to 30 per cent from 15 next Jan. 1. He now has cancelled this increase—before it ever took effect—because, he said, he can accomplish the same thing due to cuts in U.S. rates of corporation tax.

A differential remains as a sort of carrot: The reduced withholding-tax rate of 10 per cent still applies for companies who do in fact make available the 25-per-cent junior partnership to Canadian investors.

In line with his arm-by-arm approach to fighting unemployment, Mr. Gordon extended to March 31, 1967, the cut-off date for the major tax plums announced last year, for the so-called SS "designated" slow growth areas. Twenty-six of these are in Quebec and the Atlantic provinces.

The original deadline for starting new manufacturing and processing industries in these areas—if they were to get the promised three-year tax holiday—was Dec. 7, 1965. Faster depreciation write-offs for new manufacturing equipment and buildings were to end June 14, 1965.

HE'S OPTIMISTIC

Mr. Gordon seemed to pluck his heaviest financial reliance for 1964-65 on economic expansion, which he predicted will continue—though for how long he didn't say. "I'm an optimist," he replied when pressed by reporters on this point.

He called for a 1964 gain of about 6 1-2 per cent—compared with four per cent last year—in gross national product, that is, the value of all goods and services produced in Canada.

But the overall forecast—including farm output—could bring GNP down fractionally to a gain of 5½ per cent this year, as against six per cent in 1963. The main reason was last year's bumper crop. The 1964 prediction was based on a normal harvest.

Why, in this rosy situation, didn't the minister follow the United States' lead and reduce personal and corporation income tax rates? These rates in Canada have remained substantially unchanged for years.

Mr. Gordon explained:

First, he said a general tax cut at this time wouldn't "selectively" meet Canada's special problems—high regional unemployment in eastern Quebec and the Maritimes, for one one. More selective, long-term measures were needed for that.

And he said that even after the big U.S. tax cuts, personal income tax rates there still are higher than in Canada's most taxpayers. And Canada still was taxing corporation income—both in the hands of firms and shareholders—less heavily than the U.S.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, MARCH 17, 1964

Walter Gordon's Second Budget Unspectacular

Budget Will Bring Delight To Homes With Students, Otherwise Is Dull Document

OTTAWA (CP)—Unless there is a student in his house, the average Canadian taxpayer is unlikely to churn up much excitement over Monday night's budget.

Taxes are not changing, no particular products are being penalized and the cost-of-living probably won't be disrupted.

But for those homes with high school and advanced students, the budget was a delightful document.

The benefits apply when students are 16 or 17 or over 21.

For those 16 or 17 who continue in school, mom will get a $10 family allowance cheque every month. Previously the $8 allowance stopped at age 16.

Dad will still be able to claim a deduction of $470 this year and $500 in 1965 for an adult student receiving the allowance—the same as for children receiving the $6 and $8 allowances.

On top of this, part-time students will be able to deduct tuition fees from their taxable income. Full-time students can do this now.

Another change will allow a taxpayer to claim his brother or sister as a student even when he or she is over 21 providing the dependent is in school or university. Under existing regulations such a claim can be made only in cases of physical or mental infirmity.

But it won't be of much interest to the average household to know that a special customs tax comes off scotch whisky imported in 26-ounce bottles when the grog inside remains subject to the same taxes. Until recently, most United States bread prices and deliveries, it won't excite housewives to know that loaves now can enter Canada from most other countries duty-free. The duty has been set at 7½ per cent.

None of the tariff changes will mean much to the import-conscious homemaker. Machine-made tumblers of glass have been lifted from duty, but only when they undergo a further manufacturing process in Canada.

The fact that the 7½-per-cent duty on unwrapped bread in the U.S. is to be removed probably won't result in any great reduction in the price of Montana wax, it turns out, comes from Montana and is used in other countries to give it a glossy finish.

But there was one part of the budget speech that clearly affects everyone.

"Employment, production and incomes should all be substantially higher than last year for the country as a whole."

Gordon's Tongue Stumbles, 'Our First Goal', He States, 'High-Level Unemployment'

The remark brought down the house—in disbelief of course.

Mr. Gordon's slip came just four minutes after he began his annual budget speech to the nation's budget, a task that took 129 minutes before a packed chamber.

"As I was trying to say . . ." he continued amid the desk-thumping of opposition members, "our first goal is high-level employment."

Then, as had started, Mr. Gordon continued reading slowly and deliberately through the document that laid the country's financial affairs before the public.

The galleries were packed for budget night.

Few members of the House were absent.

Mr. Gordon, dressed in a dark blue, double-breasted suit, stood slightly bent behind a stack of books that served as a lectern. His left hand was pushed deep into his pocket and his right rested on his speech.

Leaders of the four opposition parties followed from text-short others listened attentively. One supposedly was to read an article, The Birth Control Explosion, from a magazine.

Twenty minutes after he began, Mr. Gordon took his first sip of water. He apologized that he stopped to drink again when his throat became rough.

When he stopped this time, Defence Minister Hellyer leaned over from the next chair and spun his finger in an obvious gesture for Mr. Gordon to speed his speech. After that the finance minister's words shot out much faster.

"Because of the requirements of budget secrecy," Mr. Gordon one paragraph. And again the opposition members pounded their desks delightedly in an apparent reference to last year's budget when Mr. Gordon got help from three outside consultants.

At one point Mr. Gordon said: "The next item will be more appealing to members."

The audit with the tariff on which whiskey . . .

The opposition benches joined in the laughter. Mr. Gordon frowned Opposition Leader Diefenbaker for his enthusiasm. He hadn't thought Mr. Diefenbaker a non-drinker—had much interest in alcohol.

So far as reaction was concerned, Mr. Gordon scored his biggest point with the announcement that family allowances were to be extended to school-attending dependents to age 18. Everyone let loose a welcoming cheer.

Construction Equipment Gets Fast Write-Off

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's heavy construction industry has been given government that the equipment it uses should be singled out for special tax advantage.

Finance Minister Gordon announced in his Monday night budget that the rate at which heavy construction equipment may be written off for tax purposes will be increased to 50 per cent a year from 30 under an amendment to the income tax regulations.

The new rate will apply to all new heavy mobile machinery acquired by the industry effective today.

"After study of representations made by the industry it has been decided to speed the rapid write-off and tear for certain heavy mobile machinery used by the construction industry for excavating and moving earth and rock and compacting road building materials justifies a faster rate of write-off," Mr. Gordon said.

No Outsiders Aided Gordon Prepare Budget

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Gordon made it clear during his budget speech Monday night that no outsiders were consulted during its preparation.

"Because of the requirements of budget secrecy," he said, "We have been able to consult professional and businessmen during the preparation of the proposed modifications of these highly technical parts of the law."

Officials of the department confirmed that no one from outside the department had anything to do with the document.

A political storm blew up following last year's budget when it was learned that three outside consultants had helped prepare it.

"Stay in School" Budget Praised by Educationists

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian educationists generally approved of Finance Minister Gordon's "stay in school" budget Monday night, but some criticized it for not going far enough.

Most of those polled said the benefits to secondary school students were important and overdue. Singled out for special praise was the promise to pay family allowances to children of 16- and 17-year-olds who are still attending school.

The allowance was promised by Prime Minister Pearson during the last election campaign. Mr. Gordon said the necessary legislation would not be introduced until after the Easter recess. This means the new benefits are not likely to start until the beginning of the next academic school year after Sept. 1.

Also singled out for praise was the decision to allow students to claim tuition fees on exceeding $25 as a tax deductible. Dr. Claude T. Bissell, president of the University of Toronto, said the tax deduction "would be a great boon to teachers trying to improve themselves."

Saskatchewan Education Minister O. A. Turnbull, however, said the budget "will not help people in these positions," and added: "What is really needed is a $50 package for the needy aid—loans and scholarships."

He was commenting on the $10 monthly allowance. Ontario Welfare Minister Louis Cecile called the proposal a "good measure" but should be expanded to include the students' entire stay in secondary schools.

Quebec education officials were in agreement in this respect also—because the provincial government has been making similar payments for the last two years.

Mr. Gordon's $350 tax-free allowance for support of a brother or sister who is attending university "may be considered somewhat" spoofed by the University of Manitoba president, Dr. H. H. Saunderson, who felt that although the move was "very useful," there were relatively few families where persons are supporting brothers or sisters attending university.

Others applauded, however, the tax-free allowance for students taking part-time courses and the tax-free status "could increase the number of persons taking part-time courses."

But for the most part noble of the budget's education critics was Dr. Bissell, who called the $10 family allowance benefit "admirable." He said the tax-free allowance for brothers and sisters attending university was only a "minor contribution."

The granting of interest-free loans to students through the chartered banks was "important assistance," he said, "but it is useless in the junior years, when students don't like to go into debt to pay for their education."

Dr. Bissell said the budget sidestepped the two major problems of the education—financial aid to universities and assistance at the graduate level. He said the education measures proposed were a "harbinger of much more to come."

ACTOR DIES

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Nicholas F. Joy, 80, who appeared in more than 40 plays on Broadway and was seen in many motion pictures, died Monday at the Edwin Forrest Home. Dur-ing a career of more than half a century, Joy, cosmopolitan actor and cartoonist.

Effective Dates For Budget Changes

Immediate —

Rate at which heavy construction equipment may be written off for tax purposes increased to 50 per cent from 30.

Bread allowed duty-free entry from most countries, including the United States.

Duty-free entry of aircraft and parts of a size and type not made in Canada to continue after July 1.

Retroactive to Jan. 1, 1964 —

Taxpayers may deduct from taxable income costs they incur in fighting income tax assessments.

Taxpayers may claim tax deductibility for brother and sisters 19 years and over attending school whom they support.

To be enacted —

Family allowances of $10 monthly for children aged 16 and 17 in school.

Retroactive to Jan. 1, 1962 —Certain conditions for a scientific research conducted outside Canada may be deductible from taxable income.

Extended to April 1, 1967 —Three-year tax exemptions for new manufacturing or processing businesses in designated areas.

Three-year tax exemptions for new manufacturing equipment by such businesses at accelerated rate of 50 per cent.

Little Room for Tax Cuts If Federal Deficit Reduced Gordon's Thinking in Budget

OTTAWA (CP) — If Walter Gordon wanted to reduce the federal deficit, he had little room for tax cuts.

The finance minister picked the first Monday night in inevitable result Monday night, in his second budget speech, to sandpat inflation and all down the line on tax rates.

From a political standpoint, the decision was a calculated risk—the risk, though the odds were fairly long, that the minority Liberal government might be defeated on a Commons non-confidence vote and be forced into another general election.

The biggest political sweetener was the extension of $10 monthly family allowances for children of 16 and 17 attending in school. This had been part of the Liberal party's election-promised "program for a fuller manent," but before the budget all indications had been it would be given at the next session of this 26th Parliament.

The government's position is also strengthened by the continuation of economic buoyancy. Mr. Gordon's budget painted a glowing picture of higher employment, incomes and consumer spending that would add $ 1.3-per-cent rise in non-farm output compared with the four-percent gain in 1963 estimated by the Bank of Canada.

Only the assumed decline in farm net income would work against last year's record Prairie grain crops pushed down the budget-forecast rise of gross national product to a gain of 5½ per cent this year from last year's gain of seven.

Mr. Gordon's speech also referred warmly to the "sound" economic base that wasn't even among his budget measures—the Canada Pension Plan. This, he said, is "the most important measure before this Parliament."

Though the government can't point with pride to any big tax cuts, it can point to have lined up a solid one-third reduction in the budgetary deficit.

The deficit estimate for 64-65 is $455,000,000—down by $230,-000,000 and smaller than four of the seven estimated deficits of the previous decade.

How Tax Dollar Will Be Spent

How a dollar of tax revenue will be spent under the 1964-65 budget:

National defence, 23 cents
Health and welfare, 22.8
Interest on debt, 15.4
Transport, 4
Agriculture, 3.6
Fisheries, 0.6
Public works, 3.1
Post office, 3.4
Other services, 2.1
All other, 22.9

Where the budget dollar comes from:

Personal income tax, 30.2 cents
Corporation income tax, 20
Sales tax, 9.6
Customs duties, 9.3
Alcohol and tobacco, 9.6
Other taxes, 3.8
Non-tax revenue, 10.6

U.S. income tax rate would leave the incentive for capital Canadianization of foreign subsidiaries still strong enough if the withholding tax stayed at 15 per cent.

It didn't mention another powerful pressure working against the increase. If the withholding tax goes to 20 per cent next Jan. 1, the U.S. would have been free to double the withholding rate to 30 per cent on profits from Canadian-owned companies south of the border.

There is one possible political advantage in his budget decision for an election—the extension of the 35 designated slow-growth areas across Canada.

The Conservatives had these areas also in the Atlantic provinces and eastern Quebec. The Conservative party is relatively strong in the down-East provinces, and many eastern Quebec ridings voted Progressive Conservative in the last election.

The 10 per cent investment tax credit for their party.

Though this budget was short on tax changes, Mr. Gordon has served notice his next budget may be loaded with them.

Major changes, he said, should await the report of the Carter royal commission on taxation, due late this year at the latest. Mr. Gordon said he hoped to have legislation before next year's budget.

"Important" changes could be expected next year and even the year after that.

Tariffs represent another area where sweeping changes are in the wind for the future. This budget made only scattered changes in import duties.

But if the Kennedy Round of international tariff negotiations under "GATT"—the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade—comes even close to the U.S. hope for major tariff reductions, Canada will have to make widespread reductions in its protective tariff. However, these can be made by cabinet order and won't require budget-ary action.

Mr. Gordon said the lower

Remove Penalty Against Smaller Scotch Bottles

OTTAWA (CP)—A tax revision in Monday's budget removes a penalty on smaller whisky imported in 25-ounce bottles.

An official said that until now a 25-ounce bottle of scotch was subject to exactly the same amount of duty as a 26 2-3-ounce bottle.

Budget Offers More Incentive For Research

OTTAWA (CP)—Another incentive to Canadian industry to expand its research efforts was proposed Monday night by Finance Minister Gordon.

He told the Commons in his budget speech that, retroactive to Jan. 1, 1962, expenditures for scientific research conducted outside Canada may be deducted from taxable income. The research must be directly related to a company's business operations in Canada.

Finance department officials said the move will correct an unfair situation which has existed since 1962, when Parliament approved a move to encourage Canadian industry to conduct more research in Canada.

Under this step, a company is able to deduct from taxable income 150 per cent of expenditures on new research facilities. A company spending $10,000 on research equipment may deduct $15,000 from taxable income.

Officials said the government feels that the deduction should exist for Canadian companies which are affiliates of foreign firms, as well as in other countries. These companies benefit from research conducted by parent companies and are charged for it.

Slow-Growth Area Assistance Is Extended

OTTAWA (CP) — Incentives for new industry in slow-growth areas are extended both in time and in liberality, details by Finance Minister Gordon's new budget.

He said the three-year tax holiday for new manufacturing or processing businesses in designated areas, due to expire this year, has been well received and needs further encouragement.

The three-year tax holiday which originally was to have ended Dec. 31, 1965, is being extended to any new business that starts commercial operations before April 1, 1967.

The same time extension will apply to the privilege of writing off the cost of new manufacturing equipment, for use by a new manufacturing or processing business in a designated area, at the accelerated rate of 50 per cent a year. The existing rate of write-off for new buildings—20 per cent a year—is also being extended to April 1, 1967.

Admit Bread Duty-Free

OTTAWA (CP)—Bread will be admitted into Canada duty-free from most countries including the United States, Finance Minister Gordon said in his budget speech Monday night.

Duty-free entry of aircraft and parts from Britain, the United States and other possible suppliers is extended for the other year on material of a class or kind not made in this country.

Tariff Board recommendations on oilfield equipment have been worked into the customs tariff and there is an upward trend in protection for Canadian producers of machinery and parts.

All the tariff changes take effect immediately.

Gordon Calls for Restraint At Federal-Provincial Meet In All Financial Demands

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Gordon has called for financial restraint on both sides of the federal-provincial bargaining table.

"Both sides must recognize that Canadians cannot afford to do everything at once," he said in his budget speech to the Commons Monday night.

Mr. Gordon said a co-operative effort must be made to work out spending priorities—that is, which federal and provincial programs are to have privileged access to the country's pool of tax revenues.

His statement helped to set the tone for the plenary conference of the country's top politicians, opening in Quebec City Tuesday, March 31.

It also reiterated that the federal government is willing to give the provinces—if they so wish—full freedom and responsibility for some well-established joint programs now partly financed by Ottawa.

In return for the loss of federal money toward such schemes, the federal government is prepared to make "suitable fiscal adjustments." This would include giving the provinces room for an abnegation of federal responsibilities," Mr. Gordon said.

Mr. Gordon added:

"These financial adjustments must be fair both to the provincial and the federal treasuries.

"We approach this task with patience and value of joint programs.

"We have no desire, however, to go on indefinitely levying taxes simply to pay for programs that are well established and well within provincial jurisdiction.

"It is better that, within the limits of their own fiscal capacities, the provinces should levy the taxes required for such programs, assisted where necessary by equalization payments."

He did not say which programs he had in mind.

Once roughly the biggest, in dollar terms—is the field of hospital insurance. Ottawa pays roughly half the costs. Its bill in the fiscal year starting April 1 will be $420,000,000—up $35,000,000 in one year.

The November federal - provincial conference in Ottawa agreed to the country's main cost programs. An experts' report is expected to be ready for the Quebec City conference.

Mr. Gordon said the public expects to see much from each level of government that they often appear to be competing with one another.

It was in this context that he mentioned the need for co-operation on a system of priorities.

"This recognition on our part of the requirements of the provinces should help to make for the abnegation of federal responsibilities," Mr. Gordon said.

"Canada needs to have both strong provincial governments and a strong federal government. The government of Canada was created a small and dynamic, both in its effective jurisdiction and in finance.

"This was intended in the constitution. It is even more necessary today."

Gordon Gives Five Reasons Why He Did Not Copy U.S. Policy of General Tax Cuts

OTTAWA (CP)—Why didn't Canadians get big tax cuts this year—as the Americans did?

There are five reasons for not following the U.S. example, Finance Minister Gordon said in his budget speech to the Commons Monday night. He listed them in this order:

1. A general tax cut in Canada would not "effectively" meet the economic problems, such as high unemployment in eastern Quebec and the Atlantic provinces. More selective, long-term measures were needed.

2. In proportion to size, Canada has been having considerably larger budget deficits—both provincial and federal—than the U.S.

3. Even after the U.S. tax cuts, Americans' income taxes there are still higher than in Canada for most taxpayers.

4. In Canada corporation income—both in the hands of the company and the shareholder—is generally taxed less heavily taxed than in the U.S.

5. The Canadian government Alcohol and tobacco, 9.6 changes until the royal commission on taxation reports, probably at the end of this year.

Gordon Keeps Election Pledge By Family Allowance Extension

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Gordon Monday night hailed down another plank from the Liberal party's 1963 election platform by announcing in his budget speech that family allowances will be extended to 16- and 17-year-olds who stay in school.

Furthermore, they will be given $10 a month—$2 more than the present top rate of $8 which now ends on the 16th birthday.

The new measure was tied in with the $350 tax-free deductions designed to keep more young Canadians in the classrooms.

The finance minister also announced a plan to allow part-time students to deduct tuition fees from taxable income. Full-time students can do it now.

Also, a taxpayer supporting a brother or sister aged 21 or over who is a full-time student can claim up to $350 as an exemption. Under the present act, such a claim could not be made unless the brother or sister was physically or mentally infirm.

The new family allowances represent the biggest program of the classroom proposals. While the speech didn't indicate when it might begin, informants said it probably will become effective about Sept. 1. It will cost the treasury $27,000,-000 in the new fiscal year starting April 1. Every a full year it will cost $43,600,000.

Family allowances now are paid at the rate of $6 a month on behalf of children up to 16 years of age, and $8 for children up to 16.

Taxpayers now can claim an exemption of $550 for each child not receiving allowances but attending school and for 16- and 17-year-olds who stay in school.

Furthermore, they will be given $10 a month—$2 more than the present top rate of $8 which now ends on the 16th birthday.

Income Tax Explained

By C. A. KELLER

When a wife deserts her husband in the taxation year he is often at a loss as to how this will affect his income tax returns, especially if there are children in the home.

If the wife was not employed and was supported by the husband up to the time of desertion, he may claim full exemption for both himself and the children for that year only, regardless of the fact she may have taken the children with her.

In the following years, if he did not contribute to her or the children's support, he would have no claim other than that of a single person. If she kept the children with him, he is still entitled to full exemption for both the wife and children if the wife was not employed while residing with him.

In cases where the husband has found it necessary to employ the services of a housekeeper to look after the child or children, he is not allowed any exemption on the housekeeper's behalf nor can he deduct any amount paid to her as wages in the year his wife deserted him.

In the following year, if he has not contributed to his wife's support, he may claim the equivalent to married ($1,000) and one child and the fact that he employed a housekeeper to look after the children. He may claim that same child again for the regular child's exemption.

The cost of the housekeeper services is still not deductible. He is also not allowed to include any medical expenses he may have paid on behalf of the housekeeper.

For personal replies pertaining to income tax problems, please enclose a self-addressed five cent stamped envelope and $1 in coin for each question you wish answered.

Question — My wife left me on Jan. 9, 1963. We had one child which she took with her. I have not supported her since and do not know where she is. What exemption can I claim for 1963?

Question — My wife left me in June 1963 with our two children, 5 and 6 years. I pay a lady to look after them while I work. She goes home night. What exemption can I claim in 1963? Can I deduct the baby-sitter's wages?

Answer: If your wife was not employed while living with you, you can claim $2,000 exemption. You cannot deduct the baby-sitter's wages.

60 Applicants For Position of Administrator

PICTON (Staff) — There have been more than sixty applications for position of Administrator of the Prince Edward Collegiate, according to a statement given to The Ontario Intelligencer by a board member on Monday.

It is understood that the board is perusing these applications following which a committee will be formed for the purpose of arranging personal interviews with those whose applications seem most suitable for the newly-created position.

The board member also advised that the bulk of the applications were received from outside the County of Prince Edward. One application was received from as far away as Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Many applications were received from Army and Air Force personel who have, or are about, to retire.

Car Comes To Rest in Ditch on Roof

PICTON — Robert Davis, 33 Main Street, Picton, escaped uninjured last night when his car went out of control on the Black Creek Road and overturned in the ditch.

Mr. Davis was northbound about 10.30 when his car spun off the roadway coming to rest on its roof in the left ditch. He was alone in the car at the time of the accident.

Damage to the car was estimated at between $300 and $400.

RETIRED JUDGE DIES

SASKATOON (CP)—Michael Stechishin, 73, retired district court judge, died Monday. He was the first Ukrainian-born district court judge appointed in Saskatchewan, serving on the bench from 1940 until 1962. He once practised with John Diefenbaker, now opposition leader in the House of Commons.

FREED INDICTED

NEW YORK (AP) — Alan Freed, former top rock 'n' roll disc jockey, was indicted Monday on a charge of evading more than $37,000 in income taxes. The U.S. government charged that much of the income on which it claims Freed owes tax money for the years of 1957, 1958 and 1959 came from numerous record companies in return for publicizing their record—a device known as "payola."

Lumber Yard at Frankford Burns With Loss of $70,000

FRANKFORD—Flames visible from Highway 401 early this morning raged through the office and property of Frankford Lumber and Building Supplies Ltd., on the Trent Road in Frankford, the small office building, (formerly the office of the Frankford Advocate newspaper), storage sheds, machinery and most of the lumber were destroyed. Owner of the company, Douglas Brown of Frankford, estimated the loss last night at about $70,000. The property was "about half" covered by insurance, Mr. Brown said.

DOUGLAS BROWN

Mr. Brown was in a cafe close to the lumber-yard when the fire was spotted, by a passing motorist, about 2.30 a.m. He rushed to the scene and attempted to enter the office to save his business records, but found himself without a key to the door.

Firemen from Frankford and Batawa fought the fire, and managed to save a bowling alley, (also owned by Mr. Brown), and a service station on each side of the burning property.

Firemen from Belleville were called to the scene, but were delayed by extremely treacherous roads.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

The big Trans-World airliner eased to a stop on the tarmac at Shannon airport. We were enroute home from the world hockey tournament at Prague via Geneva, Zurich, and a yearning sniff at Orly, Paris.

A cluster of smiling kilted colleens met us in the lounge. A breath of Killarney nephyred our cheeks as they touched our faces with the traditional kiss of welcome.

The blue of the lakes sparkled in the eyes of them. The lilt of Cork rippled in their voices. There was a gentle touch to the arms of them as they escorted us to tables. And there was the heady poteen of the crags and tors in the cream-topped Irish coffee they gave us.

"So 'tis sportsmen yez are," grinned the craggy-faced "clark" in charge of the liqueurs department... (in this free port of Shannon, you could buy your choice for what they charge for empties over here). "And 'tis after winning the world's hockey championship ye've bin doin'.

'Twas in the vicinity of the Shvinteenth of Obruland but that made no difference. At Shannon the welcome would be just as heart-warming if it were the Twelfth of July yesterday. Ye didn't come by yearlin' the "Cock O' the North" and otherwise givin' ther much evidence yez kicked with the wrong foot.'

Kevin O'Rourke, that was the name of the genial "Paddy" who welcomed us. He was in his late sixties, had lived all his life in the cold sod, had no relations on the New York Police Force and had no desire to become a Gotham taxi-driver.

"'Tis a great country yez live in," he smiled. "But as far meself, sure I'm happy with memories of the peat-bogs, the salmon leaps, the Liffey-flowing salmon of the rivers, John McCormack, the cold black-eye kartin' days, a nip of the poteen and the mornin' smile of me own Rose o' Tralee.

His grew serious. "Speaking o' sports," he lilted. "Did yez ever hear of the greatest fight optimist that ever set foot on the shores of the country?"

"No? Well 'twas a black fella by the name of Balting Siki who had the nerve to come to Dublin on March 17th, 1922, and expect to retain his light-heavy championship against a spalpeen by the name of Miles McTigue."

"What happened?" someone had the nerve to ask.

Kevin drew himself up to his full five-feet-five inches. There was a glint of fire in his Kerry eyes. He blew the cream from his coffee top and grated: "Just whatinell do you think would happen to a heathen that came to Dublin on the great Shvinteenth and expect to lick a son of the cold sod?"

"He sold grandad," he said later, "used to tell us of the Gaelic football game of his day. They didn't have teams then. The club was represented by the whole community, sometimes a full parish. The team that got the ball inside the boundaries of the other side won the game."

"Some of the boys of those times couldn't tell an eyeball from a football in the heat o' battle. Any anyone who went home with at least one shiner was accused of cowardice."

"Why me two great uncles, Tim and Mike O'Rourke, were black eyes for months at a time. Every Saturday they'd run into a couple o' punches that preserved their shiners."

Kevin regaled us with a lot of stories of the legendary heroes of Ireland.

"Take Finn McCool. Every Irishman knows of him. He's the big spalpeen that drop-kicked a giant off the Irish Causeway some 17 miles in the direction of Scotland."

"Finn invented hurling, a game something like hockey but played with a ball and stick. It's a rugged game, not for the likes of the English. Only those with stout shanks can survive."

"Then there was Cu Chulain, the greatest of all hurlers who could juggle a ball on his stick so neatly that he held the record of juggling for nine miles without dropping it."

Flyers Win By Whisker

Bob Butterfield scored a single field goal for Trenton RCAF Flyers last night — but it could not have come at a better time.

The basket came with eight seconds remaining in the game and gave the RCAF another cliff-hanging victory over Belleville Lightfoots, this one by a 33-31 count.

Trenton's win evened the 2-of-3 Bay of Quinte Basketball League championship series at two games apiece. The last three games have been decided by a single point. There was a five-point spread in the series opener.

The dramatic series will reach its climax in what amounts to a sudden-death game next Monday night, at the air station at eight o'clock.

Lightfoots led the series two games to none at one point but Flyers have come back to even matters in one of the tightest battles in the loop's playoff history.

Lightfoots were in front 51-50 until Butterfield scored the winning points. Earlier, he and had changed hands often, with neither club ever owning more than a five-point lead. Belleville led 27-23 at half time.

The Flyers, with high-scoring Arlen Burbidge missing from the lineup, got good efforts from Ernie Clarke, Wilf Borden and Mac McMillan. Borden and Clarke each hooped 16 points and McNichol hit for 10.

Larry Campbell, Gord Smith and Doug Rose were top point collectors for Lightfoots - Smith and Campbell each dropped in 13 points while Rose, back after an injury, hooped 12.

RCAF Flyers (31) — E. Clarke 16, B. Butterfield 3, W. Borden 16, Nelson 2, M. McNichol 10, R. Foyle, 2 Widzyk 4, Cooke.

Belleville Lightfoots (31) — D. Smith 6, L. Campbell 13, G. Smith 13, G. Duggan 1, D. Rose 12, I Houchin 2, T. Ewing, R. Smith 2.

MONTREAL (CP) — Another asterisk for the record book? It could happen in the National Hockey League this weekend as Toronto's Andy Bathgate approaches the record for most tallies during one season. The current mark is 58, set by Montreal's Jean Beliveau in 1960-61, and Bathgate has 54 with three games to play.

But there's a catch.

In the process of being traded from New York to Toronto, Bathgate earned an extra game. When the season winds up, the Leaf right winger will have played 73 games, one more than the schedule usually provides.

It happened once before, when Ed Litzenberger was traded to Chicago by Montreal in 1954-55 and played in 73 games. But Litz didn't threaten any records and the NHL archives had no difficulties.

"We'll wait and see if he does it," says NHL information director Ron Andrews. "Then we'll decide how to handle it."

BROKE RECORD EARLY

Bathgate already has broken one minor record. He assisted on a goal March 8 to tie the mark for most assists in a season by a right winger. The previous record of 47 was held by Detroit's Gordie Howe, who probably won't even miss it from his retirement.

Three other minor milestones may be passed when the season ends this Sunday. Defence Stan Mikita is threatening two marks held by Boston centre Pierre Pilote of the Hawks in after a record owned by Bill Gadsby of Detroit.

Pilote has 42 assists to date, four short of Gadsby's record of 46 for defencemen. Mikita has 87 points with two games to play and may surpass Beliveau's high for a centre's points in 1953-59. Beliveau has the mark for most penalty minutes by a centre (158) but Mikita has 142 and seems almost certain to break the mark.

But cash — conscious Mikita isn't likely to get too excited about accumulating points. Eight sights are fixed on the $1,000 bonus for the league's scoring championship and he's on target.

The Hawk scoring ace has 87 points, four more than runnerup Bobby Hull. His teammate Ik Mikita's only threat but it's not easy for Hull to pass him because when Hull scores, Mikita almost invariably gets an assist and ties terms.

Beliveau is third with 75 points and outranked Bathgate is next with 73. Kenny Wharram of the Hawks slipped to fifth with 69 points while Gordie Howe is seventh with 68. Howe (65), Boston's Murray Oliver (63) and New York's Phil Goyette (61) follow.

Montreal's Charlie Hodge extended his 4-0 record in playoff games to three goals over. Chicago's Glenn Hall and Toronto's Johnny Bower. Hall and Bower have three games left and Hall only two.

Vic Haddield of New York leads the league in penalties with 145 minutes and Chicago, adding to its team record with every infraction, is the most penalized team with 1,006 minutes.

Lose All-Ontario Thriller 9-8

North Ontario Edges White Rink

An all-Ontario thriller stole the competitive thunder of the opening round of the National Mixed Curling Championships in Toronto last night.

Moe Wilkie's Belleville rink battled for gold spurs in inaugural national competition was edged 9-8 by Prince Edward Island Curling Club.

The large crowd at the Royal Canadian Curling Club held its collective breath for three games within three inches of tying the match in the final end.

Wilf Birse the Northern Ontario skip was leading 8-7 going into the last end without last stone and Wilkie was counting a pair when he delivered his final rock.

Then it happened. Wilkie's final draw to the button fell three inches short of counting for three.

In other play the west left little doubt to its curling supremacy in the mixed round-robin.

New Brunswick gave Alberta a run for the money but bowed out 9-7. British Columbia disposed of Nova Scotia 14-6.

Quebec drew the first-round bye.

Tonight at eight they meet the New Brunswick champions.

Lead Series 3-1

Picton Jrs. Edge Napanee

By Jack Fawkes

PICTON (Staff) — The Picton Jr. hockey team it three wins in a row as they edged the Napanee Real Wings by a close 3-2 count here last night. Picton takes a 3-1 edge in the best of seven playdowns in the OHA Junior "C" League.

This has to go down in the record books as one of the best games ever seen in many seasons. The 955 fans attending were treated to a wonderful display of junior hockey.

It was an up and down affair with the lead changing hands with every goal.

Picking a star is very difficult but the first of any stars must go to the little guy who wears the big Zero on his sweater, Larry Holmes in the Picton nets. He was not just sensational, he was even better than that, and was the big edge in favor of the locals. Bill Hopkins would give him a hard run for top spot as he fired two goals and assisted on two others. Harold Haddock also fired a pair in the game.

There was no scoring in the initial period, and only two penalties were called. Both teams stayed on the ice, resulting in some exceptionally fast hockey. Early in the second period Napanee's Winston Dowdell took advantage of a scramble in front to Gary Hasenal and beat Holmes with a hard shot in the corner.

At 17.45 Harold Haddock took Bill Hopkins' pass, skated down the centre of the ice and let it was a brand new game.

Rory McDonald put Picton one up at 18.45 as he fired a Bob Brown pass behind Tom Mercer. Picton's Charlie Richardson drew a two minute at Chicago, Dwight Gell's pass and it was all tied up.

To start off the final period, Hopkins and two passes just 45 seconds apart at 1.21 and 1.27, to once again give the local fans something to cheer about.

With the clock running out Hopkins took passes from Wayne McConnell and Haddock to put Picton one up.

Picton were outshot by the visitors 39-29 and had a 5-1 edge in the six minor penalties called by referees Bill Hurst and Tim Williams, who once again, called a good game.

Next game, and what could be the last game in this series takes place at Napanee on Thursday night. It is expected that a large contingent of Picton rooters will make the trip to cheer their team.

Fifth Victory

Maroons Defeat Canucks

GENEVA (CP) — Winnipeg Maroons Monday scored the most lopsided victory of the international ice hockey tournament here, defeating a team of Canadians coaching in Europe 10-5 before 6,000 fans.

The victory was the first for Maroons in three games of the tournament and their fifth victory in a 13-game tour of Europe.

Earlier in the tournament, the defending Western Canadian senior champions were defeated 9-3 by the Czechoslovakian national team and 3-1 by the Russian nationals.

Maroons in the tour won five games, lost five and tied two as compared with their 10-game 1961 record of seven wins, one loss and two ties.

Ross Parke put on a one-man show for the Maroons as he scored six times in the most brilliant individual display of the tour and the tournament.

Other Maroon goals went to Lou Joyal, Bernie Grebinsky, Murray Couch and Lorne Davis.

Maroons are expected to arrive home Friday.

Bob Smith Wins 10-Pin Tourney

A total of fifty-one (51) participants entered the first annual "Mr. Belleville 10 Pin Tournament" held at the Belleville Bowl on Saturday and the title was won by Bob Smith. Bob rolled a total of 1042 (including handicap) for his five games. He was presented with a trophy and bowling ball of his choice by manager Jim Robertson.

In second position was John Sager with 1073, while third position was taken by Jim Sheridan with 966. The high single prize was taken by Bernie Cannon with 221, while the consolation prize went to Warren Blakelock.

Mets New Fans Gimmick

'Stamps Or Passes, Madam?'

NEW YORK (AP)—When you see, 113 games, you've got to do something.

Like get some outfielders, a shortstop and a catcher or two. Or give away trading stamps.

That's what New York Mets are going to do. Give away trading stamps in a big drawing in connection with the Mets' opening game at their new stadium April 11.

Another 8,000 customers will get free tickets for the opening game. And 24 will get season passes.

You can expect some likes these at the quick check-out counter all over town:

"I'll take two pounds of broccoli, a quart of oilvetts and three dozen pizzas, please. And don't forget the trading stamps!"

"No trading stamps today, lady. You are the lucky winner of a ticket to the opening game of New York Mets instead of stamps. You are a winner in our big contest."

"A winner, you say. Mrs. Blotwurst won yesterday and Mrs. Cluppy Stamps today!"

"Why Cluppy, lady?"

"I figure if we all get together we can save up enough prizes, lady. You won second prize, a free ticket to the Mets."

"That's second prize? What do you get if you win first prize? I'm almost afraid to ask."

"Why, a season pass to the Mets, lady."

"The losers should have to go to the Mets, not the winners. Give me my stamps or take back the pizzas."

"We're also running a contest for guessing the batting average for the week of the leading Met."

"Well, that's more like it. I'll enter that one. And I hope I win so I can give my Stamps to Casey Stengel manager."

"Why Casey, lady?"

"I figure if we all get together we can save up enough prizes, lady. You won second prize, a free ticket to the Mets."

"That's second prize? What do you get if you win first prize? I'm almost afraid to ask."

"Why, a season pass to the Mets, lady."

SAILORS ABOUND

Its estimated that 200,000 Britons go sailing every week, compared with only 15,000 amateur sailors 25 years ago.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly relieved in many cases... actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among those with hemorrhoids were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and rectal suppository form called Preparation H.

Ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Mr. Liston Pleads Not Guilty

DENVER (AP)—A lawyer entered a plea of not guilty Monday for Sonny Liston, former heavyweight boxing champion, who did not appear in court.

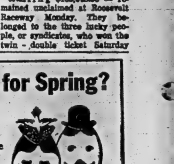
The lawyer, Donald L. Lozow, said Liston wants a jury trial. Judge Dan Diamond set June 9 as the trial date. Liston was freed on $300 bond soon after his arrest last Tuesday.

Lozow has said he knows that Liston may have been guilty of "some speeding, but he is innocent of all other charges."



"We have made arrangements to get a valid Colorado operator's licence."

Patrolman James Snider said Liston's 1964 model car was travelling between 70 and 80 miles an hour in a residential area before he stopped him.

Canada Defeats U. S. A. In Opener

World Curling

By JOHN SHORT

CALGARY (CP)—Lyall Dagg of Vancouver, skip of Canada's entry in the 1964 international curling championship, found the ice to his liking Monday night as he led his mates to a 10-7 victory over United States in the first round of the six-team competition.

Dagg, 34, a public relations official, was joined in the winner's circle by rinks from Sweden and Scotland. Swedish skip Kurt Johnson led his rink to a 16-4 triumph over Switzerland and Scotland skip Alex S. Torrance spearheaded a 17-4 Scottish conquest of Norway.

Dagg, accustomed to much worse conditions at Charlottetown where he won the 1964 Canadian championships, found the ice in the 7,000-seat Stampede Corral a dream.

But Dagg's group found itself in trouble at times. Canada moved into a 4-0 lead after two ends but led only 5-4 after six.

Scotland ran up an 8-0 margin over Norway, skipped by Per Kolaker of Oppdal in the first four ends before, surrendering a pair. Sweden had a 7-0 fourth-end lead over Switzerland, skipped by Gerald Keller of Rigi Kaltbad, before yielding a deuce.

Dagg, seeking to become the sixth consecutive Canadian winner in the six-year history of the international competition, had only one bad end. That was the sixth, when U.S. skip Robert Magi of Duluth, Minn., had a comparatively simple shot for three that would have tied the game.

HITS THE BROOM

Margi hit the broom almost perfectly. His last rock hit Canada's counter and drove it onto a U.S. stone at the back of the house, leaving Magi one point short of a tie.

The United States front end—second Russ Barber and lead Payne Britton — had difficulty on the seventh and and allowed Dagg and his partners to fill the house early. They settled for a pair to boost the Canadian lead to 7-4 and Dagg virtually breezed the rest of the way.

Dagg won the 1964 Canadian championship from Ernie Richardson of Regina earlier this month. Richardson has won four international championships and Hector Gervais of Edmonton one in the five-year history of the competition.

Canada was drawn against Norway in the second round today. In other games, Sweden met U.S.A., and Scotland met Switzerland.

It is the first international competition for Switzerland and Norway.

The top four survivors of the round-robin preliminary meet in playoffs Thursday afternoon. The final is scheduled Thursday night.

"THEN THE BIG BOSTON BRUIN . . ." — Syd Howe, 52, who spent 16 successful years in the National Hockey League, could be thinking of three bears of a Boston variety as he reads a bedtime story to his grandchildren, David and Cheryl Lehay. Howe broke into the NHL with Ottawa, his home town, and played 12 seasons with Detroit. His record of six goals in one game — against New York Feb. 3, 1944 — still stands. (CP Photo)

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

Since it is getting near playoff time, teams are a little more cautious in their play; they and fills the gap, maybe gets are at the start of the season.

Early in the season everybody's trying to get a few goals and a few wins to get the pressure off and they more or less throw caution to the winds. I think the scoring tends to be a little higher then for that reason.

Now that playoff positions are at stake, I'm staying back as anchor man when we have the puck in our opponent's zone, if the puck is on the left side of the net.

Our centre, Alex Delvecchio, will be up the play at all times. And our left wing, Parker MacDonald goes in to help him, whereas I pull up just inside their blue line where I can move in to get a quick shot.

At the same time, I'm in position if they get possession, so that I can check, or come back on the play and have at least one side checked.

If three men break out, there'll be a man-on-man situation right away, and reinforcement each have a man and I'll take care of the odd wing-er.

On occasion, we'll try something different to try and confuse them a little. We'll send all three forwards in and work like crazy, just throw caution to the winds.

Then when the next line takes over, they'll be instructed to send only one man in to try to get the opposition thinking, confuse them.

We have another play which we call a playoff play. When they get possession, the centerman doesn't even bother to backcheck. He comes out of their end and drops behind our goalie, Terry Sawchuk.

If the other team is throwing the puck in as soon as they get it over the red line, then our centre gets possession of it. If

World Hockey In Canada

EDMONTON (CP)—Art Potter of Edmonton, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said Monday, Canada "in all probability" will make a bid for the 1967 world hockey championships.

Potter said in an interview he gave this indication to the International Ice Hockey Federation during a meeting at Innsbruck, Austria, in conjunction with the 1964 Winter Olympics.

He said the matter will be further discussed at the CAHA annual meeting in Ottawa starting May 13, which will be attended by IIHF president Buddy Ahearne.

The Ottawa meeting will celebrate the CAHA's 50th anniversary.

Potter said Canada would set one condition before making a bid for the 1967 championships; that only A sectional teams would participate.

He said Canada does not have the facilities to handle the championships under the current two - section makeup which places top-rated clubs in one group and others in a secondary section.

Says Hank Aaron
No More .350 Hitters

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Henry Aaron, who owns the highest lifetime batting average of any currently active major leaguer, believes baseball has seen the last of the .350 hitters.

"I just don't see how anybody can hit for that high an average any more, with the kind of pitching we've got in hit against today," said the Milwaukee slugger. "When I broke in with the Braves 11 years ago, you were practically certain that one or two guys would hit .350 or .360. Those days are gone."

The 30-year-old Aaron, generally regarded as the best hitter in baseball owns a .320 average. He batted .355 just five years ago, a figure that gave him one of his two National League batting titles.

"Today's pitchers are better than any I've seen since I came up to the big leagues. Back in 1954 and '55, a club had one, maybe two outstanding pitchers.

TWO MANY PITCHERS

"Now, every club has at least three top flight starters. As if that's not enough, they reach into the bullpen and, throw a pitcher at you who is just as tough, if not tougher."

The right-handed hitter barely missed winning the National League batting crown last year with a .319 average.

To what does Aaron attribute the sudden burst of pitching brilliance in the majors?

"The clock of good young pitchers coming up almost together," he said.

Clay Boss Turns Down Patterson

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Cassius Clay's manager, Bill Faversham, gave a flat "no" Monday to a proposed winner-take-all heavyweight fight for charity between the new heavyweight champion and Floyd Patterson.

"I'm not going to let him do any such thing," Faversham said after Clay had offered to the former champion with all proceeds going to their respective religions.

Clay is a Black Muslim. Patterson a Roman Catholic.

However, Tom Bolan of Championship Sports, a promotional group with offices in New York was not so easily discouraged.

"I think the fight can be made," Bolan said. "At least, Clay's latest offer is the most encouraging thing we've heard.

"My offer of $700,000 for a Clay — Patterson fight still stands."

Bolan said he believed the fight is possible because both fighters have expressed a desire to meet each other, with no thought of the purse.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Jean-Paul Parise and Rudy Pamgabko scored two goals each as Minneapolis handed Cincinnati a 5-3 Central Professional Hockey League defeat Monday.

The Wings' Alex Faulkner scored the first goal of the game at 14:19 of the first period but Bill Kosloski tied for Minneapolis less than four minutes later.

Keenan finished Cincinnati's scoring for the night half way through the second frame but Bull Cooper and Parise scored before it was over.

Beat Houston 5-0
Yankees Win First For Yogi

COCOA, Fla. (CP)—Houston Colts had a look at four members of the New York Yankee pitching staff, all of them considered second-line talent. As far as the Colts are concerned, it's just as well that they don't have to tackle the first-stringers in the National League.

The Yankees presented fledgling manager Yogi Berra with his first victory of the exhibition baseball season Monday as the Colts managed just one hit against the offerings of Bill Stafford, Rollie Sheldon, Steve Hamilton and Tom Metcalf in the course losing 5-0.

Pitching was also the strong point in Milwaukee Braves' 1-0 victory over Baltimore Orioles as the winners produced a two-hitter in chalking up their second straight shutout.

Washington Senators edged Kansas City Athletics 3-2, Chicago White Sox nipped Pittsburgh Pirates 5-4, Cincinnati Reds outslugged Minnesota Twins 7-6 in 10 innings, St. Louis Cardinals downed Detroit Tigers 6-2 and Philadelphia Phillies and New York Mets played to a 9-9 tie in all innings in other Grapefruit League games.

In the Central League circuit, Boston Red Sox shaded Cleveland Indians 5-4 and Los Angeles Angels walloped Chicago Cubs 12-5.

The Yankees, beaten by Baltimore in their first two games, broke a scoreless tie against Houston with a four - run seventh inning, Pedro Gonzales driving in two, Bob Lillis singled off Clanford in the fourth inning for the losers' only hit.

A TOSS TWO-HITTER

Denny Lemaster, Bob Sadowski and Bob Hendley combined for Milwaukee's two-hitter against the Orioles. Mack Jones scored the only run on a play that saw Lee Maye tagged out after an apparent double when he failed to touch first base.

Jim. King homered and Ed Roebuck squelched a ninth-inning Kansas City threat as Washington handed the Athletics their third straight setback.

Floyd Robinson produced a grand-slam home run with two out in the ninth inning to give the White Sox their first victory in three starts against the Pirates, who suffered their first defeat.

A Minnesota error following three singles gave Cincinnati the victory over the Twins after Art Shamsky and Johnny Edwards had hit earlier homers for the Reds. Sixth - inning homers by Jeff Long and Gerry Buchek powered the Cards to their win over Detroit.

Ron Swoboday's three - run homer and two singles provided the highlight of the Mets-Phillie. It squeals from the two teams also tied 7-7 in a nine-inning game despite the presence of regulars Jim Bunning, Ryne Duren and Ray Culp on the mound for the Phillies.

Bill Monboquette pitched six shutout innings for Boston and Sox and Bob Heffner squelched a Cleveland rally in the ninth after Johnny Romano's two-run triple off Dave Morehead.

The Angels scored runs in benches against the Cubs, getting three in the first inning, five in the fourth and four more in the sixth.

Monsens Shade Frontenacs 3-2

Peterborough Monsens nipped Kingston Frontenacs 3-2 in Peterborough last night to climb back into the fight for the OHA Eastern Junior "B" group championship.

Kingston leads the best-of-seven series two games to one after 5-0 and 9-6 wins in Kingston.

Fourth game of the series is scheduled for Peterborough on Thursday night with the fifth back in Kingston on Saturday.

EXPORTS COFFEE

Says Defendant Killed Man With Elbows

FRANKFURT (AP) — A former Auschwitz concentration camp prisoner testified Monday that a defendant in West Germany's biggest war crimes trial was known as "the beast of Auschwitz." Once, the witness said, the defendant killed a man with his elbows.

"We know him by my section of the camp as 'the beast of Auschwitz' because of his brutality," Hermann Wellrauch testified at the trial of 23 former guards and Auschwitz functionaries.

He referred to former SS (Elite Guard) Sgt. Robert Mulka, a 56-year-old clerk who developed a reputation at Auschwitz as one who took sadistic pleasure in torturing and slaughtering prisoners.

"I once saw Boger beat a prisoner bloody by punching his elbows into the man's ribs until the man collapsed and was carted off to a dispensary where he died the same night," Wellrauch said.

Wellrauch said the man Boger beat on this occasion worked with Wellrauch in the prison camp's paint shop.

"Boger came into the paint shop to search for a prisoner who had stolen some meat from a storehouse. He thought my prisoner had done it, so he began beating."

Boger jumped from his seat and shouted that he never "beat anyone for anything so small as stealing food."

"I remember very well what Wellrauch is talking about. But we were not searching for someone who stole food, but for someone connected with the Polish underground outside the camp. That man in the paint shop was executed."

8 of 13 New Shows on CBS Should Be Barrel of Fun

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—CBS has formally announced 11 fall schedule. It includes 13 new programs and 11 time-changes for returning shows.

If CBS is a trend leader, next fall's schedules on all networks should be a barrel of fun. Eight of the 13 new shows are comedies, and all are half-hour shows.

New programs include Living Doll, a comedy with Julie Newmar, playing a beautiful robot, and Bill and Martha, with William Bendix and Martha Raye, another comedy. These will fill the Sunday night hour opposite NBC's Bonanza, one of the toughest competitive spots in television.

Other comedy shows are Many Happy Returns, Monday night, about a man who works in the complaint department of a store; The Cara Williams Show Wednesday, a husband-wife series; The Munsters Thursday, a series about a family that look to be Frankenstein monsters, with Fred Gwynne and Al Lewis; The Sullerys of Balboa also Thursday, with Paul Ford playing a marina owner in a yachting community; Gomer Pyle Fridays, with Jim Nabors, in spin-off from the Andy Griffith Show, playing a Marine recruit, and Gilligan's Island Saturday, about a group of shipwrecked people.

NEW DRAMA SHOWS

There will be three new dramatic series. Slattery's People Monday is the story of the minority leader of a state legislature. Yours Truly, Danny Taylor Friday is a newspaper tale. Mr. Broadway Saturday night, with Craig Stevens, is an action-adventure series about a press agent who does amateur detecting.

The one new variety show will be The Entertainers, with Carol Burnett and Bob Newhart among the stars, on Friday nights. A documentary series, World War I, will be seen Tuesday nights.

The Nurses will be moved to Tuesday night, The Defenders to Thursday evenings; Password to Thursday nights, and Rawhide to Fridays. A number of others will have new times but will not change nights.

Recommended tonight:

The Richard Boone show, NBC, 9-10 EST—conclusion of two-part drama of politics, The Arena.

AT THE PARK — A delectable moment in "Man's Favorite Sport?" when next-door camp neighbor Paula Prentiss calls on Rock Hudson to borrow a sleeping pill. It just so happened that Mr. Hudson has a sleeping pill which she gives her. So, instead of jumping to conclusions, why not see the picture which is in Technicolor and was produced and directed by Howard Hawks. Coming soon to the Park Theatre, for its first Belleville and district showing.

Lockhart's Dog Days End But She's Sorry It's Over

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — June Lockhart's dog days are over. After six years as Lassie's mother, she now can take a drink in public.

As it happened, she didn't have a drink when we met for lunch, but it was a comfort for her to know that she could—as long as she was one of the stars of the Lassie show, she was restrained from anything that might reflect against the Lassie image.

Such wordage appeared in the contract she signed. But she didn't know how stringently it would be applied. She found out in her second year with Lassie when a television magazine reported that she had taken a drink during an interview.

"It was a half jigger of scotch," she recalled. "Well, you never saw such a fuss when the article appeared. A delegation flew out from the sponsor's headquarters in Camden, N.J. I had to attend a meeting with nine men at which this breach of the image of Lassie's mother was deplored.

"They even were concerned that the writer had reported that I took him for a ride in my 1901 Oldsmobile and drove like Barney Oldfield's sister. Bad image. I must have been going all of 10 miles per hour."

After all the oratory, June agreed to avoid any controversial stand than coming out against heart disease.

For the remainder of her contract, she curbed her considerable sense of humor and said nothing that would detract from the homespun simplicity of the Lassie family.

At season's end she found herself replaced by a forest ranger. The last segment showed the family moving off to Australia, where a dog could not emigrate, not even a smart dog like Lassie. The final day of shooting was Feb. 14—"our own Valentine's Day massacre," said June.

She made a speech in which she advocated "the actor's rule —a clean exit." But she admitted there were tears on all sides, including Jon, who had spent half of his 14 years on the show.

Was she sorry to leave?

"You bet," she admitted. "It was an actor's dream — steady work, excellent pay, a wonderful cast and crew, and a chance to do a good scene now and then. Yes, I even liked Lassie. It's really a wonderful dog."

30-Mile Swim For For C.N.E.

TORONTO (CP)—A 30-mile swim across Lake Ontario and an international invitation track meet featuring Russian athletes are being planned as attractions in the Canadian National Exhibition's sports program this summer.

Both projects have been approved by the CNE sports committee.

Prize money in the swim from Port Dalhousie to Toronto has not been decided, but will at least equal last year's $16,500 for the tri-angular swim in front of the CNE grounds, the richest of the world's marathon swims.

CNE sports manager George Duthie said the swim will probably begin at 6 p.m. Thursday Aug. 27.

LONDON (AP)—Flying Wild, owned by Raymond Guest of New York, stayed among the betting favorites Monday for the 122nd running of the Grand National Steeplechase Saturday.

Guest is trying to become the first American to win both the English Derby and the Grand National. No other American has landed that double.

London's top bookies made these odds Monday night: Time 14-1; Beau Normand, Flying Wild, Kilmore, Laffy, Springbrok 16-1; Pappageno's Cottage, Border Flight, Loving Record, Paz Seul, Purple Silk 20-1; John O'Groats, Lizwake, Team Spirit 25-1; April Rose, Out and About, Willow King, Ayala 33-1. Odds on other entries were not quoted.

Pension Plan Given Backing By All Parties

Scheme Is Introduced In House for Debate

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberal government sent its revised retirement-pension plan into the parliamentary mill Tuesday.

The opposition pledged support for the principle of the compulsory scheme.

But it served notice that it will seek amendments in detail when the legislation is submitted to a joint Commons-Senate committee, which is to be set up.

The government wants the plan—officially called the Canada Pension Plan—to go into effect Jan. 1, 1965. This is the plan, in brief:

COST

Cost to an employee would be a maximum of $3.75 a month, to start. His employer would match that. The self-employed would pay a maximum of $7.50 a month.

LIMIT IS $6,500

The pay-off for such contributions would be 20 per cent of the contributor's average annual earnings up to $6,500, which would be $4,500 a year at the start. On that basis he would get a $75-a-month pension on retirement at age 65, or at age 70 if he kept on working to that age.

In addition, he would get the universal old-age pension now paid to everyone at 70 of last reckonings. This now is $75 a month, but rises at age 70. The new plan would make it possible to draw this pension in reduced amounts starting at age 65, when it would be $51 a month.

DISABILITY

Combined, the two pensions (these would average maximum benefits of $120 a month if claimed at age 70. At age 65, the benefits would be about $75 a month for life. In addition, a spouse would get his or her $75 or lower old-age pension—plus the earnings-related pension, if he or she had contributed to it.

DISABILITY

However, it would take 10 years—until 1975—to build up the plan to that level of benefits after collection start next year, largely through payroll deductions.

DISABILITY

Thereafter, both contributions and benefits would rise as the economy advanced and income rose.

TURNS TO BUDGET

Today, the Commons turns to the budget debate. It is almost certain to produce one or more non-confidence motions. It will be a two-day debate, but only the first three have been scheduled for the first—that is, today, Thursday and Friday.

These other important features of the budget have been underlined in a government white paper, and in a speech by

Unanimous Approval On One Point

By ALAN DONNELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Reaction to Finance Minister Gordon's new budget with its stand-pat policy on taxes has been unanimous on only one point—approval of the planned $10 family allowance for stay-at-school students aged 16 and 17.

Beyond that, the policy set out in the Monday budget speech has prompted comment as widely divergent as the business interests or politicians voicing their views.

Some business spokesmen expressed disappointment that Mr. Gordon chose not to follow the lead in chopping personal and corporation tax rates.

But stock market prices Tuesday nearly continued their recent pattern of scattered advances—an indication that the business world hadn't expected tax cuts.

The Canadian Labor Congress, through Secretary-Treasurer Donald MacDonald, termed it "a lackluster budget" and deplored the absence of new measures to strengthen the economy.

SEES DANGER

He said Mr. Gordon's decision to aim at a $200,000,000 cut in the budget deficit to $455,000,000 in the 1964-65 fiscal year "is dangerous while unemployment is still so high."

The six-day budget debate in the Commons was expected to start today, but opposition party leaders have already voiced their criticisms. Leader of the Conservative Leader Diefenbaker's verdict: "A budget of retreat and recantation," to the description by Creditiste spokesman Gilles Gregoire: "Clear water—no color, no odor, no flavor."

The budget's biggest announcement was the extension of family allowances, which now stop at 15 level when children reach their 16th birthdays. It's expected to take effect Sept. 1, costing $27,000,000 next fiscal year and $43,000,000 in a full year.

Educationists generally hailed the move—part of government policy to encourage more schooling to improve employment chances of young people. But some have wished the government had gone further.

De Gaulle Wants France, Mexico To Exchange Scientists, Artists

CP from AP-Reuters

MEXICO CITY — President de Gaulle proposes that France and Mexico join in a big exchange program but says it wouldn't cut into Mexican relations with the United States.

De Gaulle told a joint session of the Mexican Congress Tuesday that Latin America is forging into the foreground of the stage of world affairs." He made clear that he wants to lessen French influence in the region.

begin a large-scale program of scientific, cultural and technical exchanges and become "more and good companions in the work of civilization."

Before Congress and at a presidential luncheon at the National Palace, de Gaulle tried to ease fears in Washington that his visit might affect Mexico's ties with the United States.

Any special relation between Mexico and France, he said at the luncheon, are not intended to "set us at or even to diminish the relations . . . that bind us to our neighbors."

Before Congress he spoke of "Mexico which, without in any way underestimating the fact that it maintains close and cordial ties with its great northern neighbor are both old and still fertile, still feels attracted toward the European countries by all kinds of affinities and, in the first place, may I dare add, attracted by my own country."

De Gaulle and Lopez Mateos planned a third round of private talks today, followed by the signing of a joint communique. It was expected to deal mainly with commercial, cultural and possibly political ties.

No Usual Peak In Jobless

OTTAWA (CP)—An estimated 467,000 persons were unemployed in mid-February, virtually unchanged from January and 78,000 below the jobless level a year earlier, the federal labor department and Dominion Bureau of Statistics said today in a joint report.

The jobless total rose only 1,000 between January and February, in contrast to a pattern of rising unemployment at this period in previous years. February is generally regarded as the peak month for winter unemployment.

Unemployment in February represented seven per cent of the labor force, compared with 8.4 per cent in February, 1963, and 9.1 per cent in February, 1962. The unemployment rate last month was unchanged from January.

Seasonally adjusted, the February jobless rate was 4.7 per cent—its lowest point in the last 12 months.

PICTURE IN BRIEF

	Feb. Jan. Feb.
Labor Force	6,690	6,697	6,484
Employed	6,223	6,231	5,951
Unemployed	467	466	545

The monthly report is based on a survey of 35,000 households across Canada for the week ending Feb. 22. Since figures are based on a sample cross-section of the population, they are estimates and not precise totals.

The report said that employment was sustained over the month in construction; forestry, transportation and agriculture, which usually report once declines during this period.

"Activity in residential construction continued at a very high level, stimulated by the government incentive program for winter housebuilding," the report said.

Compared with a year earlier, non-farm employment was up 234,000 to 5,853,000. The largest increases were noted in service, manufacturing and trade. Agricultural employment was 38,000 higher than in February, 1963.

The number of women at work increased by 8.2 per cent to 2,289,000 over the year. Almost three quarters of the increase was among married women.

The number of men at work rose 3.1 per cent to 4,389,000.

UNEMPLOYMENT

Employment was considerably higher than a year ago in all provinces except in the Atlantic provinces which showed little change.

The 467,000 unemployed about 328,000 had been jobless for three months or less. An estimated 86,000 had been awaiting work for four to six months, and 50,000 for seven months or more.

The regional unemployment picture, with February, 1963, figures in brackets:

Atlantic 73,000 (87,000); Quebec 176,000 (200,000); Ontario 115,000 (135,000); Prairies 36,000? (?); Pacific, British Columbia 47,000 (52,000).

Brush Fires In Los Angeles Now Contained

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Firemen raced today against fierce gusts of more high winds to seal off boundaries of three disastrous brush fires before gusts can churn them up again.

Insurance companies estimate damages at $4,000,000.

Looking at forecasts of 23 m.p.h. winds for today, County Fire Chief Keith Kilinger said:

"It's a race against time to make sure that all hot spots are extinguished."

G. Watkin Asphyxiated In Bowmanville Motel Fire

Well-known local lawyer was considered to be one of and corporation assessor with the Belleville income tax office, Mr. Gordon Watkin, 112 Hastings Drive, died early today from asphyxiation in a motel unit at the Flying Dutchman Motel at Bowmanville.

Mr. Watkin was found shortly after 7:00 a.m. slumped in a motel room chair by the motel manager, James Bourke, after smoke was noticed billowing from the unit.

Mr. Watkin apparently had fallen asleep while smoking in bed. He probably awakened when he found his bed afire and tried to escape but was overcome by the smoke.

Mr. Watkin had checked in at the motel to stay overnight while on his normal routine with the income tax division. He was last seen about 10 o'clock last night.

The motel manager said he had smelled smoke while in the motel restaurant, but at first was unable to determine its origin.

He checked the unit occupied by Mr. Watkin and from the outside located the curtains and windows smoke-stained. He phoned the fire department but on his return found the unit was locked so the cabin because of the dense smoke.

SMOKE WAS FIRE

Mr. Watkin was born in this city, 54 years ago, being the son of Mrs. Annie Watkin, and the late George Watkin, and has been a continuous resident of this city. He was educated in the public and high schools of the city and joined the local Income Tax Department and worked up through the various grades. He was most-enthusiastic in his work and to improve his knowledge took a course that he had at Carnegie Public Accountant degree.

He was an ardent supporter of all classes of sport and well read on all facets. Hockey and baseball were prominent in his life and when the McFarlands were at the height of their power in this city he was one of the team's most ardent supporters. He attended every game, had his regular seat and many times accompanied the team on road trips.

WAS TOP BOWLER

But lawn bowling was his first love. He joined the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club some years ago and from the very first — showed the ability to be a first class bowler. He was considered to be one of the five best lawn bowlers in Canada. He was appointed to the directorate of the bowling club, served on many committees and at the time of his untimely death was president of the Belleville Club and general chairman of the Corbin Gold Cup committee.

He, along with his partner, Bruce Miller, won honors in their home club in winning the Dominion Championship in 1957. The doubles pair won the Ontario Championship twice and was runner-up for the Dominion title on one occasion.

Mr. Watkin's home is filled with many beautiful prizes that he won at district and Provincial tournaments but in all his glory he was always the kind, considerate gentleman and always willing to impart his knowledge of bowling to any who sought his advice.

In Provincial lawn bowling circles he was renowned. He took an active interest in the Provincial Lawn Bowling Tournament held each year in Toronto. He was elected to the directorate of that organization and became vice-chairman on the board. He resigned from the latter position some months ago but he still held his office of director on the board.

Gordon Watkin had the rare quality of making and keeping friends. He was a man bt genuine, kind and engaging smile and enjoyed company and friendship. His home was always open to his friends and he was a kind and loving husband and father. He will be sadly missed in many circles of community life.

He was a member of Christ Church and is survived by his wife, the former Joan Wright; one daughter, Nancy, at home; his mother, Mrs. Annie Watkin, also of this city, and one brother, Austin Watkin, a member of the Postal Staff in this city.

Arrangements for the funeral, which have not been completed, are under the direction of the Thompson Funeral Chapel.

WILL ADVERTISE LIQUOR

NEW YORK (AP) — WQXR, the radio station of the New York Times, announced Tuesday it will accept commercials for hard liquor. WQXR is not a subscriber to the code of the U.S. National Association of Broadcasters, which holds that advertising of whisky add other hard liquor on the air is "not acceptable."

Toronto Tory Hits 401 Work

TORONTO (CP)—A Conservative back - bencher Tuesday charged the department of highways with riding roughshod over the rights of the people in the widening to 12 lanes of highway 401.

Gordon Carton of the riding of Scarborough, in the northeastern part of Metropolitan Toronto, said the project in his area was costing home-owners thousands of dollars in property devaluation. Absolutely no assurances had been given him by highways minister Charles MacNaughton that any of the persons affected would receive any compensation, he said.

Mr. Carton told the legislature that with the widening of 401, the department was utilizing lands formerly reserved for a greenbelt and safety strip. It was expropriating only those houses sitting on the site of the future roadway.

The result was that a "hideous-looking, gargantuan monster" was being constructed within 20 or 30 feet of private homes.

The government should "wisely, shamelessly, recklessly, knowingly, deprive, yes rob, its citizens of their life savings," he added.

SPEAKS FOR GROUP

Mr. Carton said he was speaking for the 401 Ratepayers Association—a group that was not receiving the kind of support and pressure band of this department without putting up a fight.

He said many of his friends tried to dissuade him from making a speech critical of the Government, telling him that "this invites personal political suicide within my own party."

However, highways Minister MacNaughton later said Mr. Carton need make no apology for stating his convictions. The minister said he was not insensitive to the problem but there were two sides to be considered.

He said the department's concern was that if financial help were given to the home-owners affected by 401, the same thing would have to be done to home owners affected by other highways throughout the province.

The department of highways also came under fire from Eddie Sargent (L—Grey North), who said the department is placing advertisements in municipal publications saying what "great fellows" the highways

Picton Guards Canada's New 'Trouble' Force

Take Van Doos' Role; Cyprus Rules Outlined

OTTAWA (CP)—The 1st Canadian Guards, stationed at Picton, Ont., was designated Tuesday as Canada's new trouble-shooting standby battalion.

Army sources said Tuesday that the Guards will take over the role previously held for about three years by the Royal 22e Regiment, the "Van Doos."

The switch in duties follows assignment of the 1st Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, to form the nucleus of Canada's 1,150-man contingent for United Nations peacekeeping force in Cyprus.

The 1st Canadian Guards in future will have the job of being in readiness to be on call for any kind of job in Canada or abroad.

Army sources said that the guards are not likely to be sent to Cyprus.

They said that no consideration has been given to increasing Canada's forces there beyond 1,150, but should it be necessary the role of the "Van Doos" were available.

WILL BE ROTATED

By CARMAN CUMMING

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada's government has given tentative approval to a set of guidelines under which Canadian troops in the United Cyprus force will operate, including the provision that they will be rotated in self-defence, it was learned here.

Authoritative sources said these guidelines, set out by Secretary-General U Thant in a March 11 note to countries asked to supply men, also stipulate that the force will not interfere in the internal affairs of Cyprus and will take no action to disarm Cypriots.

They also pointed out that the UN's Congo force was set up with similar restrictions, but this did not prevent it from acting to halt fighting. They indicated the Cyprus force will not be expected to keep bands of the event of renewed clashes between the Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots.

FORCE IS 'IN BEING'

Thant meanwhile announced Tuesday that the Cyprus force now is "in being" and that the Canadian troops already in Cyprus had come under UN command.

But he added the starting date of the three-month period for which the force was created would begin the day he told the council it has enough troops "to do its work effectively."

Will Honor Top Ontario Conciliator

TORONTO (CP) — After 30 years of government service and thousands of labor-management disputes in which he has been the middle man, Ontario's chief conciliation officer, Louis Fine, will retire at the end of the year.

The 70-year-old Toronto native, who won the respect of labor and management officials alike, will be honored at a testimonial dinner next Monday.

Mr. Fine's office has been flooded with telegrams and letters during the last few weeks lauding him as one of the leading architects in fashioning the structure of labor-management relations. His conciliator unmatched in Canada."

By the end of the year he will step down as the province's chief of conciliation services although it is reported that he will continue to seek labor-management harmony in another role—probably as chairman of conciliation boards.

Mr. Fine came to Canada as an immigrant from Manchester, England, in 1906. His education was cut short at the age of 11½. After running his own business Manufacturing Jewellery in Toronto and later becoming vice - president of the United Hebrew Union (CLC), he became the province's first industrial standards' officer in 1934, then became the province's first conciliation officer in 1936.

WAS CHALLENGE

One of his major challenge—one that earned him his title of chief conciliation officer was the bitter General Motors strike in Oshawa, when union recognition was a burning issue.

Now, 27 years later, Mr. Fine has received letters from both George Burt, Canadian director of the United Automobile Workers of America (CLC) and E. W. Ware, president of General Motors of Canada.

Both men, using almost identical words noted in their letters that many decisions handed down by the labor arbitrator established precedents that have stood the test for 27 years.

In a large part this is due to a letter to Mr. Fine recently that while Mr. Fine had been in the settlement of thousands of labor-management disputes in his 30 years as mediator, one board hearing but grades for the part he had played in bringing the two sides together.

Engineers on U.S. Lake Vessels May Create New Maritime Strife

WASHINGTON (CP)—A new threat of labor strife on the Great Lakes emerges with the spring thaw—this time from marine engineers seeking higher pay and better job protection against competing Canadian ships.

Union sources said any strike by the United Marine Engineers (AFL-CIO) in support of their demands likely would win the sympathetic co-operation of other U.S. maritime labor bodies including the Seafarers International Union of North America (AFL-CIO).

The engineers of the Great Lakes district are negotiating their demands with steamship companies owned or operated by major U.S. steel companies which bring a lot of their ore in from Canada.

R. T. McKay, the engineers, executive vice - president, has said that the union not only wants higher pensions but protection of thousands that might be lost through unemployment caused by greater use of Canadian rather than U.S.-built by steel mills.

The engineers want the U.S. companies to make full use of all available U.S. ships before considering any Canadian vessels on the lakes.

While Paul Hall, SIU president, and other U.S. maritime labor leaders remain silent about the engineers' fight, there are indications a large part of the maritime body would give the engineers whatever support possible during a walkout.

The result could lead to partial paralysis in American Great Lakes ports, with the threat of increased difficulty for any Canadian ship trying to load or unload in those ports.

Operating Deficit of $8,814 Reported at Council Meeting

TRENTON — Trenton's operating deficit for 1963 was $8,814. This was revealed at last night's regular meeting of town council.

And this wasn't the only bad news for the ratepayers. They learned in quick succession during the three-and-a-half hour council session (1) that repairs to a town-owned bulldozer, tentatively estimated by councillor Joseph Gould, chairman of public works, as $5,000, would cost at least $4,700 with more to come; (2) that consulting engineer J. M. Tomlinson, double the town would receive a subsidy from the Ontario Department of Highways for the installation of traffic signal lights; that a five per cent parks' allowance from the Westmount Park developer, W. Sidor would cost the town money whether it is retained as parks' land or turned back to the developer, who would then pay the equivalent of the land value and (4) that storm sewer installation in 1964 will cost roughly twice as much as it did in 1963.

A contractor had estimated the cost at $3,000 to the balldozer and $3,500. Councillor Gould, before he left for a holiday in Florida, assured council that money could be saved if the men from the public works department did the repairs themselves. However, council was told of the higher figure last night. Councillor Burtt asked for an itemized account of the new parts and labor costs. Meanwhile the repairs were ordered to proceed, for the town is presently reaping a bulldozer.

Last year, council tentatively approved a plan to install synchronized traffic lights at the corner of Dundas St. W. and Dufferin Ave. E. and Main-Mora Sts. Cost of the lights at Dufferin are estimated at $9,577. The major expenditure will be the utilities commission would install these lights, but it now develops that the contractors, Rayner of Toronto, expects to go ahead with the installation this immediate price.

MAYOR DOUBTS STATEMENT

Cost of a "flasher" light at Marmora, would be $3,841 while it would cost around $4,300 to install regulation traffic signals.

Mr. Tomlinson is of the opinion that the highways department will not grant a subsidy on traffic signal installations in a separated town. Mayor MacDonald says Mr. Tomlinson is ever so wrong and that he has reason since that a subsidy will be granted. The mayor would like to see synchronized traffic lights at the top of Gilmour Hill. Councillor Edward Todd would like to see a flasher there, and a traffic signal at the corner of Byron Street and Dufferin Street.

The mayor; Councillor C. V. Graham, chairman of the traffic committee will meet with Mr. Tomlinson and Howard Hallick from the Public Utilities to discuss the proposed installations.

Council now finds that it has been granted a "pound," for the "Trenton Dog Park" allowance in the Westmount Park subdivision. At least, half of the ground in question is now under water. If council honors a request from the Trenton Public Utilities Commission that the land be retained as a park, it will cost a considerable amount of money to fill in the land and make it into a park. On the other hand, if the developer, W. Sidor, is given the land back in exchange for a cash donation, council feels it will be only a matter of time before the developer will want the town to do something about filling in the land. To add to the confusion, a storm sewer now empties into the area and it will be necessary to build a sanitary sewer here to serve the newly-annexed areas of the town. Councillor Graham and Mayor MacDonald have asked by council to review the situation before council decides what to do. The general feeling last night was that the parks' board could be building up of the area, while the developer might not be so amenable.

Youths Carried Switch Knives Court Is Told

TRENTON — In magistrate's court, of Trenton yesterday, swords were drawn, bayonets flashed and switch knives brandished as deputy Crown Attorney Thomas Lally and Police Inspector Ross Stenson illustrated for Magistrate T. Y. Wills the mechanics and capabilities of the 13-inch switch knives, taken from two Toronto youths on March 14.

"They're not toy swords," commented Mr. Lally.

"Almost like bayonets," agreed the magistrate.

The two youths, Walter Marcos and Roy Campbell, 16 and 17, were apprehended in a car by Inspector Stenson. The magistrate will not grant a subsidy on traffic signal installations in a separated town. Mayor MacDonald says Mr. Tomlinson is ever so wrong and that he has reason since that a subsidy will be granted. The mayor would like to see synchronized traffic lights at the top of Gilmour Hill. Councillor Edward Todd would like to see a flasher there, and a traffic signal at the corner of Byron Street and Dufferin Street.

Council Irked By Schedule Of Swing Bridge

TRENTON—The Trent Canal division of the Department Dept. has submitted a proposed bridge opening schedule to Trenton council during its terms. The bridge would be swung at 7:45 a.m., 9 a.m., 10 a.m., 10:45 a.m., 11:30 a.m., 1:15 p.m., 2:15 p.m., 3:15 p.m. and 6 p.m., and as often as necessary after 6 p.m. The schedule would apply seven days a week from May 15, navigation's opening, to October 18, navigation's closing. The bridge would be swung from April 15 to May 15 "for a good cause," and if the boat operator notified the canal superintendent six hours in advance.

Council, which had previously suggested a roughly two-hour opening at 7 a.m. and going through to 8 p.m. with a three-hour interval at the noon hour, described it as outrageous and will tell the department so. Feeling is that with the suggested schedule, the bridge would no sooner be swung back than it would have to be opened again as it takes 20 minutes for the operation.

Orillia Evens Juvenile Series

TRENTON — The Trenton Legion Juvenile hockey team went down to a 7-3 defeat at the hands of the Orillia Juvenile in the better town last night.

The game was the second of a best-of-five quarter final series for the provincial juvenile hockey title.

The two teams will clash again in Orillia on Friday of this week and again at Trenton at the Trenton Community Gardens at 8.00 p.m. Sunday.

Stolen Car Is Recovered, Juvenile Held

TRENTON — Provincial police at Brighton have recovered a car reported stolen in Weston earlier this week.

The 1963 car was recovered in Brighton and a juvenile escaped from a boys' training school was taken into custody.

Good Response

TRENTON — The members of the Community Concert Association are jubilant this week over the public response to last week's membership campaign. Results of the campaign were much better than last year, an association spokesman said today. Final figures will not be available for a few days, because some canvassers have yet to report. Campaign manager this year was Robert Smithrim. Harold Keefer is 1964 president of the association.

Possibility of Swimming Pool Will Be Discussed

TRENTON — Trenton school board members have asked for an early meeting with town council and Trenton recreation Committee to discuss the possibility of a swimming pool for the town.

Last year, the office of the Trenton Lions' Club donated $5,000 towards the cost of a pool expires at the end of this year. If the council wishes to go ahead for a pool, the Lions have indicated that they would donate it towards some sort of community recreation. A pool, if located in Trenton, Lions say would cost upwards of $100,000, and presumably Trenton committee would be willing to make contributions towards the cost. Pool facilities to town at the RCAF Station would be of little value when it became apparent that the facilities there were inadequate for the RCAF personnel and children and adults from Trenton.

PROCEED WITH WORK

Town engineer Eric Alderey was authorized last night to proceed all Monday night to proceed with storm — sewer work on Campbell and Bayview Drives, C. E. and Heber, North Murray St., presently from Gilmour St. 300 feet south on Shater St., from Dufferin Ave. to McLellan Ave. The work will cost around $6,700, and after department of Highways grant and what's works subsidies are considered, the cost to the town should be around $4,000. But the work must be completed by April 30 to qualify for the subsidies mentioned.

Last year, $18,000 was spent on storm sewers. This year's budget is for $48,000. Mr. Alderey told council if all the necessary installations are made this year, the cost would run into $60,000.

MUST GET DRIVER

Kenneth William Anger of Gilmour Landing was fined in magistrate's court at Trenton yesterday that he will have to produce the driver of his car in business calls for the next three months. Anger pleaded guilty charging the driving of an accident on March 4. His car struck another car on a turn on that night, causing $100 property damage of around $200.

"My living, driver's repair) depends on my having a license," Anger told the court.

Driver's name in the case is about to be said Magistrate Wills, "The suspension is laid down in the Act."

Anger was fined $100, payable in two weeks.

Council Is Given Report On Children's Aid Dispute

TRENTON — The following report on Trenton's dispute with the Children's Aid Society was presented to last night's council meeting over the signatures of Councillor Ross Burtt, chairman of the welfare committee, and Mayor D. J. MacDonald.

"I believe that it is time that a statement was made on the Town's relations with the Children's Aid Society that is known as the Children's Aid Society of Belleville, Trenton and Hastings County.

For many years this Society has been the source of assistance to this municipality in matters pertaining to child welfare, it used to derive its funds from the voluntary subscriptions of individuals, tag days and the province. In the everything else, the Society has found itself laboring under increasing costs.

The costs may be divided into administrative costs, child protection work and the maintenance of children taken into custody.

This municipality, along with the other municipalities in the district rate established annually for those children who are wards of the Children's Aid Society. There is not, nor can there be, any problem in this respect since the rate has been approved by the Magistrate. Our differences with the Children's Aid Society are concerning the cost of protection service. This was to provide us with a worker from the C.A.S. who would visit Trenton two days a week and check on the homes where he or she knew there were problems concerning children. We think it would be fair to say that most leads came through our own Welfare Department.

PAID REQUESTED GRANT

About ten years ago, some interested Trenton citizens and representatives from the Children's Aid Society came before Council to request a grant to defray the cost of the Society's clinic service at Trenton. The Council was under no obligation to make this grant, but agreed to pay an annual sum of $2,000. This rose over the next several years until 1959 when we paid $3,000 for a worker's service.

At that time, I believe we were the first and only municipality making such a contribution when the grant was initiated.

In Belleville, the C.A.S. shared in the Community Chest Fund. In Trenton, the fees for the C.A.S. were subsequently dropped. Simply stated, any effort by the municipality to secure at the Trenton level seemed to die once the grant was made. Members of our Council appointed to the C.A.S. executive did not regularly attend their meetings in fact I suspect we may be guilty but our welfare administrator has attended the executive meetings faithfully and was a vice-president until 1963, so we have been ably represented. The present dispute hinges around the charges made against Trenton for protection work.

As I have stated, we were paying $3,000 per year and the C.A.S. created a formula whereby the initial demand made upon the town was approximately $6,000.

When the town refused to sign this agreement, the C.A.S. withdrew from providing us the service, and naturally, the town ceased making the $3,000 payment.

OFFER REJECTED

Since that time we have advised the superintendent that we do not wish to be invoiced for any services and that the town is agreeable to paying for the service we have received. This was rejected by the Society and we have been advised that they are not prepared able to us in protection work amount to practically taking a child to their doorstep.

Representatives of the Department of Public Welfare for the Province of Ontario tell us, in fact, I have received a letter from the director saying that the small municipality from the council sit down with a similar agreement with the C.A.S. to determine whether there is any area of conciliation or compromise that might be reached.

Before this could be considered, however, it would have to be deemed by the president at the annual meeting and the resultant new agreement would be created an atmosphere which is apt to make it any easier to reach a solution to the situation.

GIVES CONCLUSIONS

In conclusion:

1. There is not, nor has there been, evidence that children have suffered as a result of the policy of the past two years.

2. With the increasingly difficult terms now placed before us, it will be harder to meet the problems that arise.

3. The participation of the citizens of Trenton at a Children's Aid Society sponsored meeting did not indicate any great interest.

4. The welfare administrator for the town, although not a qualified social worker, is thoroughly acquainted with local conditions and is quite capable of dealing with the majority of problems and, when he is not, will seek proper assistance.

5. It is for the Children's Aid Society officials are sincere in their efforts to reconcile the differences that have arisen, deal directly with the council, rather than through the press and radio.

6. Should council decide against a meeting or, a satisfactory solution be not reached, alternative sources of child protection work should be sought for those cases which may arise that cannot be conveniently handled.

I cannot close but add that it seems like a precarious way to provide child protection on a permanent basis when the standard is dependent upon voluntary contributions from private sources, public campaigns and municipal grants which are not mandatory.

Perhaps the time has come when the Department of Public Welfare should undertake to provide child protection costs as a provincial social service.

C of C Makes Resolutions For Parking

TRENTON — The Trenton Chamber of Commerce has recommended to Trenton council: (1) that the area adjacent to the police station and the fire hall be made into a supervised parking lot, with an attendant charging a flat fee for parking, rather than meters putting coins into the meters. The commerce feels that the revenue would pay for the service of the attendant and compensate for the loss of meter revenue. (2) that the fire hall and police station be relocated in another part of town and the area left vacant be used for parking suggested by council. (3) that a parking authority be established in Trenton. (4) that parking ramps be built in the downtown area.

After the reading of the recommendations at the council meeting Monday night, town officer expressed mixed feelings that the suggestions, were, for the most part, very much of the time. The cost of the type of ramps, council, heard with bad reports of the use of the ramps leading to the basement dock area, was more specific, and showed very little enthusiasm for the so-called conveniences.

TWO APPOINTED

Edward Webb and Thomas Nichols have been appointed by town council as trench inspectors. Mr. Webb is the public works' department employee and Mr. Nichols, a public utilities employee. Both have the interests of persons engaged in trench work in Trenton.

Post Office At Frankford Is Entered

FRANKFORD — Burglars entered the post-office here this morning sometime between 3.00 a.m. and daylight according to police chief E. McGeachy.

Chief McGeachy said entry was gained by raising a window on the rear of the building. After entering he said they ransacked the inside but nothing had been reported missing.

The chief said he found foot prints of two people in the snow leading to and from where there were two involved.

Mail Carrier Badly Injured, Train Hits Car

MADOC (Staff) — A 70-year-old rural mail carrier was gravely injured when his car was hit by a freight train near Eldorado, north of here yesterday.

Police say his car was wrecked when hit by the freight on a township road level — crossing northwest of Eldorado.

BIRTHS

NEW — Tom and Arlene, (nee King) are pleased to announce the birth of a baby boy, John Thomas, on Saturday, March 14th, 1964, at the Belleville General Hospital.

DEATHS

WATKIN, Geoffrey — Suddenly, at Toronto, on Tuesday, March 17th, 1964, Geoffrey Watkin, beloved husband of Mary Watkin, of Belleville, Ont., beloved husband of Mary Watkin, of Belleville, Ont., beloved brother of Ronald Watkin, of Belleville, Ont., and brother of Mrs. Ronald (Mary) Watkin, of Belleville, Ont., and brother of the late George Watkin, dear brother-in-law of Mrs. Geoffrey Watkin.

Funeral at the Thompson Funeral Chapel, 32 Everett Street, Belleville, on Friday afternoon. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

TENKATE, Jan — Suddenly, at the home, 237 Charles St., Monday, March 16, 1964, Jan Tenkate, beloved husband of Gerda Tenkate, of Belleville, in his 44th year, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Tenkate, of Holland, father of Ingrid and Sylvia, both at home.

Funeral at the Thompson Funeral Chapel, 32 Everett St., Belleville, on Thursday, March 19, at 2.30 p.m. Rev. Harold Martin Church of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Interment in Belleville Cemetery.

European Countries Sound Market for Cheddar Cheese Area Cheesemakers Told

Canada should look to Western Europe countries for expansion of its cheese export trade, members of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association were told here yesterday.

Speaking to the annual spring cheesemakers' conference, Dr. A. McKelvie, Livestock and Animal Products Division of the Federal Department of Trade and Commerce, said he was convinced there was a market in these countries for Canadian Cheddar.

He said cheddar was a unique dairy product and if quality standards were maintained it would be well received in common market countries.

Participation in a West German trade fair at Cologne last fall where cheddar samples were handed out, indicated there was an enormous market for Canadian cheese other than to the United Kingdom, he said.

Other jokers at the conference included Dr. F. Rushton, director in charge of milk control and environmental sanitation, Ottawa, who urged cheesemakers that was expected of them in the way of sanitation.

Dr. Rushton said personal, plant cleanliness, water supply and appearance of the operator were all important.

Hector C. Arnold, chairman of the Ontario Cheese Producers Marketing Board, said he saw no sales problem for Canadian cheese this year provided quality was upheld and there was no great increase in production.

Jack M. Bain, Director Milk Products Division, Francis Murphy, marketing officer for the Dominion Department of Agriculture and local grader in charge J. G. MacMillan, also spoke at the conference.

The conference session was concluded last evening with a question and answer period conducted by Douglas Rowe, past president of the association.

Probable Rate For This Year 30-31 Mills

In a city council story yesterday dealing with the 1964 budget, mention was made of assessment totals of this year as compared with 1963 along with what was intended as a forecast of the probable mill rate for this year.

Last year's mill rate was listed but the comparison with the probable rate for this year was missing.

Under last year's re-assessment, the assessment total for 1964 is just under $100 million or three times what it was last year.

By the same ratio, unless expenditures rise sharply, this year's tax rate should be about one third of last year's rate or something in the order of 30 to 31 mills for residential properties.

Traffic Clinic Stepping up Registrations

Belleville's traffic clinic is stepping up registrations as finer weather brings near-spring province - wide offensive against highway hazards.

The clinic operated by city police under sergeant Sam Cox, is seeking more students for its two - week clinic to start on successive Thursday nights.

Drivers of all ages may apply for simply filling out forms now available at city headquarters.

This summer sees an all-out safety drive by police across Ontario in an effort to reduce the province's accident toll. Officers will even be empowered to remove licence plates in cert.in situations.

ASKS FEDERAL LEAD

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government should conduct research and provide the provinces with guidelines in the problem of air pollution Dr. A. P. Bernhart, an assistant professor in sanitary engineering at the University of Toronto, said Tuesday. Addressing the Toronto Junior Board of Trade, Dr. Bernhart also said Ontario needs a commission, similar to the Ontario Water Resources Commission, to control pollution

Pension

Health Minister LaMarsh Tuesday:

1. The pensions would be portable between provinces, contributory, and provide pension plans. The government also will seek portability with other countries on a reciprocal basis.

2. The plan is not intended to supply all the retirement income Canadians will want. It leaves scope for contributions even extending, private pension plans.

3. It is as comprehensive as possible. An estimated 1,900,000 Canadians have some private pension plans, leaving about 1,000,000 without coverage. The government scheme will be compulsory for nearly all employees, voluntary for the self-employed.

GEARED TO INCOMES

4. Benefits will be geared to income. "... It will preserve a basic measure of 'real' security, because people will be able to count on benefits related to general earnings levels at the time they retire—not to money incomes which have become out of date."

Anxious to see the printed bill, the opposition leaves provisionally approval to the resolution that Miss LaMarch introduced.

Then they gained access—on the first reading of the bill—to one of the lengthiest, most complicated pieces of legislation that the Commons has seen in some time.

The bill runs for 82 pages, it contains 36 sections, packed with percentages, legal definitions and the legislative framework for the actuarial work in the federal insurance and health departments.

Opposition spokesmen for amendments are viewed as a certainty before the initial reaction was generally warm. Some excerpts:

Waldo Monteith (Perth), former Conservative health and welfare minister: "The Progressive Conservative party is 100-per-cent behind a Canada Pension Plan. There are no ifs and buts. ... We wish to see a comprehensive contributory plan brought in at the earliest opportunity."

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre): "... All of the parties in the House should recognize those things about the plan that are good, and therefore we should support it and do our best to get it into effect at the earliest possible time."

A. B. Patterson (SC—Fraser Valley): "... The underlying principle of this measure is sound and worthwhile. ... There is a fairly general feeling in favor of some type of pension plan which would bring to the people an assurance of an adequate income in their declining years."

Gerard Perron (Creditiste—Beauce) said the Creditistes do not wish to block the legislation but will propose several amendments.

Wm. R. MacKay Vice-Principal Of Collegiate

William R. MacKay, BSA, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earle R. MacKay of R.R. 1, Carrying Place and former resident of the Belleville district, has been appointed vice-principal of Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, his duties commence following the summer holidays.

Mr. MacKay, a former staff member of Arthur High School and Vocational School of Grey Centre High School, Markdale, Ont., a position he has held for the past three years. He received his early education in a Toronto Public School, and at Humberside Collegiate where he spent one year. Later, with his parents, he moved to Redcliffe Public and attended Bellville Collegiate, graduating in four years time.

OBTAINS B.S.A. DEGREE

In 1951, he graduated from Ontario Agriculture College with a B.S.A. degree and spent one year at the Ontario College of Education in Toronto where he obtained his teaching certificate and began his teaching career at North Essex High School at Belle River. Two years later, in 1953 he joined the teaching staff of Arthur High School.

In 1959, accepted the position of principal at Centre Grey district high school in Markdale where he and his family now reside.

He married Miss Barbara Ann of Beddersville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Robin. They have four children, Bill, Jr., Peggy, David and Valerie.

Marksmen Club Elects Officers

The Quinte Marksmen Club held an election of officers for the coming year at their annual meeting held in the Armouries Tuesday night.

He feels that if labor and management held discussions during the life of a collective agreement concerning the problems created by changing conditions it would minimize friction when contract talks are reopened.

Was in House When Shot Fired Accused Told Police

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP)—Two provincial police constables testified Tuesday that Charles Morden Loyst, 61, told them he was inside Hugh James McMahon's house "a minute or two" before he heard a shot after which McMahon fell to the floor.

Loyst is charged with capital murder in the death of McMahon, 64, in McMahon's home near Kaladar, 30 miles north of this Kingston area community last Oct. 5.

The conversation took place in a provincial police cruiser, containing Loyst, Mrs. Anna McMahon and the two constables from the Kaladar detachment, parked outside the McMahon home at 12:35 a.m. Oct. 10.

Testimony concerning the Loyst statement was given during the sixth day of the trial by constables David William Hepler and James Ramsbottom.

Questioned by Crown Attorney Kenneth Ham, Const. Hepler said:

SAW IN HOUSE

"He (Loyst) replied that he had come into the house, was in there about a minute or two when he heard a shot and Hughie fell to the floor."

Const. Ramsbottom said Loyst stated he then knelt beside Hughie, was standing or sitting and Loyst replied 'I don't know" the constable said.

Const. Hepler testified that he asked Mrs. McMahon how McMahon died and she replied that he was shot.

The constable said Loyst volunteered the statement that he had a .303 calibre rifle stolen from his car two or three days before the shooting but had not thought it necessary to report it.

Const. Ramsbottom confirmed the conversation.

Cpl. E. C. Meadows, head of the Kaladar detachment, said under cross - examination that Loyst's car was left unlocked and unguarded outside the Kaladar detachment for about an hour before it was searched.

FOUND AMMUNITION

Cpl. Meadows said seven rounds of ammunition and a flashlight were found in the car by Loyst.

He said ammunition, which he said appeared to be of .303 calibre, could have been placed in the unguarded car during the night by anyone wishing to incriminate Loyst.

Earlier in the day, Mr. Willoughby asked that Cpl. Meadows be "put in jail" for what he termed "the grossest form of contempt of court."

He made the demand after the corporal admitted that he had seen some of the Crown's exhibits and had discussed the photographs with the Crown Attorney Ham before the trial resumed Tuesday.

Mr. Justice A. C. Fraser took no action on the demand but expressed astonishment at such a thing "in an experienced officer" and added:

"You should know better. There'll be no more of this, corporal."

The trial continues.

Mother, With Shoes Afire, Takes Children From Home

BONARLAW (Special) — A young Bonarlaw township mother yesterday rescued three of her children after the living room of her farm home exploded into flames when she was waxing the floors.

Although her shoes were afire, Mrs. Jim Mumby, grabbed her ten - month - old baby and rushed to the home of her school children out of the burning house.

She summoned help from a neighbor's home and firemen from Stirling and Campbellford confined the fire to the living room and double partitions, although there was heavy smoke and water damage throughout the remainder of the two - storey house.

Mrs. Mumby had used a cleaner to clean her living room floor but when she turned on the electric polisher the entire room exploded into flames. She had left her shoes there when she went from her feet.

BRINGS TO NEIGHBOR'S HOME

Unable to get near the phone to summon help, Mrs. Mumby put her children into the safety of the neighbor's home and summoned firemen.

Volunteers were soon on the scene and managed to stem the progress of the fire until the arrival of firemen.

Mr. Mumby was in the back getting wood at the time of the fire, while two older children were at school.

Lost in the fire was living room and parlor furniture, while the entire house was smoke blackened and soaked with water.

Council Asked to Discuss United Appeal With Board

March 31st will be a busy evening for members of city council.

Their regular council meeting is scheduled for that date—a day late because of Easter Monday being a holiday — while the same evening is slated to attend a meeting of the Belleville United Appeal to learn at first hand the financial trouble that organization has found itself.

United Appeal director George Brown extended the invitation at Monday evening's meeting of council, saying the meeting was important as it not only affected Appeal agencies but the city and its people.

"The people of Belleville are not aware of the position the United Appeal is in," Mr. Brown said.

WANTS FULL ATTENDANCE

"If the Appeal falls it will mean 12 more individual canvasses in the city".

He further said that council consider the matter in all seriousness and as many members as possible attend the Appeal meeting.

Mayor John R. Ellis noted it was partly because of the position in which the United Appeal found itself that consideration was being given toward the formation of a welfare council in Belleville.

Alderman Don Williams, as head of the special committee named to look into formation of a welfare council, said that several meetings had been held and another was being held on March 24th.

Then, some time in May a public meeting was planned at which time it was hoped that the welfare council could be officially launched.

MONEY VALUE PLUNGES

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuters) The value of the Cruzeiro, Brazil's currency, continued to plunge Wednesday in view of rumors that President Joao Goulart might be impeached and a threat of a general strike. Brokers said the demand for dollars was increasing sharply.

To Attend Lectures

Three local lawyers will attend lectures classes in the hour fixture at Osgoode Hall in Toronto sponsored by the Law Society of Upper Canada.

Those attending will be George R. Cameron, Ronald W. Case, Q.C., and J. D. Tompieman.

The lectures each year conducts lectures aimed at the continuing education of lawyers. This year the subject will be "taxation."

Lawyers attend these lectures from all parts of the province, representing 56 different cities, town and villages from Fort William to Montreal.

30 Teachers Needed to Fill H. S. Staff

The Bay of Quinte District High School Board is still looking for approximately 30 teachers to fill its complement for the beginning of the September school term.

Trustees members of the present staff have tendered resignations to accept other positions, while an additional 15 teachers will be required for the September school opening.

To date only four of the required new teachers have been hired by the board.

The board solicitors took up considerable of the time at last night's regular monthly board meeting, as other items were also considered.

Watson and Wiegand, local architects, were instructed to consider revisions to the auto shop at Belleville Collegiate and the board solicitors instructed preparation of an electric basketball score board at Quinte Secondary School.

TO HANDLE REQUESTS

Requests for pupil transfers between the three high schools in Belleville will be handled by schools principals Messrs. E. E. Orr, and will be decided by the end of June.

A 5,000 board decided that the town of Trenton would be required to assume a percentage of school debentures from which ordinarily would have been paid by Sidney for the new Frankford consolidated agency by Trenton.

The board also ratified the appointment of William Mackay as vice principal at Belleville Collegiate, succeeding Mr. Donald Stirling, who has been named principal of the school.

Fire Department Had Busy Day

The Belleville fire department was called to Green's Auto to "Freeze" three cars at the city Tuesday morning, where cars were being burned on the premises. The department stood by.

At 4.03 p.m. yesterday afternoon the call was one received from Stirling for assistance with a house fire. Co-ordinator of the Mutual Aid Association, Fire Chief Gerald Vance, dispatched the Stirling Fire Department.

The house was occupied by Jane Mumby.

At 4.49 p.m. the department received a call from the Hawkins Potato Chip Company on South Pinnacle Street, for their emergency unit. An employee of the plant, Clarence Morris, had taken a fall. He was rushed to hospital by LaSalle Ambulance. A blind employee, he was unable to say how he had fallen.

H. S. Costs up $200,000 But Grants Cover Increase, Local Levy Cut Slightly

High school costs for the Bay of Quinte High School District for 1964 will be up more than $200,000 over last year, but the difference will be made up by increased grants, it is predicted.

Total 1964 budget for the board for this year (current expenses and debentures costs) has been estimated at $1,780,-890, as compared with $1,536,-290 last year.

The local levy for current expenses this year will be for $728,505, as compared with $741,000 last year. Debenture costs of $194,200 will raise the local levy to $919,700 this year, the balance of the $1,780,890 to be paid by government educational grants.

Of the $919,700 to be raised by local levy, the city of Belleville will be required to pay 64.10 per cent. Last year the city's percentage was 64.71 per cent, but this was reduced slightly by arbitration.

PERCENTAGES NOT SET

The other 35.9 per cent to be raised by local levy will be paid by other municipalities of the high school board.

These include the townships of Sidney, Thurlow, Tyendinaga, Hungerford and the village of Frankford.

The exact breakdown of the individual percentages to be paid by the other municipalities had not been figured this morning following last night's board budget meeting, but secretary Roy Dulmage indicated would have it up and others down depending on arbitration decisions.

O. Ketcheson Chosen to Visit Newfoundland

Owen Ketcheson, Moira, is a 4-H delegate to Newfoundland. He was chosen by Ontario 4-H members, he will participate in the second Inter-Provincial 4-H Conference, to be held this year. Each of the ten Provinces will act as host to one 4-H member from each of the other nine Provinces. The four young women are members of 4-H Homemakers Clubs, the other five being members of 4-H Agricultural Clubs.

Owen Ketcheson is enrolled in the diploma course at Macdonald College, and is treasurer of the Trenton electric club there. He has been in 4-H work for eight years and has completed projects in dairy, field corn, forage, grain, swine and electric. His interests include music and sports. He has had several offices in 4-H clubs. He has represented his county on judging teams at the Ottawa Winter Fair, and Provincial Inter-Club competitions, and was one of the outstanding 4-H member in Hastings for 1962.

Not Guilty Plea Entered In Stamp Case

Belleville youth, James Alfred Moore, late this morning pleaded not guilty in magistrate's court to a charge of illegal possession of a valuable stamp collection.

The stamps disappeared into local levy from the home of the late Errol Greenleaf, one of Belleville's biggest private collectional grants. tors.

Moore was charged with illegal possession of the stamps on information which is being tried before Magistrate R. C. Jackson of Madoc. He is being defended by local solicitor William Argue.

Corby Library Film Festival Opens Tuesday

Inclement weather was undoubtedly responsible for a small turnout at last night's opening program of the annual film festival at the Corby Public Library, but those who did venture were treated to fine showing of interesting films.

Feature of the evening was "Wilderness Treasure," a film of camping and nature study. Also enjoyed were "Portrait of a Metal" and "Canada Between Two Wars."

The festival is continuing Thursday night and again on Tuesday and Thursday of next week.

Highlighting Thursday's showing will be two travel pictures "Alaska Cruise Style" and "Hokkaido, Northern Frontier," a picture on the most northern Asian four main islands.

Also on the program will be "Captive River," the story of a giant hydro - electric development on the Zambezi River in Africa where work goes over an area of over 4,000 square miles was removed before flooding.

No Justification for Opening

The managements of some stores in Belleville and Trenton are reported to have been considering staying open on Good Friday.

For their own sake, and for the sake of the good names of these sister communities, we hope they reconsider.

Nobody would have the audacity to pretend that there is any necessity for such action.

Everybody knows that if the stores do open, it will be because they hope to profit by it.

There is nothing wrong with making a profit — but it can be made at too high a price.

This is true, whether the profit anticipated is monetary, or whether the proposal was prompted by a desire by employees for a "long weekend", by moving the day's holiday which would normally fall on a Friday to a Monday.

Disregard of the holiest day in the Christian calendar is surely too high a price to pay for a mere re-arrangement of leisure hours. As for monetary profits, Christ drove the money-changers from the temple. It would be outrageous if, in our home communities, they reinvaded it at the very hour of His Crucifixion.

Retreat Into Safety

How are the mighty fallen!

Those are sad words.

But no sadder than to witness the renouncing of even the desire for greatness.

Hon. Walter Gordon was no mighty statesman a year ago, when he introduced his first budget.

It contained too many blunders to serve as a certificate of greatness.

But at least, in 1963, Mr. Gordon had aspirations.

His very mistakes made that plain for all to see.

Here was a man who desired to lead Canadians out of the wilderness of the partially dispossessed into the promised land where they would be complete masters of their own economic destinies.

The map he presented to guide them was inaccurate and its flaws were soon detected and pointed out.

Even among his most severe critics, though, there must have been some who had hopes that he would persevere in his efforts and who would have wished him well if he had succeeded in proposing policies which gave some real promise of achieving the end he sought.

This year, though, Mr. Gordon stands revealed not as a young lion grown wiser and more cautious, but as a tamed cub content to seek shelter in sheep's clothing.

His budget is staid, orthodox, with little hint that he has any interest beyond surviving the routine hiatus of opposition critics.

The only sign of any desire to improve upon the past is the provision of family allowances. Though these allowances will be accompanied by a reduction in the $500 income tax exemption of their parents to the $300 level prevailing for all children receiving family allowances, the move will provide some benefits and the benefits will be largest to those families with the lowest incomes, for some of which the reduction in the exemptions will not reduce the net increase in family income.

Aside from this one provision of the budget, Mr. Gordon managed to stand pat where he should not have stood pat, displaying this tendency by both sins of commission and omission. He retained the highly questionable sales tax on productive machinery and will permit it to increase, as arranged in the highly unsatisfactory compromise following the storm of protests evoked by his first budget. But he made no effort to discover some alternative methods for achieving the desirable end, sought last year by wrong means, of placing Canadians in firmer control of the economy of their own country.

In contrast with last year's budget, this year's will harm nobody except insofar as it fails to remedy the vestiges of last year's mistakes.

The young lion has become a sheep. The sheep's bleat alarms nobody. But the sheep's destiny is certain. He may not live as dangerously as the young lion.

View of Doctors 'Outmoded'

Canadian Doctor

Much of the criticism of doctors that appears from time to time, is directed against the profession rather than against individual doctors.

It has been often pointed out that people like and respect what they think is their own doctor as much as they ever did, but that they are at odds with the profession or with what they call organized medicine. This is a peculiar and illogical situation and one wonders how it came about.

Dr. Ivan Illich says that it arose as a result of lack of communication between people and doctors. He says that the back of any animosity between people, whether it be between husband and wife, between different races or religions or between nations is misunderstanding.

If people can be got to talk to one another, they begin at once to understand one another and when they may not be able to agree at once, they will, at least, have taken the first steps towards some degree of agreement in the future. If they can be induced to talk to one another, there is little likelihood of any agreement other now or in the future.

It would seem at first glance that since doctors spend most of their time talking to people, they should find it easy the task of establishing a good understanding with the public.

It happens rather that talk between patient and doctor is at along a one level. It is all about the patient and never about the doctor. The aim of the latter seems to expose the various problems of the patient. Rarely, if ever does it seem to concern itself with the hopes and fears and problems of the doctor.

One cannot help feeling that much of the misunderstanding arises from an outmoded sentimental ideal of the doctor which the public insists on trying to cling to. Part of the blame for this lies with those who continue to eulogize the old time family doctor.

The concept of a doctor who will be available 24 hours a day, is outmoded and impractical, and it is best to say this clearly and firmly to the public. If they persist in this kind of unreliability from a man, then they cannot expect a first rate performance from him as a specialist. In the leisurely horse and buggy days this might have worked, though we doubt if it ever worked well.

At any rate with the pace of living in this mid-1960's, nobody can hope to spread himself that thin. In these times there will always have to be provision made for daytime doctors and night-time doctors, for doctors who are available during the week and for others who are around for the week-end.

In order to dispel misunderstanding, there seems a great need for a program of re-educating of the public as to the right their doctor concept up to date.

Attempts should be made to acquaint them with the type of co-operation that they should give the modern doctor, if they are to expect the best service from him. They should be told, for example, that in many conditions, for which they were accustomed to call their doctor to the home, he can usually now be handled best by taking the patient to a place where the doctor has the best modern means of diagnosis and treatment, in a hospital.

If the patient is of such a serious nature as to need a doctor at once, then he should be told what the patient should call for is not a doctor but an ambulance to take him to hospital with all possible speed.

If, on the other hand, the patient is not ill enough to need immediate attention, he can safely wait for his doctor during daylight hours, either in his own home or in the doctor's office, at a time convenient to both.

The increased use of the hospital obviously makes it essential that every doctor should have hospital facilities available to him.

These simple facts still appear to be completely missed by the public, and it seems unlikely that this is the public's fault. They have simply never been told. An extraordinary continuing series of lectures by radio, television and news publications, to instruct the public on the management of emergency illness is clearly called for, if one hopes to clear up the confusion.

How to Become Head Monkey

Diesel aus Deutschland

The largest and gentlest monkey hanging in the monkey house at the human zoo that takes place in 1827 in the London Zoo. The research did not know what was sent into the enclosure to brighten up the life of 100 bachelor baboons who lived in a peaceful life together. Thirty-three baboon beauties and a fighting baboon died during the experiment that really should never have been tried out.

The reason for this general massacre? Pure instinct? The boss who intended the hierarchy exists within the monkey realm that is only opposed when an individual tries to climb higher than the rest or when the "head monkey" shows signs of weakness. The monkey battle clearly proved that external stress hardly affects the monkey society from subservience to revolution.

The question how to become head monkey — and this was obviously what the London researchers wanted to find out to achieve — interests monkeys in the same manner as humans, being can give the outer impulse that upsets life in the monkey family and leads right into the monkey hierarchy and right his way up to this "position." Scientific attendant must go through this procedure even though he is often not aware of the fact. He must reckon with the possibility of being overthrown by one of the monkeys.

West German animal photographer Gerhard Gronefeld tried to imitate this behavior by suddenly breaking into the monkey hierarchy. He retained this and many other experiments on film in his attempt to prove the animal language. He recently published his results in a book entitled: "Do We Understand Animals?" (Publisher: Georg Westermann Verlag, Braunschweig.)

How To Become — Take 2

His main characters are cage-ish monkeys. Monkeys laugh and cry, they can have fits of anger or be terribly shy. Their language is made up of mimic and very gesticulation.

As Gronefeld's excellent pictures clearly show, these near-by human grimaces do not always mean what the observers think they do. When a chimpanzee laughs, he is not always furious or even close to tears; yet a chimpanzee is fast in learning what human facial expressions mean. If it cannot figure the expressions out at all, it becomes insecure and will even attack the human.

How does one become head monkey, photographer Gronefeld asked. In order to answer this question, he put a new monkey cage himself. He repeated on a small scale what happened in the London Zoo. His sudden appearance confused the entire "political hierarchy." The monkeys had to classify him and this rearrangement caused the whole group, making Gronefeld aware of this fact by cautiously hiding him. Gronefeld had to show respect to Jenny. Meanwhile, the "middle and lower classes" had to be classified to prove his position. The "youth" Moritz stuck his dirty fingers in the man's mouth. Gronefeld then spit and Moritz was calmed. Then Konga, who had the lowest status, had to break her great moment had come. She climbed on top of Gronefeld, thus declaring rulership over the whole group. Despite his passive attitude, Gronefeld was pulled into the ensuing fight. The attendant finally had to come to his aid shielding a rubber truncheon. Gronefeld had not defended himself forcefully enough and therefore lost his chance to become head monkey. From time to time, humans still differ from monkeys.

Doubtful Weapon

Toronto Telegram

Complaints out in Washington make it seem as though Britain, Canada and France, in selling guns for the defence of the Cuban people are consorting with the devil's apprentice. A trade blockade is a doubtful weapon in the campaign against Communism. It may well produce a contrary effect. Refusal to trade with the Cubans simply hands Fidel Castro a weapon for his hand. He can point to it as a cause of his people's deprivation.

March 13th, 1944

The regular annual business meeting of Argyll Chapter, I.O.D.E., was held in the Chapter Room of the Armouries on Thursday at which the annual report of the year's activities was given. A motion was passed that the state of officers remain the same as last year, with the addition of Mrs. H. R. Gibson as co-convenor and Mrs. Shiels as vice-regent.

The report of the year's activities showed a very active and successful year. Two tag days were held, one in May and one in October. There were also a rummage sale in May and one in September at which the receipts were very gratifying. Thirty-one meetings were held and many garments completed and sent to I.O.D.E. headquarters. These were due to the Auxiliary Group for their assistance in this work. Many knitted articles were turned in and used clothing was sent to victims of the war. Parcels containing food and field comforts were sent overseas to Argyll men at Christmas.

Many parcels were sent during the year were generous and widely distributed. They included Christmas parcels to Chinese Relief, The Khamen's Fag Fund, The Princess of Wales Fund, Polish Relief, Russian Relief Service Centre Fund, the Salvation Army, The Belgian Relief Fund, Merchant Endowment Fund, The Sailors' and Missionaries' Fund and to Blinded Soldiers.

Chapter members served in the canteens of the Blood Donor Clinic held in February and again in August with donations to the Clinic of a toaster, dishes and tea towels.

Strictly Personal Man on Moon Project Said To Be Immoral

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

We know what we need the money for — schools, hospitals, mental health clinics, housing, transportation, help for the destitute. And we don't know where the money is coming from.

But we know where an immoral amount of it is going: $20 billion for our "Man on Moon" project. One-fifth of our total national budget is put with this single program of complete satellite. An American man.

And for what reason? Despite all the fancy-sounding and pseudo-scientific phrases by the administration, Gov. Rockefeller was substantially right in calling it a "publicity stunt."

The chief reason is "national prestige." We want a "good image" of ourselves. We want to beat the Russians there, but the place to beat them is here, in demonstrating to the peoples of the world that we are dedicated to peace, abundance, and plenty.

An unmanned flight to the moon would cost a fraction of what we are contemplating, and would provide us with 95 per-cent of the scientific information we will get from the manned flight. Scientists know this, but scientists are not running the world. It isn't the federal government uses their specialized knowledge but is not deeply influenced by their opinions.

Besides, as Rockefeller sensibly pointed out, it is an excellent chance that the Russians will beat us there, anyway. Since the Russians refuse to let us in terms of providing for their citizens, it is psychologically more important for them to focus on their technological achievements. (Just as it is especially true that in win Olympics medals by sending "amateurs" who are coached and trained like professionals.)

The "prestige" of the United States depends not upon races — either to the moon or the end of a lobogomy — but upon an unyielding devotion to the principles that made our birth as a nation the most inspiring event in Western history.

It depends upon our taking seriously - - as we have not in the past - - the Declaration of Independence, the preamble to the Constitution. It depends upon living up to ourselves in peace, and not merely dying up to ourselves in war; for, as Alfred Lord Tennyson remarked several decades ago, "it is easier to die for one's principles than to live up to them."

Twenty billion dollars to plant an American flag on the wastes of the moon — when a fifth of our citizens are still living in poverty, and two-thirds of our budget goes for military expenditures - - is a shocking example of national irresponsibility and immaturity. The sophistication of science must not be used for such simple minded goals.

High Concentrated Urates Characteristic of Gout

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Following a blood test, our doctor diagnosed my husband's toe pain as gout.

This has been a blow, because he recalls that that an Uncle of mine had with gout around 1907.

What causes this disease? Is it curable? What is the customary treatment?

My husband's work requires him to do a lot of walking in all kinds of weather. Do you think that another doctor might give a different diagnosis, or is the blood test final? — MRS. F. C.

A patient with severe gout will put on quite a show of the pain he is experiencing — and I don't blame him. It can feel like sticking your toes into a bucket of boss.

But at the same time, I think you are wrong in trying to get some different diagnosis. The question isn't how much your Uncle hurt in 1947, but how much your husband hurts now, and what can be done for him.

I can see why he is so upset after having watched a relative who suffered had an extremely painful experience with gout. But dishing around for some other diagnosis is not going to make his own toe better.

A high concentration of urates (salts of uric acid) is characteristic of gout. The urates form into small deposits at various joints. The big toe being a favorite site but not the only one.

We don't know what causes this. It is not "curable." But the treatment for gout has improved considerably in recent years. Since 1947.

An old drug, colchicine, is still very useful, but new ones, principally benamid, give us other ways to control gout. Control of the attack of the new and the old drugs gives excellent results. The first process is to prevent further attacks; the second purpose is to stop them quickly if they occur.

I think it is a mistake to assume that all cases of gout are going to be severe. Many of these other diseases, this one varies in intensity. The blood test verified what was obviously your doctor's original suspicion. Accept his judgment and he will work out a program of medication which will keep the gout under satisfactory control.

There may be some changes in your diet, however, before the colchicine, allowed the office to avoid him. It is the "I" that was the mistake.

But no doubt Mr. Harold Wilson, will take him also, too, before long, even though he has been competent and careful. Duels are tricky things.

Future Patterns in Aircraft Industry Subject of Talk

In the past 24 hours Belleville Sales and Ad Club members have been contemplating extremes of speed — from the lightning thrust of supersonic aircraft to the leisurely glide of a curling stone.

Last night they hulled over the former as a Trans-Canada Airlines chief check pilot addressed their monthly dinner.

Today they scrutinized the others' response in motion at their annual inter-club curling bonspiel.

Last night TCA captain Don Lowry, after an address emphasizing the technological revolution in the wake of scientific progress, answered questions on future patterns in the aircraft industry.

The greatest single possibility is supersonic travel — but not yet to be put in practice, he reminded members.

"TCA itself had not committed itself to the development since no working model had yet been demonstrated, he said.

"We are watching it very closely," admitted Captain Lowry. "Nobody knows what it's going to cost and nobody knows how to use it yet."

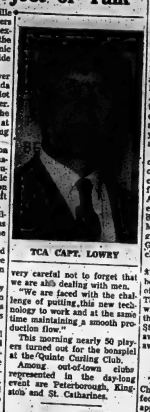
He was backed up by travel agent Carl Rolut who equated purchase orders placed by airlines for the envisioned future sky giants were "strictly an advertising gimmick" as yet. "Stick craft," he said, "could only be purchased subject to government approval."

SEEKING ANSWERS

The fact the aircraft industry still is seeking answers to contemporary problems was pointed up when Captain Lowry was queried on what caused the pre-Christmas crash of a TCA jet near Ottawa.

"I think every pilot has ideas — just as I'm sure you must have ideas," he said. "To this point we have nothing definite to tell you other than the fact that the very best people in the world, I believe, are working on this problem."

He recalled there had been similar crashes at Lisbon and New Orleans and experts were now probing the possibility of a common fault linking all three.



"They have not yet formed any definite opinion I can quote you," said Captain Lowry.

"We think these three may be related. If we can find a relation between (them) perhaps we can find the cause of them."

His formal after - dinner speech warned that those supervising industrial progress must not lose sight of the human factor.

The sophisticated technological breakthroughs of science now is feeding back into industry, he said.

"And I believe we must be very careful not to forget that we are also dealing with men.

"We are faced with the challenge of putting this new technology to work and at the same time maintaining a smooth production flow."

This morning nearly 50 players turned out for the bonspiel at the Quinte Curling Club.

Among out-of-town clubs represented in the day-long event are Peterborough, Kingston and St. Catharines.

Holstein Club Holds Sale of Calves, Heifers

Under the gavel of auctioneer Robert Calhoun, the Hastings County Holstein Breeders' Club held a successful breeder consignment sale of calves and heifers at the Belleville Sales Arena on Saturday. There were twenty-one animals which included nine junior calves, three senior calves, three junior yearlings, one senior yearling, and five bred two-year-olds.

This was the first year for the club to expand its sale to stock other than junior and senior calves, and also the first time for it to be held in a sales barn. A large crowd of interested buyers were present, and the bidding was keen. Mr. Delbert McComb reported on the pedigrees while Holstein fieldman Gerald Nelson acted as ring clerk.

DEFECTOR PROMOTED

TOKYO (AP)—A Nationalist Chinese air force pilot who defected last summer has been appointed deputy commander of a Red Chinese air force regiment, the New China News Agency reported Wednesday. The pilot, Hsu Ting-tse, was made a major in the Communist air force after flying his U.S.-built F86F jet fighter to the Chinese mainland.

Mental Health And Industry Subject of Talk

The relationship between mental health and work was the theme of an address given by a dental psychiatrist, Dr. Frank Cyril Rhodes Chalke of Ottawa, at the regular monthly meeting of the Industrial Management Council held at the Hotel Quinte last night.

In opening Dr. Chalke said most of us do not know about mental health hospitals. Years ago hospitals were put in the country and in many cases patients helped with the farming.

The speaker went on to say that there were as many people going in and out of mental hospitals as there are people in Belleville. The people who have been admitted and treated.

Dr. Chalke said this seemed to put an onus on the employer. A problem which has recently come to the fore went on to say that very little money has been spent on mental patients. About $4.00 per day is spent on the mentally ill while from $25 to $30 a day is spent on the physically ill person, he said.

Dr. Chalke explained there are various types of people, those who want to work, those who don't want to work, those who work only to survive and those who work because they cannot sit around and do nothing.

The speaker went on to explain the mental aspects of industry. First he said, the problem is to find out what we mean by work. You can look at it from three different levels, he stated, these being biological and in relation to social status.

"I do not feel that stresses and strains can be avoided nor do I think that we would be normal without them," Dr. Chalke said in closing.

The speaker was introduced by D. Watkins and thanked on behalf of the club by immediate past president William Gander. The meeting was conducted by Robert Lacy.

At the head table were past-presidents and immediate past president William Gander was presented with a past president's scroll by Chairman R. Lacy.

Retired Businessman Fills Contract Made 15 Years Ago

Currently satisfactory cures are the very best kind, but it is much better to satisfy a customer a bit late than not at all.

At least that is the attitude of one retired Belleville businessman, who this week satisfied a customer with a long standing complaint.

Alderman Joseph Raycroft, former plumbing contractor, today told of a Parker Street home owner who complained that back in 1949 he (Ald. Raycroft) had failed to install a set of laundry tubs in his basement as had been called for by contract.

The Belleville alderman has been retired for nearly three years but he nevertheless took the man at his word.

"I'll tell you what I'll do", Ald. Raycroft told his astonished customer. "I'll buy the tubs and the necessary fittings and you do the installation yourself."

"You've got yourself a deal" replied the customer, surprised that the ex-contractor even listened to his complaint.

Result: A satisfied customer 15 years late.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

FOXBORO W.I.

The March meeting of the Foxboro Women's Institute was held in the school auditorium following a delicious and prompt supper served by the husbands of the members were invited for this annual event.

Mrs. I. Trupp opened the meeting in the usual way and conducted the necessary business. Invitations to two short courses, one at Gilead on March 13, and the other at Marsh Hill on March 19, were read.

The guest speaker for the evening, Mrs. Bailey of the Bell Telephone Company, was introduced by Mrs. Trupp. Mrs. Bailey who illustrated her informative talk, "Your Voice," with recordings of voice infections, all of the same voice. Mrs. Bailey then gave those present an opportunity to hear their own voices by the same method.

Mrs. J. Reynolds thanked Mrs. Bailey.

Mrs. Bibbical riddles given by Mrs. Trupp were won by Mrs. S. J. Hayden and Mrs. W. Rembaugh.

Mrs. T. Kelly, president of the East Hastings District Women's Institutes, then had introduced by Mrs. Trupp. Mrs. Kelly was on her annual visit to the Foxboro branch and spoke on "Public Relations." Mrs. Kelly said, "Though each branch, district and area has its own public relations officer, each member of the organization is a public relations person." she also stated the officers' conference this year is for the district directors or their alternates, on May 6-7, and the district annual is to be in Foxboro on May 28. The 1960 project of "While Canada Lovlier" had a suggestion of making the rural mail boxes much more presentable and the names on them much more legible.

The safety program for the year regarded poisons, and to make sure they are out of the reach of children. In closing Mrs. Kelly said regarding public relations: "Help generously and build a good fellow feeling with your neighbors; wounds nearly in a fend; disrupter of good public relations; mind and mend your manners, and have a good sense of humor is also a help for good public relations; good public relations is simply the 'Golden Rule'."

Mrs. Trupp thanked Mrs. Kelly and called on Mrs. Monbough and Mrs. Hatt who sang two lovely selections, "A" singsong by all present concluded the evening's program.

A gift was presented to Mrs. Kelly from the Foxboro branch as a memento of her two years as district president.

HYDER PARTY

A successful euchre party was held in the school auditorium on Friday evening with the citizenship and education group of Northern W.I. in charge. There were 16 tables of euchre with 32 guests in attendance from Bradley Corners, Stockdale, Wooler, Frankford and Belleville and the evening was very pleasantly spent.

Prizes for St. Patrick's Games were used in various ways and the lucky door prize was won by Mrs. Ralph Sprung.

Euchre prize winners were: ladies' high, Miss Greta Pickett; consolation, Mrs. Ralph Sprung; men's high, Mr. Harold Smith, Wooler; men's consolation, Mr. Frank Reynolds; second, Billy Wilhelm; low, Harold Smith, Wooler. CHRIST CHURCH EVENING BRANCH W.A.

On Monday evening members of the Evening Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary of Christ Church met, at 7.30, in the Parish Hall for a short business session before joining with the Contact Club.

According to the Dorcas report a layette is about completed.

Mrs. P. Burton gave the vestry council report and said it had been decided to establish a memorial book. Mrs. J. Spencer is to act as Thankoffering secretary.

The suggestion was made to have a penny collection each week night. A donation of $10 was made to the Junior Auxiliary towards their bus trip to Kingston.

During a social hour Contact members served refreshments. The Rev. E. Smith expressed the appreciation of the Belleville and Point Anne groups and Mrs. A. Cooper on behalf of the Evening Branch for the pleasant evening all had thoroughly enjoyed.

Canadian Fashion & Fad

BY pegg rogers

MAD FADS

It looks as though the "silly season" has arrived, from the number of fascinating fads in the news, the recent love affair between the Beatles and the North American young is causing a good deal of soul searching among many people. I do not look on this devotion as anything but a healthy sign of the "silly season". It will not lead to international disaster, as some pundits are predicting. I feel no desire to give these young men haircuts, nor collars on their jackets. I just want to give them lots of room —far away from me.

Of course, the Beatles are a fad, at least here in Canada. But there are some fads which I find more amusing and more subtle than this raucous quartette.

I heard the other day of one, which struck me as being most unusual. A friend of mine, who is employed by a fabric house, suffered a simple fracture of the ankle. Once she was mobile again, complete with walking cast, she turned up at the office with the cast covered in the same print as her blouse. She had willed away her sorry convalescence making slip covers for this ugly mass of plaster of paris, all co-ordinated to her wardrobe.

Granted that the new Chanel blazer is a fashion and likely to survive for at least two seasons, the sequin - covered version of this blazer is a cost of another fad, that bleeding fee tailored with the fussy, the designer has produced a very conspicuous fashion. As it is priced at well over $300, it will appeal only to those women who are not concerned with getting a lot of fashion mileage when it comes to fashion dollars.

Bikinis are still in the fashion picture. Some of them are laced together at the midriff. As the shorts are very brief and the "bra" quite scanty, the tie laces are extremely long. Another new fad is the toe bikini! Yes, a bikini for the toes or rather for one toe. This is a puff of fur, either mink, ermine or bunny, jewel studded and mounted on an elastic to be worn on the second toe. According to the designer, it is meant to be worn on the beach or the patio.

This little item was presented at a recent party given to introduce a new line of bathing suits and each reporter received one. Mine was of white mink, which I promptly put on my black hat, while some of my colleagues wore theirs as lapel or hair ornaments. (We were all wearing shoes.)

For pure whimsy, the set of tooth purics, flavored with rum, brandy or gin, is the most intoxicating idea of the silly season so far.

If you have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers, care of this paper.

Queen Mary School Holds 'Variety Night'

The Queen Mary Public School "Variety Night" was held before a packed auditorium Monday with the school pupils producing a most enjoyable evening's entertainment.

Students of grades 7A, 7B and 8A handled most of the entertainment on the night's program. Another performance, with other classes taking over, will be held on Thursday of this week.

Mr. Franklin's 7A class opened the show with a delightful play, "The Princess and the Colored Glasses".

Mrs. Spafford's 8A class took over with a mock TV program. A feature of the "really biggy shoes" was a performance by the "Beatles", pantomined by Rick Hanley, Peter Wright, Ron McIntosh and Dave Diminic. They brought down the house and the youngsters in the audience looked after the screaming to add to the authenticity of the performance.

Students of grades 7 and 8, trained by Miss Bradford, gave an excellent display of tumbling and pyramids.

Square dancing was next on the program with grade 7 and 8 students giving a fine demonstration. They were organized and directed by Mr. Franklin.

The climax of the evening was three numbers perfectly performed by the school choir, directed by Miss Bradford.

The students themselves handled the entire show, selling the tickets, arranging all props, taking tickets, ushering and many other behind-the-scene jobs.

WORKS IN MAN'S WORLD — Frances Camyre of Calgary joined two friends in forming an oil drilling company shortly after her husband died. Now she is secretary-treasurer of the firm and second-ranking shareholder. She says a woman is better at purse string management because she is more attentive to detail. (CP Photo)

Woman Financial Kingpin Of Calgary Drilling Firm

CALGARY (CP) — The business of drilling for oil and natural gas is generally identified with burly, grease - spattered men, razor - sharp competition and hard, whirling steel.

Not the world in which you'd expect to find a woman. Yet Frances Camyre has built a reputation for astuteness in her seven years as financial kingpin of a Calgary firm.

When her husband died soon after their marriage, Mrs. Camyre took a job as accountant in a local drilling firm. Then fellow workers Ed Caskey and his son Dean pulled out to start their own business, taking her along.

"It's worked out beautifully," says Mrs. Camyre, secretary-treasurer of Wardean Drilling Limited and the company's second-ranking shareholder. "I got to learn about this business right off fast because Ed and Dean had to phone me in the office from day to day about materials, labor and bidding."

Wardean is a small company specializing in shallow, 2,000-foot natural gas wells, occasionally going to 4,500 feet in search of oil and gas. A new company rig bound for a Texas job has 6,000-foot drilling potential.

Mrs. Camyre says a woman makes a good purser — stirring manager because "men don't break down on holidays." They're looked after by their consulates.

A Canadian who wants to find a job overseas should apply to the high commission or embassy of the country for a working permit.

All you need in the way of shots is a smallpox vaccination and a certificate from the doctor. Not required by the Canadian government before you can re-enter Canada.

Money can be organized ahead of time through a bank or travel agent. Travellers cheques are the most sensible but it's a good idea to buy small amounts of local currency in advance for food and fares.

Experts often suggest taking a guided tour on a first trip. But if you prefer to go it alone, hotel, travel and theatre reservations can be booked in advance.

The Experts Say Canadians Globe-Trot All the Year 'Round

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP)—Money, and advance planning are the first things you need for a European trip. After that it's easy.

To get to Europe in June you should begin making plans in November. Cynics say they are swarming to England and the Continent in increasing numbers each summer and this makes booking passage uncertain after the first of the year.

Donald Kerr of University Tours Limited, a Toronto travel agency, adds that while the summer season is the busiest agencies have almost no slack season nowadays. Canadians are seeing the world all year round.

Overseas travel has been rising steadily since 1957. The most recent Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures, for 1961, show about 275,000 Canadians returning from all directions across the seas. That was twice as many as in 1957 and the number has gone up since then.

AND UP COSTS

If you decide it's time to collect your own colored slides of the United Kingdom and Europe, you can get a basic round-trip air excursion ticket for about $340. Steamships are a little higher. Mr. Kerr says a motor coach trip in England and Scotland can be managed on about $12.50 a day. There is also the price of a ticket from home to the departure point and return, and the cost of gifts.

A passport comes from the department of external affairs in Ottawa. The application form may be picked up at a post office, a travel agency or the passport office at external affairs. It should be filed several weeks before the passport will be needed.

Application instructions with the form are simple. The pictures can be taken by any photographer provided directions are followed. A native-born Canadian needs no proof of birth but does require the signature of a witness. A naturalized citizen needs only his citizenship certificate. There's a $6 fee.

DON'T NEED VISAS

County Home Auxiliary Holds Meeting

On Monday, March 16th, the Women's Auxiliary of the County Home met with the president, Mrs. A. Daniel, in charge.

The travelling tuck cart made $50 last month. Twenty-nine groups visited the residents this month.

The auxiliary is buying an organ for the special care patients in the hospital wing.

The Inspector of Health visited the Home and expressed appreciation for the fine work the auxiliary is doing.

There will be a bingo on March 18th. The auxiliary will hold open house and their annual tea on October 21st.

Ten residents had birthdays this month. Mrs. Hattie Foster, 96, and Mrs. Sleeper, 91, cut the birthday cake. Mrs. Christopher and Mrs. Waite poured tea, and an enjoyable hour was spent with the residents.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wayne Post, Frankford, are pictured following their marriage in Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle. The bride is the former Marilyn Gail Walker, daughter of Mrs. Ethel Spackman, of London, and Mr. Raymond S. Walker of Frankford. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elgin Post of Madoc.

POST — WALKER

A lovely double-ring wedding ceremony was performed in the Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle when the Rev. Fred Spring united in marriage, Marilyn Gail Walker, daughter of Mrs. Ethel Spackman of London and Mr. Raymond S. Walker of Frankford, to Arthur Wayne Post, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elgin Post of Madoc. The church was decorated with standards and baskets of red and white mums.

Traditional wedding music was played by Mrs. Gordon Smith of Frankford and the soloist was Mr. James MacKay of Carrying Place.

The bride, given in marriage by her father was radiant in her floor-length white bridal gown, featuring a lace trimmed train falling from a large bow at the back. A three-tier shoulder-length veil was caught up to a crown of pearls and crystal drops. She carried a white Bible crested with red Sweetheart roses.

The maid of honor was Miss Carolyn Reichert of Frankford who wore a floor-length gown of red peau de soie with matching red lace jacket, matching pillbox hat and matching veil.

The bridesmaids Miss Lamoine Post of Toronto, sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Charles Wright of Foxboro and Miss Pamela Spackman of London were identical floor-length gowns of red peau de soie with matching pillbox hats and veils. The flower girl was little Miss Lynn Spackman of London who wore a floor-length gown of red peau de soie with a headdress of red and white carnations. The ring-bearer was Master Darell McCumber, nephew of the bridegroom who carried a white satin pillow with red and white streamers.

The groomsman was Mr. William Broadworth of Peterborough, while the ushers were Mr. Gary Walker of Belleville, Mr. James Curry of Oshawa and Mr. David Spackman of London.

The reception was held in the Balmoral Room at the Glenhorne Motel, Trenton, where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a shimmering gold suit with matching floral hat, chocolate brown accessories and a corsage of gold and rust mums. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a fitted blue dress with black accessories and a pink carnation corsage.

The bride's table was decorated with a white damask cloth, red candles in candelabra, red and white streamers, and centred with a three-tier wedding cake with red roses and topped with miniature wedding bells and doves.

For the wedding trip to Toronto and surrounding areas the bride chose a gold wool suit with fur trimmed sleeves, green blouse, fur hat, copper accessories and a corsage of gold and rust mums.

Mr. and Mrs. Post are residing in Frankford.

Out-of-town guests were present from Washington, D.C.; Detroit, Mich.; London, Toronto, Oshawa, Deserton, Peterborough, Napanee, Belleville, Madoc and Foxboro.

Opp. Shop Fashion Show At Hospital W. A. Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary was held in Education Hall on Tuesday, March 17th at 2 p.m. with president, Mrs. F. A. Beeby in the chair. Encouraging reports were heard from all committee chairmen. Mrs. T. N. Davidson announced that the coffee cart in the hospital waiting room will now operate two evenings a week and on Saturdays for the convenience of hospital visitors. Mrs. Owen Clarke reported that the gift corner was an immediate success with so many calls for baby kits that she is anxious to contact more knitters and anyone willing to spend a little time on this worthwhile project will be warmly welcomed. The Auxiliary will supply all wool and materials and the number to call is WO 2-7908. Mrs. Beeby reported attending a hospital board meeting where plans of the new hospital were on display and gave an enthusiastic description of the progress being made.

MOCK WEDDING

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Herbert Brown, convener of the Opportunity Shop, who staged a fashion show and mock wedding. Auxiliary members modelling smart costumes available at the shop. The hilarious mock wedding caused much merriment with the "Rev. Helen Sulman" conducting the ceremony. The able fashion commentator was Mrs. W. C. Gauk and the beauteous models were Mesdames Ben Burley, Robin Kay, Owen Clarke, G. Dimend, W. G. Harvey, J. Lennox-Smith, J. H. Forrester, M. L. F. Jones, C. A. Campbell, L. G. Doran, J. Eliard, E. D. Tomsett, J. M. Parrott, W. H. Salter and George Hume. After the show jewellery and other items were offered for sale to the members and a Hancock doll from Simpsons-Sear Ltd. was won by new member Mrs. A. Shuker. Refreshments were served by the social committee.

TAG AND TOG

VICTORIA (CP)—"Tag and Tog" spaceman from Mars will replace "Dick and Jane" in British Columbia primary school readers, Education Minister Leslie Peterson told the legislature. He said children are attuned to the space age.

Wife Knows Her Problem But Won't Acknowledge It

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My wife and I have been married four years. We have excellent jobs and we need them — to pay her doctor bills.

Hilda has a rash on her hands which drives her crazy. It started shortly after we married. She scratches her hands until they bleed. The doctor has kept her hands in bandages for weeks but it does no good. She has taken lamp treatments, pills and she has used all kinds of ointment. The rash improves for a few weeks then for no apparent reason, it comes back worse than ever.

ANN LANDERS

Last week Hilda went to a famous clinic and spent three days there. The doctor said the problem is emotional and unless she resolves her problems she will have the eruption forever.

His diagnosis made her furious. She says the doctor is a quack and her real problem is an allergy which he can't track down, so he blames it on "nerves." Hilda made me promise not to tell her mother (whom she hates) and she insists, too, that I am not to tell our friends.

Why is she taking on like this? What can I do to help? — BEN.

DEAR BEN — Hilda reacted angrily because she knows the doctor is right. She is fighting his diagnosis because she's ashamed of having an emotional problem. She considers it a weakness and therefore a "disgrace."

Do as she asks in regard to friends and family. Stick to the allergy story and urge her to get psychiatric help. When she learns what has been getting under her skin and how to cope with it, the eruption on her skin will probably disappear.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am so mad you could fry an egg on my face.

Saturday night I met my fiance's parents for the first time. (They live out of town.) I spent two and a half hours in the beauty shop. My hair was done in an upsweep bee-hive with wispy bangs. The make-up expert did my face and I bought a new dress, which was a knockout.

When Sol came for me he took one look and said, "you aren't going like that, are you?" I asked what was wrong. He said "Your hair looks like a rat's nest, your face looks like Hallowe'en and that dress makes you look pregnant."

I was furious but changed dresses, removed part of the make-up and modified the hair-do. Sol is the only man I've ever wanted to marry. Do you think I will ever be able to educate the clod? Shall I try? — NO BUMPKIN.

DEAR NO — Some men appreciate high fashion but most men prefer the natural look.

If you're smart (and I mean in the head and not in the wardrobe department) you'll dress to please Sol and not try to resemble some of the party-faced, consumptive-looking girls who pose for fashion magazines.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My daughter has two little girls, 11 and 12 years of age. She will not allow the little darlings to go to boy-girl parties. They feel very much left out and have appealed to me to help them.

How will they learn to be at ease with boys if they don't get the experience in their growing up years? They tell me all the other girls in their crowd can go and they feel persecuted. Would it be proper for their mother to phone the mothers of the youngsters who are having the parties and make certain they are well-chaperoned?

Everything seems to be going so fast these days that I don't know the answers any more. Thank you. — GRANDMOTHER.

DEAR GRANDMOTHER — Those little darlings have a pretty sharp mother and since those are her children, why don't you stay out of it? The kids have enlisted Granny's help because they apparently can't budge Mom.

Women's Institutes

BAY OF QUINTE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

2ND OF SIDNEY — Mrs. Frank Sandercock was hostess on Wednesday evening when the Bay of Quinte Women's Institute held their March meeting. The meeting was a good attendance and Mrs. Cecil Jeffery presided.

The business portion of the meeting followed at which time it was decided Mrs. Frank McCormack and Mrs. Cecil Jeffery will attend the leadership training school to be held at Stirling. It was decided to enter the Rawleigh plant competition at the Belleville Fair. A committee was formed to make arrangements for a twelve night to be held at Harder's School in May, and will included Mrs. Frank MacCormack, Mrs. Morris Stickel, Mrs. Clayton and Mrs. Frank White. A card party in March will be convened by Mrs. Arnold Ketcheson and Mrs. John Howe. It was reported that two members Mrs. Lloyd Bowyer and Mrs. George Clapp are in hospital, while Mrs. Alva Dunn is home due to a fractured leg. Mr. Jeffery is convalescing at present. Mrs. J. Howe expressed thanks for remembering her while in hospital.

Mrs. Sandercock introduced the speaker, Mr. E. Henderson, fieldman of the Dairy Branch of the Department of Agriculture who gave an interesting talk on the care of milking utensils. Before 1960 this department was administered by the Department of Health. The future of the milk industry depends on the cleanliness of the utensils with grade one milk to receive the highest price. "Good milk builds good healthy bodies and there is no finer food known," said Mr. Henderson.

Mrs. R. Curtis will help Mrs. Yateman with the auditing of the books for 1963-64.

The president thanked all who had helped with an interesting meeting and extended a welcome to Mrs. J. Sandercock, an old member.

Mrs. Ross Stickle gave a fine report of the district executive meeting. The district annual meeting is planned for May 13 in March Hill Church. At this time the Bay of Quinte Institute will give a demonstration of hats made at the millinery course held at the home of Mrs. Jerwyn Palmer of Bayside.

Before the close of the meeting a game was played with Mrs. Frank White the winner.

Waves, Curls Coming Back Says Expert

TORONTO (CP)—The layered look was moved up. It now is being worn around the face.

The newest hair style is cut short at back, longer in front and sides. It may be curled on rollers on the top and flattened to the head on the crown, the back of the head and the neck. However it is done, back interest in French hair bangs are disappearing, and waves and curls are back.

Toronto hairdresser Wicki Range says the straight blunt cut has not caught on fully but has given way to a new, softer version of the styles women have been wearing for about five years.

Miss Range is a style demonstrator at the annual Ontario Beauticians Convention being held here March 15-17 by the allied beauty association.

She says the current cut complements this year's feminine fashions, even to being comfortable with stand up collars. "It keeps the ears covered and shows the back of the neck, which is attractive."

She says back combing is still stylish, rumors or no rumors. "It has been abused, but it is an art as old as hairdressing, and it is essential to modern hair styling. We used to have to tell customers, tomorrow your hair will look nice and soft. Back combing can give them tomorrow's look today."

She predicts color will continue to grow in importance in hair styling. Miss Range says 35 per cent of her Toronto customers have some color work done, from a weak out rinse to a complete color change.

St. Patrick's Tea Held at St. Andrew's

CAMPBELLFORD — The evening auxiliary of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church held their annual St. Patrick's tea in St. Andrew's Church on Saturday afternoon. In spite of inclement weather a large group was in attendance.

General convener was Mrs. H. MacMillan with committee members Mrs. R.K. Thompson and Miss W. Hay.

The baby table did a thriving business under the supervision of Mrs. G. Older and Mrs. Thomas Meek.

The novelty and candy booth drew interest with among other things bouquets of the year's pussy willows, contributed by Mrs. C. Milne, whose had been forced by indoor growing. Mrs. D. Graham and Mrs. L. Hay were in charge of sales. Mrs. M. Locke supervised the serving area.

TEA POURERS

During the afternoon tea was poured by Mrs. C. Milne, Mrs. J. Steele, Mrs. F. T. Rutherford, Mrs. M. Austin.

St. Patrick's decorations of pipes, hats, shamrocks, established the theme for the tea. Evening Auxiliary president, Mrs. Alex McKenzie stated that it was a satisfactory financial success as well as a pleasing social event.

Women's Institutes

CHATTERTON W.I.

The March meeting of the Chatterton Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Follwell with an attendance of 11 members and five visitors.

The W.I. ladies will be serving meals and lunches at the sales barn, on April 7th. An invitation was received from Pine Grove W.I. to attend a course on food shopping in the SUs, on March 19th. An interesting letter, card and pictures were received from the adopted boy that the Pine Grove W.I. branches are sponsoring; also a report of this boy and his family. The District Director, Mrs. Lorne Reid, gave a report on the Directors' meeting held at Leslie's Shoe Store, on March 7th.

The convener, Mrs. Ben Bleecker, opened the program with a reading entitled "How to Get Along With People." A reading was also given by Mrs. Roy Rose.

The guest speaker, Miss Jane Gay, gave a most interesting report on the C.N.I. and its meaning. The theme of the meeting was Ireland. Mrs. David Liddy rendered an Irish vocal solo and Mrs. Albert Carson gave a geographical report on Ireland. Mrs. Berson Mitts gave a reading and Mrs. Emory DeMille read several Irish jokes. Mrs. Bleecker gave a reading.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Gerald Irvine on April 15th.

New Tuna and Rice Casserole For Lent

by Mary Moore

The two different ingredients in this tuna casserole are curry powder and ripe olives. You can add to the exotic atmosphere (and relieve the monotony of fish dishes) by providing accompaniments such as chopped ginger and chopped peanuts. Use your own judgment for you are the ones who know the likes and dislikes of your families.

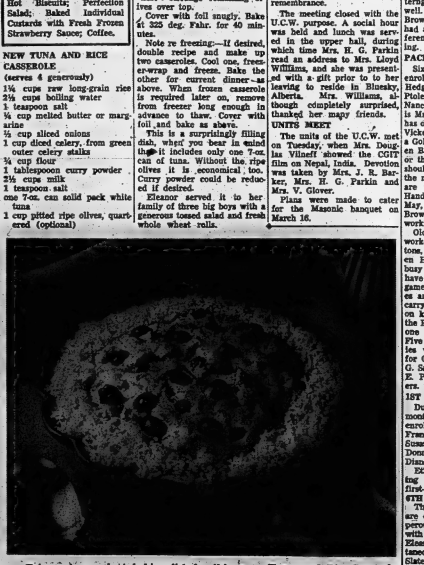
WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Roast Young Chicken; Milk Gravy; Buttered Green Peas with Chopped Green Onions; Hot Biscuits; Perfection Salad; Baked Individual Custards with Fresh Frozen Strawberry Sauce; Coffee.

NEW TUNA AND RICE CASSEROLE
(serves 4 generously)

1¼ cups raw long-grain rice
2½ cups boiling water
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup melted butter or margarine
½ cups sliced onions
1 cup diced celery, from green outer celery stalks
¾ cup flour
1 tablespoon curry powder
2½ cups milk
1 teaspoon salt
one 7-oz. can solid pack white tuna
1 cup pitted ripe olives, quartered (optional)



Add rice to boiling water with the 1 teaspoon salt, bring to boil, reduce heat to simmer and cook, covered, until all water is absorbed — about 15 to 20 minutes. Gently saute sliced onions and diced celery in melted butter or margarine for about 5 minutes. Do not allow celery to lose its crispness. Stir in flour and curry powder until smooth, then add milk and stir constantly until thickened. Add salt, tuna broken with fork into bite-size pieces, three-quarters of the olives (if used) and mix well. Arrange cooked rice lightly in bottom and sides of greased casserol. Carefully turn tuna mixture into "nest". Arrange remaining olives over top.

Note re freezing:—If desired, double recipe and make up two casseroles. Cool one, freeze-wrap and freeze. Bake the other for current dinner—as above. When frozen casserole is required later on, remove from freezer long enough in advance to thaw, cover with foil and bake as above.

This is a surprisingly filling dish, when one bear in mind that it includes only one 7-oz. can of tuna. Without the ripe olives it is economical too. Curry powder could be reduced if desired.

Eleanor served it to her family of three big boys with a generous tossed salad and fresh whole wheat rolls.

Bring out your best baking dish for this new Tuna and Rice Casserole. Mary Moore gives the recipe today and it includes ripe olives and curry powder. You can give your meal an Oriental atmosphere by providing accompaniments of chopped ginger and peanuts.

Legion L. A. Installs Three New Members

CAMPBELLFORD — Zone Commander Lorrie Leeman and the president of the Trenton Legion Auxiliary, Com. Jean Lamson, were guests at the March meeting of the Legion Auxiliary, Branch 103. The meeting opened with a potluck supper.

Three new members were installed during the evening: Coms. Florence Dalnard, Mary Sharp and Lucille Kosobucki.

Com. Ruth Young was the dinner of the "Dollar Night" prize, but was absent so the draw will be held over to the next regular meeting.

Com. Leeman addressed the group and instructed them on the proper method of draping the charter.

Members were invited to a social evening in Watchorn on March 17th, with a bus to leave from the Legion hall at 8.00 p.m.

A bowling team is to be formed to take part in a tournament in Trenton on Sunday, April 12.

The rally is to be held in Trenton on Sunday, May 10th, and the convention is to be held in North Bay in September, it was announced.

U.C.W. Meeting

JOINT U.C.W.

MARMORA — The annual meeting of Marmora charges: Cordova, Zion and St. Andrew's was held in St. Andrew's, Marmora, with a large attendance.

Mrs. Leith Stetson, president, opened the meeting and welcomed the visiting ladies. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. G. Bowden and the minutes were read by Mrs. Ron McGarvey.

The offering was taken by Mrs. Bowden and dedicated by Mrs. Stetson.

Mrs. Vaughan Glover gave a report of the Presbytery held in Napanee. Mrs. Leland Richardson gave the report of the manse committee. Mrs. Sid Demorest reported on communion and literature.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Borden Bell introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Elliott Sine of Frankford, a former Marmora girl, who spoke on the work of the U.C.W. Mrs. Ron McGarvey thanked Mrs. Sine and presented her with a corsage.

The meeting closed with the U.C.W. purpose. A social hour was held and lunch served in the upper hall, during which time Mrs. H. G. Parkin read an address to Mrs. Lloyd Williams, and she was presented with a gift prior to to her leaving to reside in Blairton, Alberta. Mrs. Williams, although completely surprised, thanked her many friends.

UNITS MEET

The units of the U.C.W. met on Tuesday, when Mrs. Doug. Lu Vilneff showed the CCIP film on Nepal, India. Devotion was taken by Mrs. J. R. Barker, Mrs. H. G. Parkin and Mrs. V. Glover.

Plans were made to cater for the Masonic banquet on March 16.

BELLEVILLE WEST DISTRICT

1ST AVONDALE PACK

The pack has had one enrollment and is made up of all new Brownies, so work is slow. Mrs. June Holland is acting Brown Owl due to the illness of Brown Owl Mrs. Ann Wallinton.

PACK 2

Our Brownies have been working quite steadily since Christmas. They have spent time off to learn some new singing games which we all enjoy.

The second meeting in February was spent making daffodils for the bobby show. A Kaboutter (Dutch Brownie) would not celebrate those flowers for the blooms from Dutch daffodil bulbs, but we enjoyed making them and we all earn a ribbon at the bobby show. Two Tweenies are to be enrolled on March 19.

PACK 6

There are 25 Brownies in Pack 6 with Brown Owl Mrs. Ruth Hunter, Tawny Owl Mrs. D. Piwowarski and Cadet Miss Kathleen Cleary.

Two enrollments were held with the mothers, school teachers and Commissioner Hunter attending. There were 13 girls enrolled. At each of the enrollments a play was enacted by the Brownies depicting the Brownie story and tea was served.

PACK 10

There are 17 girls in this pack, three of whom are Tweenies who will be enrolled soon. Four of the star girls have completed their requirements for the Golden Bar and are working on a knitting badge. The remaining girls are working on their Golden Bar. Brown Owl is Jean Anglin.

PACK 11 O.S.D.

Ten girls are working on Golden Hands. Some girls are Guide age and will not finish Golden Hand work before entering Guides, but have done well. Mrs. Sharon Wilson, Brown Owl, read a story and had a look at uniforms of different countries at one meeting.

Six new Brownies have been enrolled, Julia Vickers, Linda Hedge, Linda Peters, Sandra Ptolemy, Debbie Brown and Nancy MacDonald. Brown Owl is Mrs. G. Hedge. This pack has one new leader, Mrs. Donna Vickers. Dianne Doxsee earned a Golden Bar. Most of the Golden Bar Brownies have just two or three things left to do, and should have their bars within the next month. Five Brownies are working on their Golden Hand and should be finished by May, and be able to have their Brownie wings. Three girls are working on badges.

Older Golden Bar Brownies worked on table settings, buttons, darning and nature. Golden Hand Brownies have been busy on their scrapbook. Most have passed parcel, skipping, games, compass, tea-toast, clothes and shoes, counters, nature, carry message, and are working on knitting and semaphore. In the Pack now are three leaders, one Tweenie, 17 Golden Bar, Five Golden Hand. Ten Brownies will be leaving this year for Guides. Brown Owl is Mrs. G. Hedge. Tawny Owls are Mrs. E. Pringle, and Mrs. D. Vickers.

1ST AVONDALE COMPANY

During the past three months eight girls have been enrolled, Helen Ackerman, Frances De Paul, Faye Ellis, Susanne Gibson, Diane Harder, Donna Holland, Gail Pelling, Diana Thomas.

6TH COMPANY O.S.D.

The Guides in this company are enjoying a busy and prosperous year. The season began with eight new recruits, Eleanor Jakob, Hilda Wultanec, Sally Ann Sendy, Brenda Slater, Karen McCoil, Barbara Faber, Marlene Johnson and Patricia Dietrich. These girls completed their Tenderfoot work and were enrolled in February. The following girls have passed their hostess badge; Roswitha Seetzen, Mary Michel; son, Dale Kasarvis, Patti Lou Parkman and Vicki Merrifiex. Those working on their Life and Religion Emblem are Mary Ann Smith, Nancy Parkin, Anne McGregor, Ann Tye, Jacqueline House and Debra Soderholm.

The Scarlet Tanagers is a group completing their Industrial badge. The group consists of Ruth Guy, Ann Tye, Joan Brevik, Jacqueline House, June Pilkins, Judy Ann Wilson and Raymonde Lebrun. These girls went on a tour of Deacon Brothers' factory, as part of the requirements of the Industrial badge. Upon completing this, these girls plan to begin work on their "Friend to the Blind" badge. This older group has also received their Needlewoman, Cook, Homemaker and Laundress badges.

Mrs. Hunter and three girls of the 13th company visited the company and brought a gift of a series of posters and materials to help in passing Guide tests, which was greatly appreciated.

7TH COMPANY

Commissioner Mrs. J. Hunter enrolled a new Guider who in turn enrolled eight new Guides. Second class badges were presented to Janet Jackson, Margaret McGrimmon, Bonnie Boyle, Bonnie Carr - Brainf. Three girls received first aid badges, Linda Burshaw, Bonnie Boyle, Bonnie Carr-Brain.

Hostess badges were given to Janet Jackson, Linda Burshaw, Margaret McGrimmon, Bonnie Boyle, Bonnie Carr - Brainf, and Mary Ann Cox. Three sassy girls have started taking instruction on Child Care from a qualified nurse. The company attended church parade at Tabernacle United Church. Mrs. Vi. Christopher is captain.

13TH COMPANY

Guides and Guiders of Company 13 (Christ Church) attended Evensong with the Brownies, Cubs, Scouts and Rovers.

Penny Clarke, Aline Skurat, Kathy Silke, and Nancy Wilson earned Hostess Badges.

Each patrol in the company had a project of making a letter type displays depicting World Guiding which were presented to the O.S.D. Guides by Penny Clarke, Jill Roulet, and Nancy Watkin with the District Commissioner Mrs. Hunter.

Kathy Sine, Aline Skurat, and Debbie Platt have been awarded Second Class badges. Debbie Platt received her Cadet Guide and Life Emblem. First year service stars were earned by Marlene Baldrick, Patricia Huddleston, Debbie Platt, Kathy Sine and Judith Sandford. Marlene Baldrick was the first Guide to be enrolled in the New Year. Kathy Sine and Debbie Platt were formally invested as Patrol Leaders, and Aline Skurat, Suzanne Pitt and Jill Roulet as Patrol Seconds.

The Inter - Patrol competition has been held over the months in a row by the Scarlet Tanager Patrol, whose leader is Kathy Sine. This patrol demonstrates a good standard of working together, so it is a real tribute to the efforts of the Bluebird patrol who have succeeded in winning the shield for February.

As their special project of the month the Sealing Wax Class Guides are taking a course in Child Care under the capable direction of their lieutenant Miss Butler. Captain of this Company is Mrs. Diana Settle.

Church Groups

MERCY HAO

The March meeting of Emmanuel Baptist Church Mercy Hao Mission Circle was held in the church with members of the B.H.F. present.

The president, Mrs. J. MacGregor opened the meeting and welcomed the visitors. Angus Sinclair president of the B.H.F. led in hymn singing.

Mrs. A. Arthur was in charge of the devotional and her theme was "All things work together for good to them that love God".

Mrs. E. Sinclair introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Miss Karen Walker, a teacher at Albert College, who went on a tour of Europe and the Middle East with 17 young people from Canada and United States who attended the Baptist World Congress at London and the World Mission Study of India.

She showed many interesting slides of the countries she visited and gave a commentary on each.

Mrs. B. Kerr thanked Miss Walker.

Refreshments were served and a period of fellowship followed.

Family Dinner Marks 25th Anniversary

WELLINGTON — Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Channell of Wallbridge celebrated their silver wedding anniversary on March 14 and were host and hostess at a family dinner at Maple Inn, Bloomfield, on Saturday evening.

The head table at which Mr. and Mrs. Channell and their two sons, Gary and Wayne, and their fiancees and bridesmaid of 25 years ago sat, was banked with a three-tier anniversary cake flanked with tall tapers.

Other guests present for this special event were: Mr. and Mrs. George Bailley, Mrs. Herb Channell, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Osterhout, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Channell, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bailley, Mr. and Mrs. B. Channell, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Channell, Mrs. Alfred Ogilvy, Miss Judy Lavender, Mr. and Mrs. Don Morden and Mr. and Mrs. Don Wait.

After the dinner all returned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Channell, west Main Street, where progressive euchre was enjoyed for a time with prizes awarded to Mrs. George Channell, Mrs. Donald Wait, Mr. George Bailley and Mr. B. Channell.

The honored couple were presented with a large number of lovely gifts for which they expressed sincere appreciation.

Light refreshments were served by the hostess.

AT HOME

Last Sunday afternoon and evening Mr. and Mrs. Channell were "At Home" to their many friends who called to congratulate them on this special occasion of their 25th anniversary.

Their youngest son Gary welcomed the guests at the door and Mr. and Mrs. Channell received them into the living room which was decorated with many lovely bouquets of flowers, gifts from friends. The tea table, covered with an ecru cloth, was centred with a bowl containing 25 red roses, a gift from Mr. Channell to his wife.

This was poured from the silver tea service by the sweetheart of the honored couple, Mrs. Herb Channell and Mrs. George Bailley. Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Elmer Osterhout, Mrs. Ralph Ellis and Miss Judy Lavender in the afternoon, and in the evening by Mrs. Charles Sandwell, Mrs. Don Morden and Miss Judy Lavender. Others replenishing were Mrs. Morris Campbell, Mrs. Donald Bailley and Mrs. Leon Channell.

Mr. and Mrs. Channell received many cards and telephone calls of congratulations, also many lovely gifts.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

THE RIGHT TO PRIVACY

How often we've heard that lament. And, more lamentably, more could be done if thoughtless people didn't take such a large slice out of the work day.

This was brought to mind the other day by a friend who was complaining that her husband has to bring work home in the evening and on weekends simply because he couldn't get it done in the office. It wasn't that he was inefficient. The reason simply was that so many people dropped into his office to discuss projects and ask his advice about their work that his own suffered. As a result, he was forced to bring huge folders home so he could concentrate on what he was supposed to do.

His work load would be significant, of course, if he didn't have to shoulder on the other guy's problems as well. She told me he tried to hide behind a closet door, but others simply barged in anyway and settled on about their own problems without realizing they were disturbing him.

Life in the business and social world would be go much simpler and less hectic if everyone would remember basic good manners.

MAN AT WORK

If you must consult with a co-worker about a problem he might be able to throw light on, it's courteous to ask if he has a minute before gratuitously taking an hour of his time. A closed office door usually spells "Man at work", and the right to privacy should be respected. Generally is better manners and much more efficient for all concerned not to take a person's time for granted no matter how tolerant he may seem to be about it on the surface.

The same holds true at home. Often a thoughtless friend or neighbor will drop in unheralded and corner the busy housewife of the house to drop everything and listen to a long line of idle chatter. Often the poor victim is up to her ears in cleaning, or trying to get organized for a group of Girl Guides about to invade her kitchen to earn credits towards a cooking badge.

No matter how informal the way of life is in a particular city or in a neighborhood, there's still a certain amount of work to be done on both fronts that requires privacy and concentration.

So unless you're sure a person has plenty of time to give freely, be polite and don't expect him to squander precious minutes he could spend to good advantage. If the tables were reversed, wouldn't you prefer to be shown this type of courtesy, too?

Women's Club In London Starts Plan

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Help for women who have job and job-training problems is being offered here by a women's club.

With the working experience of its 85 members to draw on, the London Business and Professional Women's Club has set up a careers assistance program.

It isn't a placement bureau. Its purpose is to provide information and advice, especially for older women.

The project grew out of the club's five-year-old educational assistance loan fund because when members realized many loan applicants required advice more than money, they wanted to know what fields they were qualified to enter and how to improve their educations.

Careers committee chairman Hazel Phillips cites two examples of the help the club has offered:

A secretary who was tired of her dead-end job thought additional training would be useful to her. When she talked to club members in her field, she decided she could find a better job with the training and experience she already had.

A married woman forced by circumstances to find a way to support herself learned she could obtain free physiotherapy training through the government if she agreed to work for a year in a provincial government hospital.

The committee interviews confidentially women who apply to it by mail. When club members haven't been able to supply the answers, they have occasionally asked for information from other business women.

Church Groups FRANKFORD C.A.'s MEET

FRANKFORD — Frankford C.A.'s of Trinity United Church Sunday met on Friday evening, with the Clark sisters' trio of Western Pentecostal Bible College as guests.

Rev. F. Spring welcomed everyone and led the song service. C. A. president Keith Heist led in prayer. The Clark sisters' trio sang two selections.

Miss Josephine Clark and Miss Connie Clark with bass violin and accordion accompaniment sang a duet. Miss Josephine Clark contributed a solo.

Ushers Gerald Curry and Charles Wright received the offering. Rev. F. Spring led in prayer.

Miss Dorothy Clark brought the evening message speaking on "False Securities" and "Trusting in God."

The service closed with a time of prayer.

Jealousy Puts Too Great A Burden on Romance

DEAR DORIS — I got engaged three months ago. She is a wonderful girl but I was always questioning her about other boys she had gone out with. If I found out something, it didn't like, I blew my top.

We had many fights over this. We seldom disagreed on any other issue. But she finally broke our engagement. Then she called me a week later and we were back together again. Two weeks later — bingo! The same old story.

I have written her, called her and tried to see her, but this time she will not return. Unfortunately I was under the impression that love cannot be killed and didn't fulfill my promises. Now she doesn't want to see me or hear from me. Yesterday I cried like a kid and had to be given a tranquilliser. — HEARTBROKEN.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR HEARTBROKEN — If you put love to death, it dies! Take time to understand your own inferiority feelings and the self-centredness which causes you to hurt the one you love. When you grow capable of more mature feelings, there might be another chance for you.

DEAR DORIS — I want to thank you very much for your most encouraging letter. I will try very hard to complete my education. My exams 11 marks average around 51%.

Believe it or not, but my big ambition in life was to become a social worker, but I simply cannot get a 65% average. Before Christmas I asked my physics teacher for extra help. I stayed in from 4 to 5 o'clock for a whole week to learn my physics and I only got 30%.

DEAR TRYING — I'm sending it. But with those marks I'd suggest a career demanding a little less academically, than social work. Your love of people could give you joy in service as a nurse or nurse's aide, receptionist, welfare secretary. The high marks in cooking might suggest a year-long diploma course in home economics, after graduation from secondary school.

DEAR DORIS — Do you have any suggestions to offer as to how I can meet decent single men? I am divorced, staying home on low income to raise my young children. I attend church.

My friends are predominately happily married folk and younger single folk. Although I am happy there is a certain amount of loneliness. — SOCIABLE.

DEAR SOCIABLE — The supply of single folk, male and female, dwindles after the early twenties. Yet you need diversion and company. Starting with the Y.W.C.A., explore the field of hobbies where you are and find the money for a baby sitter, at least occasionally.

Confidential to HEARTBROKEN — Famous last words: "I've never felt like this about any other boy." At 16 there is a lot of future ahead of you. To use the vernacular: "You ain't seen nothing yet!" If your Secret Passion asks for a date, fit him in with other dates. He's not worth cloistering yourself for.

• • •

Women's Institutes

RYLSTONE W.I.

RYLSTONE — Mrs. Eldon Anderson was hostess to Rylstone Women's Institute, when they held their March meeting at the Sunday School room of Zion United Church, Felker's Corner. There were ten members attending. The opening of the meeting was in charge of the president, Mrs. Stanley Kerr.

Mrs. Donald Kerr was elected to attend the District Directors Officers' Conference, to be held in Guelph May 6th and 7th. There was an attendance draw, won by Mrs. Eldon Anderson.

Mrs. Gerald Barnum, convener for "Agriculture" was in charge of the balance of the meeting. Mrs. Charles Stewart gave a reading, and current events were given by Mrs. Donald Barnum. A "Shamrock" contest was conducted by Mrs. Jack Watson. There was a discussion on favorite recipes. Refreshments were served by the hostess and her committee.

Mr. Ernest Irwin and Mrs. Donald Kerr were the District Directors from the Rylstone Institute who attended the executive meeting of District Directors of North Hastings, held in Madoc the following day.

Speaking Personally

By Gladys Ward

WELL, REALLY

Doris Clark, who is known by many readers as a columnist in this paper is also an entertaining speaker. At the annual meeting of the Children's Aid Society on March 12th Miss Clark spoke on social welfare and as a humorous highlight she quoted some extracts from a newsletter of the Alumni of School of Social Work, University of Toronto, contributed by James Lang, Sir Hugh Macdonald Hostel.

These were answers from reports of Social Service investigators and because there was not space to print them in the news report I am repeating some of them here.

Man has ulcers on his stomach.

Woman is saving up for an illness.

Couple breaking up home, friends helping.

Milk needed for the baby and father unable to supply it.

These people are extremely cultured, something should be done about their condition.

Man has diabetes and is insulated every day.

Couple's only source of income is four boarders, all out of work. They owe $600.00.

Nice quiet family. Dorothy has been but since July.

Man recently had operation but is able to any position he assumes.

Woman says they are a delicate family and must have steamed apartment with eggs and oranges.

Applicant has one child, Lillian, who is three months old and owes 12 months rent.

Woman still owes $45.00 for a funeral she had recently.

Woman in quarry, too old to work, too young for pension.

Man hit by automobile — speaks broken English.

GIRLS IN LAB COATS

Some time ago I wrote an article about women in pharmacy. It seemed an almost untouched field with a big demand for women. At that time there were no women pharmacists in Belleville, although one local girl who graduated from a Belleville school entered the University of Toronto Pharmacy last fall.

However the lab coat is no longer sacred male property. This year 127 out of 394 students in Pharmacy are women, 33 percent of the total enrolment. This number has crept up from the 12 to 13 percent of the war years to the present total.

Rapid hospital expansion and the discovery of new drugs demand more trained pharmacists.

"Each year 300 to 400 new formulas are calculated of which 30 to 40 contain new substances," said E. N. Hughes, Dean of Pharmacy.

Women are increasingly attracted to pharmacy because good jobs are immediately available, and part time work in the field is really available. Opportunities are increasing in the field of retail work, hospital pharmacies and controlled laboratory work in industry.

The course extends four years. Eighteen months, of which 12 must be consecutive, are spent in apprenticeship. The graduate then becomes a member of the Ontario College of Pharmacy.

Miss United Appeal in Toronto is shapely 18-year-old Marion Wright, who is a first year student at the U of T Pharmacy. This blond girl edged out 23 finalists for the beauty title at the 13th annual United Appeal Revue at Massey Hall.

We hope this won't lead to a rash of pill takers among the male population in a few years.

ments for the takeover of a British contingent "are expected to be concluded with the United Kingdom government before long."

Thant said the force "will be established operationally when sufficient troops are available to it in Cyprus to make it possible for it to discharge its functions effectively."

Thant also made clear, in a statement issued by a UN spokesman, that he spoke with give instructions to the force commander.

The spokesman said Thant's views on the terms of reference of the force had been set out in the March 11 note and in a document containing 14 points and principles for the guidance of the force commander.

FOLLOWS STATEMENT

The statement generally was issued in view of a statement Monday night by Britain's Commonwealth Relations Minister Duncan Sandys that agreement had not yet been reached on the terms of the force.

The spokesman said Thant had "made it known to the governments concerned, including the United Kingdom government, that having in mind the purely technical character and responsibilities of the force, it was not his intention to negotiate the terms of reference. He proposed to issue to the commander with any government either directly concerned in the situation or contributing contingents to the force.

"At the same time the secretary-general stated that he would, however, certainly fully inform the representatives of the governments providing troops of the substance of the instructions he did or was given to the commander."

About 100 soldiers of the Royal Canadian Regiment are scheduled to sail from Halifax aboard the aircraft carrier Bonaventure late today to join Canadian soldiers already on Cyprus. The carrier also was loaded with supplies for the Canadian contingent.

The terms of reference were understood to have been a main topic in a round of conferences held by Thant Tuesday, including a session with Canadian Ambassador Paul Tremblay.

EXPECT 2,500 BRITISH

Britain is expected to place 3,500 of the 7,000 troops she now has on Cyprus under UN command. Finland and Sweden have pledged 700 men each and Ireland 500, while Austria has agreed to put up a 67-man medical and field hospital unit.

SEES "MILD" CORRUPTION

Mr. Sargent, who is also mayor of Owen Sound, said he wouldn't mind this but public funds were being used for the advertisements and this constituted "a mild form of corruption."

Mr. MacNaughton denied the charge, saying that of the thousands of dollars spent for publicity during the fiscal year ending March 31, not one cent was used for propostion in a municipal publication.

But Mr. Sargent said he could produce today a copy of a publication called Civic Administration which carried a full-page ad over the name of Mr. MacNaughton in its February issue.

The highways and tourism committee of the Legislature was told that fees for the use of campsites in provincial parks should be raised to equal fees charged by private campsite operators.

G. B. Rumble, chairman of the Joint Board of Ontario Travel Associations said in a brief to the committee that private operators cannot compete with what he called absurdly low rates charged by nearby public campsites in provincial parks.

DENIES REPORTS

Health Minister Deymond denied earlier reports that the government would not oppose compulsory arbitration in nursing disputes.

Dr. Dymond said: "I must deny this statement most emphatically. The two nurses' representatives of the Committee for the Advancement of Professional Nursery spoke to me about collective negotiations and I did state that if the nurses really wanted this the government would not oppose it."

He also said that matters such as compulsory arbitration would be policy and only government would determine policy. "And any decision would be for the (Hospital Services) commission to implement," he said.

Grandfather Rescued From Greenland Ice

REYKJAVIK—(AP) — Max Conrad, the flying grandfather, is reported in fine shape after being rescued from the Greenland icecap where he crashlanded a single - engined plane.

It was the 52-year-old pilot's first crash in nearly 14 years of criss-crossing oceans delivering light-engined planes to customers.

By his reckoning, he was making his 100th transatlantic flight Tuesday. Apparently trouble with the Italian Piper Apache he was piloting from Italy to Canada forced him down on the barren icecap in below-zero weather.

Sunny Weather Is Predicted

TORONTO (CP) — Sunny weather was predicted for southwestern Ontario today, following a brief St. Patrick's Day blizzard Tuesday.

The department of highways said that the heavy scattered snowflurries were occurring early today in the southwestern part of the province and some highways still had icy sections.

Tuesday caused less than an inch of snow in most areas but winds up to 50 m.p.h. caused treacherous driving conditions.

In Windsor, the storm dumped one-tenth of an inch of snow in 20 minutes. A bright sun followed, melting the snow.

In London, visibility dropped to near zero and driving was reported hazardous as far north as the Bruce Peninsula.

In Toronto, four persons were treated for minor injuries suffered in traffic-accidents.

Dead Baby Had 5 Broken Ribs

TORONTO (CP)—A coroner's jury Tuesday blamed a Toronto couple for the death March 1 of their nine-month-old daughter from malnutrition. Evidence at the inquest revealed the child also had five broken ribs.

The jury was told that Cherylee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Smedley, died less than three weeks after her last visit to the family doctor. She weighed eight pounds, three ounces at birth and 11 pounds 12 ounces the day she died.

The jury said it "regrets" aged 19 and 21 years, failed to assume proper responsibility for the child's health and ruled that the couple's other child, 2½ years old, and any future children should be visited by the Childrens' Aid Society.

No explanation was offered by the couple for the child's broken ribs.

U. S. Demands Release of Three Flyers

MOSCOW (AP)—The United States made a new demand today for the release of three American flyers shot down in East Germany and warned that their continued detention jeopardizes U.S.-Soviet relations.

Charge d'affaires Walter J. Stoessel presented the demand at the Soviet foreign office, implying it with a denial of Soviet charges that the three men were on an espionage mission when their reconnaissance bomber was shot down March 10.

An embassy spokesman said Stoessel also warned the Russians that "further delay in release and return of the airmen clearly jeopardized possibilities for expanding areas of U.S.-Soviet co-operation and can affect present efforts in co-operation in various fields."

TWO SENTENCED

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Two of three young men accused of killing a Malden policeman have been sentenced to life imprisonment. Louis Ladetto, 17, of Cambridge, and Lawrence Guerra, 25, of Watertown, changed their pleas of innocent of first-degree murder Tuesday to guilty of second-degree murder. The third defendant, Peter Ladetto, 25, brother of Louis, remained on trial.

Unanimous

dent Claude Bissell said the budget addressed the major problems of financial aid to universities and to graduate university students.

PRAISES EXTENSION

The Canadian Home and School and Parent - Teacher Federation praised the provision for extension of family allowances.

Murray Ross, president of the Canadian Federation said the extension is a start, but added that such financial assistance should be extended to university students.

Mrs. P. J. Glaubitz, president of the Ontario Federation of home and school associations, said the 17-year limit on the extension is "foolish."

"It is not in accord with the pre-election promises of both major parties, who pledged allowances up to 18."

There was praise, too, for income tax measure allowing part-time students to deduct tuition fees from their taxible incomes. This would retroactive to Jan. 1, has hitherto been limited to full-time university students. It would also help part-time students in high schools, technical training courses, and apprenticeship.

ANGRY OVER TAX

But house-building and construction spokesmen were angry over Mr. Gordon's decision to stick with the sales tax imposed last year on building materials. The rate will be eight per cent in two weeks and rise to 11 per cent next Jan. 1.

On the other hand, financial circles were relieved at Mr. Gordon's withdrawal from another decision of last year's budget—the scheduled increase next Jan. 1 to 20 per cent from 15 in the withholding taxes on earnings paid foreign owners of companies in Canada which don't offer a minimum 25-per-cent ownership to Canadian investors.

Lawson Glasgow, president of the Investment Dealers' Association, termed this a beneficial move that would help reaffirm foreign confidence in Canada.

Mr. Gordon's budget looked geared to continued economic buoyancy, combined with revenue boosts built in by last year's budget, to swell his budgetary revenues by 7.9 per cent to $6,-700,000,000 in 1958-59. Budgetary expenditures are forecast at $7,155,000,000, up 3.8 per cent. On top of the resulting one-third cut in the budgetary deficit, the operations of the non-budgetary old age pensions fund are expected to switch from a $94,000,000 deficit to a $15,000,000 surplus.

MAY BE LOSER

The president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, H. Roy Crabtree, said Mr. Gordon may well be the loser in the long run by his decision not to cut taxes.

Lower taxes could very well stimulate the economy, generating even higher revenues and eliminating the deficit sooner, he said.

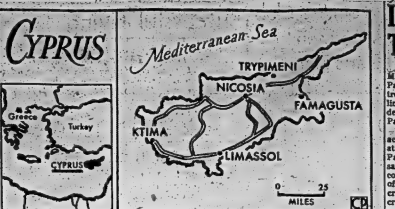
But his view wasn't unanimous. George Mooney, president of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, said the budget policy "will be a disappointment to wishful tax-cut thinkers and a tonic to those who still believe in economic common sense."

The budget announced that the government plans legislation to encourage life insurance companies to invest more of their funds in Canadian common stocks. Present law limits them to a maximum selling of 25 per cent of their investments in stocks, and officials said companies are well below this ceiling.

J. T. Bryden, president of North American Life Assurance company, said some companies will buy more stocks if present regulations are relaxed. But, prices and yields would remain the major factors in any decision.

ISN'T EXCITING

David A. Gilbert, national general manager of the Retail Merchants Association of Canada, described the budget as unexciting and unimaginative.



"I think it's a source of disappointment to a large number of taxpayers."

But he added that such a budget could have been expected, because of the report due from the Carter royal commission on taxation.

Allan Lambert, president of Toronto-Dominion Bank, said the Canadian economy is "being very well set up" and you can't criticise Mr. Gordon for deferring tax cuts until he has read the Carter report."

Commonwealth Delegates To Exchange Trade Views

LONDON (CP) — Commonwealth representatives will meet here Thursday to exchange views on the 122-country United Nations conference on trade and development opening in Geneva next Monday.

High Commissioner Lionel Chevrier and interim diplomat Dana Wilgress will represent Canada at the London meeting, which will likely bear the views of all 18 Commonwealth countries but not try to hammer out a set line for Geneva.

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, flying to Geneva during the weekend, was scheduled to deliver the Canadian policy statement Tuesday at the conference which is an outgrowth of the "UN decade of development" resolution adopted by the General Assembly in New York in 1961.

Easily the most potent of its kind ever undertaken, the conference is aimed at improving the lot of the poorer countries through expansion of international trade.

The Commonwealth's role at the 12-week talks was seen as particularly important since it is already, in the words of one diplomat, a "microcosm of developed and developing countries."

DON'T WANT BATTLE

"We don't hope conference won't become a battle ground between the developed and the developing — or between East and West," the diplomat added.

Included on the agenda is a recommendation that Commonwealth preferences be superseded in favor of blanket preferences granted by industrial countries to all the developing nations.

A Canadian source doubted whether the London meeting—expected to last until Saturday and part of Friday—will have time for negotiation on the preference issue and it was not known yet exactly what form Geneva proposals might take. "It would be foolish to try to anticipate," he said.

Britain is willing to back the new concept of preferences if Commonwealth countries agree, if other industrial countries agree and if the present most favored nation tariff rates are not raised as a consequence.

WANT NEW GROUP

Another agenda item is a recommendation by UN economists for the setting up of a new universal trade organization to replace the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, of which Canada is a member.

Britain and Canada, it is understood, oppose any move that might seem to duplicate already deep in negotiations aimed at slashing tariffs in the so-called Kennedy round talks, scheduled to open early in May.

A new international trade organization has been opposed by the Soviet Union, which charged that East-West trade until now has been hampered by a "policy of discrimination and restrictions, stubbornly promoted by the most reactionary and aggressive circles of the West."

Although opposed to scrapping of GATT, Canada and Britain—as well as the United States—are thought to be willing to discuss linking it more closely with the UN Social and Economic Council.

SAID INEFFECTIVE

UN economists said in their recommendation that GATT, with 72 regular and participating member countries, is unsuitable for dealing with trade among industrial countries but "it has not proved equally effective in coping with trade between the developing countries and the industrial countries, nor has it promoted trade relations among the developing countries themselves."

The starting point for the conference is the goal of attaining an annual growth rate of five per cent in the income of the developing countries by 1970.

Although modest, the goal was considered difficult because, while primary commodity exports from developing countries are expanding relatively slowly, demand for imports of manufactured goods is growing at a pace that increases with development.

DEVELOPING RAPIDLY

Libya's oilfields first appeared on the map in 1955, produced 1,000,000 tons in 1961, will produce an estimated 40,000,000 tons in 1964.

Indian Troops Will Cross Truce Line if Necessary

NEW DELHI (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru told a cheering Parliament today that Indian troops will cross the cease-fire line in Kashmir if necessary to defend Indian territory against Pakistan.

"We are not prepared to go across the cease-fire line and attack the territory now under Pakistan occupation," Nehru said. "But obviously if it becomes necessary in the defence of our territory from them to cross the line, then they will cross it."

INDIAN TROOPS

Nehru's statement was the strongest made by any top official of the government since the recent outbreak of skirmishing and raids across the cease-fire line in the disputed Himalayan state.

India and Pakistan fought over Kashmir in 1948 and have been quarrelling over the state ever since.

Commenting on charges that the Pakistan government is instigating the border clashes, Nehru said: "I know it is a regular campaign."

RAID INDIAN VILLAGE

Defence Minister Y. B. Chavan told Parliament 25 Pakistanis raided an Indian village 1½ miles on India's side of the cease-fire line Sunday night, killing four persons including an 11-year-old boy.

Chavan said India had lodged a complaint with UN observers in Kashmir.

The Pakistan government has denied that Communist China and Pakistan have agreed to co-ordinate foreign and military policies affecting India, a high government official told The Associated Press earlier today.

The official, who declined to be quoted by name, said in an interview India is overstating its policy on the assumption that in the future it will free two hostile neighbors working together rather than separately.

This indicates that the Indian government is discounting the possibility of making a separate diplomatic deal with either Pakistan or Communist China to relieve the pressure on at least part of its northern border.

WINS A PLEDGE

Premier Chou En-lai of Red China was told of Pakistan last month and won a pledge of close co-operation from President Mohammad Ayub Khan, but there was no public mention of any military or diplomatic collaboration.

Reports of skirmishes on the India - Pakistan border are reaching New Delhi in increasing numbers. Regular army units from both sides have been involved, and stories of atrocities in the disputed states of Kashmir are widely circulated.

The Indian official said his government considers these skirmishes potentially dangerous but does not think an escalation into a greater conflict is threatened.

County Road Expenditures For Year Total $456,750

Thomson, County Engineer, submitted a lengthy and comprehensive report of roads at this session of the Prince Edward County Council.

In his report, Mr. Thomson stated that the total expenditure for roads for 1964 would be $456,750. This was broken down into $367,000 for construction, and $200,000 for maintenance, plus $6,000 in non subsidiable items and $4,750 which is being returned to the County Treasurer of a loan made in 1963 for fencing and property on Road No. 12.

The total road levy from the County will be $205,700. Making a proposed County Mill Rate for roads of 8.11567 mills. In 1963 the estimate for roads was $395,500.

Mr. Thomson told council that all work planned in 1963 was finished on schedule. He also said that the Road Committee had put in a lot of hours in January, investigating various types of construction for the proposed new county garage. Rough estimates were received, and it was felt that a concrete block building would serve the purpose best.

Much work and many decisions have to be made before tenders can be called, and it is hoped this can be done by sometime in June.

After much Road Committee discussion, it was decided to accept the tender of the Crothers Co., Ltd, Toronto in the amount of $18,741 for the supplying of a new Crawler Loader even if it was not the lowest tender.

Two tenders were received, the Crothers for a Caterpillar Diesel with a small "pup" engine to turn over and start the huge diesel engine, and one from the International Co. It was decided by the committee that the International had too high a speed in their engine, and the decision was made to spend the extra $900. for the machine from Crothers.

The committee also authorized the clerk to advise the Minister of Municipal Affairs that the county is to take advantage of the new Municipal Assistance Program in the amount of about $60,000 for the building of the new county garage.

SALARIES RAISED

Under this scheme, the cost of $60,000 will be paid for 50 percent by grant, and when the balance is debenturned, the county will receive an additional 35 percent rebate.

The salaries of labourers, truck drivers, loader operators, grader operators, foremen also are to be raised by 8c per hour if a recommendation of the road committee is approved by council. It was reported that even with this proposed increase, that the wages would still be a little lower than those paid to Picton employees.

The matter of an increase in the salary of Ron Thomson, County Engineer was thrown open to discussion, after Mr. Thomson left the council chambers, and after a very lengthy discussion, it was decided that his salary would remain the same as at present, until the contract be and the county signed is due for renewal, in November 1965.

The Engineer's salary at present is $7,400 per year, and in addition he earned about $1,400 doing "odd engineering jobs" around the county. He also receives a car allowance and expenses when out of town.

Mr. Thomson suggested that a salary of $9,000 per year would be more suitable, plus the annual increments on all of it. If we could hire a man, who could act as Plumbing Inspector and Safety Inspector, then we might be better to ask for just 50 per cent of the cost, in this way, this would almost pay for the services of the man who would be doing two jobs".

"We have two county inspectors now," quipped Deputy John Fox, Reeve of Hallowell who have egg - butter - dairy-bigways and female hoop inspectors, pretty soon we will have to have an inspector to inspect inspectors."

A report from the Prince Edward County Home, showed that an engineering consultant had checked the Picton disposal plant, and had ascertained to their compete satisfaction, that the plant is large enough to include the sewage from the home.

Tenders will be called for the delivery of 4,000 gallons of milk to the County Home. The Home Committee also recommended that an increase of $10. per month be paid to the help apart from the nurse, at the home. This will be referred to the Finance Committee for budget.

County Council Wants Province To Pay Costs

PICTON (Staff) — The Prince Edward County Council wended through a lot of business on the first day of their March meeting which started Tuesday morning. Most of the afternoon session was taken up with the road committee report.

The subject of hiring a safety inspector came up at the morning session. The hiring of such a man is now mandatory according to an edict from the Provincial Government.

Council endorsed a resolution from the County of Wentworth "that the Province pay 100 per cent of the cost of such a man, when hired". Athol's Reeve, Gordon Demore, said, "I will not vote for the hiring of such a man if the Province does not pay the entire cost."

Harold Bonter, Reeve of Ameliasburg said, "Who is the Government, when you boil it down. It really means us, all of us. If we could hire a man, who could act as Plumbing Inspector and Safety Inspector, then we might be better to ask for just 50 per cent of the cost, in this way, this would almost pay for the services of the man who would be doing two jobs".

Rotary Dinner 'Invaded' By Other Service Clubs

PICTON (Staff) — The Rotarian Rev. Robert Wright told the Rotary Club recently that his opinion there was not enough fraternization between the Service Clubs.

That was all that was needed. About 15 members of the Kiwanis Club were joined by members of the Kinsmen Club and complete with band, and we use the word band, loosely, marched three times around the dining room as soon as the Rotarians were seated, led by Rev. Robert, president Dan invited them to stay for lunch, "The least we, as a Rotary Club can do, under these circumstances, is to treat these men as our guests."

The "Band" had a trumpet, two base drums, a saxophone, cymbols, a trombone and a snarr drum and made a lot of noise. Picture if you can, Jess Mason, prominent Kiwanian, pounding a huge base drum with a wooden coat hanger.

With their hats and instruments ablaze with the "wearin of the green," and playing, and again the word is used loosely, "McNamara's Band," the invaders were given a royal welcome by Rotarian president Dan Keeler.

After a sing song, by the visitors, led by Rev. Robert, Rotary Club recently that in his/opinion there was not enough fraternization between the Service Clubs.

That was all that was needed. About 15 members of the Kiwanis Club were joined by members of the Kinsmen Club and complete with band, and we use the word band, loosely, marched three times around the dining room as soon as the Rotarians were seated, led by Kathy Ingram, Sandra MacDonald, Jeff Struthers; 7 to 8 years, Mark Wannamaker, Kethie Root, Paul Pierson; boys 9 to 11 years, Alvin Cheryl and Daryl Upton, Theresa, Delbert and Eric Hardy, Jerry Van Hallem; girls ten to 12 years, Fanny Lavender, Christine Ingrun, Sharon Cassidy; 13 to 16 years, boys, Carl Morden, Roger Wight, Colin McQuaid; 13 to 16 girls, Peggy Lane, Rose Struthers, Heather Wallace and Jean Thomson; best dressed lady, Mrs. Howard Palmer; best dressed man, Peter Bailey; best dressed couple, Linda, Dennis and Sandra Wight; youngest skater on ice, Charlotte Stewart; oldest skater, Mrs. Douglas Herrington; best costume, Mrs. Bruce Ferguson.

Door prizes were won by Jack Miller, Mrs. Jean Sprague and Barry Greatrix. Money prizes were all donated by the business men of Wellington with cases of canned goods also donated. An oil painting donated by Lt.-Col. W. A. Davern with tickets sold was won by Daryl Boyce.

The next feature was an exciting hockey game between Picton High School girls and Wellington High School girls with the Wellington girls proving a little too much for Picton and won the game 5 to 0.

A final event was a broom ball gameplayed with Bloomfield A.O.T.S. Club vs. Wellington A.O.T.S. which resulted in a 1-1 tie and this concluded a successful carnival on ice.

Irish Government May Curb Land Sales to Foreigners

DUBLIN (Reuters)—The Irish government may soon take steps to curb the purchase of farm land by foreigners.

Since the end of the Second World War, an estimated 200,000 acres of fertile Irish soil has passed into foreign hands. This excludes unproductive seaside and mountain land bought by foreigners with government approval for tourist exploitation.

Some of the landlords of the agricultural land have been Americans but most have been English and West Germans in particular have purchased farms and factory sites throughout the country.

During the last two years, says Lands Minister Michael Moran, foreigners have acquired 15,000 acres of land for which they have paid nearly £1,000,000 ($3,000,000).

Both government and opposition members of Parliament have expressed alarm at the situation. It was recently suggested in debate that the government should increase to 10 or even 100 per cent the present tax of 25 per cent on foreign-bought land.

At present, Irish law lays down that property may be acquired by an alien in the same way as by an Irish citizen.

The government has suppressed its dislike of any solution which might nullify an individual's right to sell his property on the open market to the highest bidder.

It is believed here, however, that the government will soon be forced to introduce some means of control in the face of vigorous and mounting protest inside and outside Parliament.

Tender Accepted By Governors

PICTON (Staff) — William Cook, Prince Edward Memorial Hospital Administrator, told The Ontario Intelligencer on Tuesday that the tender of M. Sullivan and Son of Kingston had been accepted by the Board of Governors. The acceptance is, of course, contingent on the approval of the Ontario Hospital Services Commission.

No mention was made as to the amount of the tender.

No Canada-U.S. Agreement To Guarantee Labor Peace On Lakes Is Official Word

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Seaway officials in Ottawa, Montreal and Washington Tuesday denied all knowledge of a Toronto report that a Canada-United States agreement had been reached to guarantee labor peace on the Great Lakes.

They also claimed no knowledge of the report that Hal C. Banks, president of the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.), was to be fired within three weeks.

The report, in the Toronto Telegram, quoted unidentified sources close to maritime truce talks, appointed by the federal government to oversee free waterfront unions in Canada.

The newspaper said the decision to dismiss Banks "comes at a time when the governments of Canada and the U.S. have reached a top-secret, unofficial agreement with the SIU in the U.S. guaranteeing peace on the Great Lakes."

In Montreal, SIU President Banks said he knew "absolutely nothing" about such an agreement, and declined to comment on the newspaper report.

DOUBTS AGREEMENT

He doubted there had been any agreement, official or otherwise, between the governments of Canada and the U.S. on one hand and the SIU in the U.S. on the other.

John Leslie, deputy assistant labor secretary in Washington, said he knew of no Canada-U.S. agreement.

"We have said we will use our good offices to try to keep peace on the Great Lakes like we have free unions and we cannot guarantee what they will do," Leslie said in an interview.

Paul Hall, president of the Seafarers' International Union of North America, said in Washington he fully supports Mr. Banks and would oppose any action to bring him back to the U.S.

"There is obviously no truth in this story," (in The Telegram) Hall said in an interview. "We have had no meetings with Canadian and United States officials on this point and we still fully support Banks."

DENIES THERE'S PACT

In Ottawa, a government official in close touch with the Great Lakes labor situation said there has been no agreement between the two governments.

Mr. Justice Victor Dwyer, chairman of the maritime board of trustees, said he had no comment to make on the report.

Labor Minister MacEachen said in the Commons Tuesday he had no information to support The Telegram report that Banks is to be fired.

In reply to a question by Michael Starr (PC — Ontario) about the reported firing of Banks in the next three weeks, Mr. MacEachen said he would check into the report and make a further statement in the Commons.

The Telegram report said the retention of Banks as SIU president was part of a package Canada-U.S. agreement and that there had been pressure from the Canadian Congress of Labor on the government to oust Banks.

It said the recent discovery by the maritime truce board that their telephones were being tapped was one of the reasons why officials of the Canadian green light for Bank's dismissal.

WIRES ATTACHED

Mr. MacEachen said Tuesday, in reply to a question Monday by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, that wires were attached to the trustees' line which could have been tied in to the Banks conversations. There was no proof that calls were monitored, and the matter was still being investigated.

The Telegram quoted Professor Harry L. Crone, an economist with the International Brotherhood of Longshoremen, Port and General Workers (CLC), as saying he believed talks aimed at a peace settlement have taken place.

"Three weeks ago I would have said the agreement included Banks's retention as president of the SIU. Events in recent days tend to indicate that Banks may be dismissed soon," Professor Crowe is quoted as saying.

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal marine union trusteeship is it is prepared if necessary to remove union officers but denied this properly is a function of unions themselves.

It also says of harassment of Canadian union members on the Great Lakes by American unions that "any formal approach to the union organizations by the U.S. should be made by Canadian union organizations rather than by the Canadian themselves.

This attitude is stated in the first report of the three-man board of trustees, created last year by Parliament to attempt to restore peace to the Great Lakes labor waterfront. The report was tabled Tuesday in the House of Commons by Labor Minister MacEachen.

It made no mention of any names but obviously was aimed at controversial characters like Banks of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.) and Hal C. Banks.

"The trustees have felt that, if at all possible, the removal of irresponsible officers of any union should be effected whenever this is necessary by persons and processes in the trade union movement itself. Consequently they have considered it their duty that steps be made to induce responsible officers of the trade union concerned to make changes where they are required.

PROMISES ACTION

"Should such efforts fail or not be employed, or if in the course of their investigation it appears to the trustees that the past or present conduct of a union officer makes it advisable that action be taken in the future conduct of union affairs to remove him, or that the removal of such an officer is in the interest of the welfare of Canada, he will of course be removed."

The report also called for the repeal of the federal shipping inquiry which led to formation of the Canada Shipping Act board upon its recommended his replacement. The trustees have faced criticism for declining to act.

The report, made under requirements of the establishing act, was about 2,000 words and covers the Calendar year ended Dec. 31. Much of it repeats already published information.

The general tone of the first report is that the trustees reflects their initial reluctance to "interfere as little as possible with the affairs of unions consistent with carrying out the duties of the trustees under the act."

Ontario Veterans Undecided on Action Course

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario war veterans were undecided Tuesday on a course of action over a government decision to open veterans' hospitals to public use.

Arthur Adams, president of the Ontario command of the Canadian Legion, said a decision would depend on the department of veterans affairs reply to a request for further information and clarification of the decision.

Veterans Affairs Minister Teillet announced in Ottawa Monday the government wants to open the veterans' hospitals over to civilian use, if necessary, although maintaining certain priorities for veterans.

It was unclear, Mr. Adams said, whether the hospitals would qualify for cost control, but that seemed to be what the minister was proposing.

"Until such time as we received (prior to the Monday announcement) said the hospitals would continue to be run by the department of veterans' affairs," Mr. Adams added.

He said he would oppose the move if governments or municipal groups provided nursing homes for veterans, more of whom were requiring, chronic rather than active treatment.

Eric Young, past-president of the Ontario branch of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada, said he did not object to the policy, unless it meant veterans would need to receive the care they deserved.

Major Patrick Biggs, secretary of the legion, said: "I'm not fighting against it. Give them an inch and they'll want it all."

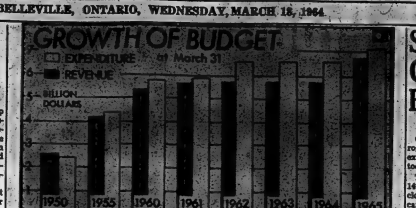
Leonard Lay, general secretary of the Fleetwings unit of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans Association here, commented: "We do not object to civilians using the vacant facilities in hospitals, but we think they should remain under veterans' administration."

Minister Agrees With Brief on Indian Welfare

OTTAWA (CP) — Citizenship Minister Tremblay said Tuesday he is in complete agreement with proposals that the provincial government assume jurisdiction over Indian welfare, health and education as quickly as is approved by the Indians themselves.

"I am in complete agreement with the suggestions in your brief," Mr. Tremblay told a delegation of the Canadian Home and School and Parent-Teacher Federation.

He also was planning a federal-provincial conference for May, which will discuss for the first time the part the provinces will play in Indian education, social welfare and health.



The brief presented on behalf of the federation by Rev. Allah Spence, a full-blooded Indian and president of the Pelican Indian residential school at Sioux Lookout, Ont., made these recommendations:

1. Transfer of jurisdiction in Indian welfare and education to the provinces "as rapidly as is approved by the Indian people themselves."

2. More Indian teachers and special leadership training for them.

3. Special courses for non-Indian teachers to give them some appreciation of Indian culture, customs and attitudes of Indians.

4. Development of Indian school boards.

BUDGET CONTINUES GROWTH — The federal budget presented to Parliament Monday night by Finance Minister Gordon forecast spending of $7,155,000,000 and revenue of $6,700,000,000—both up from the previous fiscal year 1, compared with $685,000,000 the previous year.

'Operation Snow Goose' Going According to Plan

TRENTON, Ont. (CP)—RCAF officials said Tuesday the overseas airlift of Canadian army troops to Cyprus is progressing according to plan.

RCAF Yukon and Hercules aircraft are leaving Ancienne Lorette airport, near Quebec City, on a regular schedule.

"Operation Snow Goose," official nickname for Canadian troops and equipment going to Cyprus, which began Sunday, will encompass a total of nine Hercules and 19 Yukon flights involving about 1,000 flying hours.

As of Tuesday afternoon, six aircraft from three Hercules had landed in Nicosia carrying troops and equipment.

Weather permitting the airlift should be completed with last aircraft returned to Canada by the evening of March 24, the RCAF said. From that time there will be a continuing requirement for support flights to Nicosia.

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Hellyer said in the Commons Tuesday Canadian forces stationed in Cyprus will have their own medical supplies and officers. But hospital services will be provided by the British army and air force.

Mr. Hellyer told the Commons in reply to a question that Canadian medical officers and other additional assistants are being attached to the British hospital.

The British army and air forces hospitals in Cyprus could handle casualties because but normally they do not hold patients for long treatment. If needed, patients can be sent to Deversbrucken, the minister said.

Want Present Treatment of Vets Unchanged

OTTAWA (CP) — The Royal Canadian Legion opposes any change that will alter the present treatment of veterans under the veterans' treatment regulations, a legion spokesman said Tuesday.

Fred O'Brechi, first vice-president of the veterans' organization, was commenting on the government's proposal to transfer 13 hospitals run by the department of veterans' affairs to local authorities for use as general active - treatment institutions.

Mr. O'Brecht said in a statement that the new policy outlined Monday by Veterans Affairs Minister Teillet did not include enough detail to guarantee that the veterans' treatment rights and privileges would not be adversely affected.

He called for more details of the changes "very soon" and assurance that in the meantime no action would be taken that would alter the present provisions for veterans' treatment.

Mr. Teillet said Monday that no DVA hospital will be transferred unless disabled veterans are assured of immediate treatment at all times, according to DVA standards, at other institutions and that other sick veterans are able to be treated in their own communities at institutions of accredited standards.

Some Loopholes In Tax Laws Cleaned Up

CLEANED UP — Handful of loopholes in Canada's income tax laws were filled up in Monday's budget, including those affecting older people and to create a sizeable estate free of death tax.

They were among a variety of changes not specifically mentioned in Finance Minister Gordon's budget speech, but contained in tax-change resolutions that will come under legislative action in the Commons later in the session.

One change in the estate tax act is designed to rule out a complicated device being used by some people to lessen their estate tax. Officials described the problem this way:

A person who normally couldn't get a life insurance policy because of age or sickness makes a deal with a life insurance company to buy an annuity on condition he is given an insurance policy. The company agrees, expecting he'll not live long, to pay him a sufficient amount of the annuity. When the man dies, his life insurance procedures in favor of his estate for tax purposes.

One official said substantial sums of money have been escaped tax by this device.

Under the tax change, effective from Tuesday, insurance policies sold conditional on annuity payments, the taxable estate after death will include either the amount paid for the annuity or the annuity receipts before death, or the amount of life insurance payable, whichever is greater.

Another estate tax change will permit $2,500 instead of the present $1,000 to be paid from the joint bank account of a deceased person without the need for a clearance from the revenue department.

Income tax change would levy tax, starting this year, on any amounts received by an employee from the winding up or reorganization of a pension fund.

Another change, effective this year, would allow the revenue department to recapture income tax on a loss if the taxpayer has claimed as deductible depreciation charges in cases where a business is sold out his share in a partnership.

It allows the department to rule that a part of the proceeds "reasonable in the circumstances" should be considered to be proceeds from the sale of depreciable property of the taxpayer used in the partnership.

MAILS NOTES

WASHINGTON (AP) — In appreciation for expressions of sympathy on the death of her husband, some 900,000 notes from Mrs. John F. Kennedy were mailed St. Patrick's Day. "Mrs. Kennedy is deeply appreciative of your sympathy and grateful for your thoughtfulness," they said.

Life Insists He Committed Two Robberies

TORONTO (CP) — A man serving a life sentence in Kingston penitentiary faces another cross-examination Tuesday that he committed two robberies in 1959 for which John Edward Namara, 27, has served nearly four years.

Gerald Arsenault, 31, told the 10 men and two women jurors in Supreme Court that he had held up the two shops and committed two other robberies he had not revealed to police.

Four Crown witnesses, who saw the gunman involved in the two Dec. 13, 1959, robberies, testified that Arsenault was too short to be the robber.

McNamara, on trial for the fourth time for the 1959 robbery of Steffi Furs of St. Clair Ave. W. F. B. Rogers then was drinking in a downtown tavern with his brother and two friends at the time of the holdups.

RELEASED ON BAIL

McNamara was released from his custody last Friday when his bail was put up $3,000 bail.

At his first trial in January and February, 1962, the charges could not agree on a verdict. A month later, a third jury convicted him of the robberies and sentenced him to six years' imprisonment.

A new trial was granted last month when Arsenault, serving life sentence for 11 armed robberies, told the Ontario Court of Appeal he had committed both robberies for which McNamara was convicted.

The trial continues.

Child Taken Off Ledge By Fireman

NEW YORK (AP)—Flames and smoke filled the 10th-floor bedroom of a burning apartment in the Bronx Tuesday. Standing on a window ledge, clinging by one hand to a casement was a terrified six-year-old girl.

Fire Capt. John Sweeney, arriving with Engine Company 60, saw the child. Monique Harold, high above the ground. He took an elevator to the floor and, without pausing for the protection of hose cover, entered the flaming, smoke-clogged apartment.

"It was dark as all hell," Sweeney said. "I knew it was a matter of time.

"Then I got on my belly and snaked my way, and then I saw some light and her hand.

"I grabbed (it) holding it tightly, afraid she might fall if she lost her balance.

"I put my arms around her and dashed through the fire."

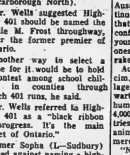
The child was taken to hospital for treatment of shock. Otherwise, she was not hurt.

Sweeney, exhausted and his face blackened, said he felt as if he had just finished a 100-yard dash.

Highway 401 May Get Name Not Number

TORONTO (CP) — Highway 401 may be given a name instead of a number, Highways Minister MacNaughton indicated Tuesday.

"Nothing is less romantic than a highway than a number," he told the legislature with Thomas Wells (PC — Scarborough North).



Mr. Wells suggested Highway 401 should be named the Leslie M. Frost throughway, after the former premier of Ontario.

Another way to select name for it would be to hold a contest among school children in counties through which 401 runs, he said.

Mr. Wells referred to Highway 401 as a "black ribbon of concrete" in the main street of Ontario."

Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury) argued against naming a highway after a living Conservative. Mr. Frost, History would judge the former premier before anything is named after him.

Mr. Sopha said he has a "well - founded impression" one of the things which distinguishes a liberal from a Conservative is that the Conservative likes the artificial trappings of having his name associated with an edifice of some kind.

'Is there anything wrong Mr. Bingley?'

STOCK SUSPENDED

Shares of Peruvian Oil and Minerals Ltd. Tuesday were suspended from trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange for failure to file information with the prospectus requirements for purchase of an interest in an American company. Shares of Peruvian were trading at 35 cents when the suspension came into effect.

DEAL APPROVED

The executive committee of Shattuck Denn Mining Corp. and Jubilee Iron Corp., a firm with headquarters in Montreal, have approved in principle the acquisition by Shattuck Denn of Jubilee assets, it was announced Tuesday. Willard J. La Morte, president of Shattuck Denn said the action will be submitted to the board of directors for ratification. Canadian Javelin Ltd. owns about 47 per cent of Jubilee iron stock.

INTEREST ACQUIRED

Robert Campbell, Chairman of Mid-Western Industrial Gas Ltd., and Maurice P. Strong, president of Canadian Industrial Gas Ltd., announced Tuesday that Canadian Industrial Gas has acquired an interest of about 19 per cent in Mid-Western, purchasing 600,000 common shares at $3.00 a share from Mid-Western's treasury.

Saskatchewan Legislature Closes, New Election Is Expected in Early Spring

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

One provincial legislature prorogued Tuesday and another is expected to wind up its session today.

The sixth session of the 14th Saskatchewan legislature closed, leaving members free to campaign for a provincial election expected this spring.

A relaxed Lord's Day Act is among legislation which another needs final approval before the first session of the 25th Nova Scotia legislature can be prorogued today.

Both sessions lasted six weeks.

The CCF government, which has 34 seats in the 55-seat Saskatchewan house, and the Liberal opposition, which holds 21 seats, set out during the session the issues on which they will fight the election campaign.

Major legislation among 71 bills passed dealt with tax support for separate high schools. A bill to give courts the power to revise harsh interest rates was allowed to die on the order paper.

APPROVES 122 ITEMS

The Nova Scotia legislature approved 122 pieces of legislation, 60 of which were pushed through third reading Tuesday, leaving only 13 bills left before the session could end.

The two governments would leave eight legislatures still in session. The budget debate ended in the New Brunswick house Tuesday.

Newfoundland Premier Charles Dunphy, the only independent member in the house, said air travel costs from Newfoundland to Labrador via Eastern Provincial Airways were discriminatory and prohibitive.

Prince Edward Island — Education Minister L. G. Dewar announced a $10,000 bequest to establish the Strathgartney Scholarship for final-year students at Prince of Wales College.

New Brunswick — Premier Robichaud said the province is nowhere near bankruptcy, as charged by the Progressive Conservative opposition.

PRAISES IRISH

Quebec — Premier Lesage and Maillard Steinkopf said the government is investigating the possibility of bonding car dealers to protect the public. Used car dealers now are licensed by the government.

Alberta — Earl Hinnitt (SC —Spirit River) said action to establish and pave the Alaska Highway must be taken soon before the United States loses interest.

British Columbia — Backbencher Ernest Lecours (SC—Dewdney) said legislation to increase jurors' fees to $10 from $8 a day won't eliminate hardship in the case of jury duties. He suggested a juror be paid his normal salary plus expenses incurred in jury duty.

Out of Ashes of Auschwitz Comes Wan Ember of Hope

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Writer

Out of the ashes of Auschwitz glimmers a tiny wan ember of hope for the new Germany.

The hope is with the young; the hope is with the rising generation striding critically at the German past.

This is the solace that emerges from Frankfurt, Frankfurt, West Germany, where men charged with making brutality daily business are undergoing belated trial.

They have been, one commentator notes, "fished out" of their respectable middle-aged lives and their daily routine to answer for crimes that numb the mind.

WHAT TO FORGET

The same incomprehension, the same urge to forget the past, afflicts the generation of this age group. Observers of the Auschwitz trial, which may continue for months, say that German reactions reflect a conflict of generations — the young against the old, the ones impatient at attempts to rake up the past.

Auschwitz, now called Oswiecim, once was a peaceful village in southern Poland. At wartime it became a gigantic human abattoir where some 4,000,000 persons died in the furies, mostly Jews, lived like animals until the moment of merciful death.

"Night after night the sky was red and the air was polluted with the smell of burning bodies," a newspaper man in Krakow recalled recently.

The Poles have preserved Auschwitz as a museum of horror and speak of it more in sorrow than in anger. When this reporter visited the camp two years ago, I found that the Auschwitz of the sight of piles of human hair, of ponds glazed with a grey scum formed by human ashes, of other relics of a time that makes all adjectives seem inadequate.

HORROR TOO GREAT

The scale of horror somehow freezes out compassion, forcing the visitor to concentrate on a single poignant focus, such as a pair of children's shoes or the photograph, in the dock's profile, of an individual victim.

The same impression of dazed disbelief and unreality emerges at the Frankfurt trial. As Anne Sharpley writes in London's Evening Standard, it takes some "shaking little item" to get behind the guard that the mind puts up. One such statistic is that seven typewriters were in constant use, in day and night shifts, merely for official reports on those who died at Auschwitz.

The hope emerging from Frankfurt is that the younger generation of Germany will refuse to "look the other way," will examine dispassionately what happened, resolve that it shall never recur.

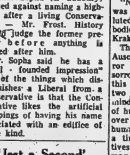
Full Support Given Plan in South Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States says that South Viet Nam has developed a sound central plan for fighting the Communist Viet Cong insurgency and recommends the creation of a highly trained guerrilla force and new equipment.

Full U.S. support was pledged "for as long as it is required to bring Communist aggression and terrorism under control."

And there were indications the U.S. will provide some increased military and economic aid.

The White House disclosed these developments in a statement issued Tuesday after Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, reported to the National Security Council on their recent fact-finding trip to South Viet Nam.



The council and Henry Cabot Lodge, U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam, support the report and recommendations, it said. It accepted its principal recommendations, the statement said.

The war in Viet Nam has been running steadily against South Viet Nam in recent weeks but the statement said significant improvement is possible in the months ahead.

The statement said the South Viet Nam government, headed by Maj.-Gen. Duong Van Minh, "acting vigorously and effectively."

The statement added that "where the South Vietnamese government now has the power to clear any part of its territory, Gen. Khanh's new program is designed to clear and hold, step by step and province by province."

'Jest a Second'

Authority Challenged by Tobacco Men

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission pondered Tuesday seemingly conflicting views between medical groups on the value of labelling cigarettes as health hazards.

The American Cancer Society told the FTC that some 300 Americans die each day from lung cancer caused by cigarette smoking and some 800 more are dying daily from other diseases linked to smoking.

Dr. Wendell Scott, president of the society, said cautionary labels on cigarette packages and advertising, as the FTC proposes, would go far in unhinging educational programs against cigarette smoking.

But the American Medical Association has told the commission in a statement it doesn't believe the health hazard labelling is necessary.

The commission has proposed to require that cigarette packs and ads be labelled with cautionary warnings about possible health hazards, and has proposed some other restrictive requirements on cigarette claims.

For the second day, lawyers for advertisers and tobacco sellers challenged the authority of the commission to levy such broad industry-wide rules.

Radio-Activity Deceases Since Test Ban Treaty

MOSCOW (AP) — The Russian Academy of Medical Sciences said Tuesday that radioactivity in the atmosphere has decreased 100 times since the signing of the nuclear test ban treaty last August.

In a statement broadcast over Moscow radio, the academy announced that "the signing of the Moscow test-ban treaty put an end to further entrance of radioactive elements in the atmosphere."

Moscow radio then declared: "At the present moment, radioactive elements in precipitation have decreased hundreds of times."

The statement added that if no further tests were to be carried on, radioactivity would be further decreased and the danger to humanity from radioactive elements would be removed.

"As established by investigations of scientific research institutes of the U.S.S.R. Academy of Medical Sciences," the academy statement said, "the continuation of nuclear weapon tests in the atmosphere, underwater and in outer space at the rate of previous years would quickly increase the biosphere's radioactive pollution to a level when accumulation of radioactive matter in human beings, especially children, would overstep the maximum permissible doses, that is, levels which do not impair human health."

The test ban agreement was signed Aug. 5, 1963 by the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union in Moscow. Under its terms nuclear testing is forbidden in the air, outer space and in the water.

France, now trying to build its own nuclear force, and Red China did not join in the general world endorsement of the ban that followed.

Hillier

HILLIER — The community party at Wellington was well attended on March 9th.

Mrs. Wesley Cunningham has undergone surgery at Belleville General Hospital and is making satisfactory progress.

Mrs. Elza Trumpour, Belleville was an overnight guest of Mrs. M. Trumpour Wednesday last and called on Mr. and Mrs. C. Pearsall and Mrs. M. Snider.

Sympathy is extended to Mrs. M. Trumpour and family in the passing of her sister, Mrs. W. Vandervoort at Belleville. The funeral was held at the Thompson Funeral Home on Saturday. Mrs. M. Trumpour and Mr. Smith Brown are the only surviving members left in the family. Mr. Brown is at present still a patient in Belleville Hospital.

The Hillier 4-H girls club have had two meetings. The first meeting at Mrs. Douglas Alyea's home and on the 14th the second meeting was held at Mrs. Ross Goodsmurphy's home. Ten girls are participating in the clubs to date.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Denard of Chatham were weekend guests of the latter's brother, Mr. Lewis Wight. Mrs. Wight and family.

Mrs. Donald Getrudes, Picton was the guest of her father, Mr. W. Cunningham on Saturday last.

Computer System to Control Traffic in Metro Toronto Said Best in the World

By JOHN LeBLANC

TORONTO (CP)—For several years Sam Cass, a man who's paid for worrying about what happens 30 years from now, has been thinking about what goes on a particular day in 1980.

If Metropolitan Toronto's motor vehicles keep multiplying as forecast and if all were to appear together on the streets on that 1980 day, Mr. Cass figures they would form a line two abreast along every foot of Toronto's roadways, give or take a few miles and ifs.

As Metro's commissioner of traffic, Mr. Cass admits life is a highly unlikely circumstance, but he has plenty of worries anyway. And he and Metro's council are betting $2,000,000 that the mounting problem of one of North America's most traffic-choked cities will be outmanoeuvered by the electronic brain of what is expected to be the world's most advanced traffic control system.

That's the price of the computer setup and its attendant communications web which for months has been getting a groomed for the job of controlling all the traffic lights on the 2,500 miles of streets in Metro's 13 municipalities. It is to take over a cluttered downtown area with 150 signals about May 1 and work its way into the other 400 in about two years.

FEED MEMORY CELLS

It will be the first central automatic system for controlling all the traffic in a metropolitan area anywhere, and, when it is in full operation, will be the largest control job of any kind turned over to machine thinking.

Some six years of human thought have already gone into the project, and the brain's more than 1,000,000 metallic memory cells are being stoked up with enough statistics and instructions on traffic-smashing techniques to keep it going for four or five years at operation.

To Commissioner Cass the statistics spell trouble, latest but big. Metro has more than 600,000 vehicles registered within its 240 square miles, for a per capita density second only to Los Angeles and Detroit on the continent. This is compounded by a daily influx of about 150,000 vehicles — about twice the total registrations of Vancouver — from outside the area.

Vehicle use of Metro's streets is galloping ahead at a pace three times as fast as the growth of the roadways themselves.

"It is fast absorbing all the capacity of our existing streets," Mr. Cass says. Subway and expressway construction relieves traffic congestion in particular areas but creates it elsewhere; 90 per cent of the subway's passengers use surface vehicles to get to or from it.

CALLED ON EXPERTS

With Toronto continuing to mushroom and traffic hurtling along towards a monumental jam in the not-too-distant future, Mr. Cass about six years ago called in a firm of traffic consultants to find out whether an electronic computer could solve the problem.

Other cities have used them in carrying fashions. Baltimore has controlled traffic automatically along individual arteries. In England, they handle separate intersections. Both systems have no relation to vehicle movements outside their immediate scope.

What Metro was looking for —and eventually came up with —was a system that would collect and co - ordinate all the traffic elements of a whole area instantaneously and give the lights the right instructions to move the traffic at the best possible pace.

A pilot project operated along 1.7 miles of busy Jarvis Street showed computer control reducing the average delay per vehicle by 11 per cent in the morning rush and 15 per cent in the evening rush.

SENSORS IN STREET

When this is extended to completion, a spiderweb of lines will hook up all of Metro's lights with the automated traffic cop in the centre of the web. Sensors buried in the pavement along the approaches to each light will send back word of the approach of each vehicle. In a wink, the machine will put these all together and send back the appropriate instruction to each light.

For a particular light, the process goes something like this: The computer — Univac 1107—gets the traffic information from the intersection point; checks with its memory bank

FACES 1980 TRAFFIC PROBLEMS NOW — Sam Cass, traffic commissioner for Metropolitan Toronto, is paid to worry about 1980 traffic problems on the 2,500 miles of roads in the area. There already are more than 600,000 registered motor vehicles in Metro Toronto's 240 square miles — third highest density among North American cities. A $3,000,000 electronic traffic control system, aimed at outflanking the growing traffic problem, is to start going into effect soon.

on such factors as the number of lanes and whether parking is permitted in the area; takes a look at the traffic setup for all Metro; comes to the logical conclusion on whether the light should be changed; sends out the instruction and checks back to make sure it has been carried out before moving on to the next intersection.

All this takes 1-1,000 of a second. For the whole 700 lights, the process will take 7-10 of a second. This includes such refinements as sensing potential traffic jams and taking steps to avoid them. When traffic is converging at one point in a volume that spells a jam, the computer can hold back the converging traffic and open up movement ahead of the threatened area.

STORES INFORMATION

It is in this ability to outthink the congestion — best mastered from afar by scanning the whole Metro picture at a glance that distinguishes the Toronto system from others, along with a flexibility that will enable it to adapt to any new techniques by simply feeding it changes in instructions.

While at work, it stores up its own information for use in periodic traffic studies. When called on for the statistics, it throws them out on its high-speed printer at a pace equal to that of 50 stenographers rattling away together.

While it is expected to make the human traffic policeman semi-obsolete, it has some limitations. It can't distinguish between buses and trucks or sense a heavy, pileup of pedestrians waiting to cross a street, which means it tends to give a break to autos over public transit and foot traffic. Ordinary traffic lights have the same failing and Metro is trying to iron it out for the computer with more selective sensors.

DRAMATIC EFFECT

For a starter, the system will go into effect in a downtown area bounded by the waterfront, University Avenue and Bloor and Jarvis Streets. It also will run up Yonge for 11 miles to the northern Metro limit and another 9½ on east-west Eglinton Avenue.

Mr. Cass says he expects that at the start motorists will find a dramatic improvement in street capacity — 15 or 20 per cent — as the result of the brain's operation, but that gradually this will be cut down as vehicles keep increasing.

"What we're now doing is making some elbow room. In four or five years, new growth of vehicles will have filled up the new capacity."

By then, he hopes, new traffic-handling techniques may be developed. When they are, the "extreme versatility" of 1107 will enable it to make use of them.

For instance, New York city now is embarking on a computer control system based on modification of the Baltimore process, after expensive studies. Metro picked up the specifications—free — and fed them into its computer's vast memory. It could put New York's program into effect anytime by feeding in instructions at a cost of a couple of dollars.

Stirling

STIRLING—Mr. and Mrs. Percy Craighead spent a few days at Ingersoll, Ontario, and attended the funeral of their brother, Mr. William Craighead. Deceased leaves to mourn, his daughter, Mrs. James Stevenson, Picton, and three brothers, Charles of Toronto, John of Trenton and Percy of Stirling.

Mrs. Alvin Pollock, Burnbrae, spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Irven.

Mrs. Janet Utman, Front Street, spent Friday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Murney Kirkey, Madoc Junction.

Messrs. George, Jack, Elwood and Frank Haggerty attended the funeral of their brother, the late Donald Haggerty in Syracuse, N.Y. on March 6.

LEAP YEAR BIRTHDAY

Miss Flossie Rosebush of the River Valley community was tendered a leap year birthday party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bush. Guests at the oyster supper included relatives from Havelock, Brighton and Kingston.

A large number of Stirling friends visited Mrs. Jane Munro on Sunday, March 8th to offer congratulations on the 101st anniversary of her natal day.

Recent guests of Mrs. Janet Utman were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Irvin and family also Mr. Ray Reid of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Good spent the weekend in Ottawa. On Saturday they attended the funeral of their friend, Mrs. A. Wood, Kenmore, Ontario.

Messrs. Jim McMullen and Ross Carlisle attended a training school for Junior Farmers at Madoc. Mr. Lyall MacLachlan, assistant agricultural representative gave an illustrated address on parliamentary procedures.

Mrs. Harold Johnston and the members of Carmel United Church Women catered on Wednesday evening for St. Paul's Stirling A.O.T.S. ladies' night. Approximately 115 were in attendance.

Last week Mr. H. A. Moock, Mill Street, observed his 89th birthday anniversary, and Mayor S. Fraser, John Street, observed his 83rd birthday. Both of these men were tendered dinner parties in their honor. The community extends felicitations to both.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Watson attended the funeral of her mother, Mrs. Matthew E. English at Tweed on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Sine, Miss Doris Sine, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Rupert, Stirling, also Mr. and Mrs. Mowat Sine of Salem, attended the funeral of Mrs. Earl Button in Kingston on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Hubble, Belleville, spent Saturday with Mrs. Janet Utman.

Miss Mona Aide of Stirling public school came first in the Inspectorate finals in the public speaking competition held at Madoc. She will be eligible to compete in Brighton on March 14th.

Mr. and Mrs. James Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Nia Flindall and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Heaton attended the Hydro convention in Toronto.

Romanians Carry Bad News From Mission in Peking

MOSCOW (AP)—A delegation from Communist Romania talked to Soviet Premier Khrushchev Monday on the way back from what was believed to have been a peace-making mission in Peking. And there was strong indication the Romanians carried bad news.

While in the Romanians met with Khrushchev at Gagra on the Black Sea, Communist China renewed its attack on the Soviet leadership. So did Albania, Peking's ideological ally in Europe.

Some diplomats in Moscow speculated that the news brought back by the Romanians made clear that patching up the Soviet-Chinese quarrel is impossible at this time and Khrushchev will speak out soon. Some international Communist leaders believe peace in the camp is impossible.

The Romanian delegation, headed by Premier Gheorghe Maurer, flew to Gagra Sunday, after a week's stay in China. Soviet sources said they made the trip with the knowledge of all party leaders who have been seeking a way out of the increasingly bitter deadlock between Chinese and Soviet leaders over the best means to communize the world.

FLEW HOME?

A brief dispatch by the Soviet news agency Tass reported the delegation talked to Khrushchev and other party leaders in Gagra, then flew home to Bucharest, directly across the Black Sea from Gagra.

"Representatives of the two parties exchanged opinions on questions of mutual interest relating to the struggle for strengthening the unity and the cohesion of the international Communist and working class movement," Tass said.

With the Soviet premier were Anastas Mikoyan, first deputy premier and an old confidant of Khrushchev, and Yuri Andropov, a Soviet party leader who keeps in contact with foreign Communist parties.

During the period of the Romanian visit the Chinese broadcast no attacks. Earlier they had assailed Khrushchev markedly, declaring he was no longer top leader in the Communist movement.

The moment the Romanians left, the attacks were resumed. Peking radio again accused the Russians of publishing offen-

Massassaga

MASSASSAGA—Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Skinkle and family of Consecon were visitors on Sunday of last week with Mr. Skinkle's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Jose.

Mrs. Wilson Hart of Napanee visited with his sister, Mrs. A. Cook and Mr. Cook on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Noonan were recent callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Chatterson.

Mrs. D. Symons, Mrs. A. Wallbridge and Mrs. Harry Wallbridge spent Friday in Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Cook visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cook, Forest Mills, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Jaynes spent a recent evening with Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Aldridge.

Mr. and Mrs. George Flower called on Mrs. Wilbert Osborne, Belleville on Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Cook and family were Saturday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs A. C. Cook.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Valleau and family of Toronto were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Valleau.

DEDICATE ORGAN

The new electric organ which has been donated to Massassaga Church, by Mr. Ernest Reed in memory of his late sister, Miss Hattie Broad is being dedicated in the church service Sunday, March 22. There will be a special speaker at the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Burton Thompson spent a day recently in Stirling.

Parish Guild convened at the home of Mrs. Hall on members in attendance. Rev. F.F. Downing showed interesting slides of a special parish in the Diocese of Saskatchewan and this portrayed the work carried on in that corner of the prairies. Contests on St. Patick's day were followed by refreshments and a social hour.

CHINESE BACK ARABS

HONG KONG (Reut—1) — Communist China Tuesday pledged full support to Arab nations in their struggle against Israel and United States "aggression." The Peking People's Daily, organ of the Chinese Communist party, said the Arabs looked upon Chinese backing as "a great assistance" and themselves in their opposition to U.S. imperialist aggression."

DENMARK OFFERS $75,000

COPENHAGEN (Reuters) — Denmark will support the United Nations peace force in Cyprus with a sum expected to be about $75,000, Prime Minister Jens Otto Krag said after a cabinet meeting Tuesday.

Rawdon

RAWDON — Mrs. Grace I. Morton and the pupils of the Allan public school S.S. 2 Mount Pleasant, Rawdon were at home on Thursday evening, March 12th to parents and guests in honor of "Education Week." Approximately 45 adults were in attendance.

The schoolroom was decorated with green shamrocks in bold array and there was a large assortment of potted plants and flowers in bloom.

The children's scrapbooks on various subjects and a collection of molded articles fashioned from salt and corn starch were on display.

Miss Gwen Pitman, A.T.C.L. music supervisor accompanied the various choruses contributed by the school children and these included two Irish selections.

The special programs available to all in attendance enabled the guests to follow things through without a chairman. A silver collection was taken for the Junior Red Cross.

After the opening chorus Mrs. Morton voiced a welcome to all and said some of the children were making their first public appearance. The Junior boys gave two action songs and the school children rendered two part selections. Individual piano music was contributed by Doreen Stubbs, Janet Scott, Jessie Williams, Jeanette Hoard and Janet Spencer.

Two of the speeches recently given in the public school competition were repeated with Grace Hoard speaking on the subject, "An outstanding scientist Edward Jenner" and Brenda Campbell, "Fire, friend or foe." With a record player the pupils gave exercises to music. Billie Morton contributed music on the chord organ of pioneer vintage. Kenneth Coon rendered two selections of accordion music and later he and Gordon Morton gave a clarinet duet. Lorraine Jeffs and Brenda Campbell contributed a piano duet.

Mrs. Gordon Bailey, Stirling gave an interesting commentary of their recent visit in Mexico and Mr. Bailey was in charge of the projector. The slides were colorful with floral scenes and views of various market stands which depicted numerous articles of pottery also views of cathedrals, ancient buildings, desert scenes and pictures of the natives at work and play, children at school and massed choirs, also special colored scenes in front of the buildings. The views were both informative and enjoyable. Mrs. Morton voiced thanks for their portrayal. At the close the school children served refreshments.

Campbellford News

Believe Man Died of Natural Causes

CAMPBELLFORD — Police said here Sunday afternoon they believe the death of John Neil Johnston, 66, found dead on a bed in his farm home Sunday noon was due to natural causes.

A friend of Mr. Johnston, Frank Bedford, went to the Johnston home shortly before noon Sunday but received no answer to his knocks at the door. He then went to the nearby farm of Lorne Wallace and the two men returned to the home to look for Johnston. They found him in an upstairs bedroom.

Coroner Dr. D. W. Burgess said he had treated Johnston recently for high blood pressure and believed death was due to a coronary. An autopsy would be performed by Dr. E. Dutkewich, of Peterborough, to determine the exact cause of death.

OPP Constable Ross Bovay of the Campbellford detachment investigated.

Gordon Gray's Rink Wins At Hastings

CAMPBELLFORD — A Campbellford rink, skipped by Gordon Gray won the Hastings Chamber of Commerce trophy by defeating all other rinks in the annual curling bonspiel sponsored by the Hastings Curling Club Sunday.

The Campbellford rink, composed of Gordon Gray as skip; William MacSweeney as vice; Jack M. Rutherford, second and James Duncan lead, have been curling at Hastings for the past two years.

Interest in curling has shown a marked increase in recent years locally and Hastings curlers believe when the new community centre, with its artificial ice surface is completed sometime in 1965, curling will become a major sport in the area.

Dairy Entered, Cash Stolen

CAMPBELLFORD — A break - in and theft at Ruthenford's dairy here is under investigation by town police. Entry was gained by breaking a window in a side door of the office, and about $30 in cash from a drawer and from drivers' pouches is reported missing.

An employee, Kenneth Ellis, discovered the break-in when he reported for work early Sunday morning.

RELEASED ON BAIL

Police here arrested Gerald W. McGrayne, 18 of Campbellford about midnight Friday and charged him with breaking and entering with intent to steal after he was apprehended inside a Front Street department store. Police said a window in a door at the rear of the Barner's Department Store was broken to gain entry. McGrayne has been released on bail to await trial.

Pursued Car Crashes in Ditch, Two Injured

CAMPBELLFORD — A car being pursued by the Campbellford police cruiser went out of control here early Saturday morning, crashed into a ditch, knocked down a fence and a tree, and injured two of the four occupants.

Campbellford police approached the car in the town about 3 a.m. Saturday for a routine check of the four occupants. The driver sped away and the cruiser gave chase. About a mile and a half south of the town on Highway 30, the fleeing car crashed into the ditch. The driver, Frederick John Agnew, 20, of Havelock, escaped injury as did one of the passengers, Lionel Wayne McArthur, 20, also of Havelock.

Another passenger, Geno Curran of Campbellford, received a leg injury and a fourth man, Robert J. Smith, 16, of Havelock, suffered an injured leg. Both were treated at Campbellford Memorial Hospital and released.

Police said charges against Agnew are pending. The car received about $700 damage.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: I will be living in the United States for a number of months this year and am wondering about my car licence plates. Is it all right to continue to drive my car in the U.S. with my Canadian plates or do I have to get the plates of the state in which I will be residing? Would I have to obtain a new driver's licence? — Miss D. M., Belleville.

ANSWER: Motorists from over fifty countries who are nationals of those nations, and who are bona fide tourists visiting the United States may drive in the U.S. for a period of up to one year with their own national plates (registration tags) on their own cars, and with their own personal driver's licences.

QUESTION: Could you please tell me the size restrictions on a trailer touring New York State, and if parking off highway for overnight stay is permitted? Is riding in a trailer coach permitted? M. M., Belleville.

ANSWER: The following is a summary of Trailer Coach Regulations 1963, as compiled by the American Automobile Association of Southern California.

SIZE REGULATIONS:
Maximum length allowed: 35 feet.
Maximum overall length allowed, trailer coach and tow vehicle: 50 feet.
Maximum height: 13 feet.
Maximum width: 8 feet.
Maximum weight: 22,400 pounds per axle load.

If the length, width and/or height exceed the maximum limit, applications for permits should be addressed to: Superintendent of Public Works, State Office Building, Albany, N.Y.

Parking off-highway for overnight stay is not permitted. Riding in trailer coach is permissable.

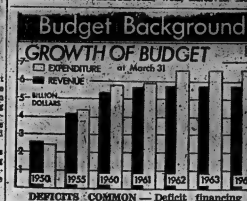
QUESTION: We are planning a trip to Florida next month with four children. I understand there is a game book which can be obtained for children on a long trip in an automobile. Could you please tell me something about it, and where I can obtain one? G. L., Tweed.

ANSWER: There is a game book called Fun on Wheels, by Dave Gerroway, which is an exclusive AAA edition. This book has 150 games, puzzles and brain teasers to help parents keep children entertained and at peace in the car. This book may be obtained at your local Ontario Motor League office — price $1.00.

QUESTION: Could you please tell us through your column the visiting hours of Cape Canaveral and the best way to get there on our trip to Florida? Mr. T., Belleville.

ANSWER: Visiting hours at the space centre (Cape Kennedy Space Centre) are 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. on Sundays, and it requires about one hour to drive through. The Cocoa Office, East Florida Division, A.A.A. recommends that motorists approach the cape via the Bennett Causeway (Coli 15c) rather than the Merritt Island Causeway, due to extremely heavy traffic conditions.

300 Whistling Swans Resting Near Hamilton



HAMILTON (CP) — At least 300 giant whistling swans are on the north side of Hamilton Bay near Lasalle Park, resting on their long flight to the Arctic. W. J. Lamoureux of the Royal Botanical Gardens, said Tuesday.

Naturalists and sightseers have recently been visiting Long Point Bay to see an estimated 10,000 of the huge white birds in the area.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

There could be another use for ex-chargers of the National Hockey League cavalry besides playing old-age exercise exhibitions in pasturized areas.

Hank Goldup, who manager-coaches the troupe of wandering ice-minstrels, thinks there is. And that is form a nucleus of a club that could bring back Canada's amateur world hockey prestige.

Goldup told a Toronto National Hockey League writer that the former pros believe they can put in eight or nine players capable of helping to redeem our slipping overseas reputation.

"Players like Sid Smith, Harry Watson, Cal Gardner, Bob Goldham, Ted Sloan, Brian Cullen, John Henderson, Ivan Irwin, Danny Lewicki and a few others, still have the legs for big league amateur hockey," said Goldup.

"Gus Mortson is another possibility on defence. The ex-Leaf is in pro shape and would be a welcome addition," say the Oldtimers.

"Players like these," Goldup told the Toronto writer, "have the rare combination of experience and talent that you cannot find on an ordinary team which might represent Canada. We know the Russians are great skaters but the teams we play in our Oldtimers' games are good skaters and we've only been beaten twice and tied once in four years."

Goldup suggested Henderson in goal; Goldham and Irwin on defence, with forward lines organized from Smith, Sloan, Gardiner, Cullen, Lewicki, Watson and either Reid or Bill.

Sid Smith said that when he suggested the Oldtimers be used as a nucleus of a national hockey team on a TV show last year, they laughed at him.

Smith who has world hockey and senior amateur experience tacked away with his NHL records, believes the Oldtimers would do a good job. "Add some players like Bobby Bolling and Telmo Comacchese and a few others with the legs and speed and I think you'd have a world championship club next year," is his opinion.

"The team," says Smith, "would have to train, practice and play exhibition games and would have to be organized by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

"It says Europeans have never seen Canada's finest hockey players. "We have always sent amateur teams padded out with a few old pros. Let's try it the other way—a team of old pros padded out with the young amateurs. Experience also would win for us.

It might not be as easy as all that. But it is no secret that the addition of a "few old pros" would have enhanced our chances of winning the world title the last two or three times out.

Even the European teams like the Russians, Swedes, and Czechs, the much-feared trio of continental squads, the different heads might have worn the world crown back in the days of Kitchener Dutchmen, Oshawa Dunlops, Belleville McFarlands, Trail Smoke Eaters and such teams.

The top senior "A" amateurs of the country or at least the most of them grace the clubs' rosters, but so did some of the top "old pros." And in nearly all cases it was the experience and "savvy" of the oldsters that swung the pendulum of world play-over way.

Close to home what would the doughty Dunlops of Oshawa, even with the equally doughty Wren Blair at the helm, done without Henderson, Edwards, Ron Gagnon, Sid Smith, Conny Bredeen and the like?

Where would the Macs have done without Bill Gobrecht, Al Dewsbury, Lannay Lumbreds, Comacher, Gordie Bell, Bradley, Brown and others?

Give the youngster of these old warhorses enough colts with the speed and you might be surprised at what they come up with against the patterned precisioned teams across the pond.

Picton Int's. Clobber Thorold

By JACK FAWKES

PICTON — The Thorold Sommit 44, winners of the Niagara District Intermediate "B" League, came to the 220 exiles to Picton and absorbed the worst drubbing of the season as the Picton Intermediates clobbered them by a lopsided 14-2 score.

It was strictly no contest, and proves the old saying that a good little team cannot beat good big team.

This Thorold team have nice passing attack, when Picton would let them use it, but for the most part, they were facing of the puck after a goal.

Oddly enough Thorold opened the scoring at the 1.20 mark of the first period with Gary Purser hitting the post and getting the, "Argie bounce," it bounced in, and it was 1-0 Thorold.

Picton fired four markers before Thorold was able to get another past Tom O'Halloran. This happened the 18.34 mark of the initial period, and from then on O'Halloran simply closed the door. Picton fired ten more goals in the second and third periods to complete the rout.

Not much can be said of a game as uneven as this, Picton took the opportunity to practice their penalty killing and did a fine job. Larry Pero put on an exhibition of stick handling that was superb.

Carl Stacey fired the picture goal of the night. He picked up the puck at his own blue line, dipsy doodled his way through the entire Thorold team and beat Jim Charyko cleanly.

John (Shaker) Baker fired four, Carl Stacey had three, Davy Jones, and Jim Guernsey each fired a pair, with singles going to Bob Speer, Keith McDonald and Lionel Boily. Jones, Baker and Guernsey each had two assists. Larry Pero ended up with no goals, but had four assists.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The goal - collecting king Stan Mikita, and his partner Bobby Hull, the leading scorers, both fashioned improvements on their marks in Tuesday night's National Hockey League play.

None of the others in the top-seven bracket were active spare from the Mikita-Hull teammate Kenny Wharram and he was held pointless in Chicago's game.

Mikita collected his 39th goal and 58th assist of the season while Hull scored twice—running his total in that department to 43—and added his 43rd assist.

The leaders:

	G	A	Pts.
Mikita, Chicago	39	58	97
Hull, Chicago	43	43	86
Balfour, Montreal	30	49	79
Bathgate, Toronto	19	54	73
Wharram, Chicago	29	32	70
Howe, Detroit	25	43	68
Oliver, Boston	23	42	65

POWER CONSUMPTION

The total supply of electric power in Sweden in 1963 increased by one per cent to 41,400,000 kilowatt hours.

So now comes what they say is the hard part of any title struggle: The waiting.

Such an interlude befalls Chicago Black Hawks in the wake of a 4-0 win over New York Rangers Tuesday night.

Between now and Sunday night, when the National Hockey League's 210 - game campaign winds up in a glut of activity by all six teams, the Hawks sit things out.

The title aspirations of Bill Rea's gang are contingent to a large degree meanwhile on how Montreal Canadiens make out in the two games they have in hand before reaching Chicago's depth in the schedule.

Chicago's win before a home-town crowd of 15,314 left Montreal two points behind.

But the Canadiens got a chance to make up ground against Toronto Maple Leafs in Montreal tonight, Boston Bruins in Montreal Saturday night and against the Rangers in New York Sunday night.

ONE GAME REMAINING

A Sunday night game in Boston affords the Flyers their only opportunity to add to their 62-point total.

Tuesday night's gate carried the seasonal attendance mark at Chicago Stadium to well past the half-million mark for 35 home games.

Goalie Glenn Hall grabbed a firmer position in the Vezina Trophy competition with a 28-stop performance for his seventh shutout of the season. Bobby Hull supplied the main offensive punch with his 42nd and 43rd goals of the season and an assist.

Stan Mikita's 39th goal and No. 22 by Pierre Pilote rounded out the Chicago attack. Mikita also picked up an assist and ran his league - leading point - gathering mark to 89.

Hull's goals were something less than typical exhibits by the power - shooting winger. Both came on deflections of shots by defencemen Pierre Pilote.

New York defenceman Harry Howell was in the penalty box for the second one.

SCORES FLASHY GOAL

Mikita's effort was unassisted and by contrast it was a characteristic piece of play. Mikita stole the puck. Then he swept around two New York defencemen and in on goalie Jacques Plante with a 15-footer.

Hay's goal with Hull and defencemen Pilote and Elston assisting finished it off.

With one game to come, Chicago has yielded 168 goals to the opposition. The Canadiens have given up three fewer but those games in hand work against Hodge in this instance.

And the Maple Leafs meanwhile have allowed the same number as Chicago but they have as many games left as Montreal.

OPERATION A SUCCESS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Willie Fleming, outstanding halfback of the British Columbia Lions who played most of the 1963 football season with a cast on one wrist, underwent an operation Tuesday. The club announced that doctors successfully reconstructed a torn ligament in the wrist. Fleming will be ready for the start of the 1964 Western Football Conference season.

Scott Meet Canada For Title

By JOHN SHORT

CALGARY (CP) — A chunky little farmer from Scotland, who had never played before more than about 200 people in his life until he arrived in Canada, is the darling of fans at the 1964 International curling championships.

Alex S. Torrance of Perth heard cheers from a paying 2,000 fans Tuesday night as he led his rink to an 11-9 victory over the United States in the third round of the sixth annual competition.

The victory left Torrance tied with Lyall Dagg's Canadian representatives from Vancouver with two rounds remaining in the preliminary section of the affair, which ends Thursday.

Scotland and Canada meet in the final round tonight.

Dagg, who won the Canadian curling championship at Charlottetown early this month, keeps pace with Torrance by downing Sweden 13-6 in the third round. Norway emerged from the winless ranks with a 13-10 victory over Switzerland to complete the draw.

ABSORB BEATINGS

Norway and Switzerland absorbed resounding defeats in the second round Tuesday afternoon Canada battered Norway 19-2 and Scotland trampled Switzerland 22-2.

The United States dumped Sweden 9-6 in the other second-round test.

The U.S. loss to Canada created a three-team deadlock behind the co-leaders. The United States, Sweden and Norway each have one win and two losses and Switzerland is winless in three starts.

Scotland's victory was short of the all - time international championship record. The previous high was a 26-4 victory by Ernie Richardson of Regina over the Swedish entry two years ago in Scotland.

Torrance elected to blank the ninth end against the U.S. quartet led by Bob Magie of Duluth, Minn., and the strategy paid off. Magie drew a stone out in the 10th to allow Scotland to count two for a 7-5 lead.

Magie and Torrance's second Bert Payne, second Russ Barber and lead Britton Payne—let their teams enter that end yielded deuces on the last two ends.

WINNERS SILENT

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — A cheque for $54,249 was mailed by Roosevelt Raceway Tuesday, but cut off one of three mystery winners at the harness racing track. The cheque was mailed to an unidentified purchaser of Saturday's winning twin double ticket. Two other winners have yet to claim the remaining $108,699.

Curling Standing

CALGARY (CP) — Standings after third round of 1964 International curling championships:

	P	W	L
Canada	3	3	0
Scotland	3	2	0
Sweden	3	1	2
U.S.	3	1	2
Norway	3	1	2
Switzerland	3	0	3

Minor Hockey

Rangers took a firm four-goal stranglehold on the O.M.H.A. Squirt championship last night by downing the Leafs 5-1 in the first game of the three-game series.

Second game in the two-game, goals-to-count series will be played next Tuesday evening.

Rick Meagher, with two goals and one assist, and Wayne Andrews, with a pair of goals, paced the Ranger attack. Cliff Jamisch potted the other goal while Brian Cousins garnered two assists. Peter Ackerman netted the lone Leaf goal, unassisted.

Meanwhile, two shutouts were turned in as the Tykes got their "A" and "B" titular series under way as well.

Macs blanked the Browns 2-0 and Barons nipped the Bruins 1-0. Second games will be played next Tuesday.

Dave Sullivan and Martin Hamilton were the marksmen in the Mac victory.

The Barons' Allan Whitney limited the game's only goal in the other contest.

B.M.H.A. action tonight sees the same "A" and "B" finals completed, at 6.15 and 7.00 p.m.

Oak Leafs Upset Blades 4-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Laurie Langrell's two - goal performance Tuesday night paced the sixth - place Deseronto Oak Leafs to a 4-3 upset victory over Tofield Blades in the International Hockey League Tuesday.

The last left the Blades three points behind the league leading Fort Wayne Komets.

Fort Huron Flags walloped Windsor Bulldogs 7-3 in the other scheduled game.

Bruce Lea and Cliff Bristow were the other Deseronto marksmen. Greg Jukes, Moe Morissette and Don Westbrook scored one each for the Blades.

Lloyd Maxfield's two goals also paced the Flags to victory. Dave Moore, Marcel Goyette, Ken Gribbons, Jean Therrien and Guy Trottier got one each.

Bill Mitchell, Bob Brooks and Jack Costello scored for Windsor.

Top Drivers Draw Suspensions

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The U.S. Trotting Association Tuesday suspended two harness drivers for five years, culminating months of investigation of horse races last year at Scioto Downs.

Lesser penalties were ordered for five other drivers by Walter J. Michael, president of the association.

Michael described the penalties as "the most drastic action ever taken by USTA."

Charged with rigging collusion at Scioto Downs, south of Columbus, and suspended for five years were Edward N. Morgan, Jr., 24, of Casstown, Ohio, and Don McKirgan, 23, of Mount Gilead, Ohio.

The suspension ruling came at the conclusion of hearings conducted by Michael. The two drivers also were denied membership by the USTA membership committee.

'Sugar' Duck Is Suspended

SWONTREAL (CP) — Sugar Ray Robinson, a tough man for a promoter to pin down, was suspended by the Montreal Athletic Commission Tuesday and his twice-rescheduled bout with ambitious young Joey Durelle was cancelled.

The 10-round match had been set by promoter Regis Levesque for March 30 after Robinson ducked out on two earlier dates, saying he suffered an injury while training and later that he was not in shape.

White Rink Splits; Win Over N.B.

Lose To P.E.I.

TORONTO (CP) — A Newfoundland rink skipped by Bill Allen punctured Western prestige Tuesday and toppled Saskatchewan and Alberta during the second day of the Canadian mixed curling championship.

Manitoba, which handed the St. John's crew their opening round defeat Monday, remained the only undefeated rink after three rounds.

Another eastern foursome, representing Prince Edward Island was tied with Newfoundland and Saskatchewan for second place honors.

Northern Ontario, British Columbia and Quebec were in fifth place with 1-1 records. Each had drawn a bye in one of the first three rounds.

Alberta, New Brunswick, and Ontario followed with one win each in three games and Nova Scotia trailed the 11-rink round robin honspiel with three straight losses.

Allen became the giant killer in the second round of the bonspiel Tuesday, edging Alberta skipped by Glen Gray of Edmonton 9-8 in an extra end.

TOOK BIG LEAD

Dean Hicke of Weyburn, Sask., fell victim to the New foundland onslaught in the third round as it piled up an 8-0 lead in the first four ends and went on to post an 11-6 victory.

Ernie Boushay of Winnipeg got his stiffest opposition in the second round against a stubborn Quebec crew skipped by Bill Wray of Sackville. Tracy tied the count with two stones in the ninth end but gave up one in the final end and lost 6-7.

Boushy coasted to an easy 13-6 victory over Karl Stronach of Kingston, N.B., in the third and final round of the day.

Cliff Macdonald of Charlottetown came up with a large piece of the second day honors with a pair of wins after a first round defeat Monday.

FOLLOWED PATTERN.

Macdonald followed the pattern set by Newfoundland, defeating Malcolm White of Belleville, 9-8 in an extra end before crushing Gray's Alberta foursome 12-6 in the third round.

Miller, despite his third round loss to Allen, had walloped Stronach 15-6 in the opening round of the day.

New Brunswick, skipped by Irving Mitton of Moncton, posted a pair of second round wins over Northern Ontario's Ernie Bigos of Sudbury, but lost a 10-9 decision to White in third game.

In the only other game of the day, Tracy tackled his Moncton quartet to a 9-5 win over Gil LaRoel of Trail, B.C., in the fifth round.

British Columbia had the second round bye and Northern Ontario drew the bye in the third.

'Blooper' Works Against Mets

Sandy Gilds Arm Lily With New Pitch

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It might be the start of baseball's age of curveball.

Sandy Koufax, who has been doing just great with an awesome fastball, a sharp curve and a combination of the two, has added another pitch.

although it would seem Sandy needs more mastery over baffling batters as much as J. Paul Getty needs another million, he's serious about it.

"As long as I can throw it for a strike, I'll use it," the Los Angeles Dodgers hurler said Tuesday after using a blooper pitch three times as he gave up just two hits in helping the Dodgers down New York Mets 5-3 in an exhibition game. The new change-up pitch went for strikes twice during Sandy's five-inning stint.

And the rest of Sandy's arsenal looked pretty good. The Mets managed just two hits against him.

That was about par for the New Yorkers, who have managed exactly one run in 43 innings of exhibition and regular play against Koufax since May, 1962. Seven Mets went down Tuesday.

But they perked up a bit after former teammate Bob Miller took over from Koufax. Frank Thomas' two-run homer was the big blow as they ran up their three runs. Starter Jay Hook took the loss.

Harry Fanok doubled home the first two runs and pitched three shutout innings as St. Louis Cardinals defeated Cincinnati Reds 4-2. Vada Pinson homered for the losers.

Bob Buhl, Carl Mowles and rookie Sterling Slaughter blanked Los Angeles Angels on three hits to help Chicago Cubs to a 2-0 victory. Lou Brock tagged loser Ken McBride for a solo homer.

New York Yankees brought out their frontline pitching staff but it didn't impress Minnesota Twins. Twins batters belted Al Downing, Ralph Terry and Whitey Ford en route to a 7-2 victory, the Yankees' third loss in four preseason outings. Twins starts. Vic Power slammed four singles and Jimmie Hall a solo homer for the winners.

Milwaukee Braves unleashed a 13-hit attack to thump Kansas City Athletics 9-1. Pitcher Also uncorked a homer and a two-run triple and rookie Rico Carty also homered.

San Francisco Giants bunched four singles for three runs in the sixth inning and edged Boston Red Sox 4-3. Willie McCovey got three hits to pace the San Francisco attack.

Homers went to Norm Cash and Willie Horton as Detroit Tigers hammered out an 8-3 victory over Philadelphia Phillies. Cash accounted for five Tiger runs with his stick work.

In two extra-inning games Houston Colts slipped Baltimore Orioles 3-2 in 11 innings and Pittsburgh Pirates edged Washington Senators 8-4 in 10.

Skinny Brown, Larry Yellin and Larry Bohannon allowed just three Baltimore hits. Bohannon won his own game with a one-out single that scored a run in the 11th.

Ted Savage got a two-run homer for the Pirates and they squeezed in another run in the 10th for the victory.

NON-TITLE FIGHT

CLEVELAND (AP) —Rocky Rivero, 26 - year - old Argentine champion, will meet world middleweight champion Joey Giardello in a non-title, 10-round fight on April 17, matchmaker Larry Atkins announced Tuesday.

Wellington Wins Over Stinson's 6-3

Wellington moved to within one victory of clinching the Prince Edward North Shore Hockey League's playoff title last night by downing Stinson Construction 6-3 in Wellington.

The County boys now lead the four-of-seven set three games to one and the fifth game is slated for Wellington on Thursday night at eight o'clock.

The teams battled to a 1-1 first period tie last night with Wellington moving ahead by a 4-3 count in the middle frame.

Joe Scott spearheaded the Wellington attack, bagging a pair of goals and drawing assists on two others. Bill Greer scored one and one assist while the other goals were shared by Terry Greer, Terry Wannamaker and Al Reilly.

Stinson goals were scored by Dennis Dicker, George Daniels and Bill Genereaux.

There were 10 penalties assessed, six of them to Wellington. Stinson's Elgie Currie drew a major while the remainder were minor sentences.

Three Tied In AHL Score Race

CLEVELAND (AP) — Brian Kilrea of Springfield scored seven points and Rochester's Gerry Ehman and Bronco Horvath got six each last week to go in a three-way tie for the American Hockey League scoring lead at 77 points.

Willie Marshall of Providence, last week's leader, fell one point off the pace by scoring only three. Wayne Hicks of Quebec is in fifth with 74.

Roger Crozier, Pittsburgh's goalie, has the best goals-against average with 2.49 per game. Lorne Worsley of Quebec ranks second with 2.64.

First Win In Three

Petes Defeat Habs 6-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jim Patterson rifled home three goals Tuesday as Peterborough Petes, with their backs to the wall, defeated Montreal Junior Canadiens 6-3 in the fourth game of their best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Junior A quarter-final series.

Ottawa Generals knotted their quarter-final series against St. Catharines Black Hawks at 2-2 with a win in the other scheduled game.

The win for Peterborough was their first in the series after losing the first three games.

Keith Wright, John Vanderburg and Dan Grant also connected for the Petes. Yvan Cournoyer and Andre Lacroix replied for Montreal.

The rejuvenated Petes got one unanswered goal in the first period, and outscored the Canadiens 4-1 in the second.

Favor Chuvalo For Title

REGINA (CP) — George Chuvalo, who first won the Canadian heavyweight boxing championship six years ago, goes after it again tonight.

And his wide edge in experience made him an odds-on bet to grab the championship for the third time with a victory over Hugh Mercier of Regina, who will be appearing in only his seventh pro fight.

Chuvalo, from Toronto, has won 23 of 38 pro fights, scoring 20 knockouts and fighting two draws.

He put away James J. Parker of Toronto in the first round in 1962 to win the heavyweight title in 1960, he lost it to Bob Cleroux of Montreal in the second decision. A year later he won it back with a decision over Clemens, only to lose it again in a year—again by decision and again to Cleroux.

The title was declared vacant in February, 1962, when Cleroux did not meet Chuvalo in a rematch.

BEAT YOUR AVERAGE

Bill Cox retained his "Beat Your Average" title by turning back a record number of entries in the weekly tournament on Saturday.

Cox beat his season average of 173 by 49 pins per game in the four-game play. His had games of 188, 132, 360 and 209.

Carolyn Cox was second when she topped her average by five pins per game.

The weekly "King of the Hill" play was postponed because of a number of the city's top five-pin bowlers taking part in the Ontario Match Play singles tournament at the O'Connor Bowl in Toronto.

Bud Pelican is the current king and he will defend his crown next Saturday.

Both "King of the Hill" and "Beat Your Average" commence next Saturday at 1.30 at the Bowl O'Drome.

Caron now has 74 goals in 67 games. Murray Hall scored two goals, while Duke Harris, Granger Evans and John Brenneman got the others. It was the first pro hockey goal for Evans, an amateur who is with the Braves on a five-game tryout.

Hornets Nip Athletics

GALT (CP) — Galt Hornets battled to a 3-1 win over Woodstock Athletics in a tight checking hockey game of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A Hockey finals.

Hornets, scoring once in each period, won on Carl Hatty's second period backhand which beat Athletics' Joe Hogan sank the clincher with only 67 seconds remaining in the game.

Galt, a league champion, Ron Hergott of Galt and Tobe Black swapped goals in the first period of the hard fought game played before an estimated 1,800 fans. The clubs play the second game in Woodstock on Friday.

'Gump' Stars In Aces Win

QUEBEC (CP) — Goals by Bill Martin, Ed Hoekstra and Skippy Burchell gave Quebec Aces a 3-2 win over Buffalo Bisons Tuesday in the American Hockey League.

Norm (Gump) Worsley was brilliant in the Aces goal as he scored his fifth shut-out of the season before 7,965 fans.

Scoring was tied in each period, the Aces held command until the first five minutes of the third period when Worsley had to be spectacular to save his shut-out.

Martin opened the scoring in the first period. Hoekstra scored his 30th goal of the season in the second and Burchell tallied the insurance marker early in the third period.

Gilles Marotte in the Buffalo net was also brilliant but received no protection from his teammates.

The win strengthened the Aces' hold on first place over the idle second-place Hershey Bears.

Thailand Bird Champ Favorite

TORONTO (CP) — A 25-year-old badminton player from Thailand with a full name has as many letters as the alphabet is the early favorite to capture the men's singles title as the Canadian open badminton championships get under way here today.

Chan - narong Ratanasasongkram, called "Charlie" for short, took over the top seeding when world champion Erland Kops of Denmark decided to return home to play a tournament there this weekend.

He heads a list of 165 entries from Canada, the United States, Europe and Asia who will compete in the 36th Canadian championship, which this year combines their closed and open competitions. In previous years, the two divisions were played separately.

The Canadian with the highest standing when play ends Saturday will be the Canadian closed champion.

Competition will include men's and women's singles and do-bles play with five senior and junior champions to be decided in each, the open and closed events.

STADIUM AWAITED

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies baseball team has agreed to play here for 35 to 40 years if a proposed new stadium becomes a reality, a team official said Tuesday. The stadium would cost $25,000,000, seat 60,000 and be on stilts over railroad tracks a couple miles from the heart of the city.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP)—Mr. Forbes Key proved to 3,000 fans Monday that he hasn't lost his touch at Greenwood Raceway.

The eight-year-old gelding owned by Helen and Garnet Weatherup of Oshawa, scored a neck decision over fast closing Clement Hanover in the featured eighth race, a trot for $1 000.

Mr. Forbes Key was the standout trotter at Greenwood last year, winning four of six starts. The gelding went on to pile up 11 wins in 21 starts, earning $7,853 for the season.

Gord Kingston kept Mr. Forbes Key in third place most of the way, moving to the lead in the stretch and holding off Clement Hanover, driven by owner Allan Walker of Owen Sound.

Keith Waples displayed some of the talent that rates him as one of the continent's top drivers, winning two races. He won in the second with his Culey's Boy, then captured the fifth with Floyd's Honor, owned by George Hawke of Coldwater.

Waples' joy over Culey's Boy triumph was dimmed when the five-year-old gelding went to Don McNeil of Toronto for $1,500, the first claim of the meeting.

Longshot bettors clicked in two races. Josephine Lind owned by Wray Turvey of Brantford returned $21.30 to its backers in the third race. Pirate Pete paid $19.70 in winning the ninth race.

Guess Who, the six-year-old trotter owned by J. M. Jeffrey of Belleville, left no doubt in its stretch burst in winning the sixth race. Guess Who won 16 of 36 races last year, mostly on Ontario tracks.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Beth Carr-Hilton is tall and blonde with grey-blue eyes and a yen to see Las Vegas.

She almost made it last year. Instead, the former legal secretary ended up making spats for racehorses.

"My husband Holly and I were all saved up for Las Vegas when we heard this was for sale. So we cashed in our travelers' cheques and bought it."

"This" is a 33-foot trailer which stands in the mud at suburban Lansdowne race track. From it, Beth sells the saddles, liniment, bandages, feed buckets, silks, boots and anything else in general use among the men who keep up to 700 thoroughbreds in training here.

She and Holly were born in Kelowna, B.C. Holly trains their three racehorses.

Beth, in addition to running the tack shop, looks after daughter Wendy, 12, and Jimmy, 8.

HATED OFFICE WORK

"I was a legal stenographer and I hated it," she says. "Then I began to help my mother teach sewing. From our racing connections I began to sew for horsemen and it all grew from that."

One of her steadiest jobs? "Shortening pants for jockeys."

She gets $25 for a set of stable colors and, with the opening of racing season still two months away, she has 10 sets on order.

She makes the heavy "coolers," blankets worn by racehorses when they come off the track. To keep the valuable animals from the grey mists that hang over Lansdowne in the early morning, she tailors light exercise blankets.

Lansdowne is a one-mile track once popular with the racing crowds but now used strictly for training before the horses move across town to Exhibition Park. Ducks waddle in the infield and a neighboring farmer sets traps to take mink and muskrat from the moat that skirts the rail.

When the horses move out, Beth and Holly hitch up their tack shop and move with them.

"We're like a mobile department store," Beth says.

A furry-coated exercise pony stuck its head through the door at this point and Beth amended: "A drive-in department store."

The spats she makes are strictly for show. They're sponge rubber, covered with leatherette and zippered, trimmed in the different stable colors. The horses wear them around their fetlocks as they walk to the paddock just before a race.

Beth moved toward the jughead in the doorway and the rider called down:

"Hey, Beth—how are those boots coming?"

"Last year was our year to lay in stock and get straightened away," Holly said. "This is our profit year.

"I hope."

WILL BECOME WEEKLY

TORONTO (CP) — L'Alouette Toronto's monthly French-language newspaper, announced Tuesday It would become a weekly next month and acquire a French — language bookshop. The book shop, La Librairie Francais in downtown Toronto, will be managed by Jack Cain, publicity director of L'Alouette. He said L'Alouette is expected to go into weekly publication April 2 and the price will drop to 10 cents a copy from 20.

Zora Folley Stops Herring

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Zora Folley, the world's fifth ranked heavyweight, stopped Tod Herring of Houston at 1:34 of the seventh round of their scheduled 10-round bout Tuesday.

Folley, who fights out of Chandler, Ariz., knocked Herring down early in the seventh round but the Houston youngster got back up and fought gamely.

Folley then knocked him down again and referee Jimmy Wedruff stopped the fight.

Michael Todd Jr. Sets Out To Fill Famous Dad's Shoes

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Michael Todd Jr. has set out to fill the shoes of the man he admires most—those of his father.

The late Mike Todd, one of the most colorful showmen in the U.S., won his first big success with a production at the 1929 New York world's fair of The Hot Mikado, a jazz version of the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta.

His son is hoping to add to the family fame in the same place. He is producing a modernized minstrel show at this year's New York world's fair, called America, Be Seated!

"I'm hopeful that lightning will strike twice," said Michael who is putting up a big chunk of the $100,000 the production will cost.

"We're breaking new ground by going back 100 years. The minstrel show is an original American art form. If it hadn't bogged down by being derogatory to Negroes, it would still be popular.

"I think we'll start a whole new wave of minstrel shows.

"We'll hold racial stereotypes up to ridicule, but it's not a big-message show, and we're not self-conscious about it.

"The cast is integrated. There will be no burnt cork. Everybody comes with his own face. The humor will be up-to-date."

DIFFERS FROM FATHER

His words had the flavor of his famous father's bombastic personality, but Michael makes no attempt to imitate his father's pitchman eloquence.

He differs from Mike Todd in many ways.

Mike smoked 30 cigars a day and during high school organized a college of bricklaying. He was a verbal fountain all his life, a flamboyant mixture of carnival and culture.

Michael smokes two to three cigars a day, speaks softly, likes to read philosophy. At 29 he holds a degree from Amherst. (he took a year off to work his way around the world on a tanker), is married and has five children. -

But he learned the principles of showmanship at Mike Todd's galloping knees, and worked closely with him during Mike's last years. He hopes in time to emulate his father's fabulous career in the field of musical comedy, made notable by such hits as Something For the Boys, Mexican Hayride, Up in Central Park, and As the Girls Go.

Michael doesn't have to start from empty pockets. He and his stepmother, Elizabeth Taylor, share the rights to Around the World in 80 Days, a Todd-produced film which is one of the all-time money makers.

Wellington Ousts Bancroft

Wellington climbed into the finals of the Trenton Valley Junior Hockey League this week by ousting Bancroft with a 6-3 victory.

Wellington will now meet the winner of the Tweed-Campbellford series for the group championship.

Don McNeil collected three goals for the winners in the 6-3 till, two going to Bill Gallager and one to Larry Poechman.

Bancroft marksmen were Ron Cooney, with two, and D. Helm.

No Messages in Pictures Says Director John Ford

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — John Ford, who has made more movie classics than any other director, actor, sports at Dartmouth College, University of California at Los Angeles for a program in the extension division's series of tributes to American directors. He turned out to be warm and lovable, in contrast to his reputation as an irascible bear.

Ford's arrival caused university and directors guild officials to sigh with relief. He seldom showed up to collect his own Oscars (The Informer, 1935; The Grapes of Wrath, 1940; How Green was My Valley, 1941; The Quiet Man, 1952).

Ford seemed delighted with all the attention, watched with interest clips from films like The Informer (not one of his favorites), They were Expendable and My Darling Clementine.

Only at his introduction did Ford, who has scribed as having been everything from a cowboy to a film industry, including actor, he shouted, "I deny it."

REFERS TO GOLDWYN

Ford was asked what message his films carry. He turned the director George Sidney and asked, "what is it Sam Goldwyn said about messages?"

Sidney supplied the answer: "Let Western Union carry them."

Ford added: "I am of the proletariat. My people were peasants. They came to this country (from Ireland), and I believe they served it well. I am basically apolitical. I don't like messages in pictures. If you put one in a picture, nobody will want to see it."

Of Grapes of Wrath, possibly his most important social document, Ford said he was interested in the film "as the migratory farmers, but more so in the characters of the Joad family.

He confirmed a story which demonstrated his disregard for scripts and the meddling of executives. He said the son of a rich man complained one day that Ford's picture was four days behind schedule. Ford tore out a handful of script pages and gave them to the young man.

"Here," he said. "Now I'm three days ahead."

Y Basketball

Quinte Teachers and Pollock's Shoe Store chalked up victories in the "Y" Men's basketball league last night.

Teachers clipped the C.N.R. 40-34 while Pollock's downed Holloway by a 51-32 score.

The loop will wind up its seasonal play on Thursday, March 26 when Teachers meet Pollock's and C.N.R. clashes with Holloway. Those games will be played at the YMCA.

Teachers took a half-time lead of 40-34 against the CNR crew. Gord Mutter hooped 17 points and Max Woolley 14 to pace the winners. Wally Uhryniuk and Murray Bridge had one to tie the score points, Paul Breese one and Dave Misner none.

For the C.N.R., John Guthrie paced his club with 14 points. John Krupicz had eight, Bill Simmons six, Gary Williams four and Dave Lean two. Doug Hallam and Don Morden were held scoreless.

Pollock's held a slim 19-16 lead over Holloway at the half way mark but increased the margin in the second half.

Ian Houdini starred for Pollock's with a 26-point explosion. Don MacPherson and Bill Simmons got six points apiece, Graham Geldart five, Bruce Wallbridge and Gorde Cooke four each.

Doc Wilson was top man for Holloway with 14 points, aided by Doug Hallam with 10. Larry Gerow, John Morrow, Rich Clarke and Bill Hallan each got two while Ralph McCabe did not score.

NAMED BEST DRESSED

CHICAGO (AP) — Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York and Mayor Richard Daley of Chicago were named Tuesday to a list of the 10 better-dressed men of 1964 in the United States, chosen by the Custom Tailors Guild of America. Also on the list was Raymond Burr, television and film actor.

Lawyer Opposes Legal Aid For Criminals

OTTAWA (CP) — An Ottawa lawyer said Tuesday he is "violently opposed" to giving automatic legal aid to persons with lengthy criminal records.

Edward Houston told the Ontario joint committee on legal aid in its final session here that "criminals are becoming more or less sacred compared to police officers."

Mr. Houston also said that the legal profession "has been pilloried to some extent" in recent press reports on legal aid.

He said the present legal aid system should not be extended. He said most lawyers do a considerable amount of free work on informal basis and that this was filling the need satisfactorily.

In another brief the county of Carleton Law Association said the legal aid system now in satisfactory "because the service provided is inadequate and the burden does not fall on a small number of lawyers."

William Greene, who delivered the association's brief, said a full-time director of criminal legal aid should be appointed in larger Ontario centres. The directors would assist work where required to lawyers.

Stranger Watching U.S. TV Could Get Weird Impression

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — If a stranger from abroad suddenly found himself in front of a television set in the United States, he could get a weird impression of the country and its inhabitants.

He might deduce that crime lords operate everywhere UNCHECKED, with corrupt politicians; that rich old men always live in enormous houses of Spanish mission-English tudor architecture, have bars in every room, unfaithful young wives and are deeply involved in shady deals.

He could conclude logically that every corporation has a smoky accountant on the verge of absconding with company funds; that moderately successful young businessmen live in the suburbs and are putty in the hands of antiseptic, mechiavellian blonde wives.

He could assume that of average citizens, if he studied TV commercials, might send him scurrying home in despair.

Men are usually depicted having ecstatic moments shaving, applying hair oil or lighting a cigarette upon completion of a parachute jump or a deep-sea dive.

Women are shown spending most of their time fretting over cleanliness of their laundry, their dishes, their floors, their plumbing and their faces — if they aren't preoccupied with nagging headaches or in tears because their grey hair keeps husbands from taking them dancing.

There is an unfortunate conflict tonight between the two most promising programs of the week. They are NBC's Little Moon of Alban, a dramatic special and CBS Reports live debate between Democratic Senators Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and Strom Thurmond of South Carolina on the civil rights bill. Both programs will be broadcast at 7.30 EST and both are recommended.

Court Upholds Murder Conviction

MONTREAL (CP)—The Quebec Appeal Court Tuesday upheld the murder conviction and death sentence of Rene Gravel, 38-year-old father of eight children.

Gravel was convicted last Nov. 27 of capital murder in the Feb. 23, 1962, killing of Jacques Schmoll, a suburban Jacques Cartier grocer. He was sentenced to be hanged March 6, a date that was later postponed pending appeal.

Schmoll was shot twice in the abdomen and died during a holdup at his grocery store, staged by three men who fled with $1,200 cash.

Two other men, Hunel Belvis, 28, and Andre Desnet, 31, key witnesses in Gravel's trial, are awaiting trial on similar charges in connection with the shooting.

45 DIFFERENT MODELS OF CARS

Why one stop at your Chevrolet dealer's is like having your own private auto show

And if we had room here we could go on and on and list all the engines Chevrolet offers, starting at the Chevy II's 90-horsepower 153 4-cylinder (it's the thriftiest!) and ranging all the way up to the big Chevrolet's extra-cost 425-horsepower 409 V8 (it's the greatest!).

We could wax eloquent about the choice of transmissions, and how they team up with those Chevy power plants to produce some of the going-est cars ever. Or the fact that you can have umpteen different exterior and interior color choices — enough, in fact, to allow some of our lady customers to have the sort of fun in buying and choosing that they generally reserve for shoe stores. And all the models with bucket seats and all the models without — all of them comfortable as all get-out. And the hundreds — yes hundreds — of different extra-cost options . . . serious ones like Positraction and gay ones like the new AM-FM radio.

But all that's best left to your Chevrolet dealer. The long and short of it is, he'll go to any length to show you exactly the kind and size and price of car you want — and exactly how reasonable that price can be!

Construction Roundup

By ANDY TURNBULL

BAXTER'S CANNERY

Walls are rising fast at the Baxter Cannery site in Bloomfield, in the race to have 50,000 square feet of floor area under a roof by April 15 — just six weeks from the starting date. Five courses of below-ground block have been laid all around the site, and the block is rising ten courses above the ground in some spots. The slab for a 60 by 20 foot cooking tank, inside the factory, was poured Monday.

Two of the four on-site wells that served the old factory have been sealed off now, and pumping tests will be run soon to see if the one of the others will supply the factory's total needs. Ground structure of the area, according to contractor-engineer W. C. Tatham, includes a 16-foot layer of blue clay (waterproof when wet), over a three-foot gravel bed, over rock. The result is pure water (even though surface water may be contaminated), in almost unlimited amounts. The wells, sealed off now are inconveniently placed in relationship to the factory layout.

The boiler for the new plant has been purchased from Deloro Stellite's Deloro plant Mr. Tatham says. Weighing 30 tons, developing 375 boiler h.p. and able to produce 15,000 pounds of saturated steam per hour, the boiler is the ideal size for the factory. Bought by Deloro in 1956, it has been in protected storage since 1958, when the Deloro plant was closed.

GOODMAN'S MOTEL

Not yet open, Sam Goodman's new motel on North Front near Highway 401 is nearly ready. The H. J. McFarland Construction Co. Ltd. trucked in gravel yesterday, to cover the driveways and parking areas around the front door area. The gravel will provide a temporary surface for cars, and a permanent base for the pavement later.

CAR WASH

Big doors were installed last week in the new car wash on Dundas St. East. None of the car-washing equipment is in yet, but sub trades are almost finished inside the building. Gas tanks are being installed now.

BLACK DIAMOND

Larry (Slim) Yunwak may be back at work for Robert McAlpine Ltd. on the Black Diamond addition next week. He went home sick the weekend before last, hoped to be back this week but didn't recover fast enough.

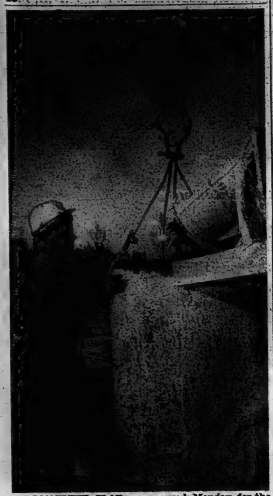
Most of the floor has been poured now. Since the last pour on Friday about three-quarters the total area is down. Interior masonry partitions are also about three-quarters finished and three sections of the north wall are ready for the "dock levellers". Those units, not yet delivered, move the loading dock height up and down to match the height of trucks loading or unloading. Steel sash is now being installed along the south wall of the addition.

BELL BUILDING

Forms have been completely stripped on the top floor and mostly stripped on the bottom floor of the new building for Bell Telephone, Victoria at Pinnacle. Quinte Roofing will start work within the next few days, putting on a composition roof. Dominion Construction employees meanwhile, are installing steel for the window frames, on the top floor and Carr-Brunt employees are getting ready to go to work on pouring the reinforced ground floor. The pour is not likely to be within the next three weeks, but it probably won't be much longer away than that.

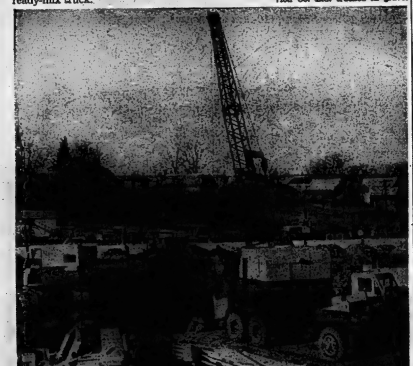
UNION CARBIDE WAREHOUSE

White Lumber and Construction is waiting now for the ground to thaw beneath the new warehouse built for Union Carbide. There was about two feet of frost in the ground when the building was built, and the floor cannot be poured until this is thawed. Roof is complete on the building but doors have not yet been delivered and only temporary heat has been laid on.



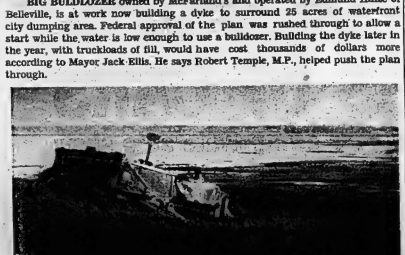
NEW APARTMENTS

Foundations were begun during the week and footings may be poured today for Bill Carmen's and Lawrence (Bud) Lambert's new apartment building on John Street. Meanwhile back on Sidney St., the roof is on and watertight in the third of the stepleaves at Sidney Court, and the roof is being put on the fourth. First of Lec Buckley's buildings looks finished, second is in the finishing stage.



SEWER AND WATER JOBS

Lightfoot Construction began work on Sidney Street at West Moira last week, on the new 21-in. water main. About a dozen men are working south in this first crew. Other crews may begin in a week or so at different spots. Norman Lightfoot is superintending the job himself.



Working on the sewer on John and Lattimer Streets, a Lightfoot crew under foreman George Hopkins has completed most of the work along Lattimer and is building a manhole at the foot of John St. The men have been working in rock along Lattimer, right up to the edge of some private property across which the sewer must pass, but the John St. work is in mud. Sometimes along the private property, therefore, they assume the rock ends and it looks like they will not have to blast near the house. There is still wall.

CONCRETE SLAB was poured Monday for the "cooking tank" at the Baxter Cannery, in Bloomfield. In the picture, Ted Griffin of Belleville watches as the concrete-carrying bucket of a crane is filled from a ready-mix truck.

BIG BULLDOZER owned by McFarland's and operated by Edmund Hinze of Belleville, is at work now building a dyke to surround 25 acres of waterfront city dumping area. Federal approval of the plan was rushed through to allow a start while the water is low enough to use a bulldozer. Building the dyke later in the year, with truckloads of fill, would have cost thousands of dollars more according to Mayor Jack Ellis. He says Robert Temple, M.P., helped push the plan through.

IN BLOOMFIELD, work on the reconstruction of Baxter's Cannery is aimed at completion by mid-June. Roof will be on over the 50,000 square feet of factory and warehouse by April 15, according to present plans.

WATER MAIN from W. Moira St. to the city filter plant is under construction now, by Lightfoot. First crew started last week, working south on Sidney St. from W. Moira. Other crews will start at other spots along the route.

Many Attend Funeral of John Garland

NORTH BAY (CP) — Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson and Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker headed the honorary pallbearers Tuesday as members of Parliament joined this grieving Northern Ontario city in a final tribute to Reverend Minister John R. Garland.

A party of 115—cabinet ministers, members of Parliament, senators and senior civil servants—flew here from Ottawa to attend the funeral of the popular 46-year-old minister who died of a heart attack early Saturday shortly after boarding a train at Ottawa.

Schools ad businesses were closed and large crowds lined the funeral route from St. Andrew's United Church where the body had been lying in state since Sunday, guarded by two Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers in brilliant dress uniforms.

Cold Compress Good Thing For Black Eye

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Married people remain a mystery: each other is some ways. . . . Only one in 10 U.S. husbands knows his wife's clothing sizes.

Remember when beatnikdom was believed the best cure for a black eye? . . . Well, as a home treatment this isn't as effective as a cold compress.

Soviet longevity: Russia claims it has almost 17,000 women 100 years old or older. . . . It still remains an open question whether people live longer under communism —or it just seems longer.

Hint to housewives: Keep on your toes while doing your dishes. . . . Scientists have found it takes less energy to do them standing up than sitting down.

Tip to back seat drivers: You endanger your own life when you bawl out the man behind the wheel. . . . Psychiatrists say an angry driver is sometimes more likely to have an accident than a drunken one.

Quotable notables: "The difference between getting somewhere and nowhere is the courage to make an early start. The fellow who sits still and does just what he is told will never be told to do big things"—Charles M. Schwab.

Caffeine break: Some of the girls in South America are making life more interesting for their boy friends by wearing coffee-flavored lipsticks.

Writing poetry is still one of the world's slowest ways to grow rich. . . . The poet laureate of Britain gets an annual salary of $300—whether he needs it or not.

What are you worth chemically? . . . Well, the average man's body has enough carbon for 9,000 lead pencils, enough sulphur to rid a dog of fleas, enough fat to make seven cakes of soap, and enough iron to make a single fair-sized nail.

Odd claims to fame: The record for walking on one's hands was established in 1900 by Johann Haslinger, who strolled upside down the 871 miles from Vienna to Paris in 35 days. (And, my, was his face red when he finally got there!)

Average Person Speaks 25,000 Words a Day

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

How much do you grab? . . . The average person speaks about 23,000 words a day. . . . This doesn't include the telephone conversations of teenagers.

Does your girl friend say she eats like a bird? . . . Perhaps the bird she has in mind is the parakeet. . . . This little bundle of hunger wrapped in feathers can consume nearly 100 times its own weight in food each year.

The world's heartiest eaters are the Irish. . . . According to United Nations figures, they put down 3,500 calories a day each.

No man, not even a genius, begins to tap the full potential of his brain. . . . It has been estimated that the human mind could store several hundred memories an hour for a lifetime of 75 years and never show the strain. (I forgot where I learned this.)

Quotable notables: "The best way to get on in the world is to make people believe it's to their advantage to help you." —Jean de la Bruyere.

Progress: Japan, which lost the war in finding peace pretty wonderful. . . . A survey disclosed 91 per cent of Japanese families had television sets, 70 per cent had electric washing machines, 52 per cent had electric refrigerators and 60 per cent owned cameras.

On the other hand, in East Germany a woman must show a marriage licence in order to buy white shoes. . . . The Communists decreed that only intended brides can buy white shoes. . . . They are in short supply because leather, dyes and bleaches must be imported from capitalist countries.

Things we've never understood: Why goods sent by ship are called cargo while goods in a car or by rail are usually called a shipment.

Cross-Canada Survey

Commercial Developments in Parks Stir Political Controversy in B.C.

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A hot political issue has been stirred up by the British Columbia government's decision to open provincial parkland to limited mining and logging, but the opposition has raised the steam recently in other provinces.

Ontario has quietly shelved tentative plans to allow mining in its parks—where lumbering is carried on fairly extensively—and no changes appear in prospect in other parts of the country.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows that four provinces—including B.C. —now have the two types of operation in their parklands; four have neither; Ontario allows woods operations only, and New Brunswick permits both but in practice has only logging.

Federal policy is to ban commercial development of resources in national parks.

Controversy boiled up in British Columbia when shortly after the government announced its development policy, the cabinet awarded a lease on two mining claims that had been staked out in Kokanee Glacier Park near Nelson before the ground was established as a park.

GAME CLUBS OPPOSED

Strong disapproval has come from the 10,000-member B.C. Federation of Fish and Game Clubs, the New Democratic Party, author - conservationist Roderick Haig-Brown and W. C. Yeomans, former consultant to the United States National Outdoor Recreation Resources Review Commission.

The B.C. Federation of Labor's resources committee also hits at the plan as the ground that it would despoil recreation land, and the entire biology faculty of the University of Victoria has deplored it as immoral and criminal.

The B.C. and Yukon Chamber of Mines argues that minerals could be recovered with minimum damage to natural beauty and opposes the idea of keeping ore "locked up" for all time.

Ontario moved gingerly toward opening up its parks to mining two years ago when Mines Minister George Wardrope suggested exploitation of valuable deposits should be allowed, provided the surroundings were safeguarded.

Lands Minister J. W. Spooner followed up this feeler with a statement that any application for a mining permit would be judged on its merits and that the government could hardly say that development of valuable deposits would not be allowed.

MINING IS OUT

But Mr. Wardrope recently admitted that opposition had made his position "disagreeable" and told the legislature that "the policy of the government is that there will be no mining in parks."

In lumbering, latest available figures show that 54,500,000 board feet were cut in Ontario parklands in 1962-63, of which 42,000,000 were taken out of 2,910 - square - mile Algonquin Park by 16 licensed operators. Fees on a stumpage basis brought in $484,000.

Timbering is not allowed near lakes, portages or trails or near park facilities. All cutting must be approved beforehand by district foresters.

In Quebec both logging and mining are under way only in the 782,720-acre Gaspe Park, where there is a copper development. Logging only is taking place in 11 of the 12 provincial parks headed by the 2,312,000 acres of Laurentides north of Quebec. Mount Orford near Sherbrooke is the exception.

Timber leases either are sold at auction or assigned by the government at a price fixed under order-in-council, by special legislation. The lessee also pays regular stumpage dues varying between 50 cents a cord to $6 per 1,000 square feet, depending on the type of wood, plus a nominal ground rental fee.

The Gaspe park copper project is one of the largest mining developments in Quebec, with more than 3,000,000 tons of ore handled yearly. Employing 1,000 men, it was the scene of a violence-ridden strike in 1957. There is no ban on mining in the other parks, though none has developed. On mining operations, the government collects levies based on profits.

AWAY FROM TOURISTS

Saskatchewan allows oil drilling and logging, under strict management. Logging must be done in areas away from those used by tourists, and oil developers must get approval for roads they build and take special precautions to clean up the surface. No mineral ores have been reported in the parks.

Oil development is under way only in Moose Mountain Park, where the average royalty is 16 per cent. Leases are sold, as elsewhere, to the highest bidder.

Logging operations are conducted in a half-dozen parks. Fees range between $2 and $6 a 1,000 feet, depending on the wood.

While Manitoba permits commercial development, there is little of any type in the parks. Logging and prospecting are carried out on a small scale, and no ore in it actually being taken out. The fees are the same as for operations outside the parks.

New Brunswick regulations permit mining and logging in the 15 small parks ranging from 25 to 200 acres, but so far only logging is done.

LOGGING FAR MORE

Cutting and prospecting, under special permit, are subject to the condition of not destroying natural attractions. Loggers pay 1½ times the normal stumpage rate, making it $3 a cord for pulpwood, the main crop.

The British Columbia government's proposal is for limited logging and lumbering in parks over 5,000 acres. Taking of overmature timber and small-scale mining would be allowed.

Kenneth Sterns, minister of mines and recreation, said when he announced the policy in the legislature that it was done to ge. public reaction, most of which has been unfavorable to date.

Alberta, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island have outright bans on commercialization of their parks. Alberta's 37 range between four acres and 76 square miles. In Nova Scotia the largest is 300 acres and in P.E.I. 250 acres.

Newfoundland has no legal ban on development, but it appears unlikely. All 16 parks—ranging up to 445 acres—were laid out in recent years along the route of the Trans-Canada Highway, and the sites were chosen deliberately to exclude any valuable timber or known mineral deposits.

Commission Victoria Artist To Paint Kennedy Series

VICTORIA (CP) — With the help of Jacqueline Kennedy a Hyvallae-born Victoria artist is painting a series of three oil portraits of Mrs. Kennedy and her late husband.

Albert Sterling is doing the 4½ - by - six - foot portraits from enlarged photographs sent him by the White House shortly after the president's assassination either with it or with Jacques Pe o p l e's Progressive Party.

The party's chairman, Brindley Beem, who also serves as deputy premier and minister of agriculture, told the assembly recently that Gimpex is "a local, privately registered company."

DOES BIG BUSINESS

Gimpex has made tremendous strides in the commercial world since its formation last year. It does a big business with Cuba and Eastern bloc countries.

Gimpex increased its volume of imports considerably during an 80-day strike last summer. Apart from fuel imports, the firm brought in tons of flour and other food supplies, most of which were requisitioned by the authorities under emergency regulations then in force.

Gimpex now is engaged in supplying $1,000,000 worth of railway ties to Cuba.

The chairman of the Electricity Corporation, Mohamed Yassin, said the main consideration in awarding the fuel contract to Gimpex was that it means a saving of $50,000.

Peter D'Aguiar, leader of the right-wing United Force, said it was difficult to imagine that oil originating in the Soviet Union, shipped to Cuba and transshipped to British Guiana could be sold more cheaply than oil originating in Trinidad, just 300 miles from here.

He said he first heard from the White House several months ago after some of his work was displayed in Montreal. He thinks his name may have been brought to the Kennedy's attention through United Nations secretary-general U Thant, who is familiar with his work.

Mr. Sterling said he wrote

Guiana Opposition Battles To Halt Cuban Oil Imports

GEORGETOWN (Reuter)—Political opponents of left-wing Premier Dr. Cheddi Jagan of British Guiana are fighting plans of the government-controlled Electricity Corporation to import its 1964 oil supplies from Cuba.

The opposition forces fear the import of Soviet-supplied fuel from Cuba is another move to disrupt trade with British Guiana's traditional Western petroleum suppliers.

A recent statement from the Electricity Corporation said the fuel supplies from Cuba would be imported by the Guiana Import - Exportcorporation, known as Gimpex.

The opposition parties claimed that Gimpex was merely the "trading arm" of the government. But the government hotly denied Gimpex has any connection either with the Soviet Union or Cuba.

The reply came from Mrs. Kennedy's secretary, who said the former first lady sincerely wished to have the paintings made.

Included with the letter were a selection of individual photos of the president and Mrs. Kennedy and one of the couple together.

Mr. Sterling said he hopes to have all three portraits completed by early in the spring.

Prague Can Look, Sad, Tired But Still Can Radiate Charm

By PETER REHAK

PRAGUE (AP) — Prague is often a beautiful woman who is making the best of a reluctant marriage.

She can look sad or tired but she can also radiate charm.

The street lights barely flicker on Wenceslas Square. The smell of burned gasoline and diesel fuel hangs heavy in the air. Soft-coal soot is everywhere and the only traffic is a trickle of Soviet - built Pobeda taxis, ancient Czech Tatras and diplomats' cars. The scene is dark and eerie.

To see Prague's magic you have to survey the snow - covered Old Town from Hradcany Castle after a fresh snowfall or walk across Charles Bridge in the early morning. Here are centuries don't show, and the wear and tear of the first, hard years under communism register the least.

It's 15 years since Czechoslovakia was pushed into the arms of communism. She no longer entertains any girlish notions of running off but she tries to make her life as pleasant as possible.

She has an opera that ranks with the best in the world, a flourishing string of big and little theatres and a night life that compares favorably with those in any but the most outgoing cities of Western Europe.

CITY OF CONTRASTS

The years of exposure to the East have left their traces. Mingled with her Western tradition, they leave Prague a city of contrasts.

They're selling Soviet ice cream, Cuban shirts and Bulgarian cigarettes.

At the Tuzex stores you can get West, German tape recorders, Italian cars and French perfumes—if you have special coupons bought with Western currency. Apparently many people have relatives in the West—before Christmas these stores are jammed.

And, of course, there are many homegrown products — Prague ham, Pilsener beer, plum brandy and handicrafts from Slovakia.

There's an exhibition of Soviet photographs on Wenceslas Square and you can buy recordings of Russian folk songs almost everywhere.

But at the Lucerna bar the number that really sends them is When the Saints go March-ing In! Young Couples twist nightly until 3 a.m. and Vlasta Prechova sings a lively number called At Zije Jazz, at Zije Blues (Long Live Jazz. Long Live the Blues).

EASE TRAVEL RULES

During the last months the country has been thrown open to Westerners and there's talk of allowing large numbers of Czechoslovaks to travel to the West. Those who have someone to pay the fare in Western currency can go now.

Despite years of almost total lack of direct contact, young people have a good idea of what is happening on the other side of the Iron Curtain.

Their newspapers don't tell them much but a fair range of Western authors is available in translation.

Prague girls always singled out for their taste in clothes and good looks, compare favorably with those one sees in Paris these days.

Ancient taverns in the old sections of the city have good food and atmosphere—and the wine list compares with the finest in the West.

Old Prescription Pointed Way to Financial Health

TORONTO (CP)—Outside, a mean drizzle was sending Torontonians sloshing through the streets but it didn't do a thing to abate William K. Buckley's expansive smile.

Inside, the bottling machines were corking up a new consignment of tough medicine and Mr. Buckley was lining up a camp for next summer's fishing trip, secure in the knowledge that the weather will continue to keep his name on the lips of residents of such places as Canada, West Germany, Australia, Hong Kong and the Fiji Islands.

Around the world, the red, white and blue label of Buckley's Mixture has become a familiar drug-counter item in many lands since the Doc, now a relaxed and portly 72, accidentally came upon the formula for bronchial and financial health almost 50 years ago.

He had left his home in Sydney, N.S., and bought a small drugstore here after graduation from the Ontario College of Pharmacy when he noticed that an old prescription that came with the store was pulling a strong business on refills. He tried it on ill ill and added some embellishments, including his name.

USED IN TRENCHES

It's not true, he says, that in those early days rough - cut visiting Cape Breton cronies of the young pill-roller used to drop into such stores as Eaton's and demand to know why it couldn't be had in wholesale lots for northern Ontario lumber camps. (Actually, genuine lumby operators did all right by it eventually).

A break came during the First World War when the mixture got overseas. Soldiers who had used it against some of the hazards of trench warfare stimulated the demand when they got back.

Mr. Buckley, who is president of the family firm of W. K. Buckley Ltd., says the fir balsam compound has been Canada's largest-selling cough remedy for the last 25 years. It has remained largely unchanged except for the substitution of the more up-to-date carrageenin, the extract of Irish moss, for the druggist's old standby of gum tragacanth to hold the ingredients in suspension.

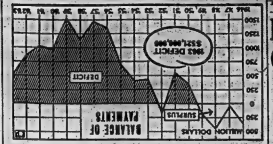
PLANTS ABROAD

It is turned out in a small plant on the third floor of a downtown building here and manufactured in other parts of the world under licence and royalty arrangements. Australian and New Zealand firms produce it for the Pacific area. A Chinese firm handles it in Hong Kong. A British concern in Georgetown, British Guiana, supplies the Caribbean and now is moving into Nigeria.

Mr. Buckley does not give total sales figures but cites such statistics as 1,000,000 bottles a year in Australia.

Son Frank Buckley, the firm's vice - president and treasurer who recently was named a member of a federal trade delegation to the Middle East, was planning on exploring the United Kingdom market before returning home.

The elder Buckley says it goes over big in the tropics but hastens to add: "Eskimos use it. There isn't a Hudson's Bay post in the north that doesn't carry it."



DOCTORED HORSES

Next to the mixture, Doc's favorite non-humans are horses, and he was racing his own in the Maritimes at the age of 17 his father was a cattle-breeder and horse dealer. He is a member of the exclusive Jockey Club, likes to get a bet down and for years enjoyed doctoring horses at Toronto's tracks.

The Doc, whose checkered vests might have been cut from the blankets of his racing friends, has given No. 1 priority recently to an all - embracing animal invigorator, named, of course, after his favorite horse—Zev.

STACK OF STUDYING

The technical manuals required for the operation and maintenance of a jet transport make a stack 13½ feet high.

DEFICIT CUT — Booming commodity exports last year cut Canada's international payments deficit on trade in goods and services to $521,000,000 compared with $848,000,000 in 1962. It was the lowest deficit in nine years. Graph shows balance of payments recorded since 1946.

(CP Newsmap)

OTTAWA NEEDS THEM

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian women don't know much about agriculture, but Ottawa "needs them to get things really going," says Henrietta Roulseu, information officer with the federal agriculture department. She is travelling across the country trying to interest women's groups in rural projects. Women were leaving too many of these projects to men, she said.

"That's my baby," he announces.

Angling comes next, and a trip to the Atlantic provinces in search of salmon or trout is an annual must. A prominently displayed picture shows him with a 15-pound, 33-inch sea trout taken in Conception Bay, one of the biggest ever fished in Newfoundland water.

Business talk broke off for a quick phone call to arrange a salmon trip to New Brunswick's Miramichi River as soon as the guide sends word they're running. "I can see them now," mused Doc, looking past the soggy pedestrians being turned into bronchial cases, "lying in that pool and wagging their tails. Man!"

NIGHT SNACK

LONDON (CP)—A four-layer sandwich called the brochette is a popular snack on the Night Limited, new first-class sleeper between London and Glasgow. It consists of smoked salmon, tongue, ham and cheese skewered on a cocktail stick and topped by olives, gherkins or cocktail onions.

Discard List of Things Most Of Us Could Do Without

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YOR K (AP)—A discard list of things most of us could do without:

All college graduates who create folk music by beating on a washboard, blowing into a jug or playing on a cigar-box fiddle. . . . Anything in a supermarket wrapped in plastic . . . Airport terminals that have nothing to amuse the stranded traveller except pinball machines and 10-cent mechanical-pony rides. . .

Coiffures that make a woman look as if her hair is standing on end from electrical shock. . . . Gasolines that have a secret ingredient that no other gasoline has. . . .

Giveaway ball point pens that won't work. . . . Beatnik poems which sound like the cries from padded cells.

New apartment buildings with walls thinner than alleged sciami. . . . Business executives whose only topic of conversation is their golf scores. . . . Anybody lucky enough to go to Florida for a ten while we had to stay here and hold the snow fort.

Parents who brag about the high IQs of their children—whom the neighbors regard as juvenile delinquents. . . .

Bartenders who always look for a tip but never buy a round on the house. . . . Butterfly glasses that make a girl look like a demon fly from Mars. . . . Teen-agers who blow bubble gum while holding hands in the movies. . .

Politicians who can't make up their minds whether they are running, walking, or merely waiting to be drafted. . . . Acts featuring talking dogs or horses that can tell your fortune. . . . Strange ladies at cocktail parties who insist on showing their tattoos. . . . People who give you as a birthday present a picture they painted by covering up the printed numbers — "one for clouds, two for hills, three for cows" — on a piece of wallboard.

"Folksy Era" in Quebec Coming to End Says Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—The "folksy era" in Quebec has come to an end, says Roger Lemelin, the man who earned fame writing about it in the early years of Canadian television.

Mr. Lemelin offers this comment on contemporary Quebec in an exchange of letters with Stuart Keate, publisher of the Victoria Times.

The author of the once-popular TV serial The Plouffe Family says the characters he invented could no longer be shown in English Canada "because the new French - Canadian is ashamed of them."

The type of Quebec society today, he says, is set by the disciples of Very Rev. Georges-Henri Levesque, the celebrated reformer who built up Laval University's faculty of social sciences.

The Lemelin - Keate letters were published in French in the Quebec City daily newspaper L'Action and in English in the February issue of Saturday Night magazine.

Mr. Keate, who used to work in Montreal, provokes the exchange with a letter asking "what the hell is going on in Quebec?"

NEW LIBERALISM

In his reply Mr. Lemelin says there are three main factors explaining contemporary Quebec, of which the first is the liberal social and economic philosophy of Father Levesque and his disciples—"the key men today in French Canada."

The others, he says, are the CBC's French television network, which "has become a vast popular culture medium for exclusivity by our people," and the arrival of immigrants from countries that have won their independence through violence.

Among Father Levesque's disciples—men who either studied under him or have come around to his way of thinking —Mr. Lemelin finds such people as Jean Marchand, president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, State Secretary Maurice Lamontagne, Arthur Tremblay, Quebec's deputy youth minister, newspaper editors Gerard Pelletier and Andre Laurendeau, Abbes Gerard Dion and Lionel O'Neill, political scientist Leon Dion and Rene Levesque, Quebec's natural resources minister.

He calls this "socialistically inclined" group "the victorious elite."

Within this group, he says, the supporters of Confederation are in the ascendant but that very success "has contributed to the ripening of the separatist idea among some of its members."

Mr. Keate, who left Montreal in 1960, recalls the "joie de vivre of Que—the lilting French songs on the radio; the haute couture of a French theatre opening, where even the old ladies were stylish and stunning; the gaiety of French laughter and of rippling French conversation."

But then he says things seem to be changing.

"The spate of terrorism and of violence, the bombings and the killings, have appalled us—as I am sure they have you. What is even more appalling is to hear a leading spokesman of your province say in Vancouver that, in a quarter century, monuments will be erected in these young patriots."

Mr. Lemelin replies that French Canada's social revolution is taking place "amid great confusion."

"A certain amount of anarchy is part and parcel of a growing social maturity. It is only in societies in transition that anarchistic movements appear. That's the explanation of the bombings."

FLQ WERE DELINQUENTS

The terrorists of La Front de Liberation Quebecois were juvenile delinquents, "leather-jacket kids of the Elvis Presley era who would never have monuments erected to them. "Here, one may say, it is almost forgotten."

The FLQ was broken up by police after a reign of terror in the spring of 1963 but since the Keate - Lemelin letters were written a series of weapons thefts at Quebec armories has been attributed to a similar group of young militant separatists.

Mr. Keate says many westerners have "a perfectly optimistic" about the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism. "They feel that the commission, far from attempting an objective, dispassionate examination of the facts, is out to sell biculturalism to the entire country."

Mr. Lamelin says the commission is pretty well the creation of the Quebec elite and its members in fact hope to become "latter - day Fathers of Confederation" by using it as a springboard to amend the constitution. For that reason, "one could have wished the English provinces to have been better represented on the commission."

DEVELOP RADIO

A team of Australian experts have developed a tiny radio transmitter—it by 3-8ths of an inch—which can be inserted in patients' teeth for special experiments.

Cabinet Ministers Taking Lessons For Television

LONDON (CP)—Conservative members of Parliament are taking lessons in how to look their best on television.

Their opposite numbers in the Labor party are also training, figuring that like it or not, television is going to play a bigger part than ever before in this year's general election.

But only the Tories have gone so far as to install a complete television studio in their Westminster-party headquarters and to issue a booklet entitled Talking on Television and Radio. They also imported from New York the famous TV debate from the 1960 presidential campaign when Republican candidate Richard M. Nixon was carved up by John F. Kennedy.

The Tories don't want to make Nixon's mistake, which may be one reason why Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home has been so visual so far appear face-to-face with Opposition Leader Harold Wilson in a similar debate. Sir Alec for his part has said he doesn't want to turn the British election into an American model.

Nevertheless, top men in the forthcoming campaign know the eye of the camera will be on them, and the Tories seem far more concerned at the moment with their screen image than the content of their speeches. Their handbook says the viewer's estimate of a candidate will be based "nine-tenths on what you say."

It adds a string of don'ts:

1. Don't look down. The viewer will assume you have looked at a note."

2. Don't look up. "Makes the speaker look slightly lunatic."

3. Don't let your eyes dart from side to side. "You may convey an impression of shiftiness."

Finally a tip on seating: "A tall should be well back in the chair. If you relax by sitting back in the chair so that the camera slightly looks up your nose, this gives a most unfortunate impression of assumed superiority."

INCREASE RESOURCES

Thirty-six of Norway's 56 commercial banks increased their total resources 7.7 per cent in 1963, with deposits and loans up 6.4 per cent.

Zotique Rivard of Montreal Waits for Swallows to Come

STE. GENEVIEVE, Que. (CP)—When spring comes and the swallows again dot the skies over Ste. Genevieve, a short, stout, red-faced man with white goatee will watch through binoculars.

In pairs and in droves, the birds will descend on Zotique Rivard, 62, their benevolent caretaker for two decades.

As many as 125 pairs will find shelter in the aviary he has built over the years in his back garden, only 125 feet from the fast - flowing Riviere des Prairie.

Other swallows will flock to other backyards owner the people of this quiet northwest Montreal suburb—following the example of Rivard — have provided similar if less extensive accommodations.

The story of Ste. Genevieve's swallows is the story of an unusual man. Zotique Rivard — wro looks like the typical Kentucky colonel—is an amateur naturalist described by Montreal wildlife director Albert Courtemanche as "one of these very rare persons."

LIFETIME HOBBY

Observations put down on paper by Rivard in 50 years of following the fish, birds and animals of the area in files that take up a corner of Courtemanche's Montreal office.

Rivard has been an observer of Ste. Genevieve's wildlife — and a lover and guardian of it — since a hot summer day in his youth when he climbed a tree and found a bird's nest.

"From his work of recording what he saw and did, we have been able to compile a pretty complete record of wildlife patterns on Montreal Island in the past half-century," says Courtemanche. "His records are the only ones we have."

Rivard springs into action at the faintest bird-call, racing for his binoculars.

"But today, civilization is killing bird-watching," he says. "Birds have no more place to go. Where once there were fields and forests, today there are some. The fields are getting filled up with buildings. There are trees here and there, but man is naturally enemy. The children go around with rifles shooting birds."

BLUEBIRDS GONE

Zotique hasn't seen a bluebird in Ste. Genevieve for 10 years. When he was young, they were plentiful. He believes that only man can save the birds, by doing what he and the people of Ste. Genevieve have done—building places for them to live.

But if observing nature and keeping records is a labor of love for Rivard, muskie fishing is his obsession.

Rivard has caught 148 muskellunge in his lifetime, and Courtemanche says this must make him the all-time Quebec muskie champion.

"There are two ways to go crazy," Rivard said with a laugh. "Marry the wrong girl, or fish muskie."

Ten of his prize catches are mounted in the general store he has operated for 50 years. His father ran the store for 40 years before him. One of the fish is a 33-pounder, the first he ever caught.

FAVORITE LAKE

Rivard does all his fishing in Lake of Two Mountains, a broad expanse around the western tip of Montreal Island that flows into Lake St. Louis, a tributary of the St. Lawrence.

He uses a rickety outboard motor and a trolling rod he fashioned from a mop handle. "It's more solid than the ones you buy."

The thumb-worn notebooks he scrawls the hour, date, length and girth of every fish he has ever caught. In one 1948 entry he lists four muskellunge caught at 10:20 a.m., 11:30, 11:30 and 11:40, which must be some kind of speed record for catching fish.

His brother, Rev. Adrien Rivard of the Holy Cross Order, founded the Quebec Association of Bird Lovers.

Historic Character of Quebec City Now Being Preserved

QUEBEC (CP) — They've been talking about preservation of the historic character of Quebec City for 50 years, and now they are finally doing something about it.

Place-Royale in Lower Town has suddenly bloomed into a charming cobbled square that might give an impression of the 17th century.

On Place d'Armes, the heart and soul of the city, the old Chateau Normandie has been spruced up and promises to grow older much more gracefully.

Under the supervision of experts, buildings 200 and 300 years old are being restored, painted, decorated and furnished in the style of their period.

All because of a drastic law passed by the Quebec government last year.

The law gives the Quebec Historic Sites and Monuments Commission the right to veto any construction, renovation or demolition in areas designated as historic.

Much of Quebec City and suburban Sillery have been placed under the jurisdiction of the commission since the law was passed.

And even though it cuts sharply at the authority of city council and property owners in the affected areas, it has been welcomed generally.

"They can do the job decently," says Mayor Wilfrid Hamel of Quebec City.

The city itself has never had the money nor the authority to carry out any comprehensive restoration plan.

One - third of the property within the old walls, for instance, belongs to religious orders or government bodies and is exempt from taxation as a result.

The problem of preserving the old buildings has become more acute in recent years.

The traffic situation on the narrow streets within the walled city is atrocious already as a result of office buildings, hotels and the court house—all located there.

And there has been constant pressure upon the city to allow construction of more office buildings, as well as parking lots and other modern discrepancies.

From now on, says commission chairman Paul Gouin, not even a parking meter will go up unless it measures up to the commission's standards.

The commission was formed in 1922 but its slender budget allowed it to do little more than put up historic site plaques until the cultural affairs department was formed a couple of years ago.

The new department not only drew up the law giving the commission a great deal of power, it also increased its budget to more than $500,000.

To soothe property owners, the commission uses this money to share in the cost of restoration. This makes the law an easier pill to swallow.

"If your latest record isn't sweeping the country in a few weeks' time you will be".

One of the first property owners to be affected by the law may turn out to be the provincial government.

The government horrified historians by suggesting that the crowded court house might be extended into the yard of an old Anglican church on Place d'Armes.

The reaction caused authorities to change their mind. Instead, the old St. Louis Hotel would be bought and demolished to make room for the extension.

Mr. Gouin applauded the demolition of the hotel—which tried to defend itself by recalling that the Fathers of Confederation once sat there—but he was cool to the idea of extending the court house.

He felt it should be moved outside the walled area—since it only adds to parking problems — rather than extended inside the area.

The matter has not yet been settled, but if the government moves rashly, it might just find itself in court—outside the walls—paying a $500 fine, the penalty for bucking commission rulings.

Sheep Dog Pups Being Sent to Canada

PALMERSTON NORTH, N.Z. (CP)—Two young sheep dog pups sent from New Zealand to Canada may start a strain of working dog to take over duties from sheep herder and cowboy in the Canadian West.

The two pups have been sent by air to Dr. Alexander Wood of the University of British Columbia. They were selected by E. M. Small, of the sheep husbandry department of Massey University, in response to an inquiry from Dr. Wood.

Dogs are used extensively for herding sheep in New Zealand and strains of dog highly developed for this work have been bred. The dogs are able to operate at long distances from those controlling them and respond with great precision to whistle signals.

Since ranchers are beginning to graze cattle with sheep in North American sheep country, Dr. Wood is seeking a strain of intelligent sheep dog that could, on occasion, work cattle as well as sheep.

The two bitch pups, Spy and Queen, chosen by Small are from an intelligent and versatile strain of plain eyed heading dogs which for years have been the backbone of many mustering teams on sheep stations in the north island of New Zealand.

They were bred at Pongaroa, the centre of a district on the East Coast famed for its splendid teams of working dogs. Small thinks they might breed the type of dog Dr. Wood is seeking. With difficulty in hiring reliable sheep herders on some North American ranches, increased reliance on dogs may become necessary.

Ballerina Galina Samtsova

Canada's Cinderella Wows City of Light

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP)—The young Cinderella from the National Ballet Company of Canada who delighted Paris with her dancing last November needed no fairy godmother to help her. She has spent half her lifetime learning to work her own magic.

Galina Samtsova had been invited to create the Cinderella role at Le Theatre du Champs Elysee and the Paris press was unanimous in its praise.

Typical was the comment of the newspaper L'Aurore which said:

"Cinderella has above all found in Galina Samtsova an ideal interpreter."

She returned to Canada to tour in the East with the National Ballet and now is in Toronto rehearsing Romeo and Juliet for its April 14 opening at Montreal's Place des Arts.

Wearing pink and black practice tights, she perched on a wooden chair and talked about her career in a soft voice with a slight Russian accent.

"Ballet is work," she said. "The easier it looks, the more work you have to put in."

The background lent mute emphasis to her remark. It takes hours in such bare, dusty rehearsal lofts to produce the glittering excitement of a performance.

TRAINED IN KIEV

When the slender 26-year-old native of Stalingrad talks about her life, it soon becomes evident that it has practically all been ballet.

Her training began when she was 12, at the Kiev Opera and Ballet Theatre, where she became first soloist.

She met Edmonton-born Alex Ursulak when he went to Kiev to study ballet. They were married in February, 1960, and came to Canada a few months later.

Miss Samtsova, now a Canadian, has been home once since then. In 1962 she danced Swan Lake with Kiev's Shevchenko Opera and Ballet Theatre.

Except for tours, which the Kiev company didn't do, her life is not much changed in her new country. It still centres on theatres and rehearsal halls.

"It is very difficult . . . have a normal life. I don't see my husband for more than four months a year because of being on tour. I would love to do many things and see more theatres but it is very difficult."

Ursulak's work as a teacher at the National Ballet School keeps him in Toronto.

NO VACATIONS

Although she enjoys the respite from the bustle of life on tour, Miss Samtsova doesn't like long periods between performances. "The long breaks are bad because when you begin again it's as if for the first time. Everyone is so nervous."

The breaks are not vacations. When she is not performing, Miss Samtsova practices eight hours a day. Even when she is appearing before the public, practice still takes about an hour and a half plus an occasional rehearsal of some part of her role.

Is it worth it?

"For me it is the only thing to do," she says. "I can't explain it. You have to be out on stage, or even before that, in school, to feel it."

The explanation may have been buried in her comments on why she prefers certain roles.

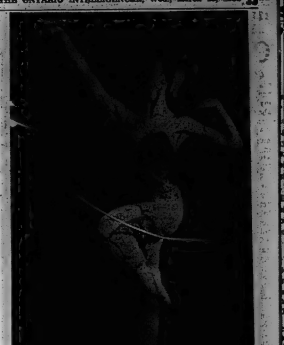
"I used to say Giselle because it has lots of dancing and is difficult technically. Now I think Romeo and Juliet is my favorite because it has more tragedy.

"Even Swan Lake, which is very difficult, is not what people.

"When an audience sees something about people they like you. In Paris some people came back stage and told me this is the first time they have believed in the Cinderella story."

RETURN TO PARIS

She will dance Cinderella again. "I am going back to Paris in June, the day after the season here is over. I will tour in Spain with Cinderella for two months in the summer."



She also has pending invitations from the London Festival Ballet and a South African company to dance with them as a guest.

But she has no thoughts of leaving the Canadian company. She likes its mixed repertoire of classical and modern ballets.

Although only her mid-30s, Miss Samtsova is aware that a ballerina's career ends as it begins—when she is young. And she is already thinking about the day 10 or 15 years from now when she will no longer be performer.

"I think about it all the time. I think I will teach. That's the only thing you can do after, unless you have something else you are interested in."

And at the moment her interest is ballet.

Even while on tour, she averages 1½ hours of practice a day. (CP Photo)

Houses Will Be Constructed Of Canadian Lumber in U.K.

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—Canada has been crying "Timber-" for the last 10 years, and Britain finally has the message.

The result: Six new semi-detached houses, built with forest products from British Columbia, Ontario and the Maritime provinces, will start shooting up in England and Scotland as part of an Anglo-Canadian drive to speed house construction.

The homes will be built by Canada's Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, with British blessings. Designs are already completed and first on-site construction, under Canadian supervision, is expected to start in two or three months.

Both countries expect to gain. British housing experts hope to find out how to build more quickly and Canadian officials say frankly they would like to create a huge new market for homegrown timber.

"We've been campaigning on behalf of Canadian lumber for the last nine or 10 years," said one Canadian official. "These six houses signify that we are reaching the high point in the campaign, and we hope it will be the breakthrough."

UPHILL BATTLE

Two houses will be built in Edinburgh, another pair at Abbots Langley in Hertfordshire, just outside London, and two more at Skelmersdale, near Liverpool. A Canadian framing crew may assist in construction.

Timber boosters have fought an uphill battle. Some Britons felt wood construction would attract beetles, add to fire hazards or cost more money. But last June a British mission went to Canada to study how things are done on the spot, and came back convinced.

In a report, the mission stressed the "high standard of workmanship and finish" of Canadian houses despite speed of construction and low labor content.

Out of the report grew the plan for six experimental houses. If all goes well, another 200 may be built later.

British housing, except for really high-cost jobs, has often been criticized here and shoddy. Homes in industrial suburbs tend to be mere boxes of bricks, built to the same depressing pattern of protuberant bow front garnished with a little pebble-dash, an ugly pre-war decoration consisting of concrete surfaces peppered with pebbles.

OUTSIDE PIPES

For some reason nobody can fathom, pipes are on the outside, where they succumb to winter's first chill blast, and the harried householder has to trundle a ladder out of the garage and climb into a dusty attic, called a loft, reached through a tiny trapdoor.

Insulation is sketchy or nonexistent so repair work on the water tank is conducted in freezing temperatures.

The new Canadian style houses, using lumber and Douglas fir plywood, would — the Canadians argue — be better insulated, facilitate flexible design and cut down construction time.

Some private Canadian builders are also preparing to enter the British market. A prefabricated show house is being built at Brighton by a Calgary firm, and enough Canadian timber to build eight homes arrived by ship at Southampton the other day. These pre-cut materials and components will be used on a site in Pulborough, Sussex.

Negro Leaders Prepare For Greater Pressure to Achieve Aims of Equal Status

The year 1964 may become the landmark year in the long struggle over civil rights in the United States as Negro leaders prepare for greater pressure to achieve their aims of equal opportunity. The U.S. election year provides the stimulus for civil rights efforts. The following article by Associated Press special writer Relman Morin reviews the civil rights fight and tells what is in store for 1964.

By RELMAN MORIN

This is the second crisis year in the "Negro revolution" in the United States and its leaders sound the rallying cry, "More in '64."

It is an election year—for President Johnson, for about one-third of the Senate, for the entire House of Representatives, and civil rights the dominating domestic issue, can influence millions of votes, pro and con, North and South.

It is the 10th anniversary of the historic U.S. Supreme Court decision outlawing segregation in the public schools, hence the logical moment for civil rights leaders to measure the extent of the social changes since 1954, first in the South, now also in the North.

It is a year that already has seen the beginning of the most determined effort in a century to enact meaningful legislation on behalf of Negro freedoms.

And it is a year which may see a greater struggle between "moderates" and "extremists" for control of the civil rights movement; a year in which differences as to method already have opened wide in some top-level splits in the Negro leadership; a year which holds the possibility of strong counter-reaction by white groups to what they consider "excesses" in the Negro movement.

LANDMARK YEAR

Thus, 1964, holds the potentialities of becoming a great landmark date in the long, complicated struggle over civil rights.

In 10 years, that struggle has swept far beyond the first objectives, schools, bus lines, waiting rooms in the South.

It now aims at desegregating public accommodations (hotels, motels, eating places, department store fitting rooms, etc.), to strike down the barriers designed to discourage Negro voter registration, to establish biracial committees for adjudicating racial problems in given communities.

As the "revolution" moved north last year, it embraced still other objectives — "open" housing, equal job opportunities, racial balancing in schools which are virtually segregated, not by law, but because a given residential area is 90 per cent white or 90 per cent Negro.

In the beginning, the federal court was the principal theatre of conflict.

Then the Negro carried his struggle into the streets—the stick and kneel-in, the mass demonstrations conducted so dramatically last year in Birmingham, Ala., picketing and delaying tactics at construction sites in a number of northern cities.

Along with this came "selective buying," the euphemism for "boycott," the real strike in slum areas, the one-day boycotting of schools.

NORTH PRESSED

Pressures were brought to bear on many new fronts, noisably in the North. The major school - boycott actions took place in New York, Chicago, Boston, Cleveland and Cincinnati. In Atlanta, demonstrations were resumed, focussed on public facilities. In Macon County, Alabama, white students boycotted two schools under orders to integrate.

1—Legislation.

On Feb. 10, the U.S. House of Representatives passed the most comprehensive package of civil rights legislation in history, affecting public education, voting rights, equal employment opportunity, public facilities, etc. It empowers the attorney-general to bring school desegregation suits, an authority not granted in the 1957 Civil Rights Act.

Now the bill goes to the Senate where, because of the unlimited debate, the opposition is expected to be far more formidable.

2—Continued pressure.

Civil rights leaders say there will be no relaxation of pressures this year, in fact, they will increase, they say.

More school - boycotts have been scheduled for a number of northern cities.

The Wall Street Journal quoted Whitney Young Jr., chairman of the National Urban League, as saying "if the proper white response to the Negro challenge fails, if the civil rights bill fails, if the unions fail to make a place for Negro labor, 1964 could make last year's demonstrations look like a mild physical fitness program."

3—The counter-reaction.

As civil rights leaders increased the pressures, charges of "demagogery" and "opportunity seeking" came from both whites and some Negroes. The street demonstrations and school-boycotts stirred fears of a "backlash" of sentiment even among sympathizers of the movement.

"In the past, sympathy for the Negro's cause has been unprecedented" said Ed England, executive secretary of the Atlanta Restaurant Association. "But continuing demonstrations are turning people the other way."

A. T. Walden, a Negro lawyer of Atlanta, said, "I am afraid there will be serious trouble or a real setback to progress unless the present disorders are stopped."

Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said in a speech, "Some of our tactics are causing questions to be raised about our campaign, not among our expected opponents, but among some of our own people and our potential allies."

4—The Negro answers.

Negro leaders, while decrying some of the incidents that grew out of demonstrations, said nevertheless, that this form of protest has been effective.

Civil rights leaders are aware that carrying the fight into the streets has cost the movement some sympathizers. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. said there had been some resentment over the events of the summer of 1963. But he said it was a "temporary setback."

5—The major by-product.

Some whites, while professing sympathy for the Negro movement, assert that "they are trying to go too far too fast." Negroes, on the other hand, are dissatisfied with the pace of desegregation in the schools since 1954, and scornful of what they call "tokenism" in the desegregation of public accommodations.

Between these two points of view, one development is obvious and highly significant: More people, white and Negro, North and South, are aware of the problems now than were a few years ago. More people in all sections of the country are concerned. More thought is being given to solutions.

Whatever else it has achieved, the "Negro revolution" has focussed a hot, bright spotlight on a century-old social problem.

Liquor Boats Tracked Down On Radar Screen

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Gone are the days when rum-running was an adventurous game of wits between men in small boats plying between St. Pierre-Miquelon and Newfoundland and the RCMP in their fast cutters.

Today, the officers track the boats on a radar screen and then swoop down on them at their convenience. Radio also assists the officers in making beach raids in case a boat happens to slip through.

A report in the RCMP Quarterly tells of one such incident on Nov. 28, 1962, when the RCMP patrol boat Blue Heron was cruising off Green Bay on the province's south coast.

Her radar was scanning the ocean for the small motor-driven dories that make their way to the French island for low-priced liquor.

TWO BLIPS

At 9:30 p.m., two blips appeared on the screen in the vicinity of Lorries, Nfld., and the ships were headed for St. Pierre. The Blue Heron manoeuvred into position to make the interception when suddenly another blip appeared, this time from the Lamaline area of Newfoundland. The Blue Heron switched off engines and watched silently with electronic eyes as the little blips completed their trip to St. Pierre.

The patrol boat then took up a position north of the entrance of St. Pierre Harbor to wait and watch. At about 2:30 a.m., the first blip appeared on the screen and the Blue Heron was preparing to make chase when the other two blips bore out of the harbor. The NCO in charge of the cutter decided to let the first go and concentrate on the two that were travelling in company.

The cutter ran as close as she could to the two dories without being discovered and then launched a small skiff equipped with a portable radio transmitter. The plan was to intercept both dories simultaneously, taking them by surprise and preventing them from dumping their contraband.

CAPTURED ONE

Then one of the blips on the radar screen became obscured by sea clutter" and as the water was becoming more shallow, the cutter had to cheat-radio and try for an interception of only one dory. The interception was made successfully and when the cutter's spotlight was flashed on, the beam fell on two men and a number of burlap sacks.

The men stoutly insisted that the sacks contained only sawdust but the RCMP investigated anyway and found 22.75 gallons of alcohol, two bottles of brandy, a bottle of wine and seven cartons of cigarettes. The men were arrested and ultimately fined $100 each. Their boat was confiscated.

The second and third boats escaped because the RCMP detachments on the Burin Peninsula were converting to a new radio frequency and could not be reached by the Blue Heron.

Life of Canadian Wildlife Service Scientist Can Be Quite Exacting at Times

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP)—To the average outdoors enthusiast, lucky to get a couple of good hunting or fishing trips a year, the life of a Canadian Wildlife Service scientist probably sounds like the perfect job.

Roaming to every corner of the Canadian wilderness, including some choice spots well out of reach of most sportsmen, the service's 40 full-time field biologists cram more outdoors living into a working year than most men get in a lifetime.

There are some hitches, however, in this dream career. It requires intensive training, there's far more work than play and the salary level is below professional incomes in private fields.

It means weeks and sometimes months away from home. It can involve real hardship, such as rolling out of a sleeping bag on a 40-below-zero Arctic morning to check fox traps or chase after a herd of migrating caribou. It means spending economy, counting game hour after hour from a small plane bouncing its occupants about like a trampoline.

SHORTAGE OF MEN

If you're still interested, the current demand for wildlife scientists exceeds the supply. Every province has unfilled positions. So have most of the private wildlife agencies. The Canadian Wildlife Service is finding it more and more difficult to locate promising men, although it is just about up to strength.

The federal service was set up in 1947 to meet the growing need for research into wildlife management. Its basic job is the preservation of native species.

Most of the work is concentrated in the far north and in federal parks, but the service also co-operates with provincial agencies and private groups such as Ducks Unlimited and carries out the federal government's special responsibility for migratory birds.

Typical of its special breed of men is Dr. David Munro, a handsome, curly - haired ornithologist who recently was appointed chief of the 90-man service.

The 40-year-old native of Victoria joined the service 15 years ago and has done extensive field work on geese, caribou and prairie ducks. He was the agency's chief ornithologist for 10 years.

GROWING URGENCY

Dr. Munro, 40, talks in a quiet but convincing manner of the growing urgency behind many of the country's more serious wildlife problems. He believes the deadline is approaching for decisive action on such things as the worrisome decline in northern caribou and the near-extinct position of the whooping crane.

Nine Regulars Of Canadiens Are French

MONTREAL (CP)—Just how "French" are Montreal's Canadiens—the Flying Frenchmen of the National Hockey League?

The answer is a little better than half.

Of the 17 regulars, there are nine players whose mother tongue is French and eight who are English.

Two are from Montreal, eight from other parts of Quebec, one from Ontario, four from Saskatchewan and one from British Columbia. There are 11 Roman Catholics and six Protestants.

All the French-speaking players also speak English, some fluently. Goalie Charlie Hodge is the only truly bilingual player with an Anglo - Saxon background.

The coach, Toe Blake, has English as his mother tongue but his background fits him for the job—he's of Irish-Scots and French parentage and grew up in Coaticook, Que., a mining town of 3,000.

Harvey, Tom Johnson, Jean Guy Talbot and Marcel Bonin Blake discourages the formation of cliques. There are no some on road trips. The trouble regular roommates on road was that they were the only trips since he continually switches players around.

On occasion this policy caused some unhappiness, however, for the coach—only Talbot is that was when he ordered Doug still with Canadiens.

The Issue of Nazi Guilt And Conscience Will Likely Obsess Writers for Years

LONDON (CP)—The farther the Second World War recedes into the mists, the closer Europe seems drawn to examine the mentality of the men who caused its descent into the pit 25 years ago.

A new generation ponders the problem of Nazi psychology, trying to analyze what could have brought apparently civilized men to such depths. Last year a television program revealed the terrible mental block between the generations in modern West Germany — a block caused by political sympathies the fathers wished to forget, the sons could not begin to understand.

The psychological problem has been working away in people's minds since 1945, while on another subterranean level the public prosecution in Bonn was burrowing after escaped war criminals. Both operations broke ground in 1961 with the trial of Adolph Eichmann, opening a public debate on what made Nazis tick.

A similar eruption may come after the Frankfurt trial of the Auschwitz guards — an event that seems to arouse far greater revulsion among ordinary Britons, though less prominent in the newspapers, than the story of Kim Philby, the colorless SS (Elite Guard) administrator.

PERSONAL SADISM

The essential difference in the Frankfurt evidence is the personal sadism involved in acts that simply blunt belief, like the throwing of babies alive on a fire. Unlike Eichmann, the men of Auschwitz did not merely sign death-warrants—they carried them out with their own hands and with a brutality that made little children glad to die.

A Viennese doctor testified that Auschwitz guards behaved "like beasts in the stone age," and an observer writes in The Guardian that the men now on trial seem to have "moral amnesia."

The issue on Nazi guilt and conscience will probably obsess writers for generations. In the last two years, since Eichmann was executed, several have been posing the uncomfortable question that maybe Nazi guilt for the slaughter of Europe's Jews should be shared by some non-Nazis.

The German play The Deputy, now on Broadway, accuses Pope Pius XII of a moral failure to speak out. There was a London play about the return of Hitler which implied that West Germany was still riddled with the virus of fascism.

BITTER WRANGLING

And there was—and still is—the bitter wrangling among Jews in the United States and Europe over Hannah Arendt's book on the Eichmann trial, a book that questions the role played by some of the Jews themselves in their path to mass destruction.

Miss Arendt, a German Jew who emigrated to the U.S. the year Hitler came to power, based her book—a Report on the Banality of Evil on two explosive themes:

1. That Eichmann was little more than a conscientious but the defence claimed; and that reacral carrying out orders, as he was "terribly and terrifyingly normal."

2. That at least part of the blame for the pre-war genocide should be laid on the Jewish leaders, without whose co-operation — even collaboration — the Nazis could hardly have disposed of 6,000,000 souls.

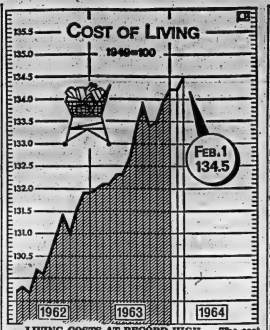
The Arendt book has aroused furious resentment among survivors of the death camps who feel the author has, through ignorance or misinterpretation, cast an unforgivable slur on her own race.

BOOK DISCUSSED

Last fall some 400 European Jews now living in west London gathered in a bleak assembly hall to discuss her "outrageous travesty."

On the platform sat survivors of the Jewish communities in Nazi Germany, Austria, Poland, Hungary and Czechoslovakia. One by one they asserted passionately that Eichmann wielded immense power, was far from being just a cog in a machine, and that the Jewish leaders had done everything within their "painfully restricted abilities" to save as many of their people as possible.

Some points that emerged:



1. Accepting Nazi orders was the only hope of helping at least some Jews to escape. About 350,000 managed to leave Germany, but only one German Jewish leader survived. Any lack of co-operation, the speakers agreed, was a one-way ticket to a concentration camp.

2. The Nazis already had complete records of Jews in the occupied countries, since all were made to register with the police. There would have been little point in ordering Jewish leaders to draw up lists of people and property, as alleged in the Arendt book.

3. There was a natural reluctance among the persecuted to "believe the unbelievable." At the beginning many were only deprived of jobs and property—this they could accept, but not a systematic plan for their annihilation.

In this connection a Polish doctor told how on Lenin's action he had watched a trainload of Jews directed to an "inoculation centre" before proceeding to "resettlement" in the Ukraine. They had arrived in Pullman cars, almost luxuriously treated. They did not—could not—suspect the hideous twist that was to come.

When they reached the "clinic" they were led into a gas chamber.

LIVING COSTS AT RECORD HIGH — The cost-of-living index reached a record high of 134.5 Feb. 1 after holding steady at 134.2 for the two previous months. Higher costs in transportation, recreation, clothing, alcohol and tobacco accounted for most of the increase. Costs of housing and health were unchanged while food costs declined slightly.

CAMPBELLFORD

Band Concert, Dance Enjoyed By Large Crowd

CAMPBELLFORD — The Campbellford „Citizens' Band presented a program, dance and concert in the High School Auditorium on Friday evening.

The Campbellford band has been recently re-organized under the direction of Mr. J. M. Benor. The band features members from the Campbellford area proper and also members from the surrounding towns to make a total membership of about thirty.

The program was opened with O Canada and the date being so close to St. Patrick's Day two Irish numbers were included in the concert, Galtey Bay and Dear Old Donegal.

Two old favorites usually included in a band concert perhaps because of their familiarity and public appeal were Old Comrades March and Colonel Bogey.

The Spanish number Festival in Madrid was well played in the exciting Spanish tempo. Cole Porter's "Night and Day" with emphasis on the cymbals received good applause as did "Rhapsody in Blue" by George Gershwin.

Guest pianist, Dwight Bennett, a talented young artist, contributed a plano solo to the Number Theme from the Apartment.

A brass septette under the direction of Mr. A. Holmes of Trenton and featuring three trumpets and additional horns contributed two numbers to the program.

Bemersyde Ladies' Double Trio, consisting of Mrs. R. B. Bennett, Mrs. D. Bennett, Mrs. J. O. Benor, Mrs. William Craighead, Miss C. MacArthur, Mrs. A. Whitfield accompanied by Mrs. N. B. Bradford delighted the audience with three numbers.

Dancing completed the evening.

Strong Anti-British Feeling Seen Developing in India

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP)—Strong anti-British feeling, the most intense since Britain gave up this subcontinent more than 18 years ago, is developing in India.

Indians of all political parties have been angered by Britain's stand in a recent UN Security Council debate on Kashmir, the big state claimed by both India and Pakistan, and by what is described here as the British cabinet's "partiality towards Pakistan" on the Hindu-Muslim religious issue.

British diplomats and businessmen in India are reported disturbed by the developments.

For the first time, many top leaders of the ruling Congress party have spoken bitterly about "Britain's utter lack of sympathy or understanding for India."

Members of the ruling party have joined Socialist and Communist MPs in demanding that India quit the Commonwealth rather than put up with what K. D. Malaviya, until recently a minister in the Nehru cabinet, described as "the British Tories' unabashed attempt to put us in the dock every time Kashmir comes up in the United Nations."

OLD FRIEND ANGERED

Observers noted that even a sober, generally pro-West ruling party politician like Lal Bahadur Shastri, minister without portfolio and Nehru's chief troubleshooter, recently spoke angrily about Britain's official attitude.

What seems to have particularly displeased Indians is the speech of the British representative in the United Nations holding India and Pakistan equally guilty of maltreatment of religious minorities.

Mahomed Ali Chagla, India's Muslim education minister who represented the country at the UN debate, said that by totally ignoring what the Indian government had been doing for the protection of the minorities the British government had taken a "highly partisan" attitude.

Many Indian commentators have suggested that in India true the Commonwealth has lost much of its magic.

Observers feel that if the present situation is not handled by London and New Delhi with greater tact and understanding a real threat to India's membership of the Commonwealth may develop.

BROWN FLASHES

Indians have drawn some comfort from a statement by George Brown, deputy leader of the British Labor party, that Labor stood for British disentanglement from the Kashmir dispute.

A scholar of the Indian Council of World Affairs, M. S. Rajan, has chastised Indians for their anti - Commonwealth talk.

Pointing out that the Commonwealth is no longer a "British proprietary interest," Rajan said it was wrong to threaten to leave the Commonwealth every time there is a disagreement with the British government, and asked how Indians would react if Britain threatened to leave the Commonwealth every time it disapproved of some action by the Indian government.

Political circles have said Canadian diplomats in New Delhi were at one stage perturbed about the worsening Indo-British relations.

Some pro-West Indian politicians think that Canada could play a key role in easing the existing tensions between London and New Delhi.

The Canadian government's neutral attitude on Kashmir and other India - Pakistan disputes has been noted here with interest and appreciation.

Mink Ranching in Nfld. Facing Bleak Future Due Scarcity of Pothead Whales

By JAMES H. HUSSEY
Canadian Press Correspondent

WHITBOURNE, Nfld. (CP)—Mink ranching in Newfoundland appears to be facing a bleak future because of the scarcity of pothead whales, for feed, and low fur prices.

Ranchers in the Whitbourne, Dildo area at the south end of Trinity Bay — about 40 miles west of St. John's—are becoming alarmed over the decline of the potheads during the last few years. The whales are a cheap and important source of mink feed. Last year's pothead harvest was the lowest on record, and to make matters worse other types of whales also were scarce.

Victor Closston, one of Newfoundland's largest mink ranchers, after being in the business more than a quarter of a century is closing down his operation.

"There has been a shortage of whale meat for the past few years," he said, "and ranchers have been forced to import feeds at relatively high cost."

WHALE MEAT CHEAP

The Closston mink ranch, a $80,000 operation with about 3,500 animals, could be fed economically when enough pothead whale meat was available at four to six cents per pound. Feeding the mink on imported Ontario liver, at 16 to 18 cents a pound, or horsemeat at 12 to 14 cents takes the profit out of the business.

"Other headaches are oversupply of mink pelts and lower prices," says Closston. "World production which was 5,500,000 pelts in 1954 skyrocketed to 19,000,000 last year. Europeans, who came over here to buy mink furs 15 years ago, were able to export 5,000,000 pelts to North America in 1962."

Pelts that brought from $18 to $20 in 1954 were bringing only $15 as an average in the last two years.

"These factors have convinced Closston he should quit the business he has carried on since 1935.

MAY IMPROVE

About 20 other Newfoundland mink ranchers, who raise a total of 40,000 mink annually, are facing the same difficulties but most say they will carry on for the present, at least.

"The pothead whale catch may improve, maybe not," said rancher Garfield White of Whitbourne. "I'll wait and see."

Whale meat comprises only about 15 per cent of the mink food ration, but more than 500,000 pounds of whale meat is needed annually. Meat products imported from the Canadian mainland, the bulk of the diet, cost at least 12 cents per pound. It is figured that at least 110 pounds of food is needed to sustain a mink through the six months from birth to pelting.

AFFECTS FISHERMEN

The pothead scarcity also is having an effect on fishermen in the Trinity and Bonavista bay areas. In 1956, an exceptional year, fishermen took some 14,000 potheads yielding nearly 7,000,000 pounds of meat and fat.

This raw material put more than $300,000 in the pockets of the fishermen and others taking part in the pothead drive. Whale meat that year was cheap and also available for export.

Since then the pothead harvest has been declining each year. There were only four drives in 1963, with 183 whales yielding 136,000 pounds of meat for mink. Of these, 154 were potheads.

One factor in the smaller catch is that squid, the main diet of pothead whales, has been scarce in Newfoundland waters in recent years.

Another factor may be the method of hunting. There are fishermen who agree with Skipper Nath Smith or Norman's Cove, Trinity Bay, who says "the noisy and spectacular method used to scare the potheads has kept them from returning to the coves and harbors along the coast."

This is the traditional method. When a herd of whales is spotted large numbers of small motorboats surround them and the fishermen make a terrific din by pounding on empty oil drums and banging the sides of the boats, until the herd is frightened toward the shore. There, floundering in shallow water, the mammals are shot, harpooned or slashed until they die from loss of blood.

"Jest a Second"

"Mind how you go, dear — it's a frightening thought, but you're all I have in the world!"

Conditioning Important Says Football Trainer

MONTREAL (CP) — Conditioning, says Cherbie Baillie, often is the only difference between a professional and an amateur with potential.

To prove his point, Baillie, a former lineman with the Eastern Football Conference Montreal Alouettes, recently started twice-weekly classes to keep athletes in condition in the off-season.

The classes are for football players, but may be expanded later to include other athletes.

"The attitude of the amateur players is poor," says Baillie. "They are hard to handle and have no ambition to improve themselves."

He says there are "plenty of good football players in Montreal, but they need improvement in order to make the big time."

For example, most of the linemen lacked weight, while the backs were just not strong enough.

To make matters worse, football players in the city were "just plain lazy."

Baillie is assistant coach of the suburban Mount Royal Lions in the Quebec Junior Rugby Football Union.

At his classes, he stresses "mainly weight lifting for adding pounds. However, we do play some conditioning games such as basketball and handball. Wrestling is also done on a small scale, but I would like to expand on this as I feel wrestling is a great conditioner."

Up to 30 boys turned out for the classes initially, but some dropped out for lack of interest.

"I feel that it takes roughly four to five months for a football player to condition himself. I don't agree with a player cramming all his training into one or two months."

Irony in Stage-Struck City

The Theatre Lights Are Going Out Across Dublin

DUBLIN (CP) — This city which has prided itself for two centuries on being one of the great theatre - minded in the world has wakened suddenly to the knowledge that its reputation is waning.

There is still an abundance of fine Irish actors, but they are found in London and on Broadway. For the sad fact is that their opportunities for playing in their native capital are severely limited by a shortage of theatres.

Less than 15 years ago Dublin possessed six major theatres, each capable of accommodating more than 600 persons. They were the Gaiety, the Gate, the Abbey, the Olympia, the Royal and the Queen's.

Revitalized by the war years, when Ireland was almost entirely dependent on native entertainment, the Gaiety provided open house for dozens of talented Irish troupers. The Olympia, under scintillating management, has furnished a wide range of programs, including many tryouts for the London stage of plays by noted authors like Noel Coward.

The Abbey, home of J. M. Synge and Sean O'Casey, was known the world over.

The Gate, led by Hilton Edwards and Michael MacLiammoir — whose one-man shows played in every continent during the last five years — displayed the finest acting in Ireland.

The huge Royal staged variety. The Queen's — known as the poor man's theatre—staged anything and everything.

In 1951 the Abbey was destroyed by fire and its famous company forced to take over the Queen's. It has not been rebuilt.

The Royal has been demolished and replaced by a huge office block. As for the Queen's, the odds are that when the new Abbey theatre is finally built and the Abbey company vacates its present home, the old and shabby Queen's will be pulled down.

WORST BLOW

Worst blow of all to Dubliners is that the Olympia, perhaps the best - loved of all their theatres, has been sold to a London syndicate. Unless a last-minute bid to repurchase it succeeds, it is almost certain to be demolished.

In effect, therefore, the city's stock of major theatres has been reduced to three. There are still nearly a dozen pint-sized "pocket theatres," the largest of which might hold 200 persons. But these establishments cannot pay the fees required to keep Irish stars at home or to attract talent from abroad.

It is a sorry situation for a stage-struck capital of 500,000 population, and one that has acquired an ironic edge. This year Dublin proposes to stage its sixth annual Theatre Festival, which attracts keen attention from British and European critics.

But where are the shows to be staged?

CATTLE TOTAL

WINNIPEG (CP)—Manitoba's Water Supply Board is hoping to supply 16 more towns with water systems by the end of 1964. The board installs the systems and looks after construction and operation, with each community paying rates calculated to pay for the system in 35 years.

Prostitutes Now Common In Red China

HONG KONG (AP)—The Chinese Communists say there are no prostitutes in China but returning visitors report prostitution is on the increase.

Newspapers and magazines have started denouncing it again while still pretending officially it doesn't exist.

The Communists avoid the word "prostitute." They use such phrases as "bourgeois female elements" or "evil women who accost and unashamedly try to seduce" soldiers and civilians.

Returning visitors report these bourgeois females have begun to appear on the streets of major cities—Tientsin in the north, Canton in the south and the former metropolis of Shanghai in central China.

Discreet members of the profession use a simple device to identify themselves. They wear a colorful silk blouse under the shapeless pyjama-type jacket and loose-fitting trousers most women wear in China today. They allow a corner of the blouse to peek from under the collar.

Others dress brazenly in bright colors and tight slacks. Payment is accepted in ration coupons as well as cash.

New Hampshire Only State That Has Sponsored Lottery

CONCORD, N.H. (CP-AP)—New Hampshiremen, traditionally rock - hard conservatives, now have the distinction of living in the only state of the U.S. with a state-sponsored lottery.

Not everyone bears the distinction cheerfully, but even critics agree that the experiment in "voluntary taxation" has wide popular support.

The first real test of its popularity will come March 10 when citizens will decide by local referendum whether they want sweepstakes tickets to be sold in their towns.

But the day many New Hampshire residents are looking forward to is Sept. 12, when a field of thoroughbreds will bolt from the starting gate at Rockingham Park for the first running of the Granite State sweepstakes.

Depending on the number of tickets sold, hundreds of smaller prizes will go to second- and third-place winners, and to holders of tickets on any horse nominated to enter the race from a large field of candidates.

What's in it for New Hampshire?

Even the sceptics—and there are many—are hopeful that the sweeps will live up to its billing as an effective way of raising an estimated $4,000,000 from two races a year.

The money will be distributed on a per-pupil basis in New Hampshire school districts. If it does amount to $4,000,000, it will roughly double the state's aid to education program, one of the most meagre in the U.S.

"People are ready for an honest, efficient sweepstakes," says Edward J. Powers, the state's sweepstakes director.

His views are shared by Democratic Governor John W. King, who signed the sweeps bill law last April after passage by a Republican-controlled legislature. King has vigorously promoted it ever since as a venture designed to relieve the burdens of taxation and to lure thousands of new visitors to New Hampshire every year.

However, a newly formed committee of 100 claims the sweepstakes is an irresponsible way for the state to make money.

Organized by Richard Flanner, editor of the University of New Hampshire alumni magazine, and John Ballentine, publisher of the Weekly Somersworth Free Press, the committee is composed of a number of prominent business and professional people.

New Hampshire Is Turning To Race Tracks to Bolster Plan to Finance Education

By BORIS BRESKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New Hampshire has turned to the race track to bolster its ill-financed educational program.

The northeastern state's voters approved overwhelmingly the operation of the New Hampshire sweepstakes which they hope will provide $4,000,000 annually to be distributed to schools.

The approval was given in a referendum held March 10 in conjunction with the state's U.S. presidential primary during which voters indicated their preference for presidential candidates.

The unofficial vote count showed that 114,987 persons who cast ballots favored the state-sponsored lottery—approved by the state legislature nearly a year ago—while 31,227 opposed the idea.

Two days after the referendum, Democratic Governor John W. King, who signed the sweepstakes bill into law on April 30, 1963, bought ticket No. 1 for the first running of the New Hampshire sweepstakes.

The opening sale was made at Rockingham Park race track in Salem, just across the state line from Massachusetts and only 35 miles from Boston, where the inaugural running of the stakes race will be Sept. 12.

WARY OF WINNING

The governor expressed hope he wouldn't win.

"I guess I'm the only one who doesn't want a winner," King said after paying $3 for his ticket.

King bought the first ticket from Sweepstake Director Edward J. Powers, who said he would not buy a ticket because it would be against the rules of the sweepstake commission set up last March 3.

Ticket No. 2 went to State Representative Laurence Pickett (Dem. Keene), who sponsored the bill establishing the sweepstake. Pickett's ticket was made out to a charitable organization.

"I wouldn't dare buy a ticket for myself," he said, "because if I did and won a prize, that would be the end of the sweeps."

Tickets for the first sweepstakes race will be sold only at the state's three race tracks and in 46 liquor stores in 42 communities that approved the sweeps. The bill provided the measure — but these communities have neither race tracks nor liquor stores where tickets could be sold.

$100,000 FIRST PRIZE

The sweepstakes commission has announced that prizes of $100,000 will be given persons holding tickets on the winning horse, with $50,000 for second-place finishers and $25,000 for horses winding up third.

Under the system, ticket numbers will be drawn at random and matched against horses nominated for the race. All tickets drawn will win a prize. Ticket sales for the first sweepstakes race end Aug. 29.

The lottery was the subject of a political-moral debate long before the Republican-dominated legislature approved the measure in its 1963 season. The vote was 215 to 151.

Pickett estimated that 40 per cent of the income from ticket sales would be returned to ticket buyers in cash prizes, with about one-third of the total revenue going to schools and the remainder to pay operating costs.

The signing of the bill made New Hampshire the first U.S. state in the 20th century to sanction a lottery. New Hampshire was among many states that ran lotteries in the 1800s, but it outlawed lotteries in 1834 because of the abuses which at that time corrupted lottery operations throughout the U.S.

The last one to operate was the Louisiana lottery, which went out of business in 1894 when Congress prohibited the sending of tickets through the mails.

CAN'T USE MAILS

When King signed the bill he announced to the legislature that federal laws which prohibit use of the mails to distribute lottery tickets and which prohibit interstate traffic in tickets would be observed.

But much of the lottery revenue is expected to come from out-of-state residents. King said it is perfectly legal for visitors to buy sweepstake tickets and collect prizes if they win.

The legislation had an uphill climb before becoming law. Pickett had introduced four previous sweepstake bills. Three were killed by the state Senate after having received House of Representatives approval. The fourth got through both houses but was subsequently vetoed by Late Dwinell, Republican governor at the time.

The opposition to the bill came largely from clergymen who termed the lottery "immoral" and "irresponsible" and a poor way for the state to raise revenue.

CALAMITY SEEN

Rev. Hartley F. Grandin, executive secretary of the New Hampshire Council of Churches, argued that "a sweepstakes would be a calamity for our state."

Rev. Wayne W. Horvath, director of the department of social relations for the Massachusetts Council of Churches, said the legislation was a "black day for New England."

"Governor Kings action, he said, "will go down in history as King's folly—New Hampshire fool's tax."

But King, a Roman Catholic and first Democratic governor of the state in 40 years, and other supporters of the sweeps have lauded the bill as a means of "voluntary taxation" which will benefit the state's ill-financed schools and bring relief to taxpayers.

Proponents of the bill also cited the Irish Sweepstakes as an example.

The Irish Sweepstakes, perhaps the best known of many European lotteries run by state agencies, began in 1930 and have had more than 100 drawings with prizes totalling $420,000,000. Hospitals received nearly $175,000,000. Most of this revenue has come from ticket sales in other countries.

Government-run lotteries are common in Europe. Britain has a savings-type lottery now that is run by the state—money deposited for savings draws no interest, but serves as a ticket for non-taxable cash winnings.

And the French government runs a weekly national lottery with a top prize of $200,000 with the profits going to the treasury.

Bulletins From Birdland

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

WANDERING GROSBEAKS

Grosbeaks belong to the sparrow clan — they are sparrows with exceptionally large beaks. Three with this surname are Canadian born. The rose-breasted, a very handsome bird, spends the winters in Central or South America; the evening, which until recently was said to breed in the spruce forests of north western North America, strays in an easterly direction every winter; and the pine, that breeds in our boreal forests south to the mountains of northern New England and wanders erratically some winters to our southern Canadian settlings and over the border into northern U.S.

For the last fifteen years or so birdwatchers have noticed that the evening grosbeak is breeding farther east than heretofore. There have been a number of reports of nesting in the Province of Quebec. Young were being fed choke berries by an adult male and female so far down the St. Lawrence River as Cap a l'Aigle in August 1951.

STRIP TREES

Flocks of these birds (sometimes as many as 80 or 100) are now making a daily visiting settlements off and on throughout the winter months, but March seems to be the favorite month for them to come right into cities, particularly in localities where seeds of Manitoba maples are still on the trees. First they alight and strip the tree, then fly to the ground to finish up any seeds that have fallen. Before they leave every seed will have disappeared.

These are most attractive birds, about eight inches long, chunky, with short tails and big cream-colored beaks. The male is especially handsome, in dull gold with bright yellow patches, black tail, and black wings with a large white patch. The less showy female is, none the less, beautiful in her silvery grey costume and black wings and tail with many interesting white marks.

QUITE SPECTACULAR

Pine grosbeaks, quite as spectacular, are somewhat larger, male a deep red with black wings and tail and two conspicuous white wingbars. He looks wonderful in snowy surroundings. The female, with similar wings and tail, has a pale waxy body and greenish or yellow head. They leave home only when food supplies are scarce, in consequence, some years we do not have any chance of seeing them.

Buds and seeds are their chief food, beechnuts and conifer seeds preferred. But when they come to our locality they are on the lookout for mountain ash berries and highbush cranberries, as well as seeds of tamaracks or any old apples left hanging on the trees.

INDEPENDENT NATION

The republic of Portugal, independent since the 12th century, was a kingdom until a 1910 revolution drove out King Manoel II.

Cross-Canada Survey

Six Canadian Provinces Have Legislation Allowing Clubs to Build Preserves

By SOS TREBEE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Seven years ago two Toronto men established Canada's first private hunting preserve — a place where hunters paid $25 a day for pheasant or quail shooting.

It has since closed but more than 60 others have followed in the wake and six Canadian provinces now have legislation that allows individuals or clubs to build preserves.

A Cross - Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows that only Alberta and Prince Edward Island have no such legislation and don't propose to introduce any. But of the two, only Alberta has had much debate.

Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick have private preserves where, a fee for shooting pheasants is charged. Manitoba and Saskatchewan legislation to permit such operations was approved last year but none has come into being. Newfoundland and British Columbia are expected to adopt regulations shortly.

Canada is following a pattern established in the United States where all but six states permit private hunting preserves — in all cases only for game birds and seldom anything but pheasants.

RAISE OWN BIRDS

There's little uniformity in Canadian legislation, and the payas - you - shoot locations are known variously as game farms, pheasant preserves, shooting preserves and pheasant farms.

However, they operate along generally similar lines. Birds are raised on the preserves and a number are set down in special flyways the morning of a hunt. The hunter is supplied a guide and lunch and may shoot a set number of birds for his fee. He pays extra if he exceeds the limit. Special fees are charged if the hunter also asks the use of dogs.

The first Canadian preserve was set up by Donald Dickson, an advertising man, and Ross Burkhenroad, an artist, at Zephyr, Ont., 45 miles northeast of Toronto.

It set off a controversy. Various rod and gun organizations and sportsmen suggested shooting pheasants at the preserve was little more than slaughter. Bird dog men balked it as an answer to trying farmers' crops. Fathers took their sons to the preserve on special father-son days and business firms often rented the entire farm to entertain clients or top executives.

LIMITS DON'T APPLY

The main advantage of a private preserve is that it can provide good hunting close to the city. And normal hunting bag limits don't include birds shot on private preserves.

In 1963, Allen Streib, who operates a preserve on the outskirts of Aylmer, Ont., raised 18,000 pheasants. Many were sold as stock to other operators.

"The secret is lots of space and lots of cover," says Streib, a former employee of the Ontario lands and forests department. His preserves have four acres of grass, full of oats and buckwheat, crops that act as a cover for the birds and prevent stronger birds from attacking the weaker ones.

The improved stock provides hunters with pheasants that match wild birds in size, cunning, speed afoot and on the wing. The preserves also ensure some form of success for the hunter and the cost is often less than for travelling to wilder areas far from the city.

The popularity of the preserves in Quebec is shown by the success of Rick Longtin and Herb Kugler, who built a preserve on 125 acres of sub-marginal land near Athelston, Que., 50 miles from Montreal.

They say:

"Two years ago we raised 1,200 pheasants and as many quail," Kugler says. "We could have raised 500 pheasants. That's when we knew we had a good thing. Last year we had 2,000 pheasants and I don't know how many bobwhite quail."

In only a few instances have operators of preserves met the strong wild - life opposition expressed in Alberta.

Alberta's lands and forests minister, Norman Willmore, has said introduction of preserves is "a matter of timing." The government is not prepared to force upon the public anything it didn't want.

"We oppose any attempt to utilize natural game resources, but a strong case certainly can be made for private land that would not interfere with natural game bird resources. In fact, they might be better than escape from the preserves help to stock wildlife populations.

"However, the case against the plan say any move to establish preserves is nothing more than allowing individuals to get a toe in the door with a plan to eventually gain control of all public game resources. This would involve the hunting rights of all individuals and could easily limit hunting only to the rich."

FAVORED BY FARMERS

Leading the opposition against the proposal is the 20,000-member Alberta Fish and Game Association. Among the supporters of preserve legislation is the Alberta Federation of Agriculture, which represents a cross-section of Alberta's 74,000 farmers.

J. R. McFall, executive secretary of the AFA, said: "We favor any legislation or preserves must limit the number and closely control health standards. If the individual has the land, the capital and meets the requirements to establish a preserve we see nothing wrong with letting him do so. They can provide another avenue of revenue for rural people. It can provide help ease the pressure on wildlife stocks and certainly could give people with limited time for hunting an opportunity to enjoy the sport with some knowledge of success."

He added birds in the preserves are as cunning as wild birds and could not be considered "sitting ducks" for the hunters. "The literature we have indicates 10 per cent of the birds escape the preserves and this improves the prospects of hunters shooting on public lands."

Bruce Stewart, executive secretary of the Fish and Game Association, said preserves would turn Alberta into "hooking more than one large commercial hunting preserve."

WRITER LEADS FIGHT

"Anybody who had a bit of land could turn it into a preserve and this threatens to close out the area where hunters now can enjoy outdoor sport. Eventually it would make hunting the property of only the rich, who could afford the preserve fees."

Allen Bill of High River, Alta., well - known outdoors writer, has led much of the fight to establish preserves in Alberta. He said he found little opposition in them during a trip to the United States.

"I heard no screams against commercial preserves. On the contrary, they were considered an asset by game management authorities and by communities near which they operated. They were considered a good tourist attraction."

Alastair MacBain, a leading American outdoors writer, said: "Growing hunting pressure, along with the removal of wildlife habitat by farming, highway construction and residential and industrial development, make preserves shooting an obvious substitute for shooting the wild. The convenience of these managed hunting areas makes them a natural for people with limited time, with youngsters just beginning to hunt as well as for the handicapped people who must avoid rugged tramping."

MAY GRANT LEASES

This is the situation as it exists today across Canada:

Newfoundland — Hunting regulations do not permit preserves. The St. John's Rod and Gun Club has pressed for a woodland area to be set aside and used as a base of operations, though they have not applied for their plans. A government spokesman said a lease may be granted shortly as an incentive to the group, but it would not be for exclusive use of club members.

Prince Edward Island — No preserves allowed. No plans for any.

Nova Scotia — Commercial pheasant preserves approved four years ago and four now. First, each about 400 acres in area and operated by private individuals. Hunters are charged $4 a bird and the operators raise their own stock. Government officials say the preserves are popular enough to ensure they never become overstocked or are used primarily by "moneymen." Habitual hunters prefer the open wilderness.

E. D. Haliburton, lands and forests minister, said: "I can foresee the day when the only hunting available will be in the preserves" because it is impossible to maintain a growing wildlife population in the same area as a growing human population.

New Brunswick — Pheasant preserves permitted under 1962 legislation and eight now exist, four operated by individuals and four by clubs. Each has about 250 acres and the average fee is $5 a bird. Stocks are obtained from Ontario and Nova Scotia and the preserves have little success. The average hunter because of the costs.

Quebec — No legislation specifically governs the preserves, but Lucien Cliche, minister of tourism, fish and game, said regulations for special attention in the next revision of existing laws. Preserves now are covered by a section on outfitters, who must pay a $30 annual fee. Only a handful of the 1,000 outfitters operate preserves and stocks are usually raised from eggs. Average fee is $25 a day.

Ontario — There are 40 preserves in Ontario, all governed by 1956 legislation which allowed preserves to be established on 500 acres of land for a $100 fee. Preserves must be at least one-quarter mile apart and most are located in southwestern Ontario around Lake Erie, Lake Simcoe and Lake Huron. Fees range from $20 to $25 a day to $100 a year. They are stocked by birds raised at 172 commercial pheasant farms, also licensed by the government.

Government officials suggest the preserves are gaining in popularity because of the reduction of wildlife hunting areas in the last 15 years and the increased pressure on wildlife stocks through an increasing number of hunters.

Manitoba — Legislation allowing pheasant preserves was approved in 1963, but Game Director G. W. Malsher said none will go into operation until regulations are approved by the cabinet. No indication was given though as to when or if this will be suggested at least one preserve would be in operation by this fall.

C. H. Wilney, minister of mines and natural resources, said it was hoped properties would ease hunting pressures. Dr. Whitelaw of Winnipeg, liaison officer, and past-president of the Manitoba Federation of Game and Fish Associations, said "I think they are coming and with proper regulations and control they'll be all right."

Saskatchewan — Legislation allowing pheasant preserves was approved last spring, but none has been established and none is contemplated, the operator must liberate more birds than he keeps and the preserves would help the government in its conversation program.

Alberta — No preserves allowed and no legislation planned.

British Columbia — James Hatter, director of the fish and game branch of the department of recreation and conservation, said the provincial government would be asked to consider regulations to allow preserves in the near future. One application has been received from Camber Hill of Aldergrove, just east of Vancouver. He has met no criticism, but game association have approved the idea of preserves.

Much of Non-Communist Asia Fears Viet Nam Conflict Will Become an Asian War

TOKYO (AP)—Much of non-Communist Asia is haunted by fear that the Viet Nam conflict will become an Asian war.

The chances that the Viet Cong Communists can be beaten decisively are viewed generally with pessimism. Yet in some areas there is dread that a pullout of U.S. forces could erode the will to resist communism elsewhere.

A survey by Associated Press bureaus in East Asia shows that nowhere is a view of the Viet Nam war a rosy one.

Here are details of the views expressed in the various capitals:

JAPAN

The Japanese foreign ministry gives a cautious partial endorsement to the idea of neutralization in Viet Nam—a proposal put forward in broad terms by French President de Gaulle. The foreign ministry answered a question about neutralization this way:

"If we take a view that the use of military strength cannot solve the problems in the present situation, the neutralization of Viet Nam is conceivable as one of the means of solving the problems there. Even though that idea may be justified as a long-term conception, as a theoretical perspective, problems are still left: When, through what stages, and in what form should the neutralization be realized? Besides, we must also take into consideration the fact that North Viet Nam is opposed to having itself neutralized."

The foreign ministry regards as unlikely a clear-cut victory without much more U.S. military assistance. It views the problem as political as well as military, and suggests a political settlement is out of the question without military improvement restoring security and producing a guarantee which would keep South Viet Nam free from outside interference.

THAILAND

Thailand makes it clear she thinks the war must be won to stop Communist advances. Answering questions submitted by The Associated Press, Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman said: "If South Viet Nam were to lose its freedom and fall within the Communist orbit, Communist influences and power would substantially increase and might enable Communist powers to exert almost unbearable pressure upon neighboring countries such as Laos, Cambodia and even Thailand."

Thanat expressed strong reservations against the neutralization idea, and said since neutralization seems to apply only to South Viet Nam, "it then is tantamount to handing South Viet Nam to the Communists on a platter."

MALAYSIA

One official said the weakness of the neutralization idea is that "it is based on the pre-supposition that China will leave this region in peace."

Malaysian officials say South Viet Nam needs a national image to fight for.

Pessimism has grown since the January military coup in Saigon.

HONG KONG

Non-Communist newspapers generally approve of U.S. efforts to back the Saigon government but question whether military aid alone can produce peace and stability. These newspapers contend that withdrawal of U.S. aid would bring down the Saigon government within months. Privately, ranking British officials share these views. There is pessimism about chances of winning a clear-cut victory.

LAOS-CAMBODIA

Laos has had experience under neutralization. South Viet Nam's neighbor was guaranteed its neutrality by a 1962 Geneva conference, but the neutrality fell down because of foreign interference, mainly from North Viet Nam, backing the Communist Pothet Lao.

Neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma, the coalition premier, sees settlement of Laos' problems as tied up with settlement of those of South Viet Nam. He says France's recognition of Red China "will surely help stabilize the situation in Southeast Asia."

Cambodian Prince Norodom Sihanouk says "peace and stability could be restored to South Viet Nam only by neutralization of that country." Cambodia already is neutralist.

AUSTRALIA

A consensus of Australian official thinking goes this way: The best hopes of U.S. success lie in maintaining the present effort and exercising a possible pressure to bolster South Viet Nam's determination to continue the struggle against the Viet Cong. There is a long, hard haul ahead before any decisive gains are made. Australia sees neutralization as suicidal unless North Viet Nam is also neutralized.

U.S. withdrawal, say Australians, would mean unrestrained Red Chinese penetration and subversion through Indochina, Malaysia, Burma, Thailand and Indonesia which ultimately and inevitably would threaten Australia.

MALE FASHIONS

TORONTO (CP)—The male in 1964 will become more elegant if he follows the dictates of fashion as seen at the style show here of the Men's Clothing Manufacturers Association of Ontario. He must strive for a slim-pie silhouette with less shoulder padding and a crisp, tailored line. His informal favorites have turned silver-gray, beige-brown and medium blue.

No Trouble Keeping Order In Classes

SASKATOON (CP) — A husband and wife teaching team say Eskimo children receive no discipline in the home, doing what they want when they want, but there's no trouble keeping order in classes.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Mackin of Saskatoon spent one year teaching 35 children in a tiny Eskimo settlement, Wakeham Bay, on the Quebec side of Hudson Strait.

The couple found that all 125 Eskimos in the community could benefit from their teaching.

All but five of the 18 Eskimo families in the settlement lived in government-constructed plywood homes. But the Eskimos, who had lived in snow houses just two years before, had little knowledge of housekeeping or how to use such conveniences as oil cookstoves.

Mr. and Mrs. Mackin spent considerable time showing the women how to bake bread, scrub floors and keep their houses clean. They had difficulty persuading the men that the living room floor was not the ideal place to skin a seal. One duty the couple had which isn't associated with the teaching profession was supervision of baths for their pupils every month or two. The government-built houses had bathtubs, but they weren't used frequently.

The Eskimos were curious about world affairs, particularly the space program, which they associated with superstitious beliefs.

The Mackins say carving and handicrafts now rank third, behind hunting and fishing, as a source of income at the settlement.

SAW EVERYTHING

PISLEY, England (CP) — Jacqueline Haines, a 16-year-old school girl described as the richest teen-ager in this Derbyshire village, won £1,000 in the British government bond lottery. She said she wouldn't know what to do with the money "because I already have everything."

EMPHASIS ON GIRLS

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP)—School curriculums are geared to the requirements of girls, says Dr. L. W. Bow, Oakville education board's psychiatric consultant. Dr. Bow says girl students are more passive than boys and that not enough consideration is being given to this difference.

Cross-Canada Survey

Automobile Business Said In for Another Boom Year Judging From All Comments

By JOHN BELANGER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The automobile business, one of Canada's main economic barometers, is in for another boom year, judging from the comments of auto-makers.

Last year was one of record sales and production and most company heads are talking of another increase in 1964.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows that the optimism is fairly general, with dealers and distributors of European autos joining domestic makers in predicting higher sales.

Dealers in small European-designed cars, hard hit since North American compacts arrived, are talking of a comeback in 1964, with at least two seeing for sales increases of 100 per cent or more.

Canada produced 631,366 cars and trucks in 1963 compared with 508,081 units in 1962 and Karl K. Brownridge, newly elected president of the Canadian Automobile Chamber of Commerce, says all 1964 forecasts are "favorable."

"The number of records established during 1963 represents the most successful year in the history of the industry and we expect 1964 to be another banner year," says Mr. Brownridge, who is also president of American Motors (Canada) Ltd.

GM LEADS

The lion's share of the market went to General Motors, which produced 268,234 cars and trucks in 1963, a gain of more than 41,000 over 1962. Car production was 264,341 compared with 239,639 the previous year, and truck output was 43,833, an increase of 6,300.

Because of the unprecedented number of orders stacked flowing in from across Canada and the obvious strength shown in key sectors of the economy, we expect to maintain a record level of sales in 1964," says GM President E. H. Wallace.

Ford of Canada, the No. 2 auto-maker, set a record last year with 175,611 units as against 143,752 in 1962 and looks for a healthy 1964, its 60th year of continuous production in this country.

Ford profits dropped to $23,400,000 or $14.14 a share in 1963 compared with $33,000,000 or $19.91 a share the previous year, but President K. E. Scott says his optimism is based on selling sales—$775,400,000 in 1963 compared with $655,000,000 in 1962.

Chrysler of Canada strengthened its No. 3 position with production of 96,498 units last year, a big jump from the 56,942 in 1962, and President R. W. Todgham says their trend is continuing.

DELIVERIES UP

For the first four months of the current model year, he says, the firm produced 39 per cent more units at 29,235 than in the corresponding 1962-63 period.

Chrysler delivered 6,129 passenger cars in January alone, a 29-per-cent increase over January, 1963.

Discussing his own firm, Mr. Brownridge says: "The Canadian plant at Brampton, Ont., will be able to build almost 100 per cent of all Ramblers sold in Canada, and domestic retail sales will exceed 38,000 units in 1964."

The firm last year had sales of 28,022 cars and station wagons, an increase of 10,000 over the previous year.

The two major events in Canadian auto-making last year were the move to Hamilton of Studebaker's automotive division from South Bend, Ind., and the start of production at Dartmouth, N.S., by Volvo (Canada) Ltd., which turned out 1,139 of the Swedish-designed cars in six months.

Studebaker of Canada produced 8,190 cars in 1963 compared with 7,943 in 1962 but Gordon E. Grundy, its president and now in charge of the company's world - wide auto business, says it will be able to produce 30,000 cars a year by the end of 1964 after new equipment is installed.

Overall sales have been going "remarkably well," Mr. Grundy says, adding that the retail delivery rate, "our barometer, is excellent."

JANUARY HIGHER

Figures released by the seven-member CACC appear to substantiate predictions by manufacturers. For January, Canada's car-makers produced 72,811 cars and trucks compared with 58,916 in the same month a year earlier.

Most optimistic of the outside-based firms is British Motor Corp. R. J. Lucas, executive vice-president for Canada, says it expects to double sales to 15,000 units this year from 7,500 in 1963.

Volkswagen Canada Ltd. is looking for improvement in 1964, after falling sales of the last two years and hopes to sell 28,000,000 worth of cars, says sales manager F. G. Mallard.

Sales were off 11 per cent last year but the decline was largely the result of surcharges on imports, he says. "When the surcharges were removed in April our sales took off."

Vauxhall sales fell to 3,704 units in 1963 from 14,935 in 1962 but a spokesman for General Motors, which imports the cars, says the company is optimistic about two new models it is introducing.

Renault Canada Ltd. sold 3,000 units compared with 3,600 but George Bastien, vice-president and general manager, predicts a rise of about 20 per cent in 1964.

S. C. Hirst, sales manager of Rootes Motors (Canada) Ltd., says the company expects to sell 5,000 units compared with 2,200 in 1963, figuring that a new model of the Sunbeam sports car being introduced March 13 would help.

DEALERS DELIGHTED

Individual dealers reflect the feelings of the manufacturers and distributors.

Walter Judge, sales manager of Halifax Chevrolet-Oldsmobile, says he expects 1964 "to be every bit as good as last year which was an excellent year for sales." He reports North American standard - sized cars are selling better each year.

Ken Johnson, sales manager of the Halifax area's biggest Volkswagen outlet, says the Maritimes offer "a good economic climate for VW sales and predicts retail sales in the region to rise by 10 to 15 per cent.

In Montreal, French-born Renault dealer Jean Lebeque looks for a 25-per-cent sales increase, partly because of the attractions of Renault's automatic transmission. But he complains that Renault itself, as a state-owned firm, is hurting its dealers by operating its own agencies in competition with them.

Paul Cardinal, an American Motors and Austin dealer in Ottawa, anticipates a "definitely all - round better season" but adds that people "are looking for a medium-class car—they've had their fill of small European cars."

In Regina, Chrysler dealer Leroy Lendru says 1963 was a good year and estimates a 10-per-cent increase in sales this year, with higher-priced North American models benefitting from the good grain crop.

Edmonton GM dealer Les Koch says that, for his part, because of the strength of the economy or lessening of world tension, there is a trend toward bigger and flashier cars loaded with extra equipment.

In Vancouver, dealers report the year off to an excellent start.

SUPPLY WATER

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba Water Supply Board is hoping to supply 16 more towns with water systems by the end of 1964. The board installs the system and looks after construction and operation, with each community paying rates calculated to pay for the system in 25 years.

Heavy Fighting Flares In Town Over Roadblocks

UN Officials Arrange Temporary Cease-Fire

By HAL McCLURE

NICOSIA (AP)—Heavy fighting with bazookas and machine-guns broke out at a village 28 miles west of Nicosia today in the first clash between Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots in a week.

UN officials managed to arrange a temporary cease - fire as Turkey dispatched a new warning that violence must be stopped on Cyprus.

One Turk was reported killed in the fighting at Ghaziveran which began shortly after dawn and lasted about five hours. One Turkish-Cypriot and three Greek-Cypriots were wounded.

The Ankara government sent messages to UN Secretary-General U Thant, President Archbishop Makarios of Cyprus and to the commander of the peace force on Cyprus, calling attention to the outbreak of fighting at Ghaziveran.

The contents of the note were not immediately disclosed here but a government spokesman said the warning took "the same line" as Turkey's warning last November, that it would intervene if killings of Turkish-Cypriots were not stopped.

TURKS FEEL STRONGLY

Information Minister Ali Ihsan Gogus said:

"In the note we emphasized the point that killing individually or en masse must be stopped at once."

It was the first fighting since Greek-Cypriot leaders arrived to join the UN peace force. With the UN force yet not fully constituted, peacekeeping duties remain in the hands of British troops.

Peter Spinelli, the United Nations representative, immediately conferred with Greek- and Turkish-Cypriot leaders at Nicosia. Then he went to the scene of the fighting with the British force's commander, Maj.-Gen. Mike Carver.

The temporary cease-fire became effective at 11 a.m. (4 a.m. EST) to permit the Turkish-Cypriots under way. It later was extended.

The Greek-Cypriot police and auxiliary forces launched an attack in the early morning hours after 300 Turks in a village reported to other Turkish villages to lift the roadblocks around Ghaziveran. These blocked the main road west from Nicosia.

A Greek-Cypriot government

Deputy Speaker Censured

By ALAN DONNELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — It was a day of soul-searching for the Commons and other pressing business was sidelined for the occasion.

The reason: A motion Wednesday by Creditiste House Leader Gilles Gregoire to censure the deputy Speaker of the House, Lucien Lamoureux.

The charge was that the 45-year-old Mr. Lamoureux — a man well-liked by most members—had disregarded a Commons rule designed to protect the rights of minority members.

In a debate involving some emotional self - examination, which continues today, most speakers decided the blame lay elsewhere. Some even blamed themselves.

Only rarely has a presiding officer of the house been so challenged. The last non-confidence motion against a Speaker was presented, unsuccessfully, by the Conservatives in 1956 against the then speaker, Rene Beaudoin, as a result of the famous Trans-Canada Pipeline debate.

Nothing could be more ser-

Reds Call U. S. Plan Just Trick

GENEVA (AP)—The United States proposed today that it and the Soviet Union each destroy 480 strategic bombers over a two-year period. The Russians immediately rejected the proposal as a Pentagon trick.

The proposal for destruction of American B-47 and Russian TU-16 strategic bombers was made before the 17-nation disarmament conference by U.S. negotiator Adrian S. Fisher.

Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin replied that the proposal was an attempt to dress up as disarmament a "routine military decision taken inside the Pentagon to scrap obsolete planes an' replace them with B-52s and other new multi-purpose planes being ordered and tested by the defence department."

The Russian repeated his demand, made Jan. 29, for destruction of all bomber planes, both old and new.

Fisher suggested that the two big powers should each destroy 20 planes a month during a two-year period. In addition, he said, the United States is prepared to destroy an additional 30 strategic bomber planes in its inactive reserve fleet.

OTHER MUST SEE IT

Fisher stressed that the destruction of planes would have to be carried out under strict international inspection.

"The B-47 and the TU-16 bombers are logical armaments to start the difficult process of physical destruction of arms," Fisher said. "Both the United States and the Soviet Union possess roughly comparable numbers of these aircraft, and the two types of aircraft have been assigned generally similar missions.

"Thus the balance in the overall force structure of the two sides would be maintained at the reduced levels resulting from their destruction."

Canadian UN Force Finds Situation Normal, Fouled Up

NICOSIA (CP) — The United Nations operation in Cyprus is normal, at least at the start, all fouled up.

With the arrival of 53 more Canadian soldiers Wednesday by RCAF Yukon from Quebec City about half the promised Canadian contingent was on the spot. The Royal 22nd Regiment's 1st Battalion is under canvas on the outskirts of this Cypriot capital and it is reported that Prout will take over from the British the policing of the so-called "green line" between the Greek and Turkish quarters in Nicosia.

But the battalion is far from operational — the UN force's terms of reference haven't arrived.

The contingent isn't likely to become operational until next week, by which time all 1,150 Canadians should be on the scene.

There is no sign of the Irish, Swedish or Finnish contingents for the force. Neither is there any indication yet of an appointment of a mediator, for which Canada is pressing.

The Royal 22nd faces its thankless task in high spirits though it is still unclear to what extent the UN force will be permitted to protect itself.

In a minor incident Wednesday, two Canadian soldiers were stopped by police while on UN duty. The difficulties of policing such a spot with rifle and brief case are compounded by the vast numbers of people who carry arms.

There is a large Greek guerrilla force, probably the best trained in the world outside of the Viet Cong in South Viet Nam, the remains of the old EOKA terrorist organization which forced the British out in 1960.

Some figures estimate there are 10,000 armed Communists and this is not to mention the armed regulars on both sides.

Ruby Fires Defence Lawyer, Is Shocked by His Tirade

DALLAS (AP)—Melvin Belli has been fired as chief defence counsel for Jack Ruby, who was convicted and sentenced to death Saturday for the slaying of Lee Harvey Oswald, accused assassin of President Kennedy.

Mrs. Eva Grant, sister of the convicted killer, told the Dallas Morning News she sent a letter airmail Wednesday night to Belli's California office stating that his services were no longer wanted. Ruby himself signed the letter.

The Ruby family and the defendant himself "were dissatisfied with the defence presented by Belli, and expressed shock at the tirade he delivered after Saturday's verdict," Mrs. Grant said.

Belli's televised bitter comments have brought strong criticism from Texas officials and from officials of the American Bar Association.

Ruby's brother, Hyman Ruby of Chicago, said "the opinions this man expressed about Dallas, the jury, Judge Joe B. Brown and District Attorney Henry Wade are not shared by Jack or any member of his family."

Welfare Topics In House

TORONTO (CP) — Although past efforts have helped, an all-out campaign is necessary to lift Northern Ontario Indians from their life of poverty, Welfare Minister Cecile said Wednesday.

He told the legislature recent movements of Indians into some areas have created acute problems in housing, health, sanitation, employment and law enforcement.

Many Indians, particularly in the Red Lake, Moosonee, Beardmore and Hornepayne districts, live in "hovels of indescribable filth and squalor," he said.

On another social topic, Mr. Cecile expressed concern over the problems created by mothers working instead of staying home to care for families.

He said he plans to establish a committee of women to review the place of women in society and take a close look at welfare legislation, particularly as it pertains to them.

In many families, both parents are out of the house all day even though the father in some alone would provide adequate support, Mr. Cecile said. The result is thousands of children without adequate care and supervision.

The careless and lawbreaking hunter was attacked in several briefs presented to the standing committee by sportsmen's associations, wildlife and conservation.

A group from the conservation council of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry urged much stronger penalties for persons who break conservation and hunting laws.

The Ontario Federation of Hunters and Anglers asked for license cancellations and fines for hunters who break the law.

Donald Sanderson, president of the Pickering Township Federation of Agriculture, objected to a bill to reduce the number of school boards in Ontario to 2,000 from 3,500.

The bill would eliminate three-man boards for one-room schools, compel the organization of secondary school districts in rural areas and authorize payment to school trustees.

Mr. Sanderson said a tax payer who now pays $400 to $500 in taxes would pay $300 more if there were only one township board.

Police Looking For Hitchhiker In Man's Death

KITCHENER (CP) — Police were searching today for a hitchhiker they believe may have robbed and killed a former Anglican clergyman.

Joseph Armstrong, 45, of Waterloo was found shot to death early Wednesday in a field beside a highway on the outskirts of this city.

Inspector Winfred Heinrich, head of the detective division, said there were at least two bullet wounds in the victim's neck. No gun was found.

Mr. Armstrong, father of five children, became a travelling salesman 18 months ago' because, he said, he could not afford to keep his family on a clergyman's salary. He was an Anglican minister in nearby Hespeler for several years.

Harold C. Banks Ousted As Head Seafarers' Union

Millard Will Supervise Work of New President

MONTREAL (CP) — Harold Chamberlain Banks, who traveled for years on being a tough guy, has been ousted as president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.).

The 54-year-old powerful and controversial union leader who came to Canada 15 years ago was removed from office by order of the board of trustees for maritime unions. The announcement was made here by the trustees and in the Commons by Labor Minister MacEachen.

Charles Turner, 49, of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, an employee of the trustees for the last two months, was appointed to the SIU presidency.

There were at least 40 RCMP and Montreal policemen surrounding SIU headquarters on St. James Street in the heart of Montreal's financial district when Banks' ouster was announced. There were no incidents.

The announcement of the ousting of the leader of the 14,000-member union was made over a loudspeaker in SIU headquarters.

TRUSTEE MOVES IN

Charles' Millard, one of the three trustees, will move into SIU headquarters to supervise administration of the affairs of the maritime unions under trusteeship.

Banks refused to talk to reporters who reached him at his home in suburban Pointe Claire. He phoned the international vice-president of the SIU of North America (AFL-CIO).

The announcement of his dismissal was greeted with applause in the Commons, while one U.S. labor official said it was a "disaster."

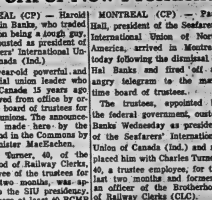
Labor minister Michael Starr, who appointed Mr. Justice Norris to inquire into the dispute, said he felt Labor Minister MacEachen was not revealing all the facts.

He said there seemed to be more truth than fiction in reports that Communists had succeeded in an agreement involving the SIU, the U.S. government and the Canadian government.

HARM RELATIONS

Peter M. McGavin, executive secretary of the Canadian AFL-CIO, maritime trades department, said in a Washington interview the removal "is a disaster to the trade union movement and a disaster to the relations between Canada and the United States."

In Ottawa, William J. Smith, national president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC), said he was "delighted to see that the trustees are finding a way to discharge their primary responsibility and that is to manage and control the union."



Frank Aubusson, SIU international representative in Chicago, said he did not know what effect the ouster would have on the membership line-up of grain vessels in Chicago.

Mr. Justice Victor Dryer, chairman of the trusteeship, read a short statement at a press conference but refused to answer questions. He said only that the matters involved were "too complicated to be an

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul Hall, president of the Seafarers International Union of North America, arrived in Montreal today following the dismissal of Hal Banks and fired off an angry telegram to the maritime board of trustees.

The trustees, appointed by the federal government, ousted Banks Wednesday as president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.) and replaced him with Charles Turner, 49, a trustee employee, for the last two months and formerly an officer of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks (CLC).

CHARLES TURNER

Hall said he would visit the SIU headquarters later today and invited the trustees to meet him there. The telegram was sent from Hal Banks' residence in suburban Pointe Claire.

The telegram charged the removal of Banks was arbitrary and denied him the right to a fair hearing "in accordance with the principles of fundamental justice."

CHARGES CONFISCATION

Hall objected to the naming of Turner as Banks' replacement on the grounds he had never been a member of the SIU. He charged the trustees had confiscated hundreds of thousands of dollars of property and assets of the international union.

The telegram claimed police forces were used unnecessarily and came at a time when the constitutional of the SIU was not setting up the trustees was before the courts. This action was taken by SIU Treasurer Don Swaine and is before the Quebec courts.

DISAGREE ON POWERS

WASAGA BEACH, Ont. (CP) There is a "dramatic tension" between the federal and provincial governments under constitutional powers and it must be resolved for the good of both the federation, MP John Addison said Wednesday. "In a very real way, the official opposition to the federal government is not the opposition parties but rather the collective provincial governments," he told a Liberal meeting. Mr. Addison said the constitution must be amended and the pooling of government redistributed.

Unidentified Object Exploded With Terrific Force Say Pilots

LONDON (AP)—Pilots of two jetliners saw an unidentified object explode with a tremendous flash high over the Atlantic today.

What appeared to be fragments of the object plummeted toward the sea, leaving trails of white smoke. They said they had no idea of what it might have been.

An airlines spokesman speculated that the object might have been a falling booster rocket from a Soviet satellite. The Russians announced Wednesday they had launched the 26th in their series of unmanned Cosmos series of scientific satellites.

One Canada and Only One Canada Can Save Us Says Diefenbaker

MONTREAL (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Wednesday night the building of one strong Canada should be a primary objective of all political parties.

"One Canada and one Canada alone will be the salvation of this nation economically and politically," he told the Montreal Junior Board of Trade.

"The people are not asking for political carpentry. They are asking for a vision of a new Canada, with equalization of opportunity in all parts of the country.

He said it is essential to this concept that the provinces play their full role in the financial and economic development but he expressed scepticism about the willingness of the present federal government to help them do it.

"Certainly the federal budget the other night gives no indication the provinces are going to receive very great consideration at the next federal-provincial conference opening March 31."

Holding a brief press conference before the address, Mr. Diefenbaker described as "long overdue" the removal of Harold Banks as president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.).

He wondered what had made the federal trustees fire Banks so "suddenly," however.

Mr. Diefenbaker also told the press conference he does not take seriously the "so-called threats" to the safety of the Queen in Quebec.

He said he is sure the Queen, when she visits Quebec in October, "will be received with the loyalty and respect she deserves."

Today's Chuckle

In these days of short skirts, it's not the cost that worries women, it's the upkeep.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Sunny skies today will see temperatures rise to near or above freezing all but upper Great Lakes districts. A storm developing in Texas is expected to cause a vast area of precipitation from the lower reaches of the Mississippi to southwestern Great Lakes by evening. Wet snow and possibly freezing rain is predicted tonight throughout the lower lakes and snow and drifting snow through much of the rest of the province.

The Things Which Separate Us

Slanted Textbooks, Divided Schools Hit

QUEBEC (CP) — Complaints that slanted Canadian history textbooks, religious division in the school system and lack of opportunities in English-language companies were heard Wednesday as the royal commission on biculturalism and bilingualism held informal meetings in the heartland of the "racial problem."

Co-chairman Andre Laurendeau met with some 350 community leaders and students in Sherbrooke, Que., while his colleague, Davidson Dunton, listened to the suggestions of about 100 persons in Trois-Rivieres, Que.

The get-togethers were the first of a series of informal meetings before public hearings begin in the fall and Mr. Dunton admitted it is "something rather new." Mr. Laurendeau said the purpose of the inquiry is to find new conditions under which the two main language groups in Canada will agree to live together in a spirit of understanding.

Rene Quebec City, Daniel Johnson, leader of the Union Nationale party, said the new conditions would be a new constitution.

"Today nearly everyone has been converted to the idea of a new constitution. In its way, the Laurendeau-Dunton commission is working on it, too. It may not have been created for this; but that's what it will lead to without a doubt, because there is no other way out."

The press was barred from the Trois-Rivieres meeting but those attending briefed reporters afterwards. The press attended the Sherbrooke meeting but was asked not to quote participants by name.

The opinions varied widely. Some felt Quebec should be

Sun Valley Motor Inn Is Last Word in Comfort

Ecumenism Subject of Talk At AOTS Club

The regular monthly meeting of the Bridge St. Church A.O.T.S. Men's Club met on Wednesday evening in the church parlors with the President, Mr. Bryce Philp as chairman. The meeting opened with "The Queen" followed with grace by the Rev. Alfred Poulter. Mr. Robert Cruikshanks was appointed Sargeant at Arms, whose efforts contributed a sum to the club treasury.

Mr. Newton McFee expressed the thanks of those present to the women's group, who served the lovely dinner. A sing song period was conducted by Mr. David McIntoch with Alec Gordon at the piano. A brief devotional was given by Mr. William Black, appropriate to the Lenten season.

The after dinner speaker, Mr. Fred Ebbier was introduced by Ray Cunnelio and thanked by Jack Ireland.

Mr. Ebbier spoke on the subject of Church Ecumenism looking forward to a possible Universal Church, explaining comparisons of a diversity of different teaching denominations. Scriptural and doctrines emphasizing his slogan, regardless of Curch Affiliation. "Be a real Christian first. Church membership a secondary consideration." He stated many customs and traditions of Judaism have been adopted by the Christian churches. The meeting closed with the Benediction.

Sun Valley Motor Inn is the name of Belleville's newest motel.

Under construction since last fall the new motor inn on North Front Street immediately south of 401 Highway will be the last word in comfort and the appointments when it opens for business early next week.

In fact visitors and customers are due for a very pleasant surprise.

Plans of a chain of five motels to be constructed in Ontario and Quebec by Samuel Bronfman of Kingston and formerly of this city, the new Sun Valley Inn offers coffee shop, full dining room facilities and a licensed lounge.

And for the comfort of overnight guests there are 75 beautifully furnished rooms on two floors, with wall-to-wall broadloom and TV-radio combina tions in each room.

PRIVATE BALCONIES

Room combinations range all the way from hostess type and executive suites to single and double rooms with either single or double beds and family units all with their own private balcony.

"Any room combination wanted, we have it." noted Andrew A. Ellis, manager Inn manager with 18 years' experience in the hotel business.

The Sun Valley Motor Inn dining room will seat up to 180 persons while the separate lounge will seat another 60.

All rooms are completely air conditioned and have continuous air changes 24 hours a day in summer and winter. Each room has its own thermostat and private bath — some with separate vanities. Room service for food and liquor will be available.

The motor inn has the facilities for meetings, banquets and receptions of all kinds and also for sales meetings. Commercial travellers will be welcomed 12 months of the year.

WILL HARDTOP ROADS

Until the frost is out of the ground temporary access roads and main entrance driveways will be covered with sand and crushed stone. Hardtop will be put down later.

For added comfort of the guests sauna steam rooms will be available and a swimming pool will be added in a few weeks.

Landscaping will provide a parklike effect.

All rooms have front and back doors, the front doors leading either to a private patio or to ground floor patios and direct access to autos.

The manager is a former navigator with BOAC and since quitting the airways 18 years ago he managed hotels in the United Kingdom, Bermuda, the West Indies and Canada.

He feels the appointments at the Sun Valley Motor Inn are the best he has seen.

"We are offering something exclusive," he says.

OK ANTI-SCALP BILL

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Legislation designed to curb the scalping of ticket trade by setting up red-tape was won final legislative approval in the Senate Wednesday. The measure was sent to Governor Nelson Rockefeller, who is expected to sign it. The bill would make it unlawful for scalpers or ticket agents to sell tickets for more than their established prices. Ticket agents are permitted a small markup.

New High School Salary Schedule Is Approved

Increases of $300 in minimum salaries for high school teachers in categories 1 and 2, and $500 increases in both minimum and maximum categories 3 and 4, have been agreed on by the Bay of Quinte District High School Board and members of the teaching staffs in the three Belleville high schools.

The new salary schedule, was formally approved yesterday by the teachers.

The new salary schedule is as follows:

Category 1	$4,800 -	$ 8,500
Category 2	5,100 -	8,800
Category 3	5,600 -	9,500
Category 4	6,000 -	10,100

Annual increments of $300 were not changed.

The maximum for principals was increased from $13,800 to $14,000, and for vice-principals from $11,900 to $12,000.

Court Shown Rifle Found Near Highway

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP)—Vaclav Kraus, a ballistics expert from the attorney-general's laboratory in Toronto told a capital murder trial that three suspended shell cases found outside a Kaladar house were fired from the same .22-calibre Ross rifle which has been entered in evidence.

Mr. Krcma was the 12th of 13 Crown witnesses to testify in the trial of Charles Morton Lamarche, charged in the Oct. 1 death of Hugh James McMahon, 84, in McMahon's Kaladar home. He pleaded not guilty.

Under cross examination Mr. Krcma said he could not positively identify cartridge cases found inside the McMahon home as those definitely fired from the exhibit.

"Would you say those portions of a bullet could have been fired by anyone of a thousand Ross rifles in existence?" asked the defence counsel.

"That is correct, sir," he replied.

Identifications were that the trial would go to the jury Friday.

Hog Carcass Competition To Be Held

Mr. Murray Bateman, president of the Hastings County Hog Producers Association, announced this week that the Association have finalized plans for a County Grade "A" Carcass Competition.

The quality of the hogs marketed in Hastings is now something of which to be ashamed but it is the hope of the Association to raise the percentage of Grade "A" carcasses to over 50%. To do this the Association will enforce the first requirement is that the breeders use quality breeding stock. The local packers will work on a premium basis for the purchase of approved boars and this year is not only doing that but also assisting 4-H members in purchasing Advanced Registry gilts.

The competition will be open to all hog producers in Hastings County and will be based on all hogs marketed within a year, live grading being done at sent in monthly to the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Stirling. Prizes each month the high producers for that month may be announced. However, the prizes will be based on the yearly sales.

CLASSES:

1. Three hog producers who market 10-25 hog carcasses.
2. Three hog producers who market 26-75 carcasses.
3. Three hog producers who market 76 and over hog carcasses.

Sales and Ad Club Bonspiel Much Enjoyed

There are a few aching backs and sore muscles among members of the Sales and Ad Club today. Their annual bonspiel was concluded in the early hours of last evening at the Quinte Curling Club and the consensus was it was the best ever. Wally Partridge and his energetic committee arranged the affair, featuring good ice and curling, fine food and the best of hospitality.

A draw from Kingston of Clifford Guernsey, H. Giles, Sam Kingston with Bob Clarke as skip; Napanee with Art Gay, Norm Hawley and Partridge and accompanying prizes, while Peterborough with Art C. Coyle, N. Nagee, C. Creigg with B. Skelly as skip was a close second with Brockville, Belleville rink of Mac McCallum, Doug Storey, two once-a-year curlers, Jack Smith with Joe Beach as skip won the two-game high score closely followed by Grafton's Bert Reynolds, Reidel, Jack Diamond and Wally Partridge, skip also a local rink.

Two Belleville rinks were in the one-game winning class, Bob Alexander with Jim Bateman, Phil Flagler and Bob Baker taking first place with Arnold Gallery, Tony Gervais, Don Barrett with Bill Spinelli as skip in second place.

A delicious dinner was served between draws, Mrs. McKellin being in charge. The "fix" room was a popular place during the day, while in the lounge several games of bridge were in progress. It was a real good spiel all round and the club is to be congratulated on their efforts to provide a little amusement in this work-a-day world.

Service Men Get Certificates At Banquet

Ten local service men were presented with tune-up certificates upon completion of a nine - week course sponsored by the management of Belleville Acme Motors. The certificates were presented at a banquet held in the Prince Edward Hotel Dining Room last night.

Those receiving certificates were Gerald Wright, Ralph Parks, Clayton Prunsky, Grant Prunsky, Ronald Hydes, James Armstrong and Gene Herrman. Ralph Parks, Clayton Prunsky and Ray Rose were not in attendance to receive their presentations.

The graduates attended a nine - week course at Belleville Auto Electric under the supervision of service manager, Walter Walker. The course offered training in professional tuning covering all phases of ignition, lighting and charging circuits along with fuel and carburation.

Available to all district automotive service men, classes are kept to a minimum of twelve.

Elderly Man Missing Since Early Wed.

Provincial police today launched an intensive search around the Trent River community of Glen Ross for an 83-year-old man missing since early Wednesday morning.

Edgar Marsh was last seen about 9.00 a.m. when he failed to return home by evening his son, Edgar Jr., called St. John Ambulance headquarters in Belleville.

During the night the temperature dropped to 15 above in the district.

This morning police began searching the area by car and checking his description in Trenton and Frankford.

Mr. Marsh is a first five inches in height. When he left home he was wearing a white felt cap, rust and dark mackinaw and tan trousers.

Cost Breakdown Released by Board Secretary

The breakdown of 1964 costs between member municipalities for the Bay of Quinte District High School Board was released today by board secretary Roy O. Dulmage.

The year's estimates were announced yesterday following the board's budget meeting Tuesday night.

Total costs of the three local high schools this year will be $2,752,000 of which Belleville will be raised by local levy.

Of the local levy the city of Belleville will be assessed for a raise 64.1 per cent of $558,901.01. This includes both current exp. and debenture costs.

The tow.-ship of Thurlow will pay 11.24 per cent or $103,264.39; Sidney 10.04 per cent or $92,252.00; Tyendinaga 7.13 per cent, or $65,504.97; Tyendinaga, 4.32 per cent or $44,-252.62 and village of Frankford 2.67 per cent or $24,522.88.

In all instances the amounts include both current expenditure operation and debenture charges.

Because of adjustments made through arbitration, Belleville's share of local high school costs this year are down by some of $15,000 from 1963. Thurlow's share is also down slightly while Sidney's share is increased over that of last year.

Order Guard For Families Of 12 Jurors

AYLESBURY (Reuters)—The judge in England's £2,600,000 ($7,800,000) train robbery trial has ordered round-the-clock police guard for the families of the 12 jurors when they go out to reach a decision.

Following an incident reported to the court Monday of an effort to bribe one of the jurors, Mr. Justice Edmund Davies was told Wednesday the entire panel wanted reassurance there would be no interference with their families while jurors were in retirement.

The trial, biggest in British history, began on May 20 and is ninth week. There was a possibility it would last more than nine months.

The case arose from the holdup of the Glasgow-London mail train near Cheddington August when 120 mailbags stuffed with banknotes were stolen by a gang of masked men.

ONE PLEADED GUILTY

Of the 17 men and three women appearing in court at the start of the trial, one man pleaded guilty to four of the five charges against him and another man was found not responsible and not guilty and discharged.

A third man was released by the judge because of an irregularity. The hearing of the charges against him will form the second stage of the trial.

The third stage of the trial will deal with the charges against four men and three women accused of receiving stolen banknotes. Seven have denied the charges and are out on bail.

During the next few days the jury will be examining individually the evidences concerning those now before him.

DON'T WANT CASINO

SALISBURY (AP) — Despite Southern Rhodesian government support, a plan for a gambling casino at the 350-foot-high Victoria Falls has brought a public outcry that the casino would despoil a great natural spectacle.

lous than a challenge to the integrity of the chair," said Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre), an expert in Commons rules and traditions.

He and others, however, agreed an error had been made, urged Mr. Gregoire to withdraw his remarks.

"In courts of law a dog is entitled to one bite—surely a deputy Speaker is entitled to 1 mistake," said Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

But Mr. Gregoire declined to withdraw, and his motion—holding over the debate—came after Commons business-comes up for debate again today. Continuing from the start of the six-day budget debate.

Mr. Gregoire's motion came over a technicality—a time which cropped up last Friday night when Prime Minister Pearson won parliamentary approval to send troops for the United Nations peacekeeping force in Cyprus.

WAS THERE CONSENT?

The issue: The ruling then by Mr. Lamoureux that Mr. Pearson had asked for—and in effect was given—unanimous consent to introduce the resolution. Unanimous consent is necessary to introduce the rule requiring 48 hours notice of such resolutions—a rule designed to protect members from being surprised by sudden legislation.

Mr. Gregoire argued that the Speaker had made a ruling earlier Friday they wouldn't consent to waiving the rule. Yet, he said, the person that requested consent and received it. Other than objection had been raised immediately.

Mr. Gregoire charged that Mr. Lamoureux violated Mr. Belanger's right to object in order "to accommodate" the prime minister.

He also put blame on the prime minister, saying he had "abandoned" the house rules that which he should be the first to uphold.

Mr. Pearson—at home with a cold—and Mr. Lamoureux were absent as Mr. Gregoire's charges were made and debated.

Mr. Diefenbaker said that the MP would "frankly admit that an error was made on Friday."

But he laid the blame at the government's door, saying the trouble arose because of the haste to present itself to the world as a benefactor of mankind.

The opposition leader said the deputy Speaker had misunderstood the situation.

"Are we to condemn him because of a misunderstanding? . . . I will not have it. This is too serious a resolution."

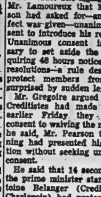
Erhart Regier (Reform—Fraser Martin denied that either the government or Mr. Lamoureux was to blame.

ERROR SHARED

"I'm not prepared to admit fully that there was an error," he said. If there was, the error was shared by every member.

Mr. Knowles protested that no one was accepting the blame.

"I share the blame for what happened Friday night," he said. "I refuse to put it elsewhere."



A mistake had been made and members—by remaining silent shared responsibility. Mr. Lamoureux had acted with the consent of almost the entire Commons and shouldn't be made a scapegoat.

Urging Mr. Gregoire to withdraw his motion, Mr. Knowles said that even if it were defeated on a vote, Mr. Lamoureux would be under obligation to resign. If a substantial number voted for it.

The deputy Speaker shouldn't be forced to the stigma of two, three or 13 votes—"he has done too good a job."

Record Acreage Of Wheat Will Be Planted

OTTAWA (CP) — A record 29,087,000 acres of wheat will be planted in Canada this year, six per cent more than 1963, the first of statistics estimated Wednesday.

The figure represents a seventh straight increase boosted if it materializes — and reflects wheat growers' determination to capitalize on export opportunities. If the forecast is reached it would eclipse the standing record of 28,000,000 acres planted to wheat in 1940.

The bureau emphasized that its figures represents farmers' intentions as of March 1 and the actual seeded areas may vary considerably from the record depending on various factors.

Last year's actual wheat acreage was 27,566,000 compared with the postwar low of 21,000,000 acres in 1957 and the five-year average of 24,700,000 acres for the period 1958-62.

John Montana, Linked With Crime, Dies

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—John C. Montana, 70, who contended he happened to be at the Apalachin underworld meeting because his automobile broke down, died Wednesday in hospital.

Montana, president of a taxi company, suffered a heart attack Tuesday.

Approximately 60 gangsters and friends were taken into custody by state police Nov. 14, 1957 during a raid at the hilltop retreat of Joseph Barbara, who has since died. Some went to prison following the raid, others got suspended sentences.

Montana had been linked off and on with the underworld.

Last October, FBI informant Joseph Valachi told a Senate investigating subcommittee that Montana had been a lieutenant in the Cosa Nostra . (Mafia) crime organization.

In 1959, Montana was indicted by a federal grand jury on a charge that he and 26 others who were at the Apalachin meeting conspired to obstruct justice by refusing to tell the truth about the meeting.

WAS CONVICTED

He was convicted and sentenced to serve four years in prison and was fined $10,000. The sentence and fine were set aside less than a year later when the court ruled the federal conspiracy law was unconstitutional.

After the seizure by troopers at Barbara's palatial estate, Montana claimed he was there only because his automobile broke down. He denied having any connection with the others at the gathering.

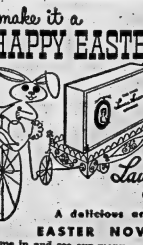
In his testimony to the Senate subcommittee, Valachi claimed that Montana had worked as a lieutenant under Stefano Magaddino of Niagara Falls, N.Y., who had been named previously by Valachi as the Buffalo area boss of the Cosa Nostra.

"He's a dirty liar," Montana retorted later.

Valachi said Montana had been demoted to soldier at his own request because, Valachi claimed, Montana "didn't want the boys contacting him anymore."

Five years earlier, Montana denied before the same committee that he had been a member of the Cosa Nostra.

Couple Charged Again Under Right Names



St. Thomas (CP) — Delbert Frederick Vernon Coffell, 24, and his wife Hildegarde Helena, 23, were charged Wednesday with their true names here Wednesday with abandoning their three children aged 3, 18 months and three weeks.

They were remanded to next Wednesday and released on $1,000 bail each.

The Coffell children were discovered last week in an unheated farmhouse. The parents were arrested in Windsor.

They were originally charged as Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Smith, the name they used while working on the farm.

Prized Stamp Collection Found in Vacant Shed in City Claims Youth in Court

A 16-year-old youth who claimed to have found a prized stamp collection in a vacant shed, told a trial court his father advised him to burn it. Later the parent also had him advertise for purchase of stamps and coins.

James Alfred Meens Jr. is charged with illegal possession of a stamp album from the collection sent were placed in The Greenleaf... noted Belleville philatelist. The trial continued today before Magistrate R. C. Jackson.

Yesterday the prosecution produced an album, charging it contained stamps from part of the Greenleaf collection, stolen late last December. Among allegedly missing from the set, was a rare inverted St. Lawrence Seaway issue valued at $1,200.

Meens told the court he found a stamp album in a shack on the Alemite field, January 11. He said he didn't take it to the police, fearing a charge. Instead, he took it home and hid it in the garage, where it was discovered by his father, who became suspicious of his son's frequent trips outside.

"What did he say about taking it back? Couldn't he have taken it Back?" asked Crown Attorney John Pringle.

"I guess so—but he told me to get rid of it," answered the youth.

TOLD TO BURN THEM

"And how did he suggest you get rid of it?"

"Burn them."

"And did you burn them?"

"Yes."

Meens also told the court his father suggested he go into the business of purchasing stamp and coins, and advertisements were placed in The Ontario Intelligencer.

Holding up the album, Mr. Pringle asked the youth if he thought they were sufficient to start business dealings.

"No—that was my father's idea."

"Your father's idea? What were you going to use for money?"

Later, the youth agreed, he would have had about $10 to start business.

"You had $10 and you were going to buy stamps if people came?"

"Not really stamps—coins."

"All right," pressed the Crown Attorney, "with $10 you were going in the coin business."

The accused admitted taking the stamps to Montreal and Toronto dealers. In Montreal he was offered $225, but he returned to the same dealer later in the day and the stamps were returned and the check taken back. In Toronto the following weekend he disposed of them for $80.

"Is there any reason why you couldn't sell them in Belleville?"

"No."

DIDN'T NOTIFY POLICE

"Save yourself the train fare to Toronto, wouldn't it. Did you try to sell them in Belleville?"

"No."

Meens, called in his own defence by Mr. Argue, told the counsel after finding the stamps in the shed he didn't notify police "because I knew they would keep me here and question me."

On a previous occasion when he found a bicycle he had been questioned "for the rest of the day."

"You mean you were afraid they would charge you?" asked Mr. Argue.

"Yes."

The youth's father, James Meens senior, was in court when his son testified—after he himself had been called to the stand.

To Mr. Argue, Mr. Meens admitted instructing his son to place the newspaper advertisements for stamps and coins.

Much of the trial was taken up with a key defence issue concerning identification of the stamp collection, which resulted in some peppery arguments between both counsel.

The prosecution based its case for identity on a single stamp—another Seaway misprint. The five-cent scrap of paper valued by collectors at $300, was allegedly sold along with the missing $1,200 inverted issued to Mr. Greenleaf in 1960 by Winnipeg dealer Kashmer Bilesky.

To prove the point, police brought the dealer from Western Canada to testify.

The result was a near 90-minute excursion into the intricate glossary of philately, as Mr. Argue closely questioned the dealer on stamp-collecting and his dealings with Mr. Greenleaf.

Mr. Bilesky said he had been selling stamps to the late Belleville collector for 20 years.

"About the best that I sold Mr. Greenleaf were two Canadian Seaway stamps," he recalled.

He identified the misprint in the album as one of the pair sold to Mr. Greenleaf for a total of $1,500.

Frank Sheridan, a professional Toronto engineer and amateur collector, said he bought the album from Meens in a Toronto dealers for $80.

"There was a Seaway stamp in the album when I purchased it but I assumed it was just an ordinary Seaway (issue)," he said.

He intended putting the collection up for auction at a stamp club that day, but it was over when he arrived, Mr. Sheridan said.

"If you had stuck it in the auction that night you wouldn't have known the difference!" asked Mr. Argue.

"It would have gone for five or six cents," replied Mr. Sheridan.

Hugh Boody, 27 Alexander Street, an 18-year-old RCIVS student and friend of the accused, revealed police had him call at Meens' home and inquire about stamps before the youth was arrested.

He also said he was interested in acquiring a collection of medals owned by Mr. Greenleaf and had been taken into the basement where they were housed, along with stamps and coins.

Meens was one of three youths he brought along with him on different occasions.

DENIES QUESTION

"You had certain discussions with the police about these stamps before Meens was arrested?" queried Mr. Argue.

"Yes sir," admitted Boody.

As a result, he told the court he went to the Meens' home.

"I just went past the house and saw it was his house."

Later, he said, he asked Meens if he was collecting stamps and he said "No."

"I'm instructed that you told Meens that you were collecting stamps and asked him if he had any for sale," commented Mr. Argue.

Boody answered in the negative.

Mr. Argue inquired whose idea it was that he question Meens.

"The police, sir."

Margaret Greenleaf, a registered nurse and daughter of Mr. Greenleaf, said she last checked out the Seaway stamps in her father's collection last summer. They were still in the album at the time.

Mrs. Muriel Joss, the philatelist's sister, said she discovered a broken window in a downstair's bedroom when checking the Greenleaf residence during the Christmas holiday.

Senior Citizens Enjoy Cards

The Senior Citizens' Club held the regular mid-monthly meeting in the Secreation Centre on Wednesday evening with the president, Mr. W. Brennan, in charge.

Following the singing of the birthday song the treasurer, Mrs. Tryan, gave a favorable financial report. Mrs. Clapp, chairman of the ways and means committee, announced that there would be a tea in April.

The remainder of the evening was enjoyed playing cards with the winners as follows: ladies, Mrs. Wannamaker, Mrs. James Doyle, Mrs. Ellen Law; men, Mrs. Mable Doyle, Mr. A. Longhurst and Mrs. Sarah Whitworth and the door prize was won by Mr. James Doyle. The draw for the sweater will take place on May 20.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Ford and her committee.

Million Dollars Of Road Work Receives Subsidy

More than a million dollars worth of municipal roads work in the county of Hastings and in the city of Belleville had been approved for subsidy this year by the Ontario Highways Department.

The total for the city, the county, and various rural municipalities and villages was $1,085,000 made up of $231,000 in roads construction, and $854,000 for maintenance.

Hastings county has $100,000 earmarked for construction and $500,000 for maintenance for a total of $400,000.

Belleville has been approved $50,000 for construction, and $255,000 for maintenance for a total of $305,000.

Totals for rural municipalities are as follows: Hungerford $35,000; Huntingdon $33,000; Rawdon $47,000; Sidney $60,000; Thurlow $70,000 and Tyendinaga $45,000.

The town of Deseronto of $15,000 approved for roads work; Frankford $10,000; Stirling $12,000 and Tweed $13,000.

Cities receive 33⅓ per cent subsidy on roads and bridges, townships receive from 33⅓ to 50 per cent on roads and 80 per cent on bridges, while towns, villages and counties receive 50 per cent subsidy on roads and 80 per cent on bridges.

Educational Savings Plan Is Extended

The Canadian Scholarship Trust Plan which is administered by the non-profit CST Foundation has now been in operation for almost 2 years. Active enrolments in the CST Plan now total more than 15,000. To date, the CST Plan has been set up solely to assist parents to provide for their children's future University education through a program of savings and scholarship awards.

The CST Foundation has announced that the benefits of the CST Plan age now extended to cover students who enter three year technological courses instead of going to university.

The Canadian Scholarship Trust Plan is a co-operative type of plan administered by a non-profit organization set up to provide the most economical way for parents or others to save money in order to offer opportunities for their children to achieve university education

Car Got Tired Of Waiting For Owner

TRENTON — In Trenton, around 9 p.m. last night, a late model car, owned by Public Utilities Commissioner, Clifford A. Baker, of 186 Victoria Ave., tired of waiting for its owner, while parked in a driveway on Spring Street, took blocks from Victoria and on a grade. The car took off, driverless, jumped a curb, got back on the road, crossed the intersection of Spring and Dufferin Ave., leaped over another curb and back again onto the road, got to the corner of Spring and Lorne Ave., mounted another curb and crossed the sidewalk, side-swiped a tree and struck the back corner of a house at the corner of Spring St. and Lorne Ave. Frustrated, there it remained. The occupants of the house rejoiced later hearing a "bump."

When Mr. Baker finished his call at the Spring St. address, he missed his car and reported it stolen to the police. The track of the unruding vehicle was traced and the car returned to its owner.

"About time," growled the mechanical monster, which sustained damages of $50.

$700 DAMAGE

A one - car accident on Highway 791 at the Smithfield Road, last night resulted in damages of $700. Driver of the car, a 34 - year - old Ottawa man, Jimmy Kung, was reported to complain about sore ribs, but otherwise seemed unhurt by the accident, and made his way home on a train, leaving his car in a repair shop. Details of the accident are not known at this time.

CHANGE PLANES

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP)— The first phase of an RCAF move to change from Harvards to CL-41 Tutor jet trainers was completed with the arrival of a non-flying Tutor model for training and maintenance personnel. The remaining units are expected to arrive at the end of May. More than 35 planes are expected at RCAF Station Moose Jaw.

Liquor Outlets In Trenton Area To Be Discussed

TRENTON — A panel discussion, "Additional Liquor Outlets in the Trenton Area," will be held at Bethel Temple, March 24, at 8 p.m. The timely discussion comes just before the vote on the issue is to be held in the recently annexed areas of the town of land which formerly lay in Murray and Sidney townships. Douglas Rushnell, feels that more interest in the heart foundation's work is being shown locally.

great change until late spring or, early summer.

$1,600 RAISED

Douglas Adams, treasurer for the February fund-raising campaign, sponsored by Trenton Chapter of the Ontario Heart Foundation, reported today that $1,600 had been raised in Trenton, Brighton and Frankford this year. This sum will be sent to Ontario headquarters to be used for heart disease research.

While the figure for the 1963 district campaign is exactly the same as this year's, last year, Colborne and Stirling were in on the drive. Under the circumstances, district executive, headed up by Douglas Rushnell, feels that more interest in the heart foundation's work is being shown locally.

Cancer Society Needs Workers

TRENTON — More canvassers are needed for the Trenton and District Cancer Society campaign for funds. The campaign will run from April 12 to April 25.

This week, Group Captain W. H. Schroeder of the RCAF, campaign chairman for District Two, attended a meeting of the Trenton and District group in the Trenton Cancer headquarters, and sat down with the workers to assemble kits for canvassers.

The Trenton district's goal this year is $6,000. Last year the objective, $6,000, was almost realized.

Volunteer canvassers may call Ex. 2-7644 or Ex. 2-4531 to contact E. R. Bonter or Robert Ranson, co-chairman for the drive.

7 New Members Join Legion

TRENTON — At this week's meeting of Trenton Branch 110, Royal Canadian Legion, first vice-president Victor Burtt, in the absence of president Horace Ketcheson, inducted seven new members. These were Frederick Laney, Ralph Stapley, William Stapley, Lloyd Gorman, Leonard Gibson, Donald McAllister and Jas. Wood. Branch secretary Louis Knack read letters of appreciation from the Ontario School for the Deaf for a $50 contribution and from the ladies of Branch 110 Auxiliary for an anniversary party given to them by the men.

Comrade Ezil Donaldson reported on a Legion caravan he had attended in Toronto on March 7 and 8, at which suggestions for a Legion project for Canada's Centennial Year, 1967, were given. The Trenton branch has as yet to decide on a suitable project.

One Phase of Problem

Ontario Premier John Robarts says that legislation is being drafted to protect the public from unscrupulous salesmen.

It will be interesting to see the results. The task is not an easy one. In a complex problem of this nature, no one solution will cover all cases. In some instances what may be needed is action to force manufacturers to stand behind their goods. In others the goods themselves may be sound enough, but the salesman may have misrepresented what they are capable of doing. The customer himself cannot be freed entirely of responsibility for protecting himself. A solution which may protect a person who buys on credit may be of no help for the cash buyer.

Here, though, there is one obvious measure which suggests itself and that is to restore to the person who purchases on credit a measure of that protection which this method of buying once provided.

There was a time when some people who could readily pay cash preferred to buy on credit in order that they could obtain some redress if the article purchased did not prove satisfactory. Today, though, the selling agency disposes of sales contracts to finance companies.

If something goes wrong with the product, the purchaser has no "hold" on the seller, because he has received his money. The finance company, not unnaturally, expects to get paid regardless of how the merchandise is performing, because it has delivered the "goods," cash to the merchant, in exchange for the conditional sales contract. Some finance companies do what they can for the customer in "putting the heat" on the selling company when goods are unsatisfactory. But, in the nature of things, this pressure is nowhere near as effective as that which the buyer could exert on the seller had the latter not already received his money from the finance company.

Buyers have been sued, and required by the courts to pay for merchandise which is faulty.

If this situation could be remedied, if some method could be devised whereby the purchaser could refuse to pay the balance due for merchandise proven faulty, one of the biggest threats to the consumer from unscrupulous salesmen would be eliminated.

Frankly, we do not know how the Ontario Legislature could achieve such a result. But we should like to see it try.

Turnabout

Cars and trucks should be inspected regularly for safety, the Garage Operators' Association of Ontario has decided. Apparently the resolution was in doubt, for a while, because some of the garage operators feared the general public might suggest the garage operators were more interested in the profits to be made from such suggestions than in safety.

There is little doubt, in fact, that there is a healthy profit in sight for garage operators if they can convince the government that motorists should be required to submit their vehicles to regular safety inspection. Only a fool would suggest though, that safety regulations should be avoided because enforcement would mean more business for the people who sell safety equipment. As long as the business remains competitive the public interest is protected.

We are also interested, though, in laws providing for inspection of the work done by garages. Perhaps the Garage Operators' Association would be interested in tossing this idea around for a while.

French In Montreal

The St. Jean Baptiste Society of Montreal wants French-speaking residents of that city to speak nothing but their mother tongue in their home town.

If the Society is as influential as some seem to think, this may produce some problems for English-speaking Montrealers, many of whom have never tried to speak a word of French.

It would, however, provide a pleasant change for some new residents of Montreal from English-speaking Canada, who on their first arrival in that city entertained fond hopes of improving their school-acquired French.

Now they find opening gambits in stores and restaurants hopelessly stereotyped. They always run like this.

"Bon jour, mademoiselle (or madam or monsieur)", with a French accent.

"Bon jour," with an English accent.

"What can I do for you?", in English, with or without a French accent.

Are Quebec Ministers Lecturing in Wrong Area?

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Seems that Quebec may have something in this unrelenting drive for bilingualism and bicultivation that just possibly hasn't occurred to many people in the rest of Canada.

Look at it this way:

Without exception, members of the Federal Cabinet of French-Canadian origin are all decently bilingual.

And with just possibly one exception, none of the non-French-Canadian Federal Ministers, to put it honestly if bluntly, are any better than stumbling bilingual.

Now look at it this way:

With the French-speaking Ministers all able to talk well and easily in English, and only a few of the English-speaking Ministers able to get along even passably well in French . . . the so-called "Dialogue" on bilingual and bicultural matters has become a monologue.

The way things so far have been working out, the French-speaking Ministers have all been busy preaching to English Canada, pleading with the people of the other nine provinces for sympathy and understanding for Quebec's hopes, aspirations, and demands, and the leaders have phrased it, demands and even ultimatums.

And the English - speaking Ministers have been busy . . . because of the language barrier . . . doing any crusading in Quebec, plaintive or otherwise. Because of the language barrier . . . doing any crusading in Quebec, plaintive or otherwise.

In these peculiar circumstances, it has been a one-sided conversation, at the Cabinet level, on bilingualism and biculturalism.

Each time the English-speaking members of the Federal Cabinet have ventured into Quebec — addressing themselves, of necessity and perforce to English-speaking audiences — they have talked about the extremists on what they have called "both sides."

This, oddly, from the English-speaking side of the bilingual fence, despite the violent manifestations of "extremism" — such as bombs, kidnappings and bombast, not excluding death and destruction — all having occurred in Quebec province.

Nine members of the Federal Cabinet are of French-Canadian origin, seven of them representing Quebec constituencies. And of course, are External Affairs Minister Paul Martin of Ontario and Veterans Affairs Minister Roger Teillet of Manitoba, both actually more English than French-Canadian.

There are eight Ministers speaking for Quebec, seven of them in the Cabinet, including the odd-man-out in Industries Minister Charles M. "Bud" Drury, the only non-French-Canadian in the Cabinet who approaches anything like a working bilingualism.

THE LINE-UP:

Bud Drury, Paul Martin and Roger Teillet, although not necessarily fluent in French, know and understand both sides of the bilingual argument. And they would be very effective pitchers with the position and pitch of the seven French-Canadian Cabinet members — Justice Minister Guy Favreau, State Secretary Maurice Lamontagne, Public Works Minister Jean - Paul Deschatelets, Associate Defence Minister Lucien Cardin, Citizenship Minister Rene Tremblay, Forestry Minister Yvon Dupuis and Fisheries Minister without Portfolio Yvon Dupuis.

But except for Yvon Dupuis — who on a couple of occasions, has told Quebec that it belongs to Canada with less regard than Soviet Russia — the French-Canadian contingent in the Cabinet has been silent . . . silent in French Canada, that is.

But these Ministers from Quebec have been busy, busy, busy with their crusade in the other provinces, pleading, lecturing, even scolding, in setting out chapter and verse for what they say must be English Canada's understanding, sympathy, and to put it flatly, plain "give" in the now rapidly - changing relations with French - Canadians.

They have complained that Quebec's extremists are hogging all the headlines, that the bombers, the arms raiders, the separatists who "want" the Queen not to come to Canada are making all the news. They protest that Separatist Marcel Chaput, who gave up a well-paying Federal job in the Defence Research Board to lead the fight for Quebec "independence," is better known both in French Canada and national circles than some of the French-Canadian Cabinet Ministers.

Perhaps if the Cabinet Ministers from Quebec crusaded for Confederation in the rest of the country, outside of Quebec, some of that might get back. Could be it's long past time for them to attend to their bilingual and bicultural "homework" there it might do the most good.

Peking Makes Issue Plain

Christian Science Monitor

The Communists can usually be counted upon to put their foot, in it. Extremists are like that. When the West is struggling hard to build against some stubborn cold war problem, like as not the Communists will overplay their hand and help the West will be shocked into doing what has to be done.

That seems to be the case with Peking. The Communist regime is obvious: the Communists have done it again. It was the men of Peking that did it.

Just as the United States Government and the American people were distinctly aware of confusion over the worsening war in South Vietnam, the Chinese Communists have taunted them. The American tactics there, said Peking, would be overcome by superior military strength of the United States.

"The U.S. paper tiger has been punctured and exposed."

The prospect for the future, not only in Vietnam but across the world, said Peking, is that "the people of any country or region can defeat U.S. United States aggression can win victory if only they are not overawed by its apparent strength and are, and know how to struggle."

That, thanks to Peking, is the issue.

If the United States is pushed out of South Vietnam, revolutionary parties everywhere will have their hunting license. Defenders of the free international world will around the Red Chinese perimeter, the men who stood against Communist pressures and became marked men, will be dismayed and dispirited.

An outstanding success for piecemeal aggression would be racked up and Peking would cross — as it was proved by Hitler — that nothing succeeds like success.

Peking and Hitler — makes the next much easier.

This is the issue. Along the military front of the Independent world meets the Communist forces of Peking and Moscow, such a check could be exploited quickly. Back of the arena remote from the East - West line like Laos and Latin America — in Cuba for example — there is more time while the Soviet and Red Chinese are not closed on Cuba yet. But here too the knowledge of one case where the people of any country or region . . . " to quote Peking, "can win victory if only they are not overawed by the United State's apparent strength, and dare, and know how to struggle," could have a sickening effect in a world underpinned by the proved ability of the free world to protect itself.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

March 19th, 1944.

Again exemplifying its willingness to assist in a really worthwhile cause, the Belleville Municipal Band, 40 members strong, motored to Napanee to stage a band concert sponsored by the congregation of Trinity-Bethel United Church. Returning band members and their manager, Mr. Harry Moorman, reported having a splendid time in the eastern town, the concert drawing a "fair" crowd, and the proceeds going to war charities.

Members of the Belleville Rotary Club, together with some of the band officials, kindly loaned their cars to transport the band members to Napanee. Following the band concert, they were treated to a buffet supper.

A vivid, colorful and realistic picture of our southern neighbor, the United States, present of South America, was given us by Mrs. Dorothy Thompson in an address delivered to the I.O.D.E. in St. Andrew's Church Hall on Friday afternoon. Introduced by Mrs. W. H. Ponton, Mrs. Thompson has recently come from Washington, being there for seventeen years. During that time she was a teacher, in fact, having been connected with the mining industry. Mrs. Thompson told how she got in touch with the real American people. "The real Chilean is of Spanish descent," she said, "the woman are petite and lovely and the men, gallant and gay.

Mrs. Mary Rose of Bloomfield, Prince Edward County, will celebrate her 90th anniversary of her birth quietly at her home with a few friends today. She was born in a log house which was built in a clearing near Belleville, a few months after the United Empire Loyalists made a settlement in the village. Bears and wolves were numerous and the younger members of the family nearly ventured outside the clearing. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hubbs, and was the second child in a family of eleven.

The Minasker family was noted for its longevity, there being three more centenarians to Mrs. Rose—they are Charles Minaker, 85, of Picton; Rodman Minaker, 87, of Saskatchewan; and Mrs. Sarah Harrison, 83, of Creasy. All but two of the Rose children lived to the age of 80 years and three lived to the age of 90 years. Mrs. Rose married Peter Rose, who became a Justice of the Peace; he died many years ago. Mrs. Rose has five children living. They are Dr. Andrew Rose of Toronto, Phillip Rose of Bloomfield, Edward H. Rose of Pasadena, Cal., Mrs. Frances Shaver and Mrs. H. Fairfield, Bloomfield, of Picton. Although she recently lost both sight and hearing and is confined to her home, she enjoys having friends call and likes to talk of interesting happenings of former days.

Strictly Personal
Should Be Judged
By Trueness

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: When we are young, we judge people by their attitudes toward us; as we get older, we judge them by their opinions; if we finally mature, we judge them only by the ways in which they act out their opinions, by their responses to themselves, and not to us.

Duplicity requires a mask; but sometimes, also so does innocence.

The greatest injustice in a collectivist state is not economic or political, but psychological — not merely the abolition of private property (which cannot be done), but the abolition of privacy itself, the exposure of the person to public scrutiny in every aspect of his life.

Parents who make a habit of talking "over the heads" and "out from the children" don't know it, but the children have already grown up before them.

Next to scorn, the worst thing for a work of art or entertainment is over-praise: having heard so many fine things about the film, "Dr. Strangelove", I could hardly let down after seeing it, although I probably would have delighted me if I'd never heard the fanfare.

Those who look upon "reason" as a sufficient antidote to "emotion" should keep in mind Cardinal Newman's simple words: "Reason is God's gift; feelings are His passions; reason is as guilty as feeling."

The pedigrees of a dog is not nearly as important as its training; the most pedigreed dog may be trained to astonishing feats of intelligence, courage and loyalty; while the highest-bred of a line of champions can be ruined in a few months of cruelty, indulgence, stupidity, or neglect. And so, a fortiori, with human beings.

A personality divided against itself contains its own punishment.

Success makes some men insufferably vain, and others pleasantly relaxed; the only ones that have any value are those who are perpetually irritated.

A lenient judge may be defined as a man with the courage of his acquittals.

We are not deceived by flattery, but we enjoy it even knowing it is spurious; for as Shaw observed, "What really flatters a man is that you think him worth flattering."

A woman who gratuitously tells a stranger what a wonderful her husband is, and what a happy marriage she has, is surprisingly often, preparing to betray the former or abandon the latter.

To Your Good Health

Psychiatric Depression Not Physical But Emotional

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain psychiatric depression. I have four demanding children and an adoring husband. Chances are you will say, "There's a woman who has everything." I know I have but I don't know how to accept someone's efforts and love. I've been married twice and I've gone from one extreme to another, from cruelty to myself and my children, to love and serenity from my second husband. I can't understand why I should be going through this depression. I've had a complete physical and I'm fine from head to toes.

Mrs. J. C

A psychiatric depression isn't physical; it is emotional. Sometimes we can understand very easily why we react in a certain way, emotionally. Other times we can't.

Depression is a reasonable common occurrence. A person can fall into this depressed state without any apparent reason. He doesn't know why — but he still feels tired, gloomy, pessimistic. In severe depressions, people sometimes commit suicide — again, for no good reason except that they feel so unbearably gloomy.

This is a very real danger, of which psychiatrists and other physicians are becoming increasingly aware. In some such cases shock treatments have been used with success.

In recent years drugs known as "psychic energizers" have been prescribed.

There are also various types of depression, and the distinction becomes quite confusing.

All of which is my way of leading up to the advice that if possible have a physician in charge of your case. The treatment (especially the drugs) is quite different from what is commonly regarded as "psychiatric treatment." Indeed if a person reaches the stage of thinking that life just isn't worth living.

But it can be helped, although there isn't much you can do about it by yourself. You can't, just by will power, make yourself be happy and relaxed. You need assistance.

Dear Dr. Molner: Isn't it true that those who are not afraid to take an occasional sip of castor oil don't have to worry about constipation later in life than those who do not?

F. G.

No. Castor oil is an irritating substance which purges the digestive system rather violently, and causes what is often a "rebound" effect — its use is followed by a certain amount of constipation. Other, improved laxatives are preferable if they are needed at all.

Dear Dr. Molner: High blood pressure and a heart condition have prevented me from operation for correction of a fallen uterus. A pessary has been fitted but caused severe cramping. Is there medicine or any other treatment that will help?

A. L.

There is no medication that will help. Various mechanical devices are being used but surgery has improved so much that it is both easier and more successful. I advice a recheck of your blood pressure to see whether the operation can be done now or in the future.

Hemorrhoids can be cured. If troubled with fissures, fistulas, itching and other rectal problems, write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 128, Dundee, Ill., requesting a copy of the booklet, "The Real Cure For Hemorrhoids," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25c in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Britain Has Used Boycott

New York Herald-Tribune

The British may be suffering a "brain drain" but it has not affected the number of arguments they have mobilized against us in Justify their boasting to Cuba. To wit:

1. "We do not believe in boycotts." (Prime Minister Douglas-Home).

2. If we don't sell to Castro, our French, German, Italian and Japanese competitors will, so why shouldn't we get the business? (British press).

3. You don't mean what is Russia so why can't we dump busines in Cuba? (British press).

4. A "comfortable" Communist is less dangerous than an uncomfortable one (Douglas-Home).

The central argument is the first one. The rest are rationalizations.

The contention that others would sell if Britain did not begs the question. If Britain serves only as a brake on its curb the others rather than allow them to do even better than the British are doing in trade with Cuba.

The analogy between our wheat and their booze is a false one.

The theory that a fat cat is less dangerous than a lean one . . . may or may not prove correct.

As for the central argument — that Britain does not believe in boycotts — it may be recalled that it was used always thus.

Britain exercised economic sanctions against Egypt at the time of the Suez conflict. That is why Eisenhower and the United States "did not believe in boycotts"), but there is a limit and it did nonetheless.

That was when the United States and Britain adopted economic sanctions against Premier Mohammed Mossadegh of Iran 7 years ago. As a result, both Mossadegh and the British Western oil policies have disappeared.

The precedent of Iran might point a moral for the present set of Cuba.

Britain doesn't believe in boycotts against Cuba because it does not work because Cuba is not as important to Britain as Iran was and is, even though it may be of paramount importance to the United States. And the British may subconsciously be seeking to repay us for Suez.

City Hall Employees Here Apply for Conciliation; Strike Possible, Not Likely

Contract negotiations have broken down between city hall employees and the city, and the employes have applied for conciliation. No date for the conciliation meeting has been announced.

The original contract between Local 140 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees and the City of Belleville, was signed December 31, of 1961, to cover a two year period. Since January first of this year a union delegation composed of area representative E. A. Gilchrist of Ottawa, local president Floyd Milton, local vice-president Clayton Drouillard, and a committee appointed by the local has been negotiating with city manager J. L. Reynolds and city personnel manager A. L. Jobey.

The local includes about 38 members, all employed at city hall in Belleville. Six city hall employees eligible for the union, are not members, and about 15 city hall employees in management positions are not eligible for union membership. Union officials agree that a strike of city hall employees is possible, but they do not consider it likely. The problem could be resolved at the first conciliation meeting, a local officer said yesterday.

PAKISTANIS KILLED

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Three Pakistanis were reported killed Wednesday in a clash with an Indian patrol northeast of Jammu in disputed Kashmir. An Indian defence ministry spokesman said there were no Indian casualties in what he described as the fourth in a recent series of raids by Pakistanis.

Big Backlog of 'Carry-Over' Highway Work in Quinte District on Tap This Year

The Ontario Highways Department will be catching up on a big backlog of "carry-over" highway construction work in the Bay of Quinte district this year, according to the capital construction program announced this week by Highways Minister Hon. C. S. McNaughton.

In addition to the "carry-over" projects will be proposed new work, including a start on the new structure for the new high level bridge over the Bay of Quinte at Deseronto.

Highway work to be continued from last year's program includes completion of paving on No. 14 Highway from 401 north through the Foxboro bypass and binder course paving on 8.5 miles of No. 7 Highway west from Actinolite.

East of Shelleville grading work will be continued on the new road leading from 401 Highway north through Marysville to the approach of the proposed new high level bridge west of Deseronto.

CONSTRUCT OVERPASS

This work includes construction of a CNR overpass at Marysville which will be built of pre-stressed concrete.

On 401 Highway "carry-over" work includes paving of approximately 30 miles of north-lane between Marysville and Odessa, along with construction of an interchange at the Hastings-Lennox and Addington boundary road north of Deseronto and an overpass on the county road two miles west of Napanee. Work on the overpass has already commenced.

Proposed new work in the Shelleville area includes grading of 3.5 miles on No. 37 Highway north of the Corbyville by-pass and grading and widening of 1.9 miles on No. 2 Highway east of Trenton past the air station.

Further east construction will be started on over six miles of new north-south road from No. 33 Highway at Millhaven to 401 Highway.

NEW CONSTRUCTION

Also there will be new construction on 401 Highway west of Gananoque along with a new interchange leading to the International boundary at the Lea Bridge.

Development road construction in the Immediate Belleville area includes grading of the final 5.8 miles of county road north of Foxboro.

In Prince Edward County there is only one small highway construction project—1.3 miles of grading in the village of Wellington.

Also in the Port Hope highways district a new bridge is planned over the Trent River on No. 35 highway.

Construction is also expected to commence this year on two new service centres on 401 Highway in the Odessa area.

In North Hastings No. 62 Highway from Steenburg to Ormaby Junction will be graded, while a further section of secondary highway in the Hermon district will also be built.

me a unilingual province ille should wanted the nance of a bilingual nation, ting that all the country's tions make up a single state. But the latter group insisted at Quebec's English-speaking minority at least learn French. the greatest leader and some of the English-speaking people m, of Trois-Rivieres, about ires per cent of the 60,000 resi- nts, have lived in the pulp and per centre for 50 years and n't speak a word of French.

DISCUSS REAL ISSUES

The lack of opportunity for nomotions, even in local indus- ry, was also discussed along With what Mr. Duntion called he "many other real questions ffecting life in this part of Que- bec province."

Schools was one of the major opics in Sherbrooke, where any called for objective hi- ry textbooks in both languages nd removal of the division be- een Roman Catholic and Prot- tant schools because they are atholic and the pupils are rotestant, and vice versa.

The teaching available in a second language too often lressed grammar with the re- on that few pupils become pro- cient in a second language, he meeting of the minds. Some didn't think anything ould work.

"French-Canadians and Eng- sh-Canadians are like oil and ater, they don't mix," com- ented a French-speaking uni- ersity professor raised in Sas- katchewan.

AVS CONCEPT UTOPIAN

"There is something in the wo mentalities that is incom- atible. Biculturalism is largely Utopian."

A Roman Catholic priest took n opposing view.

"We must develop beyond the egative stage where there are o frictions between the two roups. We must have more se- ve relations with English-Ca- adians."

Speakers agreed that bilin- ualism in Sherbrooke, a city f 80,000—about 60 per cent rench—was born of necessity. rench-speaking industrial em- loyees have to speak English to olo the managerial class and nglish - speaking businessmen nd merchants learn French for conomic survival.

"There is mutual indifference r dislike between the two roups in the working class in his area," one French-speaking person remarked.

"It is our inferiority complex that leads them (English-Cana- dians) to adopt a superiority complex," said another. But a third argued: "We must stop blaming the English for every- thing."

There were requests that the French - speaking minority in other provinces be treated, in the field of education, the same as Quebec handles its English- speaking minority.

GM to Spend $120 Million Next Two Years

OSHAWA (CP) — General Motors of Canada Ltd. will in- vest $120,000,000 during the next two years in new plants and ex- panding existing ones, it was announced Wednesday.

The program—largest in the company's history — will add new jobs to 4,000 over jobs to GM's payroll, the announcement said. GM of Canada now em- ploys 17,000.

Included in the planned ex- pansion is a new truck chassis plant at Oshawa, additional fa- cilities for making parts and assembling passenger cars at the main plant here, a new in- terior trim plant in Windsor, Ont., and a new passenger car assembly plant. Details of the passenger car plant will be re- leased later.

The announcement was made after GM of Canada's parent, General Motors Corp., said in the United States it will pour $2,000,000,000 into expanding its manufacturing production facili- ties.

1st add GM—42 . . . facilities

"Our decision to make this un- precedented investment in Can- ada, the steadily increasing evi- dence that the Canadian econ- omy is gaining from the demand for cars and trucks in particu- lar will continue to expand and grow," H. H. Walker, GM Canada president, said.

GROWTH EXPECTED

Mr. Walker said he expects that it is reasonable to expect that the ve- hicle market in Canada will reach 1,000,000 by the last 17 years. He first went to sea some 25 years ago.

"By 1968 will employ 1,700 peo- ple in new chassis plant that will cover 300,000 square feet and be located near the com- pany's present passenger car assembly plants here.

GM of Canada turned out a record 208,000 cars and trucks at Oshawa last year. Since pro- duction was started in 1908, more than 4,750,000 vehicles have been made.

WHOOPER DEAD

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. interior department re- ported Wednesday that a young whooping crane has died at the Aransas National Wildlife Re- fuge in Texas. Time and cause of the death were unknown, the department said, but the re- mains were found Tuesday. As nearly as can be determined, the department said, the num- ber of wild whooping cranes now stands at 32, the same as a year ago.

rewarded in a few weeks" which could be given to misinterpreta- tion.

Banks dismissed Bellevue "long consideration of the af- fairs and interests of the SIU of Canada and the interests of the maritime industry and coun- try as a whole."

Mr. Justice Dryer had said in earlier statements that he preferred union members them- selves to remove union leaders as long as trustee directives were obeyed. However, recently he expanded this to include re- moval from office in the na- tional interest.

LONG-TERM AIM

"It is part of a long-term pro- gram designed to achieve the objectives set out in the legis- lation" to bring labor peace to the Great Lakes.

Banks concluded that we could not achieve that objective with- out taking this step."

The step was made in the in- terest of the SIU and its rank and file, Mr. Justice Dryer said, and was designed to strengthen the union, not weaken it.

Mr. Millard read another statement that the long - range program of the trustees calls for reinstatement of the SIU into the Canadian Labor Congress "and for cementing of international relations of the union."

"No decision has been reached as to further disci- pline but a meeting of SIU offi- cers will be scheduled at the earliest opportunity."

CALLING VETERAN

Mr. Turner was born in South Shields, England, and has re- sided in Montreal for the last 17 years. His first went to sea some 25 years ago.

As a member of the brother- hood, he served as chairman of the railway clerks grievance committee in Montreal. He also represented employees of Rail- way Express Agency across Canada.

There was the usual activity in the SIU hall following the an- nouncement prepared by the trustees.

It said simply: "Hal Banks has been fired. All members are asked to maintain internal dis- cipline."

Banks, it marked the ap- parent end to 15 years of being "the big boss" in Canadian shipping.

CALLED IN

He came to Canada from the United States in 1949 at the be- hest of the old Trades and La- bor Congress and several ship- ping companies.

At the time, the Canadian waterfront was under control of the so - communist - inspired labor body, the Canadian Sea- men's Union. There were 56 strikes and work stoppages be- fore Banks appeared.

Banks began building his em- pire just a few short months later when the CSU was smashed after a series of shoot- ings and club - swinging inci- dents.

The report of Mr. Justice T. G. Norris last summer on Great Lakes shipping said that the 240-pound Banks was "a bully, cruel, dishonest, greedy, power-hungry, contemptuous of the law" and called for his ou- ter

Mr. Justice Norris said Great Lakes labor strife was "part of an irresponsible campaign to maintain one rapacious and vio- lent man, Banks, in power as a dictator."

He also said Banks "is of the stuff of the Capones and the Hoffas of whom the dictators throughout history, from the earliest times to the totalitar- ians Hitler and Stalin, are pro- totypes."

Banks just shrugged his shoul- ders and made no comment at the time but later led a mem- bership march on Parliament Hill to protest the establishment of the trusteeship over the SIU and four other maritime unions.

Banks was born in Waterloo, Iowa, and had his application for Canadian citizenship turned down in 1953.

Since the October march on Parliament, Banks has been hit by a series of legal charges.

He is before the courts in Montreal accused of conspiring to induce seamen to walk off their ships and conspiring to as- sault two rival union officials in a separate incident.

He has been married twice. Both ended in divorce.

spokesman also accused the Turks of cutting communica- tions between Nicosia and the coastal area. The Greeks claimed the Turks first opened fire against a police patrol that approached the village of mud brick and stone houses.

About 200 — 300 Greeks sur- rounded the village began the attack, using citrus groves and tall cypress trees for cover.

The Turkish-Cypriots said the attack was premeditated and that the village had been sur- rounded by Greek-Cypriots for days.

Greek-Cypriots were reported also to have used mortars in the fighting most of which took place on the outskirts. These re- ports said both sides used ba- zookas and machine-guns, but a Turkish - Cypriot spokesman denied that the Turkish villag- ers had bazookas.

Greek Cypriot Interior Minis- ter Polycarpos Georgadis and several Turkish-Cypriot leaders went to Ghaziveran to investi- gate the new violence.

Three Men Turn up to Redeem Ticket

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP)— Three Brooklyn men—Vincent Parisi, 33, Steve Ventimiglia, 37, and Joseph Polizzi, 29— turned up at Roosevelt Race- way Wednesday night to re- deem a $54,340.50 twin double ticket, one of four that were outstanding from last Satur- day's big payoff.

Another $54,340.50 ticket hasn't been claimed.

One ticket was cashed by mail by an anonymous cus- tomer. His registered letter arrived Tuesday and was pro- cessed by the mutuals man- ager, Joe Lynch.

Ventimiglia and Polizzi were born in Sicily, Italy, while Parisi hails from Casa- blanca, Morocco. They have been in the United States less than 10 years.

They attributed their delay in cashing the tickets in which they were equal partners, to the fact they were still in a state of shock.

Parisi and Ventimiglia are partners in a life and business, while Polizzi is a barber.

They said that they hadn't seen the final race, won by Flora's Boy, because they were too excited. They heard the result on their car radio, stopped the car and began hugging each other with joy.

"We know nothing about horses," said Ventimiglia. "We bet numbers. We bet the twin double together about four times and had three win- ners once."

Parisi said he plans to use some of his winnings for a trip to Europe. Ventimiglia intends to buy a house "for the wife and kids. Polizzi said "I'm waiting word from my wife on what I'm going to do with the money."

New Liquor Law Approved By P.E.I.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Prince Edward Island legislature Thursday approved a bill amending the province's liquor laws, permitting sale of liquor by the glass.

The island is the last pro- vince in Canada to prohibit sale of liquor by the glass.

The bill would allow licences to hotel dining rooms, lounges, clubs and military canteens.

Island residents now buy li- quor, beer and wine through government stores or from about 60 private clubs.

The Nova Scotia legislature prorogued Thursday, leav- ing eight provincial bodies still in session. The Saskatchewan legislature session ended Wed- nesday. A drive to wind up the current session in New Bruns- wick was to begin today.

Contact Club Entertains Other Groups

On Monday evening the Contact Club of Christ Church played host to members of the Shannonville and Point Anne W.A. and the E.W.A. of Christ Church.

The guests were welcomed by president Shirley Harris. The main event for the evening was the showing of the film "Keewatin District of the N.W.T., to an audience of 75 persons. Mrs. Cecil Thornton operated the projector.

Mrs. Gordon spoke briefly on the mission field.

On conclusion of the film refreshments were served, at which time Rev. Everett Smith thanked the Contact Club on behalf of the Shannonville and Point Anne group. Mrs. A. Cooper expressed her thanks to the Contact Club on behalf of the E.W.A. of Christ Church.

During the latter part of the evening Rev. Everett Smith conducted a most interesting tour of the church.

The members of the Contact Club were reminded about the Confirmation; also about the potluck supper.

Hostesses for the evening were: Dorothy Sinclair, Pat Spencer, Edith Pringle, Laura Bird and Shirley Harris.

President Shirley Harris expressed many thanks to the members of the Contact Club for all the help and co-operation in making the evening most enjoyable.

Three Panelists at Meeting Discuss Points of Procedure

The regular monthly dinner meeting of the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club was held on Monday evening at the Belvedere Club Rooms with club president, Miss Florence Fitzgerald, presiding.

The program took the form of a panel discussion on the subject of Parliamentary procedure, with Mrs. Dorothy Brown as panel moderator and its members being Mrs. Jane Forrester, former mayor of Belleville; Mr. Gerry Connor, president of the Belleville Sales and Ad Club, and local business man, and Mr. Bernard Hurley, barrister.

Following introduction of the panel by Mrs. Brown, opening remarks were made by Mr. O'Connor who defined the use of parliamentary procedure, as well as the term itself stating that its use was essential to maintain order, and to give all members of an organization a chance to be heard. He also offered some examples of correct rules of procedure, and some helpful information as to the correct way to present and deal with motions.

POINTS OF ORDER

Mrs. Forrester commented in a most interesting and informative way on the points of order. The purpose of each of the order is to prevent mistakes in the order of procedure, and to prevent unnecessary discussion. She went on to outline for the audience the various ways in which the chairman could assist in a discussion, including assistance in the wording of motions, and in keeping remarks limited to a reasonable length. She compared the various types of parliamentary procedure used in organizations from the government level down to the club level by drawing a comparison of degrees of formality with the "white tie" procedure being for very formal proceedings, the "black tie" for less formal, but still precisely defined proceedings, and the "business suit" used in informal organizations on the club level.

She also differentiated between the constitution and by-laws of a group, in general stating that the constitution set the policy of the organization, and the by-laws setting forth the rules for carrying out its policy. She also touched on council procedure for the audience and explained the use of the committee as a whole in council proceedings.

LEGAL ASPECTS

Mr. Hurley, in his remarks, dealt with the legal aspects and responsibilities of clubs and organizations, with one of his major points being that a club as such does not exist in law. The law recognizes only corporations, individuals and partnerships. A club officer may have personal liability in the case of actions of a club, but the club itself does not. In Mr. Hurley's opinion, many clubs incorporated needlessly, and he felt it was only advisable in cases where the club owned property. In connection with the workings of an executive, he dealt specifically with three areas when it was most important to follow proper procedure.

The first was in the case of an expulsion of a member. If a club decided to adopt this drastic course of action, the bylaws must be strictly adhered to, since a member could apply to the courts for prohibition of the action. Secondly, in the wind-up of assets, this must be done legally, and could not be done at all unless everyone in the club agreed to it. The third case in which examination was sent must be obtained, was if the club decided to change its basic objectives.

He also commented on the degree of liability a club might be expected to assume in the case of an injury or other similar incident, and the point made here was that it was the responsibility of the owners of a building to provide public liability insurance, and that the club itself could not be held responsible, although individual members might be.

During the question and answer period that followed the remarks of panel members there were many and varied questions from the audience, concluding what had been a most interesting program. Appreciation of the club to panel members and the moderator was expressed by Mrs. Marjorie McCaw.

NEW MEMBERS

During the business session that followed, three new members were welcomed to the club in the persons of Mrs. Margaret Bradley, Mrs. Verona Meades and Mrs. Lois Bradshaw. They were installed by membership chairman, Miss Jeanne Stephenson.

It was announced that the annual coffee party was to be held at the home of Mrs. Braun-combe on Wednesday, May 6th.

Mrs. Shirley Woodcock was named as official delegate to the Ontario Conference to be held at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto on April 17, 18 and 19. A report of the attendance of the president and two vice-presidents at the Leadership Training Seminar held in Cobourg on March 14th, was given by Miss Florence Fitzgerald.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Xi Beta Zeta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority held its first meeting in March at the home of Mrs. Barbara Pringle. The guest speaker of the evening was a most charming and interesting person, Mrs. Malika Kar. She spoke of the customs and dress of her native India with particular emphasis on marriage. The members enjoyed her talk immensely and admired the beautiful Sari dress she wore.

The second meeting in March was held Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Ingrid Bateman. The program was presented by Mrs. Pauline Bishop, whose topic was "Appreciation of Music". She illustrated her most informative talk with recorded selections appropriate to her remarks. Refreshments served by the hostess and co-hostess, Mrs. Jean Desmond, were enjoyed by all.

In-Hospital Volunteers Give Assistance to Busy Staffs

The Auxiliary of the Belleville General Hospital was represented in Toronto at a training conference on March 16th, by Mrs. F. A. Bayley, president of Women's Hospital Auxiliary and Mrs. J. R. Boehm, director of Volunteer Services.

The conference on in-hospital volunteer services was held at the Ontario hospital association building in Don Mills. Approximately 200 people attended.

The growth of volunteer service within the hospital over the past few years has been a revelation. In-hospital volunteers are contributing time and assistance to busy hospital staffs and providing additional services for the comfort of patients. As well as these "plus" services volunteers create a warm link between the hospital and the lay community.

Subjects discussed were recruitment, selection and placement, education, supervision and other aspects of volunteer service.

R.G.H. SERVICES

In-hospital services provided by volunteers at Belleville General Hospital include the information desk during visiting hours, out - patient hostess; the coffee cart and gift corner in the general waiting room on the ground floor; hairdressing service for patients; meal - time assisting and admitting escorts; trained guides for hospital tours; library cart visiting and waiting room magazine and reading material service.

Kinettes Hold Dinner Meet

TWEED—The regular dinner meeting of Tweed Kinette Club was held at Hotel Tweedmuir on Monday evening with president Mrs. Lillian Johnston presiding. The evening tables were decorated in the St. Patrick's theme. Mrs. Myrt Quinn was pianist.

One guest, Mrs. Fred Rivers, was welcomed to the meeting.

Reports were given by committee convenors and the bake sale which is to be held on Saturday was discussed and Mrs. Pauline Hughes will be convener for this.

After the meeting a singsong of Irish songs was enjoyed with Mrs. Fred Rivers as pianist. A game of "Password" was held with Mrs. Wilma Knapp acting as moderator.

The draw prizes were won by Mrs. Fred Rivers and Mrs. Pauline Hughes and the Easter plant was won by Mrs. Margaret Bateman.

Celebrates 90th Birthday At Party

Mr. James E. Robinson, born 1874, celebrated his 90th birthday on February 23rd. He was born in Massassaga in Prince Edward County where he still spends his home in the summer and spends the winter months in Belleville.

A surprise birthday party was held in Belleville at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Sager, 180 Albert Street. Family and friends attended from Wellington, Rossmore and Belleville.

An enjoyable evening was spent playing euchre, opening gifts and having lunch.

Home and School News

(S. H. CONNOR SCHOOL)

TWEED—The regular monthly meeting of the S. H. Connor Home and School Association was held in the school with the president, Mr. James Keenan presiding.

Reports were given by the various committees and the convention of Home and School which is to be held in Toronto was discussed and it was decided to send Mr. Murnie Dillabough to represent the S. H. Connor Association.

The annual field day and graduation dinner were discussed and decided that the Association would again look after the expense for these events. It was agreed that the Association would help with the cost of the banquet for the south side of the school.

The room count was won by Mrs. Montgomery's room 1. Following the business, Mr. Inwood of the Department of Lands and Forests showed a film "World in a Marsh"

Lunch was served by the mothers of Room 1 with Mrs. Ron Way as convener.

Mme. Vanier Pays Visit To School

HULL, Que. (CP) — Mme. Georges Vanier, wife of the governor - general, Wednesday made her first public appearance since undergoing an eye operation for the removal of a cataract Jan. 17.

Mme. Vanier had her usual warm smile of greeting for teachers and pupils at L'Institut Familial, a Roman Catholic school for girls specializing in home economics.

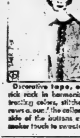
For the visit to the school, she chose a forest green wool dress with matching hat and brown accessories.

She wore sunglasses as she walked from her car to the school door, but quickly removed them for a tour of the building.

In the short speech to the students Mme. Vanier said:

"It is important for you all to teach and to be taught life as it really is, so that you can help those who may be less fortunate than you are."

She reminded the girls, who were Grade 10 and 11 students, that "we no longer live in the days of petticoats and lace.



"These days, with all their harsh reality, are a challenge, but are therefore more interesting to live in.

"Don't think that I am preaching to you—but you all should learn to face our modern world with realism and sure convictions."

HOT CROSS BUNS

BY MARY MOODE

One of our editors said "Why are Hot Cross Buns a seasonal thing? They are so good a fellow should be able to go into a bakeshop any time of year and buy a packet of them". I agree. But they are something like Christmas fruit cake. If we had them all year we wouldn't enjoy them so much when the season arrived. Hot Cross Buns are a recipe that I have been collecting for years, and I have tried many recipes before I found the one that suited me best. Now I am going to give you my recipe, which I have tested and found to be quite satisfactory. Hot Cross Buns are not difficult to make, but they do require a little time and patience. The dough must be allowed to rise slowly, and the buns must be baked slowly. Here is my recipe:

1 package dry yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 teaspoon sugar
½ cup sugar
½ cup shortening
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup cooked milk
1 egg
3½ cups sifted flour (about)
¾ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup golden raisins, soaked and drained and dried
¾ cup mixed peel

Put large mixing bowl add 1 teaspoon sugar and lukewarm water to yeast, stir once, and let soak 10 minutes. Add ¼ cup sugar, shortening, salt, stir in and add cooled milk which has been cooled a little. Stir. Beat in the egg. Sift the spices with 2 cups of the flour and add and mix well. Then add one more cup flour, raisins and peel and mix it in as well as you can then turn out on board floured with ½ cup of remaining flour and knead 100 times. Return to a greased bowl and let rise until more than doubled. (Mine took 4 hours at 70 deg. Fahr. in my kitchen, but I was in no hurry.) Punch down dough on board sprinkled with remaining flour and shape into 20 long roll under your palms. (I did not work in all of the flour because I wanted a soft dough.) Cut into 16 even pieces. Shape each into even flattened rounds a little more than ½" thick. Place on greased cookie sheets 1¼" apart. If desired mark cross with back of knife before they rise again. Glaze top by brushing with mixture of 1 tablespoon each sugar and milk. If desired sprinkle "cross" by carefully sprinkling granulated sugar in it. Let rise 2 hours or more until light and puffy. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. about 15 minutes, being careful to brown tops just right. Hot Cross Buns should be served when fresh. If any of yours are leftover, split, butter and toast under broiler before serving.

V.O.N. Reports Active Month

The regular monthly meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses was held March 10th, at the V.M.C.A. with president Mrs. J. Nelles presiding.

In a letter from head office the board was reminded of the annual meeting of Chateau Laurier on May 7 and 8 to be attended by the National V.O.N. representative, Mr. T. Franklin, president, Mrs. J. Nelles and Miss Dorothy Connor. It was noted that anyone interested is most welcome to attend.

The treasurer, Mr. L. K. Lynch presented the financial statement and same received to represent the Victorian Order of Nurses on the United Appeal.

A letter was read by president, Mrs. J. Nelles that the Victorian Order of Nurses annual provincial meeting is to be held in Toronto April 16. Miss L. Burnside will attend to represent the Belleville chapter.

It was unanimously decided that the nurses board should attend the United Appeal open meeting March 31 at the Recreation Centre and give whole hearted support to the United Appeal which is an absolute necessity to the city.

The report of the nursing services was given by head nurse, Miss E. Cassidy.

NURSING SERVICE

The report showed that 323 home visits were made to 186 patients. Medical and surgical represented 37 per cent of the cases and 61 per cent of the visits, maternity and newborn were 22 per cent of the cases and 18 per cent of the visits. Patients, other than maternity and newborn, for health instruction only, 41 per cent of the cases and 23 per cent of the visits.

During February two half days were spent at Douglas Atkins School and two half days at Canadian-Corkyville School.

The V.O.N. is a member of the United Appeal.

Canadian Fashion & Fad

BY pegg rogers

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY FOR MARCH

One of the most exciting changes in fashions on the horizon is the news about shoes made of a sensational synthetic that breathes and is washable! The invention makes shoes impervious to scuff marks, stains and overshoe salt. The range of colors is subtle, using neutrals as well as basic red, black, navy and dark brown. The first styles have all the new fashion requisites of lowered heels, subtle toes, either rounded, elongated or slightly squared. An early report has it that one western store advertised this fanciful footwear on a trial basis and sold out in one day. These new wash and wear shoes are to be launched across Canada next fall. Right now, they are in short supply.

New patterned stockings are just the things to wear with this spring's new suits. Great largements are raging as to whether these stockings in a fine guage pattern will be accepted by Canadian women for dressy wear. When they come in soft neutrals and beige shades, and the pattern is pronounced, they look just right with day-time tailored suits and coats.

One of the newest and most unusual capes comes in the form of a poncho. It is of soft doubled jersey, cut all seven yards wrap around the body and button at the side under a turned and rolled collar. It could serve as a cost during the day and as a chic evening wrap. It has a silk lining, but its designer is thinking about using the fabric for a reversible cape with two colors of jersey. Navy lined with light blue, beige with camel, and black with red are being tested as possible color combinations.

Everyone is talking about the plunging neckline, outlined with ruffles for spring and summer. Some of the necklines in the Canadian collections certainly plunge, although several designers have provided little "modesties" at the bottom of the plunge, which can be removed by the more daring.

Black and white combined have hit all phases of fashions with real impact this spring. A new nationally advertised group of dresses just launched in Canada includes a whole section of black and white prints in synthetic fabrics. They should be cool and fresh during a hot July.

It is surprising to see black and white mated in the accessory collections. Plastic handbags of black and white stripes or polka dots are among the latest novelties in New York. Apparently, they are to be teamed with black and white patent leather shoes. I just hope no one will wear them with black and white print dresses!

If you have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers care of this paper.

Ann Landers

Unless Attitude Changes Look for Another Job

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm a competent woman who has been employed by this firm for almost ten years. Several weeks ago a reorganization took place which left an extremely desirable position open. There was much speculation around the office as to who would get the position. I was considered the all-odds favorite.

Yesterday the announcement was made. The position went to a woman who has been employed here only seven years. Furthermore, everything she knows about the business she learned from me. I was given a salary increase (as a pacifier) but it didn't make up for my disappointment.

ANN LANDERS

The reason I was passed over was because I am not of the same religion as the owners. The woman who was promoted over my head belongs to their church. Should I leave, or stay on and hope for a break next time? — IN BUT OUT.

• • •

DEAR IN . . . BUT — Often when individuals are passed over for a promotion they tell themselves (and others) that religion was the reason. In some instances it's true, but frequently this alibi is trotted out because it places the onus on the employer.

Unless 90 days produce a change in your attitude toward management and your job, I suggest you leave.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm a young man, 19, who doesn't have anyone to turn to so I'm writing to you.

My trouble started last year when I dropped out of school. I went to work in a cafeteria for $1 an hour. I quit because I thought I could make more somewhere else. Now I can't find a job.

I want to go to trade school but by the time I got out I'd be of draft age. Should I enlist and get my service over with, or go to trade school now and let the Army take me when they want me? Maybe jobs will be easier to find when I get out. Thanks.— WHERE TO NEXT?

DEAR NEXT — Go into the Armed Services now, but not with the idea of "getting it over with."

Your first goal should be a high school diploma. You can take a correspondence course while in the Service and be a high school graduate when you get out. And while you're in the Service you can sign up for special training which will give you a head start when you enter trade school — if that's what you decide on.

The important thing is don't waste time. Equip yourself, through education, to make a living. The demand now and in the future is only for the trained and the skilled. Be among them.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm very much in love with a man who is deeply in love with me. I know we could have a beautiful life together. My family is violently opposed to Ty because he is many years my senior and has been married and divorced four times. I agree his record is not good, but I am the only woman who has ever given him understanding love and understanding.

Fellows my age are immature and boring. I am willing to face the wrath of my family and the public censure that will surely follow if I marry Ty. I know we can make it. Do you think we have a chance? — L.A. LOVE.

DEAR L.A. — You don't want advice, you want approval — and you rattled the wrong cage.

Often I learn more about a situation from the facts omitted than from the facts stated. You avoided telling me your age or his, which leads me to suspect you two are at least a generation apart. You failed to mention whether Ty has children. I'll bet he has a few living souvenirs from at least three out of four of those marriages — some probably older than you. And I'll bet, too, that if you marry this aging Romeo, within two years you will be looking for a lawyer and Ty will be looking for his sixth.

U.C.W. Meetings

RAWDON—The Easter meeting of Mount Pleasant Rawdon United Church Women was held Wednesday evening March 11th in the church hall with 21 ladies in attendance.

Mrs. Donald Knight opened with an Easter thought and Mrs. Kenneth Weaver was pianist for the various hymns based on the theme. Mrs. Raymond McConnell read a letter re the Stirling Festival of Praise and a donation of $10 was authorized. Reports were given by Mrs. James Hoard and Mrs. William McAdam. Mrs. Ross Jeffs read a stewardship message and Mrs. Gordon Linn read a letter re the supply work. Plans were made to paint the two basement rooms of the church. The Messengers will hold an open meeting at the church hall on March 31.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Donald Johnson and Mrs. Milford Wrightman and was centred around a candlelight service, arranged by Robert A. Wallace in "The March of Days." Easter is a festival of darkness and light and it also celebrates the birth of the church.

Mrs. Harry McAdam read the Bible lesson and Mrs. Percy MacMullen dedicated the offering. The story of the hymn "Rev. R. Havergal was read by Mrs. W. McAdam and a hymn of consecration was sung by all. Mrs. Ross Jeffs read an article on love and Mrs. Herbert Smith gave an Easter message based on "The Cross."

The convener read the story of hymn writer George Matheson whose life span was from 1842 to 1906 followed by one of his best hymns.

Mrs. Knight voiced thanks to all who had made the meeting a success.

Mrs. Burton Sharpe and Mrs. Raymond McConnell served light refreshments.

Women's Institutes

QUINTE W.I.

The March meeting of Quinte Women's Institute was held at the Institute Memorial Hall recently with 16 members and one visitor present.

Mrs. C. Woode the president opened the meeting in the usual manner and several items of business were discussed. The officers' conference is to be held in Guelph from May 5 to 7 and Mrs. Robert Atkins will attend as a delegate being the district director. The nominating committee is to bring in the slate of officers at the business meeting on April 21st with members of this committee to include Mrs. E. Vivian, Mrs. W. Tufts and Mrs. D. Atkins. It was decided to hold a euchre party at the hall in April.

Mrs. Harry Grills was convener for the program which opened with a sing-song of Irish songs. A number of members were asked to speak on the motto, "What is community life?" at which time a number of good points were given.

Mrs. Grills introduced the district president, Mrs. T. Kelly of Thomasburg who spoke on public relations and stressed that all members of the Institute and otherwise could further public relations work every day in their daily work.

Thanks were tendered the speaker and she was presented with a gift of appreciation.

The meeting closed and lunch was served by the committee Mrs. D. Leeming, Mrs. A. Cook, Mrs. Summerfield and Mrs. J. Parrot.

EUCHRE PARTY

On Friday evening Mrs. Arnold Mitchell and Mrs. Harry Grills members of Quinte Women's Institute convened a card party at the Institute Hall with 15 tables in play. A large crowd was in attendance.

Prizes were awarded to the following: Ladies' high, Mrs. Orval Beer, Mrs. J. Allison; consolation, Mrs. Coon; men's high, Mr. McNiss, Mr. V. Walls and consolation, Mr. Frank Edgar. The lucky draw was won by Mrs. Russell Rouch.

Refreshments were served by the members and a social half hour was enjoyed by all.

Women Ask Jury Duty Be Compulsory

TORONTO (CP)—Until jury duty for women is compulsory in Ontario, women will feel like second-class citizens, a group of women's organizations has told Premier John Robarts.

A brief asking that the law be changed has been submitted by the Ontario and Professional Women's Clubs of Ontario on behalf of clubs representing 70,000 women.

Under clause 4 of the Ontario Jurors Act a woman may be exempted from jury duty simply by signing a statement reading: "I, being a woman, claim exemption from jury service for one year."

"The assumption is that the vast majority of women between the ages of 21 and 70 (the age group eligible for jury duty) have small children and can't leave them," said Margaret Hyndman of the Zonta Clubs of Ontario.

"Most people are in favor of our jury system and I don't think it can be said that a cross-section of the community is on a jury if there are no women on it."

Miss Hyndman, a corporation lawyer, added that when women are not required to meet the full obligations of citizenship they feel like second-class citizens. And inequality was reflected in pay standards and unequal opportunities for promotion.

Margaret Ashdown of Toronto, Ontario Business and Professional Women's Clubs president, said the group has been submitting briefs to the government on the subject since 1957. This year they asked members to write to the legislature members at the time the brief was presented.

Mrs. Leonard Trivers of Thessalon, president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario, said her organization also favors the change.

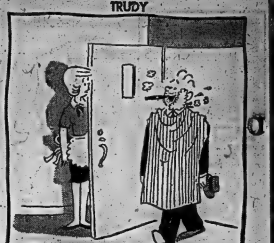
SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: We've been invited to a party by a couple we met only recently (and don't know too well). The invitation, one of the printed fill-in types, just says it's a party and the time is 7:30. It doesn't specify dinner, cocktail-buffet or anything of the sort. Should we assume that food is involved? I don't want to call the hostess and ask if she's serving dinner, and, since I have no idea who else has been invited - that I might know, there's no one I can call to check with. What do you suppose the invitation includes?



Mrs. H. D. Trenton, N.J.

Answer: Considering the time, it would be fairly safe to assume the hostess intends serving some sort of food — a buffet, most likely, but at a late hour, probably around nine or ten. Since there's no way of checking, it probably would be wise to snack up before you go to the party so you'll be prepared in case there is a long wait for any kind of substantial refreshments.

Question: I just can't stand playing parlor games. I feel like a complete idiot when I'm forced to play charades, and those scribbled word games make me grind my teeth. Give me some plain old conversation anytime. Up to this point, I've refused to play, but after last night I'm thinking of taking the plunge. My husband and I went to a party and, after dinner, had to play one game after another until after midnight. I'll put up with a game or two, but a solid evening of it is a drag. I think it's impolite of a hostess to put her guests through such an ordeal. Is it equally impolite to go along with her game mania?

Mrs. C. H., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: You'd look like a wet blanket if you refused to participate all evening, but it's permissable to excuse yourself from some of the games if the whole thing gets to be too much. The best defense is to screen invitations more carefully. If a hostess is a notorious fairly early so you won't have game player, either decline her invitation completely, or, if you should accept, plan to leave to join in all the games or put a crimp in everyone else's fun by sitting like a poke and refusing to take part.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart M. Rosenberg

To reveal ourselves, our secret selves, to others, is perhaps the most painful of human experiences. Whenever we are forced or urged to uncover in the presence of others we are overwhelmed by a profound feeling of shame.

But of what are we ashamed?

From the very beginnings of human history, in the story of Adam and Eve, we have evidences of one of the basic elements of human shame. The father and mother of mankind felt shame when they became aware of their nakedness.

In different places, times, and societies, "nakedness" may mean different things to different people. But no matter how to define it, always the fear of revealing to others what we had wished to keep to ourselves, brings with it the pain of shame.

Even in our own western society, there are wide differences as to what is considered shameful to have uncovered. In Somerset Maugham's "Of Human Bondage" it is Philip's clubfoot; more it is his feeling of shame for allowing it to be exposed. For Dmitri Karamazov, it was shameful to have to take off his socks. On trial for murdering his father, Dmitri's greatest misery was not the accusation or the public ordeal of the courtroom, but the shame that overcame him when he was ordered to take off his socks. Here is how the author describes that terrible moment:

HEN FRIGHTENED

"They were very dirty . . . and now everyone could see it. But what was worse he dislikedhis feet. All his life he had thought both his big toes hideous. He particularly loathed the course, flat, crooked nail on the right one, and now they would all see it."

One thing is certain: however much they may differ in their experiences of shame, men are frightened by the prospect of public exposure of that aspect of themselves which they themselves dislike or are ashamed of.

To be sure, the discovery that others, too, possess similar traits, often helps to alleviate their pain, because they share something in common. Yet, there is no escaping the clear-cut truth: as long as one feels that he has something about him that is ugly, mean or unpleasant, then no matter how many other people share this, he will still be ashamed to reveal it.

Shame, it should be noted, is the twin of guilt. Much of our unearthed guilt feelings are the result of the scorn we have for ourselves, or a part of ourselves. We swiftly move from scorn to shame to guilt, when the cause or the source of our disgust with ourselves is revealed to others.

REAL SELVES

If we would learn more about our real selves, we would try to discover what are the things we are ashamed to uncover. If we find that those sore spots which we try to shield from public view are caused by moral mis-deeds, then the guilt we bear for their shame is earned. And earned guilt can be eliminated only in painful ways—by uncovering our errors to those whom we have harmed, by search for forgiveness.

But too often our guilt is unearned. We irrationally loathe something about ourselves — like Karamazov's crooked nail—and our shame to reveal it leads us to feelings of guilt, which are not at all the result of immoral or unethical acts. We err if we seek to hide our shame over unearned guilt. For guilt such as this there is no need to seek the forgiveness of others; there is only the need to find reconciliation with ourselves.

When, instead of hating ourselves for our misdeeds, we learn to hate our misdeeds, we may earn the forgiveness we need.

And when, instead of hating ourselves needlessly, we accept and affirm ourselves rationally, we will cast aside the burdens that we have foolishly carried, and be reconciled with ourselves.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, MARCH 19, 1964

Baron Thomson of Fleet Watched by Relatives as He Takes Seat with Lords

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP) — Baron Thomson of Fleet, watched by a host of spectators including a wide-eyed six-year-old who one day will inherit the baronetcy, took his seat in the House of Lords Wednesday for the first time.

But the conclusion of the brief ceremony, members of both sides of the House cried "hear, hear" in approval of their new colleague as Thomson accepted the congratulations of the lord chancellor and left the chamber.

Earlier the Canadian - born press magnate was host at a luncheon attended by more than 60 friends and relatives, including his son and heir, Kenneth, with his wife Marilyn and their son, six-year-old David.

Other guests, along with cabinet ministers from the Thomson organization, included: Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, Cecil Harmsworth King, publisher of the Daily Mirror group and one of Thomson's most powerful rivals in the newspaper industry, Laurence Scott, chairman of the Manchester Guardian and Lionel Chevrier, Canadian high commissioner to London.

Guests arriving at the house early were kept waiting in the courtyard until after prayers, a part of the daily proceedings barred to the press and visitors. Thomson and members knelt on the benches facing the walls, a tradition that dates from the days of armies, was bern carried swords and found it awkward to kneel on the floor between the benches.

Shortly after spectators were seated in the so-called "strangers' gallery" the lord chancellor, Dilo, lord great chamberlain, led in Thomson and his two supporters, Viscount Colville and the Earl of Longford.

Thomson, wearing the scarlet robe of a baron with its 2½ rows of white fur and ermine, was led to the head of the chamber where Lord Dilhorne, the lord chancellor, presented him to the assembled lords. Thomson then sent entitling him to take his seat.

"A House official then read the terms of Thomson's title, Thomson took the oath to the Queen and signed the document of his peerage.

The three peers then proceeded to an empty back bench and Thomson was seated for the first time. The three bowed together, doffed their black cocked hats to the lord chancellor, and then sat down. Repeated this three times before finally leaving the chamber.

On the way out, Thomson left the procession to grasp the hand offered by the lord chancellor as other peers cried their welcome to the new member, whose full title is Baron Thomson of Fleet, of Northbridge in the City of Edinburgh.

The whole thing took about 10 minutes and the house then turned to the business of the day — debate on the economic situation.

Lord Beaverbrook, another famous Canadian - born press baron, originally was to have been one of Lord Thomson's sponsors.

The change came after a horrified lordship made clear that Lord Beaverbrook and Robens, who were to have been the two sponsors, were ineligible because they had not taken their seats in the lords this year.

Late Pontiff Dreamed of Becoming Pope

ROME (AP) — The Late Pope John XXIII, who called the Roman Catholic Ecumenical Council, had begun thinking about the possibility of Christian unity when he was only 15. By the time he was 21 he even dreamed of someday becoming pope.

These and other memories were contained in a collection of spiritual writings by Pope John which were put on sale Wednesday.

The late pontiff's intimate thoughts were compiled into a book under the title Il Giornale Dell' Alma—The Journal of the Soul.

The book was compiled by Msgr. Loris Capovilla, who was Pope John's private secretary from his election as pontiff Oct. 28, 1958, to his death June 3, 1963.

Containing a series of writings that Pope John had collected during spiritual retreats from his seminary days through 1962, the writings start when the then Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli, a farmer's son, was 14.

SOUGHT UNION

At the age of 15, he noted: "I shall pray to the Holy Sacrament, the Virgin Mary and all the saints for the conversion of the Orient and, more than anything else for union with the separated churches."

Six years later, and two years before being ordained a priest in Rome, he wrote: "I do not possibility of being called to the pontificate.

"It seems to me," he wrote, "that God has poured on me his most exalted and paternal attentions by lifting me out of so many difficulties . . . to bring me here to Rome for the singular design of his. . . ."

"Even if I were to become a pope, if my name were to be pronounced and worshipped by all mouths and engraved on all marbles, when I shall find myself at the presence of the Divine Judge, then what am I?" he asked, without offering any reply.

Tobacco Men After Money to Process Surplus

TILLSONBURG (CP) — Failure of the Ontario flue-cured tobacco industry to recover sufficiently from its collapse Feb. 28 and subsequent closing of auction sales has prompted the marketing board to "return immediately" to Ottawa to seek "at least enough money to process surplus tobacco."

An emergency meeting of the Ontario Flue - Cured Tobacco Growers Marketing Board Wednesday voted to send a delegation of directors back to the federal government.

In proposing the second approach to the federal government in recent weeks, board vice-chairman Remie Miggens described the market situation as "drastic."

Average prices realized this week on tobacco bid for by buyers have been 45.97 cents a pound on Monday—first day of the reopened auctions since Feb. 28—47 cents on Tuesday and 47.19 cents Wednesday. The average price on Feb. 28, when angry tempers, threatening violence forced the closing of the exchanges, was 47.23 cents a pound.

NO DATE SET

Although Wednesday's meeting voted for an "immediate" return to talks with federal officials, no actual date was set.

The board officials returned from Ottawa and Toronto last week after two weeks of what they described as fruitless talks in efforts to resolve the crisis in Ontario's tobacco industry.

The delegation was named after the board and growers became alarmed and angry at price fluctuations offered for the third quarter of the 1963 crop.

Mr. Miggens said Wednesday "if there's a possibility of a partial payment (to farmers for unsold tobacco) let's get that. But for God's sake, let's at least get processing costs."

Ruby's Lawyer Under Fire by Bar Association

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The president of the American Bar Association said Wednesday that Jack Ruby's trial lawyer, Melvin Belli, showed flagrant disregard for the code of professional ethics and his oath as lawyer.

Walter C. Craig of Phoenix, Ariz., bar association head, said Belli's "trained seal comments" Saturday after Ruby was found guilty of murder in the slaying of Lee Harvey Oswald and his punishment fixed as death were "a discredit to him (Belli) and to his profession."

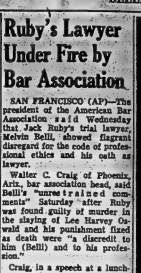
Craig, in a speech at a luncheon meeting of the San Francisco Bar Association, said a number of unethical conduct complaints have been received from member lawyers concerning Belli's statements.

Belli blasted with wrath when the verdict was returned March 14, declaring: "Now we see the glory. He called the verdict a "kangaroo railroad" by a jury that was "shoved down our throats."

Oswald had been accused of assassinating president Kennedy in Dallas.

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Governor John Connally, wounded when president Kennedy was assassinated, said Wednesday he received a number of threats on his life through the mail since the death penalty was assessed in the Jack Ruby murder case in Dallas.

The governor also said that in his opinion Ruby received a fair trial.



Defence counsel Melvin Belli ultimately will be the loser, Connally said, since the prosecutor termed his "intemperate" remarks about the verdict.

"I assume he was either acting a part and putting on a performance or he temporarily lost his own equilibrium," Connally said.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Two women were charged by the Federal Bureau of Investigation Wednesday with making a threatening telephone call to Governor John Connally of Texas on the day Jack Ruby was sentenced to death.

They were identified as Christine Burke, 34, and Norma Jean Wood, 36. They were released under $2,500 bond.

The FBI said the calls, made March 14, were a threat to injure the person of Governor John Connally." Only one call was made, the FBI said, but two women talked to the governor.

W. A. Vermilyea, R. R. 5, Belleville, right, a student in the Associate Course at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, was the winner of the Freshman Charter Trophy in the Outstanding freshman cross country runner at the College.

The presentation was made by Mr. Al Claremont, of Milton, a graduate of the College and an outstanding long distance runner.

Prince Charles Reported Lonely at Gordonstoun

NEW YORK (AP) — Prince Charles, Britain's future king, is finding it lonely and difficult to follow in his father's footsteps as a student at Gordonstoun, a former schoolmate reports.

Patrick Pelham - Jones, writing in Redbook magazine, says Prince Philip, father of the 15-year-old, knows the situation and quotes him as remarking simply on a recent occasion:

"Well, at least he hasn't run away yet."

Pelham-Jones said it was not the English school's spartan regimen, including a run every morning in shorts and two cold showers a day, so much as loneliness "that must be hardest on Charles."

Pelham-Jones, described by Redbook as "nearly 17," said most of the boys tend to fight shy of friendship with Charles because of their awareness he someday will be their king.

CAN'T BE ORDINARY

"How can you treat a boy as just an ordinary chap when his mother's portrait is on the coins you spend in the school shop, on the stamps you use to mail letters home; when a tall detective trails him wherever he goes?" the young writer asked.

He said the average schoolboy, including Charles, is tough-fibred and can take the school's regimen in stride.

"But," he wrote, "probably no one, not even a Queen's son, ever gets used to loneliness, let alone learns to like it.

"Charles will undoubtedly survive Gordonstoun. He may even find it more than tolerable. But it is unlikely that he will love it as his father did."

Pelham-Jones, now a Gordonstoun graduate, spent the 1962-63 academic year as a classmate of Charles.

HOFFA TO APPEAL

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) Teamsters Union President James R. Hoffa served formal notice Wednesday that he will appeal his conviction of trying to fix the jury which heard his 1962 conspiracy trial. At stake is an eight-year prison sentence, a $10,000 fine and, possibly, his post as head of the union.

Argue Purchase Already Made 3 Months Ago

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — For an hour Wednesday a motion that Commons defeated a motion that urged the government to buy the old Kingston residence of Sir John A. Macdonald.

The government bought the place three months ago.

The motion by Douglas Alkenbrack (PC — Prince Edward-Lennox) said the government should consider the advisability of acquiring the title to the historic residence of this nation's first prime minister . . . the property known at 35 Centre Street, in the city of Kingston."

The motion came up at the beginning of private members' hour.

No sooner was it called than E. J. Benson (L—Kingston) was on his feet to argue it wasn't in order to debate a suggestion to buy a house which had already been bought. He quoted from Prime Minister Pearson's Dec. 23 announcement that laid out the details for restoring the property.

ASKS SUGGESTIONS

But Mr. Alkenbrack thought there were some things that members might want to say, including suggestions on what might be done with the property.

Speaker Alan Macnaughton ruled that while the motion was on dubious grounds he wanted to give the benefit of the doubt to the mover.

With the house already bought, Mr. Alkenbrack talked nearly 10 minutes about Sir John, Canada's first prime minister. He quoted from old parliamentary debates, from books and other publications that contained information on the Macdonald family and reported the government's move in buying the property.

Mr. Benson argued it was right that the government take over the Macdonald building, the last building in Kingston in which Sir John A. had any attachment.

This remark was later to bring Harold Winch (NDP — Vancouver East) to his feet.

WANTED OUT

"He lived there for seven months, called it a monstrosity, and wanted to get out of it," said the B.C. member.

At 3:53 p.m., with seven minutes remaining in the hour the house voted to private members' business, John B. Hamilton (Lib. — Leeds) finished speaking and the motion was ready for a vote.

If there was such a vote, Mr. Benson warned earlier, there would be enough to prevent a member from introducing a motion calling for Canada's entry into the Second World War.

David G. Hahn (L — Toronto Broadview) got up to question again whether the house could properly vote on an issue that was already settled. "I think it would serve little useful purpose."

And to settle it, he stayed on his feet until 6 p.m. when the House adjourned.

Former Police Constable Tells of Pact Against Other Officers in Coffin Case

By GERRY McNEIL

QUEBEC (CP) — Eustache Sirois, a former Quebec Provincial Police constable, testified Wednesday that Henri Doyon, a former QPP sergeant, talked him in 1953 of making a "pact" against their superiors."

Mr. Sirois testified before the Quebec royal commission into the Coffin affair that he told Sgt. Doyon that he wouldn't join in such a pact for several reasons, among them the fact that one of the superiors was his brother, Capt. Raoul Sirois.

Capt. Sirois and Capt. J. A. Maltie had been sent to Gaspe to replace Sgt. Doyon, then head of the Gaspe detachment, in the investigation into the deaths of three Pennsylvania hunters.

Wilbert Coffin was hanged Feb. 10, 1956, for their deaths. The royal commission is inquiring into the conduct of Coffin's trial.

Mr. Sirois said Sgt. Doyon was feeling low when he suggested the "pact" and that he had been bawled out by Capt. Maltie.

HEARD CONVERSATION

He testified that he had heard Capt. Maltie reprimand Sgt. Doyon Aug. 27, 1953, for not going to look for a rifle Coffin had said was hidden behind his cabin.

Mr. Sirois said he overheard Capt. Maltie and Sgt. Doyon early in the evening. He said Capt. Maltie asked Sgt. Doyon why he hadn't looked for the rifle during the day.

He said Sgt. Doyon found Sgt. Doyon said that when he did seek it early Aug. 28, on orders from Gaspe, it had already gone and fresh tracks were seen.

Cross-examined by Pierre-Elliott Trudeau, counsel to Jacques Hebert, whose book sparked the royal commission, Mr. Sirois said he resigned from the QPP in 1955 because he had an offer to join the Schefferville, Que., police chief.

QUESTIONING ENDS

Earlier Wednesday, questioning of Mr. Doyon was completed after six days.

Under questioning, J. Conrad Moreau, a notary from St. Gervais, Que., denied he had gone to Miami in November, 1953, to get an Indian named Francis Thompson to retract a confession involving the Gaspe murderers.

Thompson confessed to Miami police but recanted before the admission he had committed the murders.

Mr. Moreau said he and his wife flew to Miami Nov. 22, 1953, went straight to the Miami Palm Beach where Mr. Moreau's parents live, then returned to Quebec Dec. 4. He said he got a telegram that Mr. Moreau's sister had had a baby.

He denied ever seeing or talking to Thompson.

Mr. Hebert testified that the source of the Moreau chapter was Mrs. Armand Paradis, a neighbor of the Moreaus who had contacted their flight with the Thompson confession.

Hog Producers Want Imported Pork Marked

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Hog Producers' Association at its annual meeting Wednesday declared itself in favor of marking all imported meat with a stamp indicating its country of origin.

The resolution called for such legislation to discourage consumption of foreign pork products.

It said there was a "considerable increase" in pork imports in 1963, and much of the imported meat is "packaged and sold so as to be indistinguishable from Canadian pork."

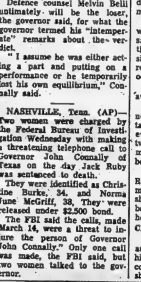
R. D. Kohler, assistant general manager of the hog producers' marketing board, said that United States exports of pork to Canada amounted to 78,200,000 pounds in 1963 while Canadian pork exports to the U.S. were only 43,000,000 pounds.

"We were criticised last year for making a similar statement but we are marking imported meat) because some people felt it might affect our exports to the States, not only of pork but probably other items," Mr. Kohler said.

Mr. Kohler also said packing houses sometimes sell pork at discount prices to get rid of high stocks of meat.

This would improve pork sales by making the housewife conscious of pork prices if the discount was passed on in chain stores, Mr. Kohler said.

"But it doesn't happen that way and the chain store gets a larger share of the consumer dollar."



Fireman Fined After Death Of Woman

MILTON, Ont. (CP)—A Burlington fireman who drove a fire truck through a red light and collided with a car, killing the woman driver, was convicted in county court Wednesday of dangerous driving.

Judge William Macdel reversed a decision of Magistrate Kenneth Langdon who dismissed the charge against Stanley McK..na, 51, on Dec. 16. The judge levied a fine of $200 or 30 days in jail.

The fireman's driving licence was automatically suspended for six months.

Mrs. Erma Adams, 49, died in hospital after her car was struck by a fire truck in Burlington Nov. 5.

Bunche Raises Point on UN Peace Force for Cyprus

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

United Nations Undersecretary Ralph Bunche, an acknowledged authority on peace-keeping forces, delivered a 28-page report on the subject in New York this week without ever mentioning the word Cyprus.

But, he raised some interesting points relevant to the latest UN venture in the Mediterranean trouble spot—and to the debate over the functions and powers of the force.

Specifically, he talked of the relationship of UN peace-keeping forces to local governments and whether a UN force can use its weapons to enforce a settlement.

Some eyebrows have been raised by the terms of reference of the Cyprus force, particularly stipulations that the force can only use arms in defence, can take no action to disarm Cypriots and can not interfere in the country's internal affairs.

To some observers, this has seemed to be tantamount to giving a policeman a gun, then telling him he can't use it until a criminal opens fire on him.

STILL CAN ACT

Bunche talked of the UN Congo force, saying its weapons had been used for defensive purposes only—"although they may be used in its execution when it is discharging responsibilities assigned to it by security council resolutions, such as the prevention of civil war. . . ."

Translated into the terms of the Cyprus force, this principle would mean that the UN troops will not be expected to sit idly by while, for example, a group of Turkish Cypriots—or a group of Greek-Cypriots set up machine-guns on opposite sides of a street.

UN planners hope, of course, that this kind of situation won't arise.

Bunche commented that he didn't think the peace force could be stationed for very long in any country if, even in self-defence, it would have to turn its guns on civilians rather than military forces.

Bunche also said that the Congo force had carefully refrained from interfering in the internal affairs of the country except upon the specific request of Congolese authorities.

Despite this, it is clear that action by the Congo force had the effect of preventing the secession of wealthy Katanga province and thus has had a profound effect on the internal affairs of the Congo.

In the case of Cyprus, the issue is complicated by questions of the legality of the Nicosia government of President Makarios since the Turkish-Cypriots take no part in it.

Secretary-General U Thant is dealing with the Makarios government and will certainly be under pressure from it to use the force to put down the rebellion of the Turks.

Several countries taking part in the force, including Canada and Britain, are understood to be pressing the UN to insist that the force be allowed to do business with both communities.

Even aside from the threat of Turkish intervention, it is doubtful that the countries involved would permit their troops to be used only to bolster the power of the Makarios government.

Labor Minister MacEachen announced appointment of the federal marine trustees of Hal C. Banks from the presidency of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada.

Opposition parties supported the decision but Social Credit and Creditiste spokesmen had reservations about the trustees appointing an acting SIU chief.

The Commons debated incentively a Creditiste motion to censure the deputy speaker for permitting Friday's debate on the Cyprus force.

The government bill on harbor commissions was killed by the Senate last session—was reintroduced and ran into fresh criticism in the Senate.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Mrs. Evelyn Zebedee, rated one of the most efficient harness racing secretaries in this part of Ontario, gives her views in the controversy that is apparent in the ranks of the harness racing section of the Quinte Driving and Riding Club.

A letter from Mr. Bill Prest published a few weeks ago giving one side of the question, prompted Mrs. Zebedee to give her version of the matter. It follows in its entirety:

"I as a member and elected official of the Quinte Driving Club of 1964 held the latter part of January, 1964, cannot help but feel I am entitled to express my feelings concerning our club. As all members know the Quinte Driving and Riding Club was organized by a group of people under a tree at the Belleville Fairgrounds and was started by selling memberships to get started.

"I have been a member since its organization in 1959, and have been an active member since. I am also exposed to motion brought in by non-members of this club. I did check the membership list on my arrival home on March 2nd. I listed 15 persons making motions and also voting and they did not at the time happen to be members of this club. As Mr. Bill Prest stated they did not become members until they finished their business and this was after the meeting.

"In the past three years I have held the job of race secretary and clerk of the course. I have at all times been licensed with the C.T.A. I must admit I enjoyed every minute of my work in this office. I can from my own experience state that the job I have held requires a lot of work and knowledge on harness racing, and a race secretary for co-operation all around.

"It seems as though a lot of this trouble stems from our annual meeting when I was again elected as race secretary, also a motion was made that I be paid $25.00 per week, not a night as some of the people misunderstood. At this meeting I was highly recommended again for this job by a number of horsemen who did not understand the work required by the race secretary and clerk of the course. I was required to be home all week, even the latter part of the week as the last minute entries would help to fill a program.

"I did not ask for pay. This was a motion made by members that knew the driving hours spent in my job to come up with a fair race program, and the horsemen always co-operated, but in the first few months the dreaded virus struck the biggest percentage of harness horses and one would not expect a man to bring horses that were ill. This is against rules and regulations of the C.T.A.

"At all times the horsemen were gentlemen with myself and the office staff and I would grant the men all praise as owners and trainers of harness horses.

"But it is not the horsemen, as an official knows, that make it hard—it is the higher-ups.

"Now I will defend the Quinte Driving Club members and executive alike since I have worked with most of them.

"I would still like to see the Quinte Driving Club under the same $2.00 membership and as all $2.00 members have stated and give them the same rights as they have had before to bring in motions and vote on their membership card.

"If the men are just looking out for the good of the club by their $50.00 idea, I would say let them donate the $50.00 and at the end of the year if the club goes over and some of the $50.00 donated want it back this will test them on their sportsmanship and if the idea is only to help this club financially they will not ask for it back.

"I will say we (including all members) have worked hard free gratis to help this club get where it is today, but it seems our work was done, in fact is now a syndicate —a branch of men and I will stand to be corrected if I am wrong—the biggest part of them have done no work at all as far as the club goes unless there was money for them in it.

"I am a firm believer, as I believe many members are, that no one has the power to dissolve the Quinte Driving Club as is being done, since the Quinte Driving Club has a written constitution, drawn up by a past president and which should stand, not one drawn up by the chairman who is trying to form a new club. The Quinte Driving Club has a bank balance and at the start of the race season will have as much or more as this syndicate, so we are not financially embarrassed.

"But it seems as if the little man works for something big and the money man comes in and tries to take over. I do wish about three years ago when the club did not have enough funds to even pay for the phone calls to horsemen asking for horses made by myself and also paid at the time by myself, although not one of this syndicate did offer at that time to help pay. I paid this bill myself for the Quinte Driving Club to help the fastest growing sport in North America survive.

"Quinte Driving Club Race Secretary, 1964,
"Mrs. Evelyn Zebedee."

LONGSHOT WINS

LINCOLN (AP) — Mighty Chuckles, an outsider at odds of 33-1, came roaring down the stretch Wednesday and won the Lincolnshire Handicap, the first major race of Britain's flat horse racing season. The Lincolnshire, run over a turf course of a mile, is usually combined with the Grand National in spring double. The grand national will be run Saturday.

Name 37 For Grand National

LONDON (AP) — Thirty-seven horses were named Wednesday for the 123rd running of the Grand National steeplechase at Aintree Saturday — the toughest steeplechase in the world.

The 37 left in the field are: April Rain, Ayala, Baster, Bess Normand, Border Flight, Centre Circle, Claymore, Crobery, Dancing Rain, Eternal, Flying Wild, Gale Force X, Groommaster, John O' Gaunt, Josip, Kilmore, Lafty, Lempereur, Lizzawake, Loving Record, Morgangar, Out and About, Pappageno's Cottage, Pas Seul, Peacetown, Pontin-Go, Purple Silk, Red Thorn, Reprieve, Resurduction, Sea Knight, Springbok, Supersweet, Team Spirit, Threepwood, Tim Tam and Wilber King.

Time is the current favorite at 14-1 followed by Beau Normand, Flying Wild, Kilmore, Lafty and Springbok, all at 16-1.

The race carries the first Irish Sweepstakes of the season with $100,000 going to holders of the winning ticket.

The race itself will be worth about $81,600 to the winning owner.

Clippers Clip Bears, Hornets Win

By the CANADIAN PRESS

In 10 years of professional hockey, Don McKenney has collected less than his share of playoff loot. Seven times his teams have finished out of the money.

The 31-year-old winger did something about it Wednesday. His 30-foot drive with 28 seconds remaining brought Buffalo Bisons Clippers a 3-2 victory over Hershey Bears and fighting chance to wind up in third place in the American Hockey League's Eastern Division.

With Cleveland Barons idle, the Clippers trail Providence Reds by only one point. The Reds have six games left.

Meanwhile, Pittsburgh Hornets, bidding for the Western Division title, dumped Springfield Indians 6-1 to move three points ahead of Cleveland Barons. Cleveland and Rochester Americans, who trail the Barons by two points, have six games remaining to the Hornets' four.

Ted Hampson and Claude Laforge, with two goals apiece, sparked the Hornets' offensive. Their other goal-getters were Hank Ciesla and Norm Beaudoin. Bill Sweeney scored for Springfield.

At Hershey it was an uphill fight all the way for the Clippers, who trailed from the 23-second mark when Myron Stankiewicz tallied for the Bears. Dave Creighton matched that one before the 1st period ended by Pete Conacher shot Hershey into the lead again early in the third period.

Bryan equalized halfway through the period. Then Creighton intercepted a Hershey pass to set up Schinkel's game-winner.

FIRST IN AFRICA

DURBAN (Reuters) — The first sub-four-minute mile on the African continent was achieved Wednesday when New Zealander Peter Snell, world record holder for the distance, won a mile race at a track and field meeting here in three minutes 56.6 seconds, well outside his world record of 3:54.4.

By the CANADIAN PRESS

Don McKenney's light approach to his work when the other guy has the puck has earmarked him as something less than a two-way performer.

It's said that he should put a lot more oomph into the defensive aspects of playing in the National Hockey League.

But on the attack McKenney is as slick as the best of them.

And he's made this much evident since joining the goal-starved Toronto Maple Leafs less than a month ago as part of the Andy Bathgate deal with New York.

His ninth goal in 13 games with Toronto helped the Maple Leafs salvage a 2-2 tie with the Canadiens Wednesday night at Montreal in the schedule's only game before 14,177 fans.

The sawoff stifled Montreal's bid to regain a share of the league lead with Chicago Black Hawks. But the Canadiens still have two games to play to Chicago's one.

LEAFS STRUGGLE BACK

Second-period goals by the 28-year-old McKenney and team captain George Armstrong pulled Toronto even after Montreal grabbed a 2-0 lead in the first 20 minutes on goals by Billy Hicke and Claude Provost.

Gilles Tremblay, Montreal's 22-goal left-winger, was struck on the ankle by Tim Horton's slapshot in the second period and left the game. It was feared he would be lost to the team for the weekend stretch run.

Rookie defenceman Terry Harper was also hurt but it didn't incapacitate him. He took three stitches over his right eye after Eddie Shack gave him a going over along the boards and later he was hit on the left ankle by the puck and that raised a welt.

It had to happen and in the third period Shack and Harper finally tangled. They each drew five-minute majors for fighting.

McKenney's goal — a power-play effort—meant that in 13 games with Toronto he equalled his output in 56 games as a member of the Rangers. In the penalty box at the time was Hicke.

Don made it to the NHL's exclusive 200-goal circle last season when he went to New York in a swap after eight full seasons with Boston Bruins.

JERKED IN BOSTON

In New York, the fans started taking him to task with the raspberry for his checking deficiencies, hooting at him whenever he took a turn and shouting "Marry Mary" when he touched the puck.

Hicke's 10th goal of the season and Provost's 15th got Montreal off strongly. Andre Boudrias, a junior playing his second game in the big time, was in on Hicke's goal.

McKenney's 20-footer—set up by Bathgate—and Armstrong's 23 for Montreal's Charlie Hodge. But the two goals charged against each were costly in the Vezina Trophy competition.

The Leafs have allowed 168 goals and Montreal 169 now with two games to go each while Chicago with Glenn Hall has yielded 166 with one more to play.

One game is on tap tonight, the Rangers meeting the Red Wings in Detroit.

Quinte's White Has 1-3 Record

Manitoba Rink Unbeaten In Five

TORONTO (CP) — Manitoba undefeated in five rounds, continued to set the pace going into the fourth day of the National Mixed curling championship today but two other western rinks are close on its heels.

Saskatchewan, with a 4-1 record, is in second position. British Columbia, which has already drawn a bye, is third with three wins in four games.

Prince Edward Island is the only eastern rink in striking distance with three wins in five rounds.

Alberta and Quebec have 2-3 records, Newfoundland has two wins in five games, Northern Ontario and Ontario have one win in four tries and New Brunswick and Nova Scotia trail the pack at 1-3.

Ernie Boushy of Winnipeg met his stiffest competition of the tournament Wednesday against Northern Ontario and Prince Edward Island.

Boushy defeated Cliff Macdonald of Charlottetown 8-5 in the day's opening round but had to break a tie without last stone in the second game against Wilf Biron of Sudbury to gain an 8-7 victory.

Against Biron, Boushy knotted the count with a single in the ninth end and forgot his lake-ice tactics in the final end in favor of a kitty-bar-the-door technique.

After throwing up a rock barrier in front of the house with his first seven stones, Boushy drew through the maze for a lone point with his final throw.

Biron's attempt to follow him ran afoul of the maze.

Saskatchewan, after bowing to Newfoundland's hot streak Tuesday came back Wednesday with a 9-4 win over Irving Milton of Moncton, N.B., and a 12-4 victory over Malcolm White of Bellerville, Ont.

The Dean Miller foursome from Weyburn, Sask., took command in the first end of each game and never slackened their efforts.

Gil LaMoel of Trail, B.C., waylaid the Newfoundland rink skipped by Bill Allen of St. John's 11-3 in the opening round of the day. LaMoel opened with three stones in the first and led 6-0 after three ends.

LaMoel made it a perfect day when his crew overcame a 5-7 deficit with three in the final end to post a 10-9 victory over Milton. The Milton quartet had lost a 4-0 lead in the fifth end and a 6-4 lead in the eighth.

Macdonald stayed within striking distance of the leaders by posting an 8-7 win over Bill Tracy of Bagotville, Que., in the second round with a lone stone in the final end.

Glen Gray of Edmonton, after drawing the fourth-round bye, took up 10-5 win over Biron in the fifth round.

Tracy also posted an easy 10-3 victory over Karl Stronach of Kingston, Ont., in the fourth round to keep pace with Alberta.

In the only other game of the day, Stronach picked up his first win of the round by trouncing Allen 12-5 in the fifth.

Canada Takes Lead In World Curling

Meets Sweden Today

By JOHN SHORT

CALGARY (CP) — The percentages run out Wednesday night for Alex F. Torrance, Scottish ship in the 1954 international curling championships.

Torrance rolled a string of sensational shots into the final round of the preliminary section of the round-robin competition but ran out of luck as he shorted a 9-7 defeat from Lloyd Daggy of Vancouver, skip of Canada's entry.

The victory gave Canada first place in the preliminary competition. Daggy meets Kurt Jonsson of Sweden in the semi-finals today and second-place Scotland faces Robert Magie of the U.S.

Magie, captured third place behind Scotland with a 15-4 triumph over Switzerland, skipped by Gerald Keller. Jonsson and his associates thumped Norway, led by Per Holaker, 13-4 to capture the fourth and final playoff spot.

Switzerland and Norway were making their debut in international competition. They finished at the bottom of the pile.

FIVE IN A ROW

Daggy posted five consecutive victories. Torrance had four wins and one loss. Magie won three and lost two, Holaker won one and lost four, and Jonsson was winless in five attempts.

Trailing 4-2 in the fifth end Wednesday night, Torrance stepped up his weight in an attempt to blank the end and slid by a Daggy counter. That left Scotland behind 5-4.

On the fourth end, Torrance attempted a tricky takeout for a possible four counters. He could have attempted a fairly simple takeout for one. His last rock wrecked on a guard to give Daggy one.

Holaker shocked a 16-4 whipping from the U.S. in the fourth round Wednesday afternoon. Canada battered Switzerland 20-4 and Scotland thumped Sweden 13-5 to set up the important final game.

Lisbon Swamps Manchester 5-0

LISBON (AP) — The Sporting Club of Lisbon swamped Manchester United of England 5-0 Wednesday and advanced to the semi-finals of the European Cup Winners soccer cup competition.

The English team had jumped off with a 4-1 victory at home, but the shutout Wednesday gave Lisbon the semi-final berth on the basis of total goals.

Soccer Results

LYON, France (AP) — Lyon reached the semi-finals of the European Cup winners soccer competition Wednesday with a 2-0 victory over Hamburg Sportverein.

In an earlier match, the two teams had tied 1-1 and Lyon gained the semi-final berth on the basis of goals scored.

ROME (AP) — Budapest defeated Istanbul 1-0 Wednesday and advanced to the semi-finals of the European Cup winners soccer tournament.

Zephyrs Bow To Maroons

CHATHAM (CP) — Chatham Maroons put an end to a scoring drought Wednesday, defeating Muskegon Zephyrs 9-4 in the only scheduled International Hockey League game.

Frank St. Marseille scored two goals for Chatham. Bill Dea gained his semi-final berth on the basis of goals scored.

Dave Luciuk, George Aitken and Don McGregor picked up the others.

Lyle Porter scored twice for Muskegon. Joe Kastelic and Warren Back were the other marksmen.

Knocks Out Mercier In First Round

Chuvalo Regains Heavy Title

By BOB TRIBBEE

REGINA (CP) — George Chuvalo of Toronto smashed Hugh Mercier of Regina to the canvas four times Wednesday night to regain the Canadian heavyweight boxing championship with a one-round knockout.

It was the 21st knockout in 37 professional bouts for the brawling Chuvalo and his 29th victory. He also has had two draws.

Chuvalo, 212, and ranked 10th in World Boxing Association listings, never allowed the inexperienced Mercier to get untracked. After landing several solid combinations to the body he decked Mercier, 191, with a vicious left hook as they broke from a clinch a minute after the fight started.

As more than 2,000 fans screamed their disapproval, referee Joe Leiter of Regina ruled it no knockdown and allowed Mercier, 26, time to regain his wits.

AT 0:28

Mercier rose at six and the referee continued the mandatory eight - count. In seconds Chuvalo again belted Mercier to the canvas with a flurry of lefts and rights.

Mercier rose at eight. He took three solid lefts, the fighters clinched briefly and then Chuvalo ended the fight at 1:58 of the round with a short, hard left hook and a chopping right.

"I didn't get much chances to see what kind of a fighter Mercier was." Chuvalo said later. "I hit him a couple of good body shots early in the round and slowed him down. I noticed he dropped his gloves a bit after a body blow and that gave me the opening I wanted."

Chuvalo said of the first knockdown: "The referee didn't come between us to break the clinch and in professional boxing you have to fight your way out unless he does. You have to protect yourself at all times.

"When Mercier dropped his gloves I hit him."

Have Allowed One Run In Four Games

Man, Look At Those Dodger Pitchers Go!

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Dodgers still have pitching, the Giants still have hitting and Dick Stuart still has tantrums.

Over a two-game stretch, the big four of the Los Angeles second staff has given up just one run as the Dodgers followed up a four-inning shutout performance by Sandy Koufax against New York Mets the day before by throttling Baltimore Orioles 9-1 Wednesday with Don Drysdale, Johnny Podres and Ron Perranoski doing the honors.

The San Francisco pitchers could have stayed home as the Giants got the best of a slugfest with Cleveland, belting the Indians for 22 hits in a 15-13 victory.

And the temperamental Stuart was labelled "selfish" by Boston manager Johnny Pesky when he twice failed to run out ground balls and ignored a coach's signal to "poke" from second base in protest against being forced to play in a game between the B squads of the Red Sox and San Francisco. The Red Sox lost 3-1.

"That's as good as I'm going to be in that kind of game," was Stuart's angry comment. "I thought I was through with those games 10 years ago."

SCHEDULES TALK

Pesky said he would talk to Stuart about it in the morning.

"And if he and I don't see things the right way, then (General Manager) Mike Higgins will talk to him."

Pesky said he thought Stuart and the other Boston regulars would appreciate playing in the B game in the morning and meeting the afternoon off with their families while the rookies faced Chicago Cubs.

Apparently the big first baseman was "not the American League in runs batted in last season, had second thoughts later.

"I am an employee of the Red Sox and I am paid by them," he said. I will do anything I'm told to do. I didn't mean to cause any trouble. I'm sorry it happened."

Meanwhile the Boston rookies lost to the Cubs 10-9 on Mack Kykendall's two-run single with the bases loaded in the ninth.

A grand-slam homer by Joe Pepitone was the big blow as New York Yankees drubbed Kansas City Athletics 9-4. Knuckleballer Hoyt Wilhelm pitched three perfect innings to protect a 4-3 victory by Chicago White Sox over Washington Senators.

Minnesota's leaky defence cost Camilo Pascual seven unearned runs as the Twins bowed 7-4 to Milwaukee Braves and Philadelphia Phillies committed five errors in losing 4-3 to New York Mets in 10 innings.

Detroit Tigers bombed St. Louis 13-4 for the Cardinals' first loss in five exhibition games and Houston Colts hammered Cincinnati Reds 9-3, pickling on Joey Jay for six runs in the seventh inning.

Dyrzdale and Podres gave matching one - hit performances in their 4-inning stints for the Dodgers in the first record it yielded the Orioles their only run in the ninth.

'Fight 2 - Same Night!'

By JACK HACKLEMAN

NEW YORK (AP)—Cassius Clay's merger with the U.S. Army still is in the indefinite stage, according to both the heavyweight champion and the nation's military establishment.

Reports that Clay had flunked a rematch with the mental portion of his draft examination were scotched Wednesday, here and at the Pentagon.

At his Harlem hotel, Clay said he had "not heard the results" of the tests taken last Friday in his hometown, Louisville. The Army announced in Washington that the results have not been disclosed."

The champion's draft board in Louisville confirmed it had "not received Clay's papers and did not know his status.

"Right now I'm thinking about business, and my next fight," said Clay, who won the heavyweight title from Sonny Liston in an upset at Miami Beach Feb. 25.

'I'LL FIGHT'

"If the commissions would let me I'd like to fight two out of three—Floyd Patterson, Doug Jones and Eddie Machen—on the same night."

St. Catharine's Coach Demands Change of Venue

Bowmanville Fans Run Wild!

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Ken Campbell, coach and general manager of St. Catharines Black Hawks, has demanded that the Ontario Hockey Association change the venue of the Hawks sixth OHA Junior A quarter - finals game against Oshawa Generals.

With the best-of-seven series tied at 2-2, the fifth game will be here tonight and the sixth game is set for Saturday at Bowmanville, where Generals have been playing this season pending completion of the new Oshawa arena.

"I've had enough of this nonsense," Campbell said Wednesday following his club's 6-3 defeat at Bowmanville Tuesday. "The fans are completely out of control."

Tuesday's game was held up several times when spectators threw debris on the ice. St. Catharines players were interfered with along the boards, several were hit with eggs and foward Chuck Kelly was struck in the face.

A total of 148 minutes in penalties were issued by referee Wally Harris of Montreal who ordered three separate announcements to the effect that unless the throwing of debris stopped he would terminate the game.

TORONTO (CP) — Bill Hanley, Ontario Hockey Association business manager, said Wednesday the venue of the remaining games of the OHA Junior A quarter - finals might be changed if spectators at Bowmanville are not brought under control.

"The St. Catharines club is not happy about visiting Bowmanville," Hanley said, "and unless officials of the Oshawa club do something to clean up the situation, the OHA will consider a change in venue."

One More Try With Phillies

Don Hoak Changes Mind

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Don Hoak wavered on the brink of retirement during the long winter months before he decided to give it one more try with Philadelphia Phillies.

"I thought maybe I could make up something to the Phillies for getting me in a trade last year from Pittsburgh and to the others who had faith in me," said the veteran third baseman.

Hoak says his future as a ball player depends on "No. 4." That is the number of Gene Mauch, manager of the Phils.

"Now will get a chance to pull himself out of a bad year," said Mauch. "He will get his chance right down here in Florida."

Hoak, a fixture at third base for four years at Pittsburgh, finished the pennant club of 1960, wants to play.

"I'm the youngest 'old' player in the league,' said the 35-year-old Phil. "I admit I have lost a step or two. I can run like I used to. Who can? I played a long time.

"Last year my hitting was just terrible until the last month. For the first few weeks I played every day but I couldn't get myself untracked. I've had bad starts before but have played myself out of it. Gene knew he had a good shot at finishing high as I hit the bench. I was the worst player in the league.

"I think I can help this club. I always said I never would hang around and be in anybody's way and become a baseball bum. I don't have to and I won't.

"It is all up to No. 4. Whatever he decides to do. I respect his judgment although I don't always agree with him. I knew he was planning on giving the kid (Richie Allen) a shot at third. He had a fine record in the minors and he certainly deserves a chance."

Frontenacs, Canadiens Win Titles

Frontenacs and Canadiens captured the Belleville Minor Hockey Association's bantam championships last night.

Frontenacs won the "A" crown, edging Tigers 3-1 last night and winning the series by a 6-1 total.

Canadiens took "B" honors, defeating Rangers 5-1 for a 9-3 total score on the round.

David Middleton and Pete Fleming triggered a goal each for the Frontenacs with Ted Shaw drawing the only assist. Mike Wardhaugh was the lone Quinte marksman. The game was closely contested from start to finish in playoff style.

Canadiens copped "B" honors behind a four-goal effort. by John Bill. Wayne Storms posted the other goal. Joe Lumsden and David Lewis getting helpers. Harry Smith was the Ranger scorer, aided by Jerry Sero and Mark Aquatredde.

Champions will be decided in the Tyke and Squirt divisions on Sunday night to wind up the playoffs. The annual presentation night will be held on the following evening.

MOSSI TO WHITE SOX

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The Detroit Tigers sent Don Mossi, 34 - year - old left-handed pitcher, to the Chicago White Sox for the 20,000 waiver price Wednesday. Mossi, troubled with a sore arm for the past two seasons, has a lifetime record of 93 victories and 71 defeats.

Hunter Safety Stressed At Fish, Game Club

Interest in the Belleville Fish and Game Association still maintains its high level. Upwards, of 200 were in attendance at the regular monthly meeting Tuesday night.

Paid-up memberships for the current year are well over the 300 mark.

Hunter safety was stressed at the meeting with the usual interesting motion picture films being shown.

Special prizes were won by Glen Marsele and Don Boyce.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP) — A pair of 10-year-old gelding trotters combined for a quinella payoff of $631.40 at Greenwood Raceway Wednesday.

There were a dozen $2 tickets sold on the winning combination.

Ingalls Hanover, a 35-to-1 pick, driven by co - owner Henry Farrington of Brantford, led 454-to-1 pick, Nero Hanover, owned by Ruth E. Hogan of Ottawa, across the finish line in the sixth race.

The payoff fell short of the Greenwood record of $1,278.90 set Aug. 1, 1962.

Bets 70 Cents Takes Home $630,375

LONDON (CP) — Charlie Cooper, a $39 a week clerk, learned Wednesday he had won $630,375 on a two-cent bet.

The 46-year-old bachelor got the cheque for money he won Saturday by picking seven out of eight tie games in the 60 soccer matches played in Britain that day.

"I've no one in mind to marry," he said. "I'll look after my three sisters and two brothers and, of course, mum."

Seek Clay For Bout In Montreal

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)— Flight promoters Yvon Robert of Montreal and Chris Dundee of Miami Beach said Wednesday they would attempt to get world heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay to defend his title in Montreal in advance of the 1967 world's fair.

Robert said he had talked to Clay's manager, Bill P. Faversham in Louisville, Ky., and found him interested in starting negotiations.

Robert and Dundee said they may join in co-promoting fights both before and during the fair.

Badminton Championships

Junior Creates 'Bird' Upset

By JERRY GLADMAN

TORONTO (CP) — Jamie Paulsen, a 15-year-old Calgary junior, created the biggest stir in the opening matches of the Canadian badminton championships Wednesday despite his third-round loss.

Paulsen, unseeded in the junior ranks and given no chance of taking even one match in the sections, defeated seasoned Brian Kolch of Vancouver, a member of Canada's Thomas Cup team, 9-15, 17-14, 15-8 in the second round of the men's singles.

"I didn't expect to beat Rollick," said the youth after the win, "but I thought there was a slight chance I might outlast him. I did just that as he tired badly in the third game."

However, Paulsen, who earlier trimmed Bill Wetherup of Toronto 15-4, 15-7, was knocked out in the third round by Torben Kops of Denmark, 15-2, 15-3. Torten is the brother of the world badminton champion, Erland Kops, who withdrew from the tournament to return to Denmark to play this weekend.

LEARNED A LOT

"Even though I got bombed by Kops, I learned a lot from playing with him," said Paulsen. "I'd like to play all the top seeded guys to get enough experience to try out for the Thomas Cup play."

Today's action, rain fairly well according to seeding with most top players advancing to the quarter finals in all classes.

The third round of the men's singles saw the leading Canadian players getting their first taste of the top foreign competition, with only one Canadian surviving.

Wayne Macdonnell of Vancouver, winner of the Canadian closed crown last year, defeated Eiichi Sakai of Japan 15-7, 15-5 to advance to the quarter-finals. Earlier, Macdonnell, seeded second behind Chan-ceong Ratanasangsuang of Thailand, trounced David Charron of Toronto 15-0, 15-2.

Ratanasangsuang plowed through singles, doubles and mixed doubles play undefeated.

The Thailand star, who is ranked second in the world to Kops, drew a bye into the second round and defeated Tom Graham of Toronto 15-4, 15-2. He advanced to the quarter-finals with a 15-8, 15-6 win over Vancouver's Ed Paterson.

Jim Carswath of Woodstock, former Canadian junior champion, extended highly - rated Yoshinori Sagaki of Japan to three games, 8-15, 18-16, 15-6.

WENT THREE GAMES

Bob Hunt of Victoria went three games with the top rated Japanese player, Yoshio Komiya, before losing 13-15; 15-10, 15-7. Bert Fergus of Vancouver offered the highly seeded Dr. Con Choong Tek of Malaya stiff competition but lost 15-13, 5-15, 15-3.

The lone doubles upset saw Carsweth and Rollick defeat Kops and Ziz Obare of Dayton, Ohio, 15-6, 15-11 in the second round.

Caron Holds C.P.L. Lead

DETROIT (CP) — Al Caron holds the lead in the Central Professional Hockey League scoring race with 124 points, 12 ahead of the second-place Ray Cullen.

With 72 goals in 67 games, the St. Louis Braves' sniper is hitting better than a goal-a-game pace, and has 45 assists. Teammate Cullen has 46 goals and 53 assists, for 86 points.

Holding third spot is Jeannot Gilbert of Minneapolis Bruins with 47 goals and 45 assists for 92 points.

St. Louis goalie Marcel Pelletier leads the league netminders with seven shutouts.

GERMANS WIN

DORTMUND (AP) — Dukla of Prague won a return match from Borussia of Dortmund, West Germany, 3-1 Wednesday in quarter-final round play of the European Cup of Champions Soccer Tournament. But the victory margin was not enough to overtake Borussia's 4-0 lead from the first match. Zurich, Milan and Real Madrid previously had gained the round of four.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

Alertness probably pays off in hockey, more than any other sport, since hockey is the fastest game in the world.

For instance, when I'm circling behind my own net, having a lot of trouble picking up the puck because of rough ice and a fresh puck that's bounding, Terry Sawchuk, our goalie may shout: "Get moving, they've changing."

So a fellow doesn't have to worry about anybody going to hit him. I can concentrate on getting the puck under control, getting it down the ice as fast as possible.

However, if there is a fellow right on top of you as you're having a little trouble with the puck and take a peak to see where it is Terry may shout:

"Look out, keep your head up."

Again it points out how important teamwork is in hockey. His warning can mean capitalizing on an opportunity when you have the opposition at a disadvantage because of a player change.

Or it can mean control of the puck, when losing it would mean a scoring opportunity for the opposition.

Sometimes you find different teams will have a different attack pattern with every line they send out.

A short while back we went into Boston for a "must" game. Sid Abel came up with the idea of dropping Alex Delvecchio in back of our defense.

When Boston got the puck, they were throwing it in our end, then chasing in to recapture it, trying to force us into mistakes.

Alex easily beat them to the puck. Parker MacDonald and I stopped at the blue line and he'd throw it up to us. Because they were charging in, we immediately had 3-on-2 and 2-on-1 situations.

It caught them by total surprise. At the end of the second period I think we had them 6 to 0. After that Milt Schmidt had them stop throwing it in. They'd carry it in. It's a matter of the other fellow being alert, too.

Golf Pros Tired of Making Money?

MIAMI (CP) — The way the golf pros have been carrying on lately, you'd think they didn't need the money.

The last 13 tournaments, dating back to early December, have been won by 13 different people. A search of Professional Golfers' Association records failed to show as long a period without a repeat winner.

Furthermore, Arnold Palmer, the one man who really doesn't need the money, isn't among the lucky 13. The best he could do was a loss to Gary Player in a playoff at Pensacola, Fla. Incidentally, that was the South African's first victory in 14 months.

Palmer, last year's record money — winner, and the 13 winners start off today in an attempt to break one streak or the other as they tee off in the $50,000 Doral Open.

The hottest of their number at the moment is Bruce Devlin of Australia, who chopped the most strokes off par and won by the biggest margin of the year last week with a 16-under-par 272 and a four-stroke edge on his nearest rival in the St. Petersburg Open. Devlin has been in the money in seven of his nine tournaments in 1964.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Andy Bathgate's 55th assist of the National Hockey League season was the only ripple of movement among the top scorers provided by Wednesday night's Toronto-Montreal game.

That left Toronto's Bathgate one, shy of his own league record for a right-winger—he piled that one up with New York in 1961-62—and three short of the all-encompassing seasonal mark set by Montreal's Jean Beliveau in 1960-61.

The point gave Bathgate 74 for the season, good for fourth spot among the leading point-collectors.

The leaders:

	G	A	Pts
Mikita, Chicago	39	50	89
Hull, Chicago	4	43	86
Beliveau, Montreal	26	49	75
Bathgate, Toronto	19	55	74
Pilote, Chicago	20	52	72
Marram, Chicago	25	43	68
Howe, Detroit	25	42	67
Oliver, Boston	23	42	65

PAROLE BOARD

TORONTO (CP) — H. A. Dyde, Edmonton lawyer, and J. Alex Edmison of Montreal, a member of the National Parole Board, have been elected to the board of governors of Trent University, Peterborough. Chairman Charles K. Fraser said Wednesday. Both men were honorary sponsors of the university which is scheduled to open in September.

LEGAL AID

OTTAWA (CP) — Publicly-financed legal aid offices staffed by experienced criminal lawyers should be established across Ontario, an Ottawa lawyer suggested Wednesday night. John F. Nelligan told the John Howard Society a change is needed under the system whereby the burden of legal aid now falls on the legal profession.

Successful Living

Sick Sister Is Upset Over Being Misunderstood

DEAR DORIS — I have a lovely family and wonderful husband. I should be happy but I am not. It's my fathers and sisters. Nothing I do is right.

Because of a bad heart I just can't go like they can, dancing and partying. They tell me I am a fool to listen to my doctor, across me of complaining. They seem to think ill health is something to be ashamed of.

My husband says it is not that my family don't like me. He thinks they feel guilty because they neglected my mother, who died in a mental hospital, and I didn't. But it hurts me. — SAD SISTER.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR SISTER — The robust, smug souls who never knew a day's illness love to tell their ailing friends: "It's all in your imagination." And they believe what they are saying! They bolster their position and smother the guilt feelings by agreeing with one another.

Your silence doesn't help. Tell them once, firmly, that you don't intend to continue being walked on. And mean it. You may startle them into a change of front.

DEAR DORIS — My boy friend would phone my friend Daisy and she'd tell me what he said about next date, since I never had a phone. Soon I found out that what my boy friend had said and what she said were two different things.

Doris, many people have told me that she's a person with a very low intelligence and hasn't much respect for anything. Well now she always tries to listen in on what my girl friend and I are talking about. She also goes through my locker (they do not have locks) and takes very personal letters away.

I'm sick over this problem as I'm not the hard boiled type. Could you please tell me how I could get her to leave me alone? —UNHAPPY.

DEAR UNHAPPY. — She is unbright. So you don't argue; you speak firmly. And you keep personal letters out of reach. It's a kindness to help clue in such a one on what's socially o.k.

• • •

Confidential to WORRIED AND IN LOVE — The best thing to do is wave back, smile back; talk when you have a chance to.

DEAR DORIS — I am 18 and going steady with a boy whom I like very much, but lately he seems to be neglecting me. He only comes to see me about every two or three weks. He always thinks up some excuse as to why he couldn't come to see me and I end up going back with him.

Do you think I should continue going out with him or should I try to tell him Goodbye? — FRIDELESS.

DEAR FRIDELESS — Just return a little wholesome neglect. See him — and others! And let him know it — in your friendliest manner.

• • •

To NURSE AND MOTHER — Don't lead your daughter down the garden path to an unhappy end. Just because you like nursing, she doesn't have to. Her talents may be pointing in a far different direction. If you would like some ideas, write for my series of 12 Careers for Girls, enclosing one dollar.

• • •

Confidential to MISS L.G. — Please write again enclosing a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope, and repeat your questions.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 - Apr. 19): Good time for important action. Push forward where business possibilities are concerned. Make contacts. Double check basic matters of finance, profit. Be extremely practical.

Taurus (Apr. 20 - May 20): Ride with tide. Don't attempt to nail down agreements. Best to permit some leeway. Be versatile, patient. Suggestion from unorthodox source due to prove fruitful.

Gemini (May 21 — June 21): Exude confidence. Encourage associates to try new projects. Be the pioneer. Ride with "original thinking". In personal life, improve domestic situation by display of affection.

Cancer (June 22 - July 21): Cycle high. Follow dictates of conscience. Don't back down from principles, beliefs. To fail now would create material, emotional loss. Your intuition rings true. Listen to it!

Leo (July 22 - Aug. 21) — Gather strength. Obtain sufficient rest. Avoid scattering energies. Work with organizations which reflect your beliefs, principles. Films for study, writing, gaining Spiritual insight.

Virgo (Aug. 22 - Sept. 23) Friends may urge you to "hurry up". But wise course would be first to attend to necessary details. There are routine matters which cry for attention. Take a second look. Be thorough!

Libra. (Sept. 23 - Oct 22): A time when "[illegible]". Obligations to be fulfilled matched. Later, you can relax with congenial people. Excellent for getting entertainment, variety in your life!

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): Good lunar aspect today indicates important news, communication— and Surprise. Be ready to "accept". See situation as it actually exists. Answer to major question is nearby.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): Need for review of financial status due to become accident. Key to obtaining most from your abilities, assets. Have confidence. Realize that delay will encourage thoroughness.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 - Jan. 20): Much to be gained by being outward, giving. Social activity tonight might result in future profit. Means you may meet people who will start favorable "chain reaction".

Aquarius (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19): Past efforts due to be repaid. Applies both to business and personal endeavors. Romance department favored. So is chance to make favorable impression on fellow workers.

Pisces (Feb. 20 - Mar. 20): Take initiative in showing there are no "hard feelings". Emphasize tact, charm. Secrets indicated requiring discretion, trust. Do not break a confidence — even under pressure!

If today is your birthday . . . you are a combination of passive and fiery independence. And you are nobody's fool! Next month finds conditions settling down to something nearer normal.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Cancer, Leo, Virgo. Special word to Capricorns: In gathering of friends this evening, express interest in what others say. Many around you will be supersensitive.

Restoration of Shrine Hall Considered Centennial Plan

PICTON (Staff) — The forthcoming Centennial celebrations, it was said, should be done in the way of, a project, came up for some lengthy discussion at the Prince Edward County Council meeting on Wednesday afternoon.

The restoration of Shire Hall and an addition to the Registry Office for the storing of legal archives of the county, was suggested as not only a suitable project, but also a very practical project, one with which the Municipal Board, who are charged with the O.K. of these projects, are in full accord.

Clerk Tom Walker told council that all but two of the counties' municipalities had sent along a motion to the effect that they were in accord with the project and giving the county, permission to act on their behalf.

They all stated, however, that if the Shire Hall-Registry Office was not the project, that they would withdraw their support, in other words it was this or nothing and they would go along on some smaller project, each on their own.

Hallowell and Wellington were the only two dissenters to the project. Deputy-Reeve John Fox, said "in Hallowell, we are not in favor of this idea, we would much rather see a landmark built."

Reeve Del Hoff of Hallowell told council that at a township council the matter had been thoroughly discussed and it was unanimously decided that they are not in favor of the Shire Hall deal.

"However, the reeve added, "if we are to the only one who will not go along, and seeing that the county would lose the whole deal, we have decided, not unanimously, but by a majority of the council, that we would go along with the Shire Hall project, provided, of course every other municipality did too."

PROJECT RESTORATION

This left it squarely up to Reeve Robert Boyce, of Wellington, who said, "In Wellington, we would prefer our own project, but we realize it would have to be a small one, and I think I can speak for my community in that by that tomorrow I will bring back a motion to the effect that we in Wellington will not be the only dissenter and will go along." Wellington Village Council meets on Wednesday afternoon.

Gordon Lloyd, Reeve of Hillier, said, "This is not a renovation, rather it is a restoration, this building was erected in 1878 and is in itself a historical landmark. One thing that some of us might not know is the fact that whatever is erected as a project must be maintained fully the year round."

Reeve John Fox suggested that we take the $60,000 and put some more to it and build a new office building, but was assured that if and when the restoration is completed, there will be plenty of room in the Shire Hall for more offices.

County Warden Kenneth Hicks, said, "We must be careful of how we spend money. We will get dollar for dollar from both Governments that we put up, which county wide would mean $60,000 for the Centennial Project.

"I am in favor of the project and if we need more room there is always the house that we purchased adjacent to the Registry Office that we can use."

David Taylor, President of the Prince Edward Historical Society waited on council during this discussion. When asked to speak, he said, "This project might be very practical, but I do not think it is in favor with most of the people in the county. We at the Society have not come up with anything concrete in the way of suggestions, but I would suggest that the Council Centennial Committee arrange a meeting with the various Women's Institutes in the county, and other interested groups, perhaps spearheaded by the Chamber of Commerce, or your own Centennial Committee. This would be a representative group of taxpayers in the county whose opinions would be worthwhile."

POORLY ATTENDED

Reeve Boyce reminded Mr. Taylor that even although it was well advertised in the local paper, the meeting called by the Society to discuss the Centennial was very poorly attended. "You only had 25 people there, and of this number there were bound to be some of your own members, so it would seem that the people of the county are quite content with the way things are," Reeve Boyce concluded.

It all now hinges on Wellington Council, if they decide to go along with the rest of the county, the Shire Hall-Registry Office will proceed, if not, the entire project will probably blow sky-high, with each municipality getting a very small grant with which to complete a project.

Sentence Made Concurrent With Another

PICTON (Staff)—Magistrate T. Y. Wills, looking tanned and fit after a Florida vacation, found only two cases on the docket as he held court here on Wednesday.

Carl E. Buck, 21, 341½ Sidney Street, Trenton, received a $100 fine or jail term for his part in the breaking, entering and theft at Kenney's Store in Consecon on January 18. Two other men with him at the time were dealt with in Picton court a short time ago.

When the Crown Attorney read the accused's record into court, which was quite lengthy, His Worship pronounced sentence, and when he was told that the accused currently serving a 12-month sentence for breaking and entering given by his Brighton court two weeks ago, he made the six months concurrent.

James Hodgins, Picton, entered a plea of guilty to being drunk in public and asked for a week to pay the fine. The magistrate suggested he return one week from now with the money, and in the meantime has rejected the plea of guilty.

Welfare Omt Now Activated Administrator Tells Council

PICTON (Staff) — Mr. W. Grant Harvey, County Welfare Administrator, presented his first report to the Prince Edward County Council on Wednesday morning. Mr. Harvey assumed his new position early in January this year.

In his lengthy report Mr. Harvey outlined his activities since January, pointing out how he had received much help from Miss Violet Anglin, County Welfare Officer, and Mr. Arne Nielsen, an officer from the Provincial Department of Public Welfare.

"With two months of operation now completed," the report said, "it seems that this County Welfare Unit can be regarded as successfully activated. Much remains to be done, however, to achieve best efficiency of continuing operation. I do not believe the desired results will be possible unless one male field worker is added to our staff without delay, and I believe that it may become necessary in the near future to appoint an additional clerical assistant."

The Welfare committee presented their estimated budget for 1954 in the total amount of $76,880, of which $56,000 will be given as a provincial subsidy, leaving a net cost to the county of $20,880.

Fred Jennings, county assessment commissioner, tendered his estimate for 1954, which totalled $67,643, less a subsidy of $9,421. This budget estimate was made up of $19,900 salaries—$13,843 equipment—mileage $2,500—supplies and property transfers $1,300 and Court of Revision $500.

Mr. Jennings told council that one of the four assessors hired is still doing part time work, contrary to the rules laid down when he was employed. "I told him he would have to stop this part time work and at this moment I do not know if he has or not. I felt council should know about this," Mr. Jennings said.

Lieut.-Col. A. H. Hill of Toronto, appeared on behalf of the Salvation Army at Toronto, asking that their annual grant be increased from the customary $400 to $500 this year.

WILL INSPECT ROADS

The proposed new County Garage will be about 120' x 77' and will be 16' high, according to plans discussed at county council again on Wednesday morning. The building will be of concrete block construction with a concrete pre-stressed roof. It will cost a total of about $75,000 with about $53,000 for the actual building.

It was announced that the annual road inspection tour will be held on April 13 and 14th this year.

Mr. P. I. Timmins, Field Secretary of the C.N.I.B. Kingston spoke to county council Wednesday morning, in regard to the annual grant to the Blind by council.

Introduced by Ray Lennox, secretary of the Prince Edward Advisory Board of the CNIB, Mr. Timmins said that this year 2,000 people in Canada will lose their sight.

We are confident that 50 per cent of these could have been saved if proper prevention were taken. It is this prevention for which we are urgently asking your additional support."

The Assessing and Welfare Departments will be moved into the basement of Shire Hall just as soon as some of the rooms are cleaned out. The basement is huge, actually it is the same size as the entire ground floor of the building.

Roberts May Alter Cass Plan

Reacts At Once To Outraged Cries Of Protest

Jail-Without-Trial Law Will Be Re-examined

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Roberts said today controversial legislation that will give the Ontario Police Commission unprecedented powers will be completely re-examined before any further moves are made."

"I will permit no legislation to pass through the House which infringes on the basic rights and liberties of individuals," Mr. Roberts said in a statement.

Disbelief Reaction Of Lawyers

TORONTO (CP) — Most Toronto lawyers and civil liberties workers expressed disbelief who first told of the proposed legislation which would allow the Ontario Police commission to subpoena any person it feels may have information regarding organized or syndicated crime in Ontario.

Sidney Midanik, chairman of the Civil Liberties Legal Committee, said: "... I should think it's a repressive measure. The common law protected people from false arrest, gave them the right to counsel and the right against self-incrimination. Is all this to be wiped away?"

He labelled Mr. Cass' assertion that the rights of a few had to be limited to protect the general rule as "a distaste argument."

Arthur S. Patullo, Ontario vice-president of the Canadian Bar Association, was in Jamaica Thursday and was unavailable for comment.

Toronto lawyer John J. Robinette described the proposals as indefensible and absurd. "I doubt that evidence obtained that way would be admissible in court."

RIGHTS COME FIRST

The rights of individuals in the province are more important than any fight against so-called organized crime, said Mr. Robinette.

He said reports of organized crime in Ontario are greatly exaggerated. "I think ordinary police methods can combat any

Spring Ousts Old Man Winter But Nobody Informed Weatherman

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Spring is here. But just try to tell the Maritime motorist, the Prairie farmer or the west coast harbor pilot.

The Maritimer is too busy trying to cope with the effects of a raging blizzard that left up to 13 inches of snow on parts of the east coast Thursday.

Western farmers had snow too—10 inches of it. But they're celebrating. Agricultural officials said at least five inches was needed to protect the soil surface and build water reserves.

Unless there is a fast improvement conditions would seem to favor the avalanche rabbit for most of the Easter egg deliveries and the latest in bonnets and books for the Easter parade.

Eastern Quebec, especially the Gaspe area, also greeted spring from beneath a shroud of snow. About eight inches fell in some parts Thursday.

In Ontario the weatherman announced that several inches of snow are possible in southern Ontario by midday Saturday, with less snow elsewhere in the province.

Today's Chuckle

They keep trying to tell us that women are smarter than men, but did you ever see a man wearing a shirt that buttoned in the back?

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Snow, possibly mixed with freezing rain, will spread into southwestern Ontario this afternoon and into the remainder of southern Ontario tonight. The snow will bring 3 to 6 inches of snow to most sections of southwestern Ontario and to localities near Lake Ontario. Considerably less snow is anticipated in Northern Ontario. Behind this disturbance strong northerly winds will bring cooler air into southern Ontario on Saturday.

Budget Hard To Fight

BY ALAN DONNELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons opposition has had its first chance to tangle with Finance Minister Gordon's new budget. The general complaint: It's like fighting a feather.

Nothing much is it is critic cize, Conservative critic George Nowlan.

It lacks imagination, lacks vision, lacks leadership, lacks courage, lacks sincerity, lacks everything that the Commons had "great fun" last year knocking apart Mr. Gordon's first budget.

Nevertheless, both came up with non-confidence motions asking the government's financial policy as the Commons opened its six-day budget debate.

The motion by Mr. Nowlan, former finance minister, accused the government of not taking effective action to control rising government spending. That he said, had resulted in a "substantial" deficit despite higher taxes imposed last year.

PRESENTS AMENDMENT

Mr. Cameron, MP for Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands, presented an amendment calling for a reduction in defence spending, the money funds for economic development in Canada and for greater aid to developing countries through the United Nations.

Mr. Nowlan's motion comes to a vote Tuesday and Mr. Cameron's late today. But it appeared unlikely the minority Liberal government would be defeated on either motion.

For this to happen, all opposition parties would have to combine forces.

The conservatives aren't likely to support the NDP motion since it's an amendment knocking out the main Conservative attack on the budget. As for the Conservative motion, Mr. Cameron called it a "typical example of primitive Tory thinking."

The budget debate got under way a day late after the Commons finally disposed of a motion by Gilles Lamoureux (Cre-dit-iste — Lapointe) to censure Deputy Speaker Lucien Lamoureux for his conduct in several rulings last Friday when the Commons hustled through its business in order to vote on controversial pension legislation.

Mr. Lamoureux absent during the debate—took the chair and was greeted by prolonged applause by almost all members.

In the budget debate Mr. Nowland covered a variety of subjects—including approval of the budget's provisions to assist students—before getting down to his main criticism in the closing minutes of his speech.

The government was guilty of "absolute failure" to control

Listen To This

Yep! It's the first day of Spring.

Now listen to the weatherman:

Snow, possibly mixed with freezing rain, will spread into southwestern Ontario this afternoon and into the remainder of southern Ontario tonight.

This storm will bring three to six inches of snow to most sections of southwestern Ontario — and to localities near Lake Ontario."

End of quote — which you notice includes Belleville and district.

Yep! It's Spring.

Hall Threatens Blockade in U.S.

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian laws will be obeyed by the Seafarers International Union (Ind.) but "a massive blockade of Canadian shipping in U.S. Great Lakes ports is not impossible," says Paul Hall, president of the SIU of North America (AFL-CIO).

Mr. Hall, in Montreal to back up ousted Canadian SIU President Hal Banks, declared the international union absolutely opposes the legislation that empowered the maritime board of trustees and will continue to support Banks.

"Mr. Banks is not the issue — he has never been the issue — although the public thinks he is," he said at a press conference Thursday.

"I hope the differences will not be resolved by violence" in U.S. inland ports, Mr. Hall said, but added: "There may be considerable stoppages in United States Great Lakes ports of Canadian ships. The situation is fraught with danger."

No Surrender to Threats

TORONTO (CP)—Labor Minister MacEachen said Thursday threats of a blockade of Canadian ships in American ports will not cause the Canadian government to withdraw trusteeship of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind).

He told 250 persons at a Liberal association meeting that he understood North American SIU President Paul Hall had hinted at such a blockade.

"Last fall we refused to back down under threats and criticism," Mr. MacEachen said, "and as a government we refuse to back down now under threats or intimidation, regardless of the circumstances."

Crime Highlights

TORONTO (CP) — Highlights of the Ontario Police Commission report on organized crime in the province:

* * *

Crime is organized in many fields but the evidence does not indicate syndicate or monopoly control.

* * *

U.S. syndicates have a probable interest, related to the amount of possible profits.

* * *

Members of the Mafia or Cosa Nostra have made unsuccessful efforts to get control of some operations.

* * *

Some Ontario activities involve mutual aid and cooperation with crime in Quebec, elsewhere in Canada, the United States and other countries.

* * *

One Buffalo-based Mafia syndicate appears to have some 30 members in Toronto, Hamilton and Guelph.

* * *

The commission made 16 major recommendations for combatting organized crime. Attorney General Cass said some would be implemented.

* * *

The attorney general rejected the recommendation for complete divorcement of the police commission from political control.

* * *

Recommendations included police wire-tapping to obtain evidence.

Organized Law Breaking Flourishes According To Report Tabled In House

Cass Calls Legislative Proposals So Tough They Are 'Dangerous'

By JOHN LeBLANC

TORONTO (CP) — Mafia members have failed in bids to control Ontario crime but other organized law breaking flourishes, according to the Ontario Police Commission.

The commission's hid-lifting report on organized crime was placed before the legislature Thursday after five months of study, and the provincial government promptly lashed out with legislative proposals to give the commisston crime-busting powers so tough that Attorney-General Cass called them "dangerous."

The legislation, which immediately raised protests at its severity, partly followed recommendations of the three-man commission, whose report portrayed some aspects of Ontario crime as linked to that in other parts of Canada, the United States and elsewhere.

While there was not enough evidence to show syndicate or monopoly control, the commission said, United States syndicate ha.. a "probable interest" in the province's organized crime, to the extent that it is profitable.

The 235 - page report, prepared after an inquiry in secret by the commission, proved considerably more of an eyeopener than that of a royal inquiry commission inquiry submitted a year ago by Mr. Justice W. D. Roash of the Ontario Court of Appeal.

6 Charged In Death Of Woman

TORONTO (CP) — Five doctors and the administrator of Toronto East General Hospital will appear in Scarborough court April 6 to face a total of 60 charges resulting from the controversial death last Nov. 4 of cancer patient Patricia Morgan.

The charges, laid under the Coroner's Act and the Vital Statistics Act, resulted from coroner's jury findings Feb. 27 that Miss Morgan, 32, died 18 days after she was operated on by Dr. Kenneth Brown, chief surgeon at the hospital; Dr. Stuart Penny, chief pathologist; and Doctors Alexander Kennedy and Allan Noble, both assistant pathologists at Scarborough General.

FACE SIX COUNTS

They each face six counts under the Coroner's Act of failing to notify a coroner of the facts and circumstances" of the death, having reason to believe that Miss Morgan died as a result of: Misadventure, negligence, misconduct, malpractice, from a cause other than disease, circumstances as may require an investigation.

Maximum penalty for conviction on each charge is six months imprisonment, a $500 fine, or both.

Dr. Brown is also charged on four counts under the Vital Statistics Act of failing ma.. a false statement in Miss Morgan's medical certificate of death.

He is charged with:

1. Making a false statement on the cause of death; making a false statement on the findings of the autopsy; and failing to furnish particulars concerning the death; unlawfully neglecting to furnish particulars concerning the death.

Witnesses told the inquest that Dr. Brown left the operating table after another surgeon, Dr. A. T. Varga, the hospital's senior resident, called in Dr. Plewes, who ordered the method of the operation revised.

Dr. Plewes said he had assigned Dr. Varga to be a "watchdog" on Dr. Brown's operations for the last two years.

The legislation, which immediately raised protests at its severity, partly followed recommendations of the three-man commission, whose report portrayed some aspects of Ontario crime as linked to that in other parts of Canada, the United States and elsewhere.

Stop Abuses In Used Car Field

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government Thursday launched a full-scale attack on unscrupulous used car dealers and salesmen.

A bill introduced in the legislature by Attorney - General Cass is intended to "curb abuses in the used car field," including the grounding of fly-by-night operators.

The new legislation calls for compulsory registration of dealers with the government and provides for a large increase in the existing $25 licence fee. The increase is to be determined by the cabinet.

Mr. Cass said the new act, given first reading Thursday, will be in force in time for the compulsory licensing of dealers this year.

The crackdown was initiated as a result of recommendations by the legislature's select committee on consumer credit. The committee found "palpable abuses" in the used car field.

CITES CASES

Mr. Cass said in some cases dealers had refused to return deposits to persons who could not finance purchases.

The new act will create a position of registrar of used car dealers and salesmen who will have the power to cancel licences on receipt of complaints or evidence of shady dealings.

The registrar will come under the supervision of the registration and examination branch—a branch which is being transferred from the department of insurance to the attorney-general's department.

'They Hate Each Other's Guts' British Sgt. Tells Canadians

NICOSIA (CP) — "They hate each other's guts," said the British sergeant.

The sergeant, a ten - gun pointed straight ahead of him at the rocky, war-making scene on the narrow, dilapidated street which is the tenuous cease-fire line between Greek and Turkish-Cypriots in the inner ancient walled heart of Nicosia.

The street and houses opening off it were a vista of looted shops, roadblocks of worn-out trucks and cars, bullet-scarred walls, sandbagged, balconies and rusty barbed wire.

This is the zone which the 1st Battalion, Duke of Edinburgh's Regiment, has been patrolling since December when Greeks and Turks butchered each other in a horror-laden night of hate. It is the zone which the United Nations may call on Canada's 1st Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, to patrol.

"You can cut the tension with a knife," said the sergeant. "They hate each other but they fear each other too."

A young lieutenant, hardly out of high school, said: "When the shops shut, you know there's trouble coming. Even a raised voice is a signal."

Everywhere there are rifles and pistols. They are carried by the Turkish police, Greek security forces and the British, who estimate there are 3,500 murder weapons.

"No, but I know of two who might," he said matter - of - factly. The cease-fire line has become the new "murder mile" on this murder island. Leros Street, the old "Murder Mile" where nearly 60 persons were shot in the back in the terrorbombings under arms in Nicosia alone.

Greeks and Turks are supposed to keep 700 paces away from the cease-fire line. But at one corner the Greeks have turned their guns on Turkish snipers in the minaret of the Turks while the British mat the rooftops and balconies of the Greeks watching. The British soldiers can't shoot unless they are shot at first.

There was a short machine-gun burst.

"How do we know whether they're firing at us or at each other?" the lieutenant asked.

He has entered a street of looted houses.

"It's a little twitchy here at night, with only a small light at each end of the street," he said. "You know both sides are watching you from the ruins and that they have rifles pointed at you."

He and any of his sitting-duck soldiers cracked up under this pressure? The battalion contains a spirit of the 1950s against the British, runs into the present cease-fire line.

In the midst of this nerve-wringing situation the British voice certain political activities so far, have tried to placate both sides when they complain about infringements of the cease-fire.

Neutrality goes so far that British weapon pits have to be circular so that they point to neither side and two men have to occupy each pit, one looking toward the Greek quarter, the other toward the Turkish sector.

Suspend Sentence on Youth, Ordered to Salvation Army Training School for 2 Years

James Alfred Meens yesterday was convicted of possession of a stolen prize stamp collection and ordered to a Salvation Army training school for two years.

Passing sentence, Magistrate R. C. Jackson told the youth: "What you have actually done is get a better environment . . . you are in now".

Wednesday, Meens, claimed he had found the stamps — allegedly stolen from the collection of noted Belleville philatelist the late Earl A. Greenleaf — and his father advised him to get rid of the collection, later, he said his parents suggested he go into the business of purchasing stamps and newspaper advertisements were placed to that effect in the Ontario Intelligencer.

The advertisement was entered as an exhibit at the trial but in the summation of the case yesterday Magistrate Jackson said he would not comment on it — though protested "by the immunity of the court" from "slander".

"The word 'Fagin' occurs to me", he added.

(Fagin was a fictitious character created by novelist Charles Dickens for "Oliver Twist". He was portrayed as a receiver of stolen goods who trained illiterate young boys in thievery.

The link between the stamps police said they found in Meens's possession and those missing from the Greenleaf collection hinged on misprint in a St. Lawrence Seaway commemorative issue. Such a stamp found in the Meens' album was identified as one sold by the deceased collector by Winnipeg stamp dealer Kasimer Bileski.

ACCEPTS OPINION

Despite arguments proffered by defence counsel William Angus, the magistrate said he was "forced to accept Mr. Bileski's opinions on the identity of the stamps".

He also ruled that a statement given by Meens to police January 23 was so long and involved "any police officer could invent it."

In his summation Mr. Angus noting without fee under the county legal aid system — decried the Crown Attorney John Pringle had proven beyond doubt that the stamps allegedly in the possession of were those stolen from the collection housed in the basement of the Greenleaf home on Dufferin Avenue. Existence of the valuable collection was also probably a well-known fact about town," he said.

A major factor in the case was the fact Meens had not turned over to police the stamps he found in a vacant shack on the Alemite field.

It was a matter of conjecture what would have happened if Meens' father had given him different advice, claimed Mr. Angus.

He reminded the court Meens went to Montreal and offered stamps for sale because a car borrowed by his parents needed repairing.

Mr. Angus also noted the newspaper advertisements which the accused had said was related to his going into stamp sales.

The charge against Meens centred on the prosecution's clearly establishing that the stamps in his possession were stolen.

SHORT ADJOURNMENT

This, his argument emphasized, depended on identificaton of the book controversial Seaway stamp.

All the police had uncovered was "much speculation" about the stamp sold to Mr. Greenleaf by Mr. Bileski was that found among those in Meens' possession.

Magistrate Jackson adjourned the court briefly after rendering his decision while Meens was checked if record authorities would accept the accused.

After they approved his registration at the training school the magistrate formally imposed the two-year suspended sentence — conditional on his willingness to accept residence and regulations at the school.

organized crime there may be."

Professor Sean Leahy of the University of Toronto law school said he would have to know more about the proposed legislation before he could comment fully on it, but added: "It seemed pretty broad and ominous."

When asked whether he felt Mr. Case proposals were within the attorney-general's jurisdiction Prof. Laskin replied:

"He can only legislate in relation to criminal offences, not in relation to the powers of police, under federal law, Crime is the matter for Ottawa, not for Ontario."

COME UNDER CODE

Prof. Laskin said most major criminal cases would come under the Criminal Code, a federal statute, and provincial police had power only in law serious matters such as infringements of the Highway Traffic Act.

Rabbi Gunther Plaut of Holy Blossom Temple in Toronto, said: "There must be other methods to combat the drug problem and protect the rights of the public at the same time."

He added: "I am afraid (the legislation) go into effect."

Mr. Case said the government spent a backward step in the development of law and could punish a great many innocent persons.

"I think the police commissioner will find a better way to solve their problems," added Rabbi Plaut.

Among other newspapers commenting on the proposed legislation, Rev. John Morgan of the First Unitarian Church said:

"I can't believe it. It sounds like the old purge days in the Soviet Union. It's not permissible. It won't stick. There will be a public outcry."

RECOGNIZE CRISIS

Rev. J. R. Hord, secretary of the United Church board of Evangelism and social service, said he thought the proposals has a "terrible record with regard to our first crime.

"We have had (former attorney-general) Kelso Roberts repeating ad nauseum that no one recognizes a crisis in Ontario," he said. "The report shows him up for what he is and I think he is wrong in carrying on a whitewash campaign.

"Now by modifying this terrible record, they (the government) are going to opposite extremes of international repute. In the name of human freedom, individual freedom, I would protest in the strongest."

John Arnup, treasurer of the Law Society of Upper Canada, said: "As a general principle under arrest are denied defence counsel for too long now. Anything which jeopardizes the legal rights of the citizen is a great mistake."

Mr. Arnup said secret questioning and excluding anyone the right to counsel is a great injustice. "It carries us back to the spy inquiries during the last war."

Plumbing Inspectors Told To Adhere Strictly to Code

Adequate inspection and close adherence to the provincial plumbing code is absolutely essential if plumbing standards throughout Ontario are to be raised, Zone 6 plumbing inspectors were told in Belleville yesterday.

Main speaker for the all-day session held at the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle Street, was Paul Sprent, plumbing supervisor, Belleville, with the engineering division of the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

Assistant city engineer Dick Kraft chaired the meeting which was attended by ten zone inspectors.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell outlined the plumbing inspection procedure followed in Belleville.

Mr. Sprent stressed the importance of correct inspection by conscientious plumbing inspectors, noting that the biggest problem for his department was the standard of plumbing in the smaller rural municipalities.

OWNS OWN MUNICIPALITY

"In many instances," he said, "such municipalities do not consider inspection necessary because of the low volume of plumbing installations.

He said that contractors realized that plumbing was inferior in such municipalities where there were no inspections made.

He emphasized that the OWRC plumbing code superseded the by-laws of municipalities in all the mechanical aspects of installations. Inspection fees in Belleville are slightly lower than in most municipalities represented, it was stated.

Plumbing inspection fees applied to buildings constructed by the province is waived as "privately-owned structures. Tax exemption did not relieve payment of plumbing fees as this was a fee for services rendered.

Mr. Sprent said that type H plumbing was on this list as it was unsuitable for plumbing installations and noted that with the increase in high-rise buildings stacks could be overcome by keeping the height to within the limits of the code.

Rural inspectors said one of their biggest problems was getting adequate plumbing for cottages.

Mrs. Frank Brough, Roslin, Enjoys Driving School Bus

For the better part of the day Mrs. Frank Brough of Roslin, performs the accustomed role of the average housewife — washing dishes, cleaning floors, cooking.

Then for two hours each morning and afternoon she steps out of character to steer a big yellow school bus around a 33-mile route in Hungerford township.

Summer and winter for the past 15 years, Mrs. Brough has been doing the bus stint and is so accustomed to it that she says she doesn't mind it a bit.

In fact she takes the exuberant spirits of the rural public school students all in her stride and claims she wouldn't know what to do without the bus job.

For Mrs. Brough her bus driving career began at 7.15 sharp in the morning. It is then she heads out her driveway and down 27 Highway to Roslin, to Chisholm's Mills and Monsmouth and the 33-mile route to Tweed high school.

REVERSES CIRCUIT

She arrives at Tweed at 8.20, 9, when McMahon was shot and then heads for home until 4.30 p.m. when the pesky pupils start the circuit—this time in reverse.

Her bus driving day is over at 5.30, then she again becomes the average housewife with an accompanying routine household chores.

Mrs. Brough started her bus driving as sort of a "relief driver" for her husband who operates eight buses on different routes in South Hastings.

But long—ago she graduated from the "extra" category to a "regular".

In the 15-year stretch she has operated no less than eight different buses, including the elongated 66-passenger machine required for the over 60 students there are now.

She admits at times she has to "be firm" with her 24 young charges but asserts that they are "good kids."

"Actually I enjoy the bus driving," she says. "You sort of get attached to it."

Contracting Firm Charged After Fatal Cave-In

A Belleville contracting firm today was charged with two breaches of the Trench Excavators' Prevention Act, following a cave-in which killed two of its workmen at the Tope Motel, December 12.

The charges were formally read against Quinte Valley Contracting before Magistrate T. V. Wills today. The case was adjourned two weeks.

Patrick Black, 25, and 39-year-old Douglas Cronkright, both of Belleville, died when a sewer ditch on the motel's property collapsed.

The charges cite the company for failure to notify local safety officials before commencing excavation and failing to ensure safety measures.

Statement Made By Accused Is Admitted

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP)—The Crown completed its case Thursday against Charles Clinton Loyst, 51, charged with the capital murder of Hugh James McMahon, 34, of Tweed.

Most of Thursday's session was taken up by a trial within a trial before Mr. Justice N. G. Fraser determined the admissibility of evidence before it was presented to the Supreme Court jury.

As the jury trial resumed, Insp. Everett Leland H. Devereux of the criminal investigations branch of the provincial police read an unsigned statement, allegedly made by Loyst.

He said the accused had told him Oct. 11 that Loyst was in the McMahon home near Kalador, Ont., between 8 and 8.30 p.m. Oct. 9, when McMahon was shot and fell to the floor.

Last week Mrs. Anna Elizabeth McMahon, 44, testified Loyst had entered the house at St. John's and shot her husband.

WAS LOYST'S REQUEST

Insp. Devereux told the court he went to the jail at Loyst's request and Mrs. McMahon said saying he and Mrs. McMahon hid a rifle when they went to the police detachment in Kaladar to report the incident.

Insp. Devereux also quoted Loyst as saying: "She (Mrs. McMahon) came out of the house. She was carrying my rifle."

Insp. Devereux's written statement to the jury that Loyst told police at Kaladar after the shooting that he and Mrs. McMahon had left the jail.

He testified under cross-examination that at no time did Loyst identify "she" as Mrs. McMahon.

Inst. Devereux's evidence was the final piece of testimony introduced by the Crown to the all-male jury.

The case is expected to go to the jury today.

Sub-Postoffice For Dundas Street E. Area

Residents of the Dundas St. East area of Belleville are going to have a new sub-post office.

Robert Temple, member of parliament for Hastings South, stated today that requests for a sub-office in the Dundas St. area had been placed before the postmaster general and opening of an office had been approved by the department.

The sub-postoffice for the Dundas Street area will be at the corner of Dundas and Foster at what formerly has been known as Ted's Restaurant. The sub-postmaster will be Peter Zegouras, one of , partners, who purchased Ted's business property.

Girl Gets Lots of Sympathy But No Clues in Search For Two Aunts in Canada

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP) — Eleanor Lamerton has received a lot of sympathy, but no clues, in the search for the two aunts she believes are living in Canada.

Since a story of her search appeared in Canadian newspapers several months ago, Miss Lamerton, 17, has received "more than a dozen letters from all over Canada."

"The letters are very kind—they all want to be an 'auntie' to me—but the last thing I want is sympathy," she said in a telephone interview from Plymouth where she is on the staff of a Dr. Barnardo home for unwanted children. "Most people feel I've been awfully hard done by, but I don't feel that way."

She has answered most of the letters and still corresponds with two elderly Englishwomen ladies in Ontario who once, like Eleanor herself, were in the care of a Barnardo home.

SENDS NEWSPAPERS

"One lady—I won't give their names because they might be shy—used to live in Brighton," Eleanor said. "I send her letters and cards and sometimes I get a Brighton newspaper and send it to her."

"Now I have suggested to these two ladies that they start corresponding with each other. I think they both are terribly lonely."

Eleanor's mother was Ivy Anne Martyn, a nun who left the convent, eventually married a seaman and had seven children in eight years. She was 53 when she died seven years ago.

Eleanor was the second youngest and was one year old when authorities broke up the family and placed the children in institutions, Eleanor going to a Dr. Barnardo home.

Recently, she discovered the names and birth dates of the five Martyn women who were her mother's sisters. They are: Vera Kathleen, 55; Bessie Goodman, 54; Ruth Edith, 53; Alvina Grace, 52, and Eileen Violet, 49. Their parents were Charles Edward and Annie Maud Martyn.

NAVY ADOPTS HOME

Eleanor doesn't know where the aunts are, which two went to Canada. Nor does she know the names of her mother's two brothers.

Her main preoccupation now is the home where she works and the dozens of children in her care who all call her "auntie." The current big excitement is that the home has been "adopted" by the men of a Royal Navy ship in Plymouth and is being showered with gifts and treats.

"Recently we were even on a television program," Eleanor said excitedly. But still she is haunted by the desire to find some trace of her mother's family.

"Not long ago I went over to Saltash (the Cornwall village where her mother was born) to see if something would stir old memories."

"But everything has changed so much now. And none of the people there around when my mother was a child."

MORE ADDICTS

LONDON (AP) — A leading British medical journal warned Friday more Britons are turning to drug addiction every year The Lancet said that addiction rose from 90 cases in 1957 to 169 in 1962.

Guelph Labelled As Meeting Place To Plot Crimes

TORONTO (CP)—The city of Guelph was labelled Thursday as a place where criminals can plot major crimes.

This conclusion was reached by the Ont. Police Commission and set out in its report on organized crime in the province.

Two Italian families were said to be responsible for bringing discredit to this comparatively small city 60 miles west of Toronto.

"These are the Cipolla and Sylvestro, alias Sylvester families," the crime report says.

Charles Cipolla, 52, now serving a 20-year term for narcotics peddling, was named as the brains of the Guelph mob. The commission said he has criminal contacts throughout Canada and the U.S.

The other son, Frank Cipolla, 47, a chef at a Guelph restaurant, was referred to as a lieutenant of Charles and their father Mattieu, said to be about 83 years old.

Frank served four years in the '50s on a charge of possessing counterfeit money. Charles served seven years on a similar charge. The father has been active in bootlegging and selling illicit liquor, according to the police commission.

Sam Sylvestro and Frank Sylvestro, nephews, head the family of criminal repute. The report labels Sam a kingpin in narcotics and has been convicted for bookmaking.

PHONE CALLS CHECKED

"From information obtained through informants and a check of telephone toll slips, there is an indication that Sam Sylvestro has connections with gamblers in Toronto, Hamilton and Montreal, as well as Niagara Falls and Buffalo, N.Y.

Sam now is serving a year on a charge of recording bets. Frank, meanwhile, is awaiting trial on a charge of extortion.

Information on Guelph's crime element was given to the police commission by Police Chief Robert Lamb and two other ranking officers of the city's police department.

They agreed that organized crime was not in Guelph "and has tentacles which reach beyond their city jurisdiction."

The commission was told that about 40 per cent of Guelph's population was of Italian extraction. The majority were law-abiding citizens, but the Cipolla and Sylvestro families were gross exceptions.

"Through these two families, criminals can contact Guelph, and the city is used as a meeting place to plan many major crimes," the police commission's report declares.

Chief Lamb testified that most persons in Guelph's Italian community were reluctant to give police information relating to their ethnic group.

MURDERS UNSOLVED

He told of two unsolved murders in Guelph in which the victims were Italians. Sam Sobara, alias Labatti, a bootlegger, was throttled and thrown down a culvert about a year before the Second World War, according to the chief's recollection.

Sobara died by drowning because of water in the culvert. No solution was found to the murder.

"Chief Lamb is of the opinion that persons in the Italian community knew who was responsible but due to their natural reluctance to talk to police, no one would inform."

Joseph Nasso, also a bootlegger, disappeared about 1933. However, it was never actually proved he was murdered.

"Information given to us would indicate that both of these persons were the victims of a form of Mafia-like disciplinary punishment," the report states.

Chief Lamb, appearing before the police commission Jan. 7, recommended that car rental firms be required to make rental records available to police within 24 hours.

The use of rented cars by the type of criminal element was of concern to his department, he said.

Three Runs For Fire Dept.

City firemen were called to 12 Willard Street during the noon hour Thursday when they attended an overheated stove at the home of M. Simmons. No damage was reported.

At 6.33 p.m. Thursday evening the department was called to Artistic Ladies' Wear on Front Street to extinguish a blaze in the awning overhanging the front of the store. A department official said someone had thrown a lighted cigarette onto the awning. Damage was reported as slight.

The department was summoned again at 7.02 p.m. to the rear of Yolles Furniture Store on Front Street. Rubbish was burning near the rear door.

federal spending, he said.

Referring to the finance minister's forecast of a $435,000,000 budget deficit next fiscal year, and a rise to $7,135,000,000 from an $82,000,000 budgetary ending, Mr. Nowlan said spending has never been so high.

He cited the case of the increased demand for steel by industry, which had been split off from the trade department and transferred to the defence production department.

He said that in last year's budget speech, Mr. Gordon was a superman claiming to have answers to all Canada's problems.

"This time we had Mickey Mouse, coming in with a very small parcel."

He criticized the new budget's move to permit corporations to deduct from taxable income any expenditures on research outside Canada. Ever since 1946, he said, the policy had been to encourage research in Canada by allowing deduction only of expenditures in Canada.

AIM RIGHT

Mr. Cameron said that in last year's budget Mr. Gordon had aimed at the "right ends" but came to grief by using wrong methods that were silly, contradictory and economically unreasonable.

"But still I am a little bit nostalgic for that other budget," he said. Despite its errors it was an imaginative budget, designed to accomplish things.

It was "tragic" that Mr. Gordon hadn't tried again, using sounder principles.

The minister was like the man with a leaky roof, who argued that he couldn't repair the roof while it was raining and didn't need to when the weather was fine.

FIND FAULTS

A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat) and Mr. Gregoire, Creditiste-financial critic, both found technical faults in the budget.

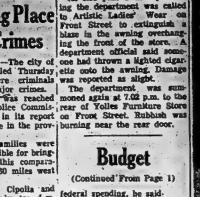
Mr. Olson said it had "very little substance." Mr Gregoire said it was insipid, colorless, odorless and tasteless.

Both attacked the mounting cost of interest charges to carry the federal debt.

Mr. Olson said that in seven years interest costs on the debt had risen from $508,000,000 to $1,700,000,000. At that rate, they would total $2,000,000,000 by 1973

New Hercules Planes to Be Based at Trenton

Several of the 16 new Hercules transport planes ordered by the RCAF from the Lockheed plant in Georgia, will be based at the Trenton Air Station, it was reported today by Robert Temple, M.P. for Hastings South.



Delivery of the first of the planes now on order in the United States will commence during the summer. Trenton will be one of three RCAF stations at which the new type aircraft will be based.

Running Trenton Pet Clinic Only One Of Many Services Given by Dorothy Burrus

TRENTON — If Trenton cats and dogs ever organize, the first item on the new society's agenda will be to take up a collection to buy a "thank you" gift for Dorothy Burrus of the CJBQ Pet Clinic. Dorothy has found new homes for . . . given away more puppies . . . and found happy homes for homeless hamsters, than any other single person in town. Dorothy, who in private life is Mrs. Wilfred Burrus of Wellington, is the fond owner of two cats and a boney, colored spaniel herself, brings a real heart and understanding to her work. She literally "heads over dog-ble" to solve pet owner's problems in the Trent... area.

Running the Trenton Pet Clinic is only one of the volunteer services Dorothy offers to the grasping public. Operators of the Red Cross Blood Donor Clinics have just cause to be grateful to Dorothy for her "impossible to turn down" appeals to the public for donations and other volunteer organizations, such as the St. John Ambulance brigade make use of her writing talents to further their causes.

All this is part of Dorothy's job of being Girl Friday to CJBQ's Trenton manager, Ted Snider. Commercial copy also goes along with the job, but Dorothy manages to fit everything into her schedule, with a smile.

A native American, (naturalized in 1937), Dorothy is no stranger to the Quinte area. In 1955 and 1956 she toured the area as director of the Empire production Company of Kenya City's Minstrel Show. Shows were put on in Frankford, Tw... and Wellington. It was during the latter that Will Burrus at the Canadian Legion show. It was five at first sight, and Dorothy decided Will to take one of the leading parts in the show, and indeed her company to make another tour of the area in 1956. Will and Dorothy were married in April of that year.

INTERESTED IN COMMUNITY

Settled in Wellington, Dorothy immediately began to take an interest in the community. Will, the manager of Master Feeds, also finds time to sit on town council and is a volunteer fireman. Dorothy writes the Master Feeds monthly bulletin and enters into Will's extra-curricular activities in the role of a helpmate.

Not content with commercial writing, Dorothy often sits down and dashes off children's stories to the delight of her children, Robert, Dotty and Emily. The only "commercial" success Dorothy had with her children's fiction is when she sold a story, "The Faithful Reindeer," to Chatelaine in December, 1959.

Dorothy is determined to become a writer of fiction and is steeping herself in Canadiana by studying Grade 13 Canadian history and geography.

Last year, Dorothy handled a man-sized job with her ad selling for the Wellington Centennial Committee's official program, when the community celebrated its 100th year of existence.

And when she hasn't anything else to do, Dorothy takes time out for her hobbies, sewing and gardening, and chemixed in with her full-time job, housekeeping, cooking, interior decorating, painting, upholstering and her duties as a mother, make Dorothy a real busy gal."

RULED NOT NEGLIGENT

MONTREAL (CP) — Two former Quebec Provincial Police officers were acquitted Wednesday of criminal negligence charges resulting from the death of a prisoner in cells in 1962. Former constables Fernand Rose and Edouard Marone were freed by a jury after the prosecution announced "we have not proved the charges beyond a reasonable doubt." The victim, Paul Boutin, died in cells of a cerebral concussion.

Health Board Finds Schools In Good Shape

TRENTON—Following a surprise visit to Trenton schools last week, H. S. Pane, chairman of the Trenton Board of Health, board member, Miss Marjorie Gothard and Fire Chief, Cecil Ellis, agreed that the schools had never been in better shape. Their conclusions were announced by Mr. Pane at Wednesday's meeting of the health board. Floors were spotlessly clean and free from waxy paper and debris. The janitorial staffs at the schools were to be commended, said Mr. Pane.

In other health board business, Mr. Pane said he had arranged for all food handlers in town to carry cards attesting to the fact that they had x-rays for TB within the past few months.

WILL COMPETE

Both Ann Campbell of Trenton High School and Evelyn Garrett, St. Peter's School, will compete with other Ontario zone public speaking winners at the Royal Canadian Legion district contest in the Trenton Legion Hall on Sunday, starting at 1.30 p.m.

APPEAL FOR FUNDS

The Trenton and Air Force Boy Scouts District Councils have issued an appeal for funds to the public in this area. There are now 11 Beaver Scouts, 150 Boy Scouts and 450 Wolf Cubs in the area, making the Scout largest youth organization in the area.

Annually, the movement spends more than 1,600 on the training of leaders, camping requirements, dues and insurance, badges and uniforms. Much of this is raised by group committees connected with the movement.

The remaining one-third must come from public subscription. Donations may be sent to the Trenton District Boy Scout Council, Bank of Nova Scotia, Trenton.

Group Captain C. R. Thompson, Commanding Officer at No. 6 Repair Depot is RCAF council president and W. J. Wilkinson, Trenton council president.

New Zealanders Planning To Gain Control of Fishing

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

WELLINGTON (CP) — For years New Zealanders have watched a bountiful harvest swing won from the waters around their coasts and then disappear over the horizon.

The fishing is done by Japanese craft, which come 6,000 miles for it from their home ports. So good is the fish supply in New Zealand waters that no fewer than 17 Japanese companies have sought permits from their local authorities to send fleets to these fishing grounds.

Until now New Zealand has offered little competition. New Zealand fishing boats are small and they do not work at long distances from their 5 p.m 6 bases. They supply only the local market and a small export trade.

The New Zealand fishing industry claims that its high wage structure makes it impossible to compete on the world markets with fishing vessels from low wage countries like Japan. It has bitterly complained of "poaching" by Japanese vessels, but as long as these craft remain outside the three-mile limit there is no legal barrier to their presence.

N.Z. CASE WEAK

And as long as New Zealand was an isolationist country on the fishing waters, it had a weak case for demanding that other countries take action to keep the Japanese away.

In spite of many charges of Japanese fishing within the three-mile mark, few authenticated cases have been found.

Photographic proof of fishing to the limit of the continental shelf from each country's coastline—a distance of perhaps 25 miles in the case of New Zealand.

Saskatchewan Will Vote

Saskatchewan residents will go to the polls on Wednesday, April 22.

This will be one of the most interesting elections in Canada in years.

In the words of the TV admen, it offers not one, not two but three enticing ingredients.

Firstly there is the question of whether the prairie folk are ever going to get tired of their provincial governments, or whether they are prepared to settle down with one party for the rest of the century.

Secondly there is the equally intriguing question as to how much the Saskatchewan government's popularity depended on the acumen of Tommy Douglas, a former Baptist preacher with an irreverent sense of humor that once drove staid M. J. Coldwell right of the speaker's platform.

Thirdly, and perhaps more seriously, we shall be given an opportunity of learning just what the people think of medicare where it is an accomplished fact and not just a vote-getting promise.

Though almost ten years the junior of the Social Credit regime in Alberta, the C.C.F. government has held power in Saskatchewan for two decades. Its success used to be ascribed to Tommy Douglas, but he turned over the reins to Woodrow S. Lloyd in November of 1961, when Douglas accepted the national leadership of the New Democratic Party. It is interesting to note that in Saskatchewan the party still wears the old C.C.F. label.

Premier Lloyd had hardly been established in the seat of power when he was embroiled in a knock-down drag-out fight with Saskatchewan's doctors, over the province's medicare plan. Much has been heard on both sides of the argument. The April election will give us some opportunity to judge how the people of the province like medicare. It may well be, though, that the real issue will be whether the people of Saskatchewan think that the C.C.F., after twenty years is "too old to cut the mustard any more."

The Right to Inform

"In a democracy, the right of the people to be informed is a basic, essential principle." That sounds familiar. It is a favorite phrase of newspaper pleaders in the U.S. Sometimes it is trotted out to defend the intrusion of the television camera into the courtroom. On other occasions, it is used in a higher cause. The quotation above was taken from the Orillia Packet and Times, which adds that this principle is "rather misleadingly called 'freedom of the press'."

If this were what we meant when we talked about freedom of the press, then the latter phrase would indeed be misleading. Generally speaking, though, what users of this phrase mean is much simpler.

They want legislation but people need access to information and that unless this is provided the democratic process can be impeded. There is no question, either, but that freedom of the press helps to provide people with information they need.

Access to information can hardly be guaranteed to all by any government without the assistance of other agencies.

Freedom of the press is much simpler. It is the right to print anything one desires to do, subject only to the laws against treason, sedition, obscenity and libel. It does not require any government to guarantee anything, except to refrain from interference.

It is not a recognition of the right of the people to be informed. It is a recognition of the right of anyone to try to inform people.

The right to be informed cannot be provided without the right to inform, but the latter right is not for that reason the lesser, but infinitely the more important.

Human progress is very slow at first and accelerates progressively. A new way of polishing a diamond head might take ten thousand years to develop; a fighter aircraft today may be obsolete before it comes off the drawing board. Borrowing from other cultures speeds things up enormously. Borrowing, however, has usually been attended by violence and domination. In the world today there are still people at different stages in the time scale of technical development; can we devise ways by which not only can individuals cross that gap in time without being made bitter by personal humiliation, but also ways by which people can borrow without the violence and domination that have so often gone with the conquests and colonizations of the past?—Philip Mason, Director of the Institute of Race Relations, speaking on BBC.

How to Win Olympic Hockey

By CHRISTOPHER DAFOE
N. Y. Herald Tribune Press Syndicate

A thick cloud of gloom spread over the boys of the Gas Stove League the other night when the sad story came in. Bill "Sport" Wood, dean of the Canadian sports fraternity, glanced at his telegraph sighted, spat onto the glowing top of the pot-bellied stove, stood up, rose, lunged back in his chair and said: "Well, I told them. I told them in '32. I told them in '36. Send the Leafs. If Canada can't win the hockey championship on her shoulders she's a to...n at all. It's a disgrace. A national disgrace. Who invented hockey? Who was the first nation to put 18-year-old kids under professional wraps? We've worked hard. We deserve that hockey title.

"I told the boys on the Olympic committee they were nuts sending a bunch of college kids to play a man's game. The kids can skate sure, they can handle the puck. But what happens when the chips are on? What happens when the time comes to throw off the old gloves and punch a few noses? They haven't got it.

"Those kids haven't the experience. They need a few years of seasoning in the Canadian leagues to learn how to get the end of a stick into a man's ear without catching the eye of the referee. You have to tangle with the big boys to learn how to bounce a man off the boards so hard his chin cracks.

"No kid fresh out of university could be expected to know how to hook the point of his stick through a man's ankle to make him fall on his face on the ice. And, once he'd done that, he'd need a real experience and skill to stop him with both skates and still avoid a minor penalty.

"How many of those university kids would have the gumption to strike a man, let them bash the referee? Not one of the hockey players would have made mincemeat of the Czechs. The Russians would have gone under in a sea of blood, broken bones and smashed hockey sticks. Those lousy international rules wouldn't have counted for much if we'd sent some real Canadian sportsmen over to teach the foreigners a thing or two about how the game should be played.

"I'll say this for those university squads, though. I felt real good inside when I saw they'd walked out of the arena when the officials were presenting the medals. And what nerve! They just turned around and walked off and went back to their party at the hotel. Great kids.

"And how about the scrolls they got for being in fourth place? Said they felt like they deserved more than a certificate. Would never play again in Europe. You're got got to hand it to him. He really did us proud over there. Even in Germany, where Canada stands now. Dr. Hindmarch, I thought, was a bit reticent in his report when he 'fed up' and 'disgusted' but he might have followed Potter's lead and spoken up for Canada.

"Bauer I have no use for. A gold medal he gets. For keeping his temper. That's what happens when you send a Canadian in charge of the team. In Canadian hockey there's no room for 'turn the other cheek.' If Reg Fleming had turned the other cheek he'd have been sent to the minors years ago.

"I'm forming a committee to see that Canadian sportsmen get a fair deal in the next Olympics. I'm not looking for a price, would be prepared to defend Canadian honor. I'm only asking for a little sportsmanship on the part of the Olympic committee or whoever selects the team. It's time we gave the face to the Canadian sportsmanship has already suffered too many pointless defeats."

Did Druids Beat Euclid?

Montreal Gazette

Did Pythagoras discover the Pythagorean theorem in geometry? There is a chance it may have been known and used by inhabitants of the British Isles 4,000 years ago — some 1,500 years before Pythagoras. This is the conclusion of Professor Thom of Oxford University, who has examined some 400 megalithic temples (such as the famous Stonehenge) over the past 25 years.

Prof. Thom states that three of the temples are based "on exact Pythagorean triangles, as indicated by such a small amount that the discrepancy would hardly be apparent to the ground".

But this is not all. Prof. Thom, through his survey, concludes that the builders of the temples had a quite remarkable geometric knowledge. They had a basic unit of measurement, which is found in the megalithic yard. They measured the length of a curved line with an accuracy of 99.2 per cent. They knew the properties of several kinds of triangles.

In short, the megalithic builders display their geometrical knowledge in their constructions. The shapes and measurements they used are too consistent to be the result of chance. They were, it would appear, quite intelligent people, using systems that anticipated Pythagoras and Euclid.

High school students have long resigned themselves to the fact that the theorems they struggle to learn were mastered over 2,000 years ago. Now they may have to submit to the fact that much of their geometry was known 4,000 years ago by people usually dismissed with the word "primitive".

Strictly Personal
Is It True Some Cars Are Accident Prone

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Driving back from the airport to town, and witnessing the usual number of crackups, it occurred to me that our statistics are quite accurate as recorded in breadth, but not in depth.

It would be interesting (and, I think, illuminating) to know what makes and models of cars are involved in accidents in certain categories — to see if there is any significant correlation between the type and brand of car a motorist buys and the incidence of damage it is likely to do.

For example, I have a strong impression that a certain make of car — in the middle price bracket appeals to a specifically aggressive type of driver — or, at least, this seems to be its advertising appeal. Another make, in the same bracket, on the other hand, is identified in my mind with a more prudent and responsible kind of motorist.

As to automobiles involved in a high speed accident, what proportion to their numbers is the automobile population? It would be interesting to suggest that they are — and this is not an unfair or "put" test, I should think — more susceptible.

Contrariwise, it would be my guess that station wagons involved in fewer crackups than either convertibles or straight sedans — and many if not most of them are family cars, and are driven by women, who are more often driving fans they have, are modest and nonaggressive at the wheel.

The people who buy Volkswagens obviously are getting what traffic officers call "the right attitude" on the road. This may be partly because of the smallness and vulnerability of their vehicle, but I think it is more than that. They seem like sensible people, with decent values, and I would wager a similar amount that the accident rate is quite low among them.

Of course, the driver who "initiates" an accident is not the same as the one who "provokes" it. My special bete noire is the road in the "square" driver — usually a man between middle and old age, with defective vision, a rigid position at the wheel, a strong sense of his rights, and an unwillingness to let anyone pass him comfortably. This sort of driver is attracted to a particular kind of car, and I can spot him a half-mile off.

Most accidents, we now know, are caused more by psychological than by physical conditions. They have little to do with weather, road or traffic. But are some makes and models more "accident-prone" than others?

The women of King Street United Church played host to the Trenton Rotary Club Monday evening and the club members were most elated over the preparation made on their behalf.

Upon conclusion of the supper the meeting was turned over to the chairman of the Youth Service Committee, who then outlined to the club the arrangements which have been made and which are being completed this Sunday in all three other Youth Service program during the month of May. The ladies are youth of Trenton and surrounding district, no doubt will be pleased to hear that this year's event will at least be as fine as the one held last year, if not better.

We will admit that the chairman of the Youth Service Week did a grand job last year and that the chairman of the coming youth's program certainly has a high hurdle to maintain. The program is in the hands of an energetic Rotarian, however, and shortly after the finally met the bugler, she married him. Now she is LAW. The Board of Education will be request the City Council to provide the sum of $124,111.18 for the current year. This is an increase of $1,784.18 over last year.

A largely attended meeting of Association was held in the Sidney Town Hall. The meeting was presided over by Chairman Col. Roscoe Vanderwater, and Mrs. Vanderwater was manager of the refreshment department at the meeting. The special speaker was Mr. J. J. Duffus of Peterborough, Provincial Head of the Central Ontario Liberal Association. Mr. Peter McLaren, the local member, spoke briefly on things, brought greetings from his riding, and Dr. J. A. Faulkner, who is the Liberal candidate for West Hastings, gave an excellent address. The following officers were elected: Honorary president, Morley Harder; vice president, Morley Sine; women's vice president, Mrs. Roscoe Vanderwater; secretary treasurer, Earl Bonisteel. Among those present were: J. D. O'Flynn of Belleville, vice-president of West Hastings Liberal Association; G. Sills of Foxboro; H. To Your Good Health
No Sure Way to Determine 'Safe' and 'Unsafe' Days

By JOSEPH S. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please tell me the safe days during the month. I have been using condoms as pregnancy preventive. — Mrs. J. S.

There's no absolute answer as the "safe" days. There's no positive pattern, only an approximation.

Pregnancy begins when an ovum or egg, is fertilized. Periodically the pituitary gland exerts its influence to stimulate changes which cause the follicle in the ovary to rupture and emit an ovum about once a month.

The ovum then must be fertilized within its span of survival — believed to be from 13 to 48 hours. Thus the period of fertility is supposed to be about two days.

But the male sperm lives longer — two or three days or more. The sperm may have been deposited before the ovum appeared yet still fertilize it. So we now have a period perhaps of four or five days in which pregnancy may occur.

Now suppose (as it is quite possible) one factor or another results in an ovum being released a day or two sooner or later than usual. The fertile span is thus extended that much more. Do you see now why we have trouble saying when the "safe" and the "fertile" periods will be?

Ordinarily — ordinarily, I repeat — an ovum is released about the 14th day after the beginning of the last menstrual period. That is the average for women with a 28-or 30-day cycle. When the cycle is markedly different from this, and particularly when it is irregular, it is believed that ovulation occurs 14 days before the onset of the next period.

In other words, afterward you can count back and figure out when the ovum appeared, but this is no use at all in trying to look ahead and figure the next fertile period.

So all we can say with certainty is that fertility will be lowest just before or just after the period, and, usually, at its highest at about mid-cycle, halfway between the beginning of one period and the beginning of the next. And you are very regular.

It is, in fact, much simpler and far more precise to discover when a woman is fertile than to say or when she isn't or won't be.

Ovulation is usually associated with a slight rise in body temperature (hence women seeking to become pregnant often keep a daily temperature chart, watching for that rise). Some experience a sharp pain in the abdomen (known as Mittelschmerz") when the follicle ruptures and the ovum emerges. Most don't feel anything.

There is also likely to be a slight increase in vaginal secretion at this time.

Thus the information in today's column will be of much more value to those women who want to know when they have become fertile, and to those who want to know when they won't.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a sore or ulcer on my pubic hair. I won't lead. I smoke. Do you think that would be a danger? Are there any pills I could take to dry it up, or any ointment? — E. P.

Without seeing the ulcer, I can't give positive answers, but here are some probable ones:

Such stubborn ulcers usually are related to poor circulation — and smoking, since it constricts small arteries, does interfere with circulation and hence with healing.

It is unlikely that either pills or ointments will be the solution. Almost always varicose veins (if you have that trouble) often helps, or your doctor may be able to use some other methods.

Dear Dr. Molner: What bearing, if any does, overweight have on inability to conceive? — M. H.

It is one cause of difficulty in becoming pregnant.

Fat! My leaflet, "The Lost Secret of Reducing," tells how to get rid of it the easy way. For your copy write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 156, Dundee, Ill., enclosing a long self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 10c in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Asians Fear African Rule

Dawn, Karachi, Pakistan

The Asian community in the emergent countries of East Africa, which formerly enjoyed the protection and, not' uncitten, the patronage of the British Colonial rulers, is now faced with the problem of adapting itself to the completely changed circumstances created by the advent of freedom in the region.

Some Asians are apparently inclined to act on their first impulse and do not seem to be making a hard enough to change their outlook. Some 3,000 Asian civil servants in Kenya, Uganda and Tanganyika have tendered their resignations recently. It is said that they took this decision because of the withdrawal of certain laws and house rent facilities.

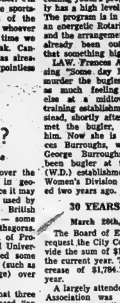
Another major development was the recent decision of India to acquire British passport, in disregard of the advice of Mr. Krishna Menon, India's Constitutional Affairs, that minority groups should show faith in the country by taking out Kenya citizenship.

These facts show that sections of Asians belonging to the middle class are not trying to restrain their reactions.

The different classes comprised in the large Asian community have by and large retained their non-African identity.

The Asians enjoyed considerable economic standing under colonial rule, and a majority of them kept themselves aloof from the African struggle for independence.

It is little wonder therefore that this Asian community has failed to understand and sympathize with East Africa's present rate of progress in Africanization, and seen in this natural process a threat to their own material well-being and future prospects.



It is true that the Asian community has done much good lately to the African masses, and there have been quite a few occasions when African discontent of Asians has expressed itself in unpleasing ways.

But the government of the three countries have felt themselves totally responsible for the safety and well-being of Asians as long as they are prepared to accept the new Africa they are living in.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — The 115-stock Exchange index pushed into new ground for the second time this week with a gain of .17 to 132.34 in moderate morning trading on the stock market today.

The western oils index established a 1964 high, rising .90 to 9.64 while the industrial index advanced .14 to 142.77, just .11 short of the record 142.88 set in January. Base metals were also ahead .18 to 68.44 and golds dipped .67 to 135.27. Volume at 11 a.m. was 1,209,000 shares compared with 1,173,000 at the same time Thursday.

Prices were spotty on the industrial board. Zellers was the point to 39¾ directors Thursday announced a proposed four-for-one stock split—Pacific Petroleum B and Trans - Canada Pipe Line ¼ while General Motors declined ¼ and Royal Bank ¼.

Noranada slipped ¼ in senior base metals. Giant Yellowknife was down ¼ in senior golds.

Consolidated Marbenor rose six cents to $1.20 and American Ledue fell three cents to 25 cents among speculative issues.

Golds were erratic most of Thursday but closed 2.21 ahead on index.

Dome Mines rose ½ to 39¾, Giant Yellowknife ⅝ to 11¼ and Placer ¼ to 31 among senior golds. Consolidated Marbenor gained eight cents to $1.24 among speculative golds.

The exchange index has recovered from the decline experienced at the end of January, and through February and moved into new ground in the early afternoon. However, it slipped back towards the close and ended the day up .24 at 133.37.

Pipelines and distilleries were stronger on the industrial board, Westcoast gaining ¾ to 17¾ and Trans-Canada ¼ to 39¼ among the former, while Walker - Gooderham advanced ¾ to 32¾ and Distillers-Seagrams and Corby Voting ¼ each to 53¾ and 30¾ respectively among the latter.

BANKS RECOVER

Chartered banks recovered from earlier losses and closed with Royal ahead ¼ to 72¾ and Montreal and Toronto-Dominion ½ each to 61¾. Nova Scotia declined ¼ to 68¾.

Among selected issues, Fanny Farmer rose 2¼ to 42¾ and Ontario Steel one point to 20. General Motors fell one point to 90 and Burns ½ to 19¼. Imperial Life dropped 20 points to $250 on 500 shares.

Hudson Bay Mining declined ⅛ to 65½ and Noranda advanced ¼ to 44¾ in senior base metals.

Speculative trading was active with Yankee Canuck the heavy trader on a turnover of 201,200 shares, up ½ cent to six cents. Magnet gained one cent to eight cents.

Dome Petroleum was down ⅛ to 15 among senior oils.

The exchange index rose .24 to 132.77, industrials .30 to 142.63, golds 2.21 to 135.94, base metals dipped .29 to 68.29 and western oils .01 to 84.05. Volume for the day was 3,962,000 shares compared with 4,446,000 Wednesday.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP)—Trading on slaughter cattle was uneven at the Ontario public stockyards this week.

Prices on top grades of steers, heifers and yearlings were unchanged with the lower grades of steers and heifers finding it difficult to maintain steady prices.

Cow prices lower and bull prices were steady. Replacement cattle sold on a moderate demand at steady prices.

Veal calf prices were lower. Hog prices were lower and lamb prices were higher.

Cattle receipts were estimated at about 7,500 head, about 1,300 head less than last week and about 500 head less than the same week in 1964. Western cattle receipts were 132 head compared with last week at 577 head and included some well finished fat cattle. Western stock calf receipts were 80 head as compared with 250 head last week. There were no receipts from the maritimes or Quebec. Twenty-six cattle were shipped to Eastern Canada slaughtering and 110 veal calves were shipped off the market for slaughter in the United States.

Slaughter cattle: Choice steers sold at $23.50-24.50 with good 22.50-23.50; medium 21.50-22.50; common 17-19; choice heifers 22-22.50 with good fancy feedlot heifers to 22; good 20.50-21.50; medium 18-20; common 15-17; choice fed yearlings 24-25; good 22-24; good cows 15.50-16.50 with sales to 17; medium 14-15; canners and cutters 11-14; good heavy bologna bulls 19-19.50 with odd tops to 20; common and medium 16-18.50.

Turks' Roadblocks Removed Easing Danger of Flareup

By HAL McCLURE

NICOSIA (AP) — Roadblocks erected by Turkish-Cypriots in a village west of Nicosia were pulled down today, easing the possibility of another flareup in the area.

Only a few miles away, however, Greek and Turkish-Cypriots reported new skirmishes in opposing positions.

The roadblocks went down in the Kokkina village of Ghaziveran, and attacking Greek-Cypriot soldiers after the arrival of a British peacekeeping contingent. Five Turkish-Cypriots and a Greek-Cypriot were killed in a daylong battle Thursday.

Some 200 to 300 Greek-Cypriots buried bazooka and machine-gun fire at Ghaziveran, 28 miles west of Nicosia, after the villagers refused to lower roadblocks on the main road to the west of the island.

At the height of the battle, the Turks repulsed an armored bulldozer and explosives.

The sudden arrival of several dozen photographers and correspondents brought a halt to the Turkish-Cypriot firing—recited at feeding Greek-Cypriot police.

Pier Spinelli of Italy, UN Secretary-General U. Thant's representative, flew to the scene from Nicosia. British forces and arranged a cease-fire.

Fighting also occurred Thursday at the mixed village of Kaishkoro, 4 miles southwest of Ghaziveran. Each side suffered dead. Greek and Turkish Cypriot fighters continued to glare at each other from dug-in positions today.

British troops spent the night in Ghaziveran guarding about 500 women and children in a school.

It was a touching scene today when women and children poured from the schoolhouse and began searching for their missing husbands and sons among citrus trees and cypress rows surrounding the town.

Their cries pierced the early dawn light when a new body was found.

Test for Lodge?

U.S. Primaries Readying For 'Hog-and-Rail' State

By HAROLD M'ORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — The big "sleepers" of the Republican preliminary bouts may take place in April in the hog-and-rail state of Illinois. It is there perhaps more than any other region where Henry Cabot Lodge's true popularity may be tested.

Without a single personal appearance, Lodge has made ambassador to South Viet Nam scored a stunning upset in the March 10 New Hampshire primary where he swept aside heavyweights Barry Goldwater and Nelson Rockefeller.

Lodge now has 14 of the 655 votes needed to win the Republican party's presidential nomination in July. As the figures suggest, such New Hampshire victory is minuscule in terms of power at the San Francisco convention.

Goldwater, the Arizona senator can boast of assurances of getting solid blocks and spot votes from the western and southwestern states. Rockefeller, the New York governor whose White House prospects have been largely demolished, can say he has the Pennsylvania GOP delegation locked up and that's 82 votes.

Illinois with a lot more votes if he is to eliminate the widely held interpretation that New Hampshire proved is that the party is somewhat fragmented; that a man of real leader stuff goes on, with a lot of attention on Pennsylvania Governor William Scranton, is the way the disinterested observer with cool disdain.

SCRANTON FORMALITY

The next primary is in Wisconsin April 7 with 30 convention votes but it will be a formality because the delegation will be pledged to Congressman Melvin Laird.

Organized

ness - type frauds and even blago.

The royal commission found no evidence that anyone engaged in organized crime in Ontario was tied in with the Mafia, but the latest inquiry tied the Mafia into a whole series of involvements including:

1. Some Mafia members made efforts to gain control of certain organized criminal operations but were balked apparently largely as the result of effective law enforcement.

2. Four unsolved killings or disappearances between 1938 and 1960 either were ascribed to the Mafia or were of a Mafia type.

HEARS ABOUT LAWYER

3. The commission was told by Mafia - Cosa Nostra turncoat Joseph Valachi in Washington that an Ontario lawyer, whose identity the commission knows, is a member of the Mafia. The commission added it has "credible information" that possibly two lawyers took an unspecified part in the activities of clients belonging to the Mafia.

4. Valachi labelled three Toronto-Hamilton men—one murdered in gangland style in 1960 —as Mafiosi, and the commission said its information indicates about 30 men in Toronto, Hamilton and Guelph are members of a Mafia unit or "family" controlled from Buffalo, N.Y.

5. The commission revealed that it had dug up on its own the rarity of a former member of the Mafia—which is supposed to prevent death for such a revelation—and to have taken evidence from him in secret. It barely mentioned this, beyond saying he provided "good background" on Canadian Mafia activities.

The commission said Valachi confirmed long-standing police suspicions that Vincent Agueci of Toronto, narcotics ring suspect whose chauffeur body was found in Rochester, Rochester, N.Y., was killed by the Buffalo "mob" headed by Stephen Maganddino while he was on bail on a New York narcotics charge.

Valachi also said Agueci was a member of Cosa Nostra under the Buffalo group along with his brother Vito and Johnny Papalia of Hamilton, the latter two since convicted of narcotics conspiracy in New York.

BLAMES MAFIA

The commission also said at the close of the Buffalo group th. 1959 disappearance of Peter (Scrip) Mitchell, a miner gambling figure at Niagara Falls, N.Y., and remarked on Mafia-like aspects of the murder of one Italian bootlegger and the disappearance of another at Guelph.

Material concerning the activities of the lawyers — neither of whom is involved in the report—will be studied by W. C. Bowman, director of prosecutions, Attorney General Cass told a press conference.

He said he was "astounded" that the cross-references to them were included in the report, but the commission said it had no apologies for making the matter public.

Mr. Cass said he had argued with Commission chairman Judge Roger Brossard of Montreal when they returned to the bench over the propriety of making public references to possibly innocent persons or men with cases pending before the courts but the Judge had been insistent that all the report be issued, and he had capitulated by tabling an unedited version.

The attorney - general also took issue with the No. 1 recommendation of the commission—that it should be placed beyond any political control. He rejected this, saying any police body must be responsible to the legislature.

PUT ASIDE

Actually, one aspect of his proposed legislation shunted the commission to one side so far as the Ontario Provincial Police are concerned, linking the police directly to the legislature by way of the attorney-general.

But the commission's crime investigating powers would be strengthened enormously under other amendments to the Police Act and Criminal Code are many one in secret, question him without counsel and jail him indefinitely without the right of appeal—for refusing to answer questions.

A recommendation of the commission for amalgamating smaller police forces was received coolly. Mr. Cass said it was sound in principle but indicated he considered it unworkable now.

He was non - committal on a commission recommendation for legislation to authorize the use of electronic eavesdropping information as court evidence. This was a federal matter.

Nor did Mr. Cass on commission recommendation that radio and TV stations broadcasting horse-racing results be prosecuted. The commission contended these helped bookies and helped eliminate the need for special racing news services.

The attorney said the ban on broadcasting of results did not appear to constitute an offence.

PLANS ACTION

The attorney - general said he planned implementation "one way or another," of some other commission recommendations, though he did not specify which. The recommendations included:

The right of police to demand identification of suspected criminals; police powers to inspect photographs of the owners; restriction of firearms to those who have a real need in the pursuit; licensing of car rental agencies and repair shops.

Mr. Cass said consideration was for the establishment of an "intelligence" system to operate among Ontario police forces and co-operate with other bodies outside the province.

ATTENTION

"I agree it has to be used with discretion . . . we always have to be responsible to the people . . . we must never lose sight of that.

"Naturally it interferes with individual rights, but it is imposed on the people all always repeal it through their elected representatives."

The individual would be subpoenaed, not arrested, the commission chairman said, but if he did not appear before the commission he could be compelled.

Mr. Milligan contended the basic elements of the legislation corresponded to what is practised in courts of law.

He emphasized the eight-day period of imprisonment was a maximum for contempt of the commission, but agreed that technically it could be maintained in perpetuity. The person would not need bail because he would not be under arrest.

Opposition members of the Ontario legislature were outraged at the content of the bill.

NEGATE PRINCIPLES

"It negates basic principles or British justice that took so many years to establish," said Vernon Singer, Liberal member representing Toronto Downsview.

"This type of legislation is more appropriate to the Star Chamber of Nazi Germany, or South Africa with its current racial laws."

The bill was referred to as a "foul piece of legislation" by Elmer Sopha (L — Sudbury). Both Mr. Sopha and Mr. Singer are lawyers.

"The cure is worse than the disease," said Donald C. MacDonald, the non-lawyer leader of the New Democratic Party. "The legislation would be a threat to civil rights in general."

Attorney - General Cass told reporters at Queen's Park that the bill would render the police commission a body from whose decisions there could be no appeal.

The three - man commission would not answer to anyone, except for an annual report to the attorney - general. And what was included in the annual report would be entirely at the discretion of the police commission.

LEGISLATURE CONTROLS

Only the Ontario legislature could exercise control over the commission by legislating it out of existence.

Newspaper men asked Mr. Cass to state whether this hypothetical situation could occur.

The police commission's agents, Mr. Cass said, would be out of the street. The person is brought before the commission incommunicado and ordered to take the oath and to testify. The person is offered no legal counsel. He is not informed of his rights under the Canada Evidence Act or the Ontario Evidence Act.

The person refuses to testify. He is summarily thrown in jail for eight days, then brought before the commission again.

Mr. Cass confirmed that this hypothetical situation could become a reality under the proposed legislation.

However, he said, in practice it would not happen.

Of the chairman of the commission, Mr. Milligan, Mr. Cass said:

"One thing Mr. Milligan has a reputation for is that you have a fair shake."

MAY ALLOW COUNSEL

The attorney - general said the chairman may wish to allow witnesses the benefit of legal counsel. The chairman would also inform witnesses of their rights under the evidence acts.

The intent of the legislation was not to require persons to give evidence that might incriminate them, said Mr. Cass, but to force them to tell what they knew of the actions of others.

Although the legislation does not call it such, the answers given by witnesses would not in practice be used against them, he said.

Mr. Cass said the government was introducing the legislation on the recommendation of Judge Bruce Macdonald, former chairman of the police commission, and Mr. Milligan, who took over the post in February.

At the same time, the government moved to divorce the police commission of its control over the provincial police. The OPP will be made directly responsible to the legislature through the attorney - general's department.

Mr. Cass said it would be a terrible thing if the police commission, with its contemplated new powers, were also to have control over the police.

SEES FIRST STEP

Such a thing, would be "the first step in the creation of a police state," he said.

The police commission had asked for unusual powers of investigation because of the futility of Ontario's two inquiries into organized crime — the Roach royal commission on crime, and the Ontario Police Commission's report on organized crime, which Mr. Cass tabled in the legislature Thursday.

Referring to the latter report, the attorney - general said: "While this provides some good reading material, it doesn't give us very much to go on."

Unless the three police commissioners were given drastic powers, their investigation they undertook would "be as abortive as the previous ones."

While other two members of the police commission are Magistrate T. J. Graham and Major-Gen. H. A. Sparling.

Mr. Cass would not offer an opinion on whether the powers to be given to the police commission might be considered ultra vires the Ontario legislature. This was something that would have to be decided by the courts.

WON'T COMMENT

He also declined to comment on whether the government would allow members of its party a free vote on the legislation when it comes before committees of the whole house.

Mr. Cass said he anticipates no demands for a free vote within the Conservative party.

Two Conservative backbenchers who have lawyers as clients guarded criticism of the measure.

"Justice shouldn't have to fight fire with fire," said Allan Lawrence (PC — Toronto St. George).

Alan Eagleson, the young member from Toronto Lakeshore, said he disagreed with parts of the bill.

The bill itself is a lengthy piece of legislation of which the police commission's powers are only a part.

The new section provides the machinery necessary for the commission to investigate matters relating to the extent, investigation or control of crime in Ontario," say the explanatory notes attached to the bill.

Reacts

retary of the Association for Civil Liberties, declared: "I want to see it (the bill). If he (Mr. Cass) has in mind what you say, he has waved the gestapo flag. "God help us."

ALLOWS SENTENCES

The legislation would allow the Ontario Police Commission, under the chairmanship of former crown prosecutor Percy Milligan of Cornwall, to summon anyone to eight days in jail for refusing to testify before the commission.

At the end of the eight-day period, the reluctant witness again would be brought before the commission. If he still refused to take the oath or to testify, he would again be incarcerated for eight days.

This procedure could be followed until the witness relented.

The witness would not be allowed the benefit of legal counsel in his appearance before the police commission.

It would not be mandatory for the chairman of the commission to inform the witness of his right to cite the Canada Evidence Act or the Ontario Evidence Act.

WOULD TELL WITNESS

Attorney-General Cass told a press conference that, in practice, the commission chairman would inform a witness of his right to invoke the evidence acts.

The Canada and Ontario Evidence Acts state that whatever testimony a witness gives may not be used as the basis of prosecutions against him.

Mr. Cass said it was true the proposed legislation would infringe upon the rights of the individual, but this was considered necessary for the public good.

He referred to the powers to be given to the police commission as "terrible, dangerous and frightful."

But the government believed that because of the real possibility of organized crime creeping into Ontario, the rights of individuals might have to be abrogated for the public good.

"We think these are very, very extraordinary powers," said Mr. Cass, "but we're going to take a try at it."

HAS EVIDENCE

The government had evidence that there were persons "trying to organize and syndicate crime in Ontario."

The advice given to the government was that only drastic means could thwart this movement.

Mr. Cass admitted that the bill was "unusual-legislation in a free country."

He was asked if such powers would be suspended when the state of emergency was over.

The attorney - general replied that after reading reports by a royal commission headed by Mr. Justice W. D. Roach, published last year, and the current police commission report, "that time of emergency will never cease."

It is day-to-day problem and we have to keep on top of it.

Mr. Milligan said he approved of the legislation because he considered it necessary.

NEED DIRECTION

"I agree it has to be used with discretion . . . we always have to be responsible to the people . . . we must never lose sight of that.

"Naturally it interferes with individual rights, but it is imposed on the people all always repeal it through their elected representatives."

The individual would be subpoenaed, not arrested, the commission chairman said, but if he did not appear before the commission he could be compelled.

Mr. Milligan contended the basic elements of the legislation corresponded to what is practised in courts of law.

He emphasized the eight-day period of imprisonment was a maximum for contempt of the commission, but agreed that technically it could be maintained in perpetuity. The person would not need bail because he would not be under arrest.

Opposition members of the Ontario legislature were outraged at the content of the bill.

NEGATE PRINCIPLES

"It negates basic principles or British justice that took so many years to establish," said Vernon Singer, Liberal member representing Toronto Downsview.

"This type of legislation is more appropriate to the Star Chamber of Nazi Germany, or South Africa with its current racial laws."

The bill was referred to as a "foul piece of legislation" by Elmer Sopha (L — Sudbury). Both Mr. Sopha and Mr. Singer are lawyers.

"The cure is worse than the disease," said Donald C. MacDonald, the non-lawyer leader of the New Democratic Party. "The legislation would be a threat to civil rights in general."

Attorney - General Cass told reporters at Queen's Park that the bill would render the police commission a body from whose decisions there could be no appeal.

The three - man commission would not answer to anyone, except for an annual report to the attorney - general. And what was included in the annual report would be entirely at the discretion of the police commission.

LEGISLATURE CONTROLS

Only the Ontario legislature could exercise control over the commission by legislating it out of existence.

Newspaper men asked Mr. Cass to state whether this hypothetical situation could occur.

The police commission's agents, Mr. Cass said, would be out of the street. The person is brought before the commission incommunicado and ordered to take the oath and to testify. The person is offered no legal counsel. He is not informed of his rights under the Canada Evidence Act or the Ontario Evidence Act.

The person refuses to testify. He is summarily thrown in jail for eight days, then brought before the commission again.

Mr. Cass confirmed that this hypothetical situation could become a reality under the proposed legislation.

However, he said, in practice it would not happen.

Of the chairman of the commission, Mr. Milligan, Mr. Cass said:

"One thing Mr. Milligan has a reputation for is that you have a fair shake."

MAY ALLOW COUNSEL

The attorney - general said the chairman may wish to allow witnesses the benefit of

Legal Off-Track Betting Would Not Get Rid of Bookmaker Says RCMP

TORONTO (CP) — The officers of the RCMP doubt that legal off-track betting would get rid of the bookmaker, the Ontario Police Commission said Thursday in a special report on organized crime tabled in the legislature.

The commission, which conferred in November with RCMP Commissioner George McClellan and other officers, said they expressed the conviction that gambling is the "root of all evil" in organized crime.

"If finances narcotics purchases and frauds of various kinds, loansharking and even assisting business into which the money is diverted," the report added.

It said the RCMP view was that gamblers would move in if off-track betting was legalized, and the same would apply to the legalized supply of narcotics.

The commission said the RCMP found that there are independent organizations that are solely engaged in the narcotics traffic, and it could not be said that they are tied in with any particular organization, "Mafia-like or otherwise."

Crime by Regions Surveyed by Police Board

TORONTO (CP) — Crime by regions was surveyed by the Ontario Police Commission at a meeting in Surrey with commissioners present.

The theme, as revealed to the board, was "The Criminal and His Environment."

The theme was developed by a study of "problem areas" in which police officers from local communities participated.

Windsor-Sarnia-Chatham; Cornwall and Hamilton were also studied but there is little information available on these areas, it was said.

Theft ring operations out of Quebec in autos and organized crime in Hamilton were also studied.

Bookmaking in Hamilton with slowing-up collection) and counterfeiting was highly developed.

Hog Producers Want Better Quality Pigs

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Hog Producers' Association Thursday voted to ask the federal government to raise the price for grading down on carcasses with an excessive quality pigs.

A resolution passed by the association's annual meeting asks the government to increase the price of carcass bonuses to Ontario's 31 million bacon hogs identified as "acceptable" by packing plants.

The Ontario Bureau of Statistics, association president, said this would enable the industry to quickly eliminate the declining soft pork problem. A department spokesman in Ottawa said the request would be considered.

Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett Keeps Out of Politics

VICTORIA (CP) — Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett, wife of the man who has headed British Columbia's Social Credit government since 1952, has one cardinal rule: Keep a comfortable home for him but stay out of his political life.

You can help your husband by staying at home, calm, collected and ready to cheer him up when he arrives, says Mrs. Bennett.

She admits political meetings make her nervous, especially when it's her husband getting a verbal lambasting on the platform. She used to go to meetings in her husband's early political tilts but "if they started heckling I would get upset."

Mrs. Bennett never makes speeches herself, except a few words at teas and the like, and never listens to the premier's radio or TV addresses, even at election time.

MRS. W. A. C. BENNETT

Asked why she thinks wives should stay out of their husband's political career, she replied: "That's his job. You wouldn't go to his office or his store, now would you?"

Mrs. Bennett was born May Richards in a small Vancouver Island community near Nanaimo. Her family moved to rural Alberta when she was a child and she remembers the bitter winter cold and going to school with a brother in a horse and buggy.

BECAME TEACHER

Then the family went to Edmonton and May Richards became a school teacher. She also joined an inter-denominational young people's group and met Cecil Bennett, then called Bill by most of his friends.

She taught elementary school for 12 years before her marriage and has ideas about education based on her own experience. Children "should not be pushed" into the world too soon, she says, and the bright ones should not be separated from the not-so-bright in classes —"children can be cruel if you are in the dumb class."

The Bennetts were married 27 years ago and moved to Westlock, Alta., where the young Mr. Bennett had a hardware store. Their daughter Nita—now Mrs. G. H. Toner and a high school teacher in Westbank, B.C.—was born there. The family moved to Kelowna, B.C., in the Okanagan Valley soon after.

They have lived almost since then in the family residence, Brookside, in Kelowna. Sons Russell—called R. J. because his sister Nita couldn't say Russell—and Bill were born there and now run the family business in Kelowna.

Mrs. Bennett is also mistress of two other Bennett residences —both modest. One is a medium-size apartment overlooking picturesque Oak Bay in Victoria and used when the premier is working in the capital. The other is a charming timbered cottage on Saltspring Island in the Gulf of Georgia where the Bennetts often spend summer weekends.

Successful Night Classes W.I. Sponsored

WELLINGTON — Another successful night school terminated at the Wellington school on March 15th. This school was sponsored by the Wellington Women's Institute and directed by Community Programs Branch of Department of Education, with Mr. Don Maddock of Belleville, district representative and the Department of Agriculture with Mr. Ivan Bell of Picton, is the district representative.

About 30 attended the "Open House" on Wednesday evening.

Nine courses were conducted at the school which started on November 20th with 116 registered.

"Soils and Crops" under the direction of Mr. Ivan Bell and representatives from the department of Agriculture, had the most registrations, 21, in all. Oil painting with Mrs. Evans of Picton as instructor, came second with 19 registrations. Upholstering, with Mr. Udell of Belleville, in charge, came third with 16 registrations. Millinery was fourth, directed by Mrs. Wheeler of Bellevile, with 14 registrations.

Copper tooling was fifth, in charge of Mrs. Summers, of Belleville, with 12 registrations. Welding was sixth, Mr. Jerry Ball of Wellington, instructing, with 11 registrations. Needlecraft, directed by Mrs. Webber of Picton and motor mechanics, by Mr. George Maycock of Wellington, both having ten registrations. Sewing came last in charge of Mrs. Elmer Young of Redneryille, with nine registrations.

A good attendance was maintained during the course.

After completing their prize projects and arranging them for display in the gymnasium, everyone assembled in the school auditorium.

Mr. C. M. L. Snider, chairman of the committee and principal of the school, spoke briefly and then Sam Tripp introduced the "officers and committee, members: secretary, Mrs. Jack Ogilvy; treasurer, Mrs. J. Callow; committee members, Mrs. Jim Barrett, Mr. Wilmot Conley, Mr. Murray Wiltse, Mr. Bob Quick and Mr. Gordon Nelson.

Mr. Snider introduced the representatives of the Department of Education, Mr. Don Maddock, the representative of Agriculture, Mr. Ivan Bell of Picton, and the night school class' instructors. Brief remarks were made by the department representatives and the class instructors.

After these remarks everyone proceeded to the gymnasium to view the work that had been accomplished, which was on display.

Refreshments were served in the basement of the school by members of the Women's Institute, thus bringing to a close another educational and interesting term.

Church Groups

St Margaret's Evening Guild met March 2nd in the church hall During the business meeting the members decided to proceed with the 'Golden Book for Christ' plan as one of their projects. Mrs. G. A. Duplop was introduced as the special speaker for the evening Her interesting topic was the Woman's Auxiliary of the Church, its history and the important work which this organization fulfills.

The next meeting for the month was held on March 16th also with a good attendance. After the business was concluded, the members of the Guild made the palm crosses which are distributed to the Sunday School and congregation on Palm Sunday.

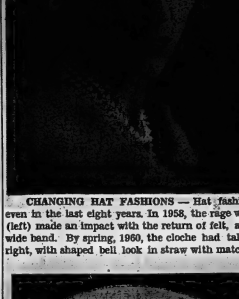
Plans and refreshments for both meetings were arranged by Mrs. W. J. Black and her group.

U.C.W. Meeting

COLLEGE HILL

The Afternoon Unit of College Hill U.C.W. was held in the ladies' parlor on Wednesday, with 15 members answering the roll call, reporting 43 sick calls. Unit leaders Mrs. A. Dickens opened with the theme hymn and reading in unison of the U.C.W. theme. It was announced that a member, Mrs. Smith, had undergone surgery in a Kingston hospital; that the piano purchased by the ladies had arrived, and that Mrs. Alistair Haig would be the speaker at the meeting on March 20th. The Hazil-Notes with the picture of the church on them were on display and a number of the ladies took an allotment of them to sell.

With the balance of the business dealt with the meeting was turned over to the group in charge of devotions, Mesdames A. Greenwood, R. Vesey, K. Belcour and H. Clarke who used the theme "God Acts." Following this Mrs. C. Bailey conducted the study book portion still dealing with India which shows how she is modernizing her way of thinking of freedom for everyone with a new democratic way of life and living. With a present population of 440 million the cities find it difficult to deal with the rapid expansion of 5 million yearly. Their film industry is third largest in the world. An article was read by Mrs. A. Dickens on Canadian Youth in India and one by Mrs. C. Bailey on Indian Youth in Canada, depicting how differently each had been raised re thinking and customs.



At the close of the study book reading a discussion period was held followed by a social half hour with Mrs. C. Bailey in charge of refreshments.

SALEM U.C.W.

MINTO—The March meeting of Salem U.C.W. was held in the church hall on Thursday, with Mrs. Tom Clements as hostess. A quilt was quilted with a dinner served at noon.

During the afternoon the president, E. Sine conducted the meeting and welcomed all. Minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. Stanley Thompson in the absence of the secretary, Mrs. B. Sine. A letter of thanks was extended to Mr. Stewart Brady, who had done work in the hall. Some items of business were discussed. Plans for a wedding and the sale were completed.

Mrs. Everett Sine presided over the piano. Mrs. S. Thompson and Mrs. Sine conducted a study and question period on the book of Ruth. Mrs. E. Sine gave a well prepared paper on "The Bible and Why Read It?"

CHANGING HAT FASHIONS — Hat fashions have changed considerably, even in the last eight years. In 1958, the rage was tall hats, but the small cloche (left) made an impact with the return of felt, as in this ice cream model with wide band. By spring, 1960, the cloche had taken on height as its model on right, with shaped bell look in straw with matching color belt and buckle. (CP Photo)

Queen Who Was Guillotined Marie Antoinette Set Record in Hat Styles

By MARGARET NESS

Between 1784 and 1786, Marie Antoinette the ill-fated Queen of France, was responsible for 17 changes in hat styles.

That's a record that's not likely to be broken.

Trend-setting designers today are pretty well limited by the changing of the seasons and in particular basic style catches on it may last through several years with variations.

Still, a lot has happened to hats since the beginning of the 20th century, a period which has seen everything from skyscraper fashions to kerchiefs and, for a period, even no hats at all.

The 1900s rode in with enormous hats heaped high with feathers, jewels and flowers, the result of the Edwardian influence. Anyone who has seen the musical My Fair Lady will recall these handsome creations as designed by Cecil Beaton.

In 1907 the motion picture theatres flashed written requests on the silent screens asking ladies to remove their hats during the performance. No one could possibly see through, over or around those cartwheel sailors and feathered concoctions.

CLOCHE IS HIT

After the First World War, hats changed completely. The 1920s and '30s are identified with the cloche. Made of felt, it was skull-tight, off-the-face and side-manipulated. Usually it was worn with all costumes during every season and from daytime to after-five.

This spring Sally Victor reached back into that period. She created a whole series of off-the-face, side-swept hats and named them after the movie stars of that era. Included is a Norma Talmadge cloche in pale pink linen straw with the brim folding away from the brow and draped at the back.

There were other hat shapes in the '20s, including the Garbo slouch and the turban, introduced in 1939 and now a classic, but the cloche dominated.

Right up to the Second World War sombreros, girls and children wore hats. It was unthinkable to go out bare-headed. Kerchiefs were then just quaint head coverings worn by European peasants.

The war changed all this. Girls and women in factories were kerchiefs to protect their hair from catching in the machinery. It became part of their life. Materials were scarce and women began to go shopping without hats.

DIOR DOES IT

The year 1947 was a fashion milestone. Materials became plentiful again, Christian Dior introduced the New Look and women had not only hats but they wanted either big hats or frivolous hats to go with them to be known as hat-hats.

However, they didn't go back to hats for all outdoor activities. The no-hat and the kerchief had achieved a certain status that continues right to this season.

The 1950s ushered in a certain simplicity in millinery and an interest in small hats. But they usually hats started getting bigger and by 1955 "mushroom" styles were balancing slim spring coats and suits. These were big but not bulky, and for spring there were lots of flowers and fruits.

In 1956 Emme of New York was softly laying the little hat to rest. The bulky look was definitely on the way in. It still had an airy feeling, however, and indeed, the larger the hat the lighter it was seemingly to look. This was achieved by swathings of tulle or organza or by soufflé treatment of the crown rather than brim width was the popular silhouette. This could almost be called the dome - shaped year, although many hats did achieve real width, some measuring 18 inches from edge to edge.

BEIGE LED WAY

Hats were worn straight on the head or tilted forward 'do-woman' fashion in the brow. And beige was the predominant color. Spring 1956 was again an important season for flowers.

The following year felts came back into the spring picture for the first time in many years. Flowers remained popular. Hats continued to get bigger and flatter.

In 1959 the word "towering" entered the fashion vocabulary. White swept into vogue. The next year the word was "sky-high." There were ballistic domes, skyscraper toques, high-riding turbans and oversized cloches.

There was less weight and actual bulk, however. This was the year of pale neutral shades —a lack of real color in washed-out pastels.

The climactic search for hat height reached its peak in 1961. Oddly, it was dramatically and unexpectedly balanced by interest in the doll-like hat. This was a miniature shape that slid down over the forehead. Fop fashion writers the spring news was the lack of flowers.

This spring hats are mostly brimmed. The brims flare high off the face in exaggerated breton shapes and dive downward at the back. Or else they come forward in scoop peaks and roll high in the back.

Again, as in 1956, there is great interest in tulle and organza as well as light and airy straws. White felt is back and the color continues its sway over the entire fashion picture. Jambouret pastels, including yellow, are popular. Flowered hats are included but are not dominant.

New Closer Fit, Hint of Sleeve Tournaye Design for Rembrandt

PRINTED PATTERN SIZES 10-18

SPRING'S NEW, CLOSER FIT is evident in the shaping of M253 — angle-seamed to define the waist lightly but definitely. This quietly-beautiful dress by Philippe Tournaye has the merest suggestion of sleeves — a slight extension that's so much more flattering than sleevelessness. The neckline is unique and charming, curved on the bias to stand away. Fabric frogs (make them or buy them) point up the pretty details, and add drama if you choose a contrast color. For example, emerald green frogs on turquoise linen, toast on beige, red on pink, black on white. Basically, this is a very simple dress to sew, and ideal for day or evening, cotton or silk or dinner parties all Spring and Summer.

Printed Pattern M253 is available in Misses' Sizes 10, 12, 14, 16 and 18. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards 35-inch fabric.

Send ONE DOLLAR for Printed Pattern M253 to THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER, 60 FRONT STREET WEST, TORONTO 1, Pattern Department. Please print plainly your NAME, ADDRESS with STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Question—My mother would like a recipe for Pickled Tongue. Would appreciate it very much.—Lois Van B.

Answer: PICKLED (CORNED) TONGUE

1 large fresh beef tongue (approximately 3 lbs.), 2 tablespoons non-iodized salt (first amount), 2 cloves garlic, chopped), ¼ cup brown sugar (first amount), 2 tablespoons non-iodized salt (second amount), ½ teaspoon paprika, ¼ tea spoon salt petre (buy at drug store), ¼ cup water, 1 onion, chopped, 2 bay leaves, ¼ cup vinegar, 1 carrot, sliced, ½ cup brown sugar (second amount), 1 tablespoon non-iodized salt (third amount).

Wash tongue. In bottom of large glass or earthenware bowl sprinkle 2 tablespoons salt and one clove garlic, chopped. Add tongue and cover with mixture of ½ cup brown sugar, 5 tablespoons salt, paprika and remaining garlic. Dissolve the salt petre in the ¼ cup water and pour over. Cover and weight down for 12 hours in refrigerator. Then add enough cold water to just cover tongue. Cover and refrigerate for 10 days, turning tongue over once each day. Remove tongue from brine. Do not wash. Put in large kettle, add onion, bay leaves, vinegar, carrots, the ½ cup brown sugar and remaining 1 tablespoon salt. Cover with cold water, put on lid, bring to boil, and simmer for 4 hours until tender. Cool tongue in liquid until you can handle it. Remove from liquid, peel off skin, remove root bones and ragged edges. Return to strained broth to completely cool. Chill thoroughly. Slice excellently.

Question—Would you have a recipe for Egg Foo Yung?—Hilda H.

Answer—EGG FOO YUNG.

4 eggs, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¾ cup chopped cooking onions, 1 tablespoon soy sauce, 1 cup chopped cooked pork or chicken or shrimp, 1 cup bean sprouts, fresh or drained well, 4 tablespoons chopped green onion, including tops.

Lightly beat the eggs, salt and pepper. Stir in the onion, soy sauce, meat or fish, sprouts and green onions. Heat fat in frying pan. Using ¼-cup measure, drop the egg mixture into hot oil, cooking only 4 mounds at a time, turning each over when browned on bottom, then heat and cook and brown other side. Repeat until egg mixture is cooked. Serve with sauce. Mix 1 tablespoon soy sauce with 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 1½ cups of beef broth and 2 teaspoons molasses. Cook stirring, until thick. Pour over omelets and serve. Note: If you do not have chicken, broth on hand, add 1 chicken bullion cube to 1½ cups hot water as a substitute.

Women's Institute

IVANHOE W.I.

IVANHOE — Mrs. Reg Haggerty was hostess for the Ivanhoe Women's Institute's regular meeting held last Wednesday which was opened in the usual manner by the president, Mrs. F. Pollock. There were 19 ladies present.

An invitation to visit Hart's Women's Institute was read and the annual meeting in April will be held at the home of Mrs. George Wood. This year the fee for membership will be $1.

The program was convened by Mrs. J. McMillan, convener for agriculture, and Miss Edna Tanner gave the motto based on a number of facts no agriculture. Mrs. James McMillan contributed a reading followed by two contests.

The hostess served fruit bread and coffee.

Answer Is No For Women to Join Cruise

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sorry, ladies, the answer is no.

There is no place for you on board the 107-foot Northern Princess during an attempt this summer to navigate the Northwest Passage.

Since it was revealed recently that Win McKinnon of Fort St. John, B.C., applied for a job on the yacht women from all walks of life have been making inquiries.

Says Al Fotheringham, Vancouver Sun reporter who wrote the article on Miss McKinnon: "I've got . . . enough women deckhands, women cooks and women adventurers to 'mas' th. Queen Mary."

Northland Navigation Company, owners of the ship, said Wednesday it has received thousands of inquiries. Many are from single Canadian girls, free of responsibilities and just dying to swap city life for adventure.

President Capt. Harry Terry of Northland said no women are wanted and added neither are any more letters or phone calls—"The expedition is full. We have our crew. The scientists and technicians have been planning this for some time. No more requests please."

The Northland Princess will sail from here at the end of July and return within two months. It is hoped it will be the first vessel to navigate the Northwest Passage both ways in a single season.

Relief Society Marks 122nd Anniversary

Members of the Relief Society of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, and their friends, met on Tuesday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred T. Willis, 14 Elvins Gardens, to observe the 122nd anniversary of the founding of their society.

The president, Miss Myrtle Barnum welcomed all those in attendance, reminding them of the history and aims of the Society, whose motto is "Charity Never Faileth." President Alfred T. Willis opened the meeting bringing greetings and congratulations from the branch presidency.

A number of members took part in a skit entitled "History in the Making—Sisters Are There" which depicted the founding of the Relief Society in 1842.

This was followed by a recitation of the poem by Mrs. Theodora Lee. The Singing Mothers Chorus, directed by Mrs. Jack Brady, sang a hymn.

The meeting closed with a sing-song and games. The highlight of the lunch which followed was a beautifully decorated cake in honor of the Relief Society's anniversary.

Church Groups

TRINITY CHURCH W.G.

The regular meeting of the Women's Guild of Holy Trinity Church, Shannonville, was held at the home of Mrs. Marg Reid.

The president, Mary McKenzie, presided and there was a large number in attendance. Mary Peters read the minutes and also presented the financial report. Ida Wallis as treasurer read the financial report. The card convener Bernice Reid read the flower fund report.

Three new members included Mrs. Lee Brant and Mrs. Stewart were welcomed; also a visitor Mrs. Marion Hicks. Two members contributed their birthday offerings. Mary Peters read an invitation from Christ Church Costact Club asking members to make articles for a program of fellowship and to see a film entitled "Newsreel Parade." She also read notes of appreciation from Ruby Kilpatrick, Mrs. Damon Hunsberger and family, the Bedell family and Ira Cook and family. Mary McKenzie read a letter which received an invitation from the Dowdell family, and it was decided to purchase a candle snuffer in memory of John Dowdell.

Business was discussed and it was brought to the members' attention that the Women's Guild of Holy Trinity Church, Shannonville was formed 42 years ago on March 6th. The president announced that the Good Friday service would be held at 10 a.m.

Mrs. Marg Reid served refreshments assisted by Mrs. Warren and Mrs. J. Williams.

Mrs. Ruth Long expressed thanks to the hostess for the lunch and hospitality.

U.C.W. Meeting

BRIDGE STREET UNITED CHURCH

The U.C.W. of Bridge Street United Church gathered around the supper table for the Easter thankoffering meeting.

In the worship service, Mrs. R. Morden recalled the act of love of the woman who anointed Jesus with fragrant ointment, her most precious possession, an act that stands a bright ray across the centuries. Mrs. M. Manley accompanied by Mrs. J. Ferris brought an Easter message in song.

Mrs. G. Hallowell introduced the guest speaker, Major Homewood, who, with her husband is on the staff of the Salvation Army in Belleville. Their assignment is youth work in this area.

MISSIONARY SPEAKER

Major Homewood has a missionary background, since her parents were missionaries in China. Her own missionary experience was in India, where she and her husband spent a term directing youth work in the Punjab and in Calcutta.

The speaker showed the pieces of kitchen equipment the Indian woman uses with, so few, so simple compared with those of the Canadian woman. Her food, also is simple. The staple foods, wheat in the north; rice in the south.

The Major showed modelled the colorful Indian garb, with its flowing lines. It is interesting to note that the Indian woman, especially in urban areas, is style conscious and so are ever changing in small details, from time to time.

This year, in U.C.W., India is the nation for special study. This chapter from the experience of Major Homewood added colored pictures to the study book.

The thanks of the meeting was extended by Mrs. H. Parker to Major Homewood, Miss Mitchell and Mrs. Prevost, and to Mrs. K. Weaver of Stirling, literature secretary for the Presbytery, who was ready with information at a literature display.

WELLINGTON U.C.W.

The regular meeting of Unit 2 of U.C.W. was held in the centennial parlor on Friday afternoon. Mrs. Foster opened the meeting by reading a Lenten message and welcomed the assembly of 13 members and two visitors.

An invitation was extended by Group 4 to have Group 2 meet with them for the April meeting to—Rear Mrs. Kleinsteuber speak on Bible study. Mrs. Foster gave the devotional and Mrs. C. Tripp read the Scripture lesson. Following the devotional, Mrs. Hicks gave her report on the Presbyterial which was held in Napanee.

All enjoyed a film strip on India with some of the beauty spots of Himalaya and the lakes of Kashmir, and the informative data on the many different religions of that country. Also shown were the advancements in modern building and construction going on in this vast country as India moves forward.

EGGLETON U.C.W.

MADOC JCT. — The March meeting of Eggleton United Church Women was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Maurice Kirkey with 13 adults and one child in attendance.

Mrs. Maurice Clancy, who had prepared the program on Easter, presided and opened the meeting by reading a poem. The worship service was conducted by Mrs. Sanborn Potter and the offering and Easter thankoffering envelopes were collected and dedicated by Mrs. Clarence Fitchett.

Interesting readings on Easter customs of the Middle Ages by Mrs. Frank Smith and Mrs. Charles Stapley, Mrs. Harlow took charge of the business period at which time the community friendship secretary, Mrs. B. Stapley, read a note of thanks from Mrs. K. Johnson and reported on cards she had sent. Corresponding secretary Mrs. Fitchett read a letter regarding the Stirling Festival of Friendship Praise. Members banded in a number of pieced quilt blocks. Mrs. Charles Clancy offered her home for the next meeting on April 9. Mrs. Bridges and Mrs. Forde Stapley were appointed to prepare the program.

Mrs. Dyson spoke briefly and Mrs. W. McMullen gave some of the highlights of the Belleville U.C.W. Presbyterial which she had attended at Napanee. Mrs. Bruce Stapley gave an interesting account of the recent bus trip to Toronto and the tour of the Overseas Relief Depot, the new United Church House and the Fred Victor Mission.

Mrs. Clancy conducted a Bible contest on Easter week. The hostess served lunch and a social cup of tea.

Ann Landers

People Are Never Too Old To Ask for Further Advice

DEAR ANN LANDERS — This letter will prove that a person is never too old to ask for advice. I am a 70-year-old widow who is being pestered to death by a male neighbor.

This man is 77 years of age and as spry as a colt. His catches me when I am working in the garden and offers me a corn plaster. I've tried locking the door on him but he raps at the window until I finally let him in. Once he put his arms around me when I was brewing tea and begged for just one little kiss. I told him if he didn't stop being so silly I would telephone his wife. He said, "She'll never believe you. I haven't kissed her in years."

Well, Ann, he was right. I telephoned his wife and she said I must be crazy because he is harmless.

Last, October I invited a lady friend to spend a couple of weeks with me. It didn't help. He continued to hang around and he even made a few plays for her. (She is 67.) Tell me how to get rid of this damned fool. — CANADIAN READER.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR READER — Please don't give me any static about how this man pesters you. A couple of no-nonsense sentences and a door that stays locked would solve your problem permanently. He sounds like he's in his second childhood — and so do you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — For eight years I was married to a sadist. Lord knows I tried to make the marriage work but both my doctor and my clergyman told me to leave before he put me in my grave. We were divorced in December.

I had always prayed and planned money and have been self-supporting. Through the years I've managed to save a little because I was unable to get insurance due to a heart condition. I did not ask for a settlement or alimony.

Last night my former mother-in-law telephoned to say the family had talked it over and they feel I should return the jewelry her son gave me, since most of the pieces are heirlooms and would have no meaning to me now.

I had the jewelry appraised and it is worth about $13,000. I would never wear it but if I ever became ill it could get me out of a tight spot. Should I keep the jewelry or return it? — EX. W.

DEAR EX. — The jewelry was given to you during your marriage and you are entitled to keep it. Tell your ex-mother-in-law if you ever decide to sell the jewelry you promise to give the family first refusal.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — This may be a small matter but it is beginning to annoy me no end. Maybe you can help.

I have a very good friend, who, when she wants a favor never says "Please, could you?" — or "I would appreciate it if —." It's always, "I want you to do thus and so."

Sometimes she sends her children to my door. They speak the way she does. This morning the 11-year-old said to me, "Mother wants you to pick up a loaf of bread and two quarts of milk for her when you go to the market today."

Ann Landers' frank and informative new book, "Teen-Agers and Sex" ($2.95) is now available at your book store.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them in her care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Upgrading of Bus Travel In Mexico Shatters Intimacy was cancelled would be allowed to appeal to the registrar, then to the director and finally to the courts.

Salesmen will lose their licences if they sell their jobs and the licences will be reinstated if they regain employment in the line of business.

Dealers or salesmen who change their addresses will notify the registrar immediately within five days and the registrar, or his nominee, will have the power to demand to see the books, correspondence, bank accounts and records of a dealer.

MAY INVESTIGATE

The bill empowers the attorney - general's department to launch an investigation of a dealer, with the same power as the courts. The attorney-general may also require the bonding of any "suspicious" dealer.

Individuals who violate the act would be liable to a fine of $2,000 or one year's imprisonment. A corporation would be liable to a fine of $25,000.

In other business, Travel minister Auld said the hotel industry in Ontario is not selling itself enough and is not meeting the challenge of competition with other industries.

He blamed the situation on a lack of strong leadership within the industry.

Mr. Auld said the amount of Ontario tourists spending, $1,400,000,000 last year, has not achieved as much by good luck as good planning.

SPENDING DROPS

"We know that while the amount of leisure money available to the people has grown immensely, the percentage of that money actually spent on travel has declined."

Mr. Auld predicted foreign and interprovincial tourism would bring $750,000,000 to Ontario by 1967.

The minister said a United States survey showed the rate of growth of travel in the last six years approximated seven per cent a year. "If this rate continues it will mean that travel for all purposes will double every 10 years.

N. Davidson (NDP — Hamilton East) suggested the tourist department investigate industrial tours for businessmen to bring money into areas where it is not going at present.

He said the tours could be organized by the Chambers of Commerce in various cities and that industries in cities like Hamilton are quite willing to go along with the idea.

"Cities other than Toronto get little business from tourism any more," he said.

On another matter, Mr. Auld said his department has begun publication of some of its literature in French to better acquaint the large French-speaking audience in Quebec with Ontario's attractions.

WANT BETTER BRAKING

Transport Minister Haskett announced stiffer regulations concerning automobile brakes, providing that brakes must stop a car or station wagon travelling at 20 miles an hour within 25 feet on dry pavement.

The regulations formerly specified a 40-foot stopping distance.

Lands and Forests Minister Roberts announced that new applicants for resident hunting licences in the province will be required to pass an examination set by his department.

The requirements, to become effective late this year or in 1965, are to include greater uniformity in safety training now given by clubs and other private organizations.

Written and practical tests will be set and supervised by the department and a $3 entry fee will be charged.

Clubs will continue to give the training but their courses will be extended to include instruction in game laws and regulations, rights and privileges of land owners and elementary game identification.

Killer Wolf "With Taste for Blood" Making Savage Comeback in Quebec

By GERRY McNEIL

QUEBEC (CP)—Martin Meister believes the lobo wolf is coming back and is determined the deer population of western Quebec as he comes.

If Meister is right, butchers and leather-hat deer doors. The lobo will attack almost anything to satisfy its taste for blood.

Trappers at one time made it a point to follow the tracks of the lobo, knowing they would find freshly killed meat.

And sometimes lobos followed the trappers.

"They're the only wolf that isn't afraid to follow a man," says Meister, who runs an angling and hunting outfit at Chapeau, Que., 60 miles northwest of Ottawa. "They'll attack anything."

He says he's convinced he was followed recently by two lobos to a sawmill deep in the woods near Chapeau. He shouted and fired a shot, missing one. All he saw of the other was sawdust flashing as it darted back into the bush.

He examined the tracks and found them unusually large—a characteristic of the lobo is big feet.

Another hunter near Chapeau shot a wolf Meister believes was a lobo and he is hoping to see it examined by experts.

MADE COMEBACK

The lobo was believed almost exterminated by 1920, when a few were placed in Wolfe Park in Pennsylvania. Park literature recalls cattlemen once offered rewards of $500 or more for lobos.

Like cattlemen, outfitters hate wolves, and the Quebec association at its recent convention passed a resolution urging that professional hunters be sent after them by the provincial government.

Wolves were blamed last fall for the death of a four-year-old boy north of Baie Comeau, Que., 225 miles northeast of Quebec City. They have been reported seen in Chambly County, 17 miles east of Montreal, and a terrified deer was killed by an auto when it ran into St. Hyacinthe while apparently being chased by a wolf.

Meister says that in Pontiac County sawmill workers will suddenly notice six or seven deer hanging around — when there's a choice between deer and wolves they usually choose men—and each day the number get smaller "until the wolves get the last one."

The Quebec government quit paying bounties on wolves in 1959 and apparently doesn't intend to start again. A scientific study of the wolf population has been started and hunters are sent into areas where wolves bother cattle or sheep.

FEWER SHOT

While Meister agrees with the balance-of-nature theory, he says the balance was upset in Quebec by a number of factors favoring the wolf.

First, the number of farmers and others who traditionally shot wolves has been decreased and there is no one, in control them now." Then, he says, Quebec deer have never been able to come back after disease sharply reduced their numbers in the late 1930s.

For these reasons, he says, hunters got only 12,000 deer in Quebec last season while those in Pennsylvania shot 93,000. Pennsylvania hasn't any wolf problem, consequently it has game like deer, wild turkey and birds, "while ours is practically extinct," Meister declares.

At the outfitters' convention he urged a return to the bounty system, saying:

"It was there sense that any of you people think. There isn't enough food for them up our way. There's going to be coming your way pretty soon."

BURGLARS THANKED

ALERMO (AP) — Sicilian Prince Gaetano Hardouin di Belmonte has asked police to thank two burglars who broke open his wall safe and fled with $320,000. Police caught the burglars and recovered the loot. The prince said he had not been able to get the safe open for 20 years and did not know it contained money.

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Where no precise measurements are available, many land contracts use the phrase "more or less" to qualify the description of the land area. When measured, ultimately, the results are not always what the purchaser bargained for. It is rare, of course, for someone to complain if he ends up on the "more" side. Getting the "less," however is something else, and has infuriated one of our readers.

"Dear Mr. Meltzer: "I bought an expensive lot last year, and both my agreement of sale and deed stated it was '1.50 acres, more or less.' I had it surveyed last week in preparation to build a house and the surveyor informed me that it was only 1.51 acres.

"I'm not unhappy with the lot, but it infuriates me to be paid for more than I got. Does some way I can get a refund on this?" — Mr. H. T. H.

Answer: Your problem is like many I have seen in my years as a real estate consultant. If you are really disturbed about this, of course, by all means discuss your position with an attorney — preferably one with real estate experience in my own experience, however, margins of difference as little as yours (about 5 per cent) are usually considered to be covered by the qualifying phrase, "more or less."

To avoid these problems, one should call for an accurate survey before making a commitment, or make the final price contingent upon the area that will be determined by a survey.

Dear M. Meltzer: "Could you help me with some of my homework? As part of my Civics assignment I am supposed to find out what is the most valuable piece of land in our town and how it compares to values in other towns —not the building just the land.

"I found that in our town a piece of ground sold for the equivalent of $100,000 per acre. That seems like a great deal of money. Are there places where land is more expensive? If so, how much more?" — Cathy S.

Answer: Just as happens when I try to help my children with their home-work, Cathy, has required me to do a considerable amount of research. Although $100,000 per acre may seem like a great deal of money, it is quite low in the downtown districts of ound I could find — a prominent corner in New York major metropolitan cities.

The most valuable piece of city property has been valued at $500 per square foot, or almost $35,000,000 per acre.

If any of the readers know of a more valuable piece of ground than that I would appreciate hearing from them.

"Dear Mr. Meltzer: "Can we give our house back to the bank to avoid foreclosure? I am afraid I bit off more than I can chew when I bought my house, but my wife was working then, too, and we could afford it.

"The stork has changed all that, however, and our family income has dropped to little more than half what it was. Although we wouldn't trade our baby for twenty houses, my wife is unable to return to work, and we hate to lose our credit because our house was foreclosed.

"We haven't fallen behind in payments yet, but I am supporting the house out of savings that are nearly exhausted. I am planning on offering it for sale but, since there are others in the neighborhood for sale, I doubt if I can sell it in time. Even if I could I'm not sure I got a price that would cover the mortgage balance and expenses." — Mr. W.O.S.

Answer: The bank is under no obligation to take the house back. They did not sell you the house — they simply advanced funds so that you could buy it.

Banks, however, are practical, and if you explain your situation to them they will probably realize that letting your house go to foreclosure will only run up additional expenses.

It has been my experience the bank will accept a deed in that in many cases like yours tion of foreclosing. Under these circumstances, your credit would not be impaired.

As a last resort, however, contact a realtor in your area. He may be able to get you enough on a quick sale to pay off your obligations.

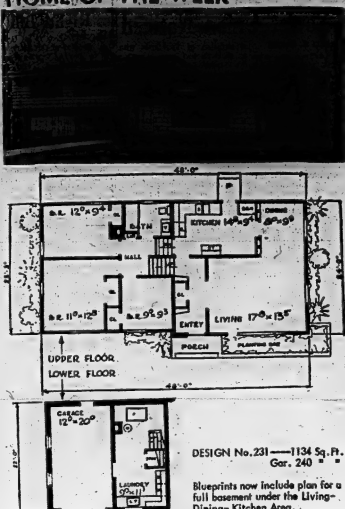
"Dear Mr. Meltzer: "As a fellow writer you will be sympathetic to my problem — as a real estate man, perhaps you can suggest a solution.

"Some 10 years ago I made a fateful decision and gave up the rat race to devote myself to creative writing. Although I accused on occasion of being a kind of literary bum, I have persevered and traveled extensively, absorbing the world's colors and sounds and smells preparing to write my novel.

"Now I am ready to write and found just the place to do it. As I need solitude to write, I had planned on renting a small house — my brother sends me an occasional small stipend and my needs are modest.

"Never having essayed to sign a lease before, however, I am shocked and embarrassed by the difficulties I have encountered has, for example, asked me for a reference from my employer. What good can this do me? I only have no present employer, the most recent one I had has been dead at least 10 years.

"Are such questions usual or are these agents discriminating against a creative artist?" — R.B.D.



Answer: Let me assure you that real estate men are sympathetic to creative people — and are often creative themselves. Since they are still in "the rat race," however, they must also be practical.

A real estate agent is only fulfilling his duty to his client by investigating to determine if a prospective tenant can meet his rental obligations. If you can't demonstrate your ability to do this yourself, your problem will probably be solved if your brother agrees to co-sign and guarantee the lease.

In this case I think you will soon discover that by and large real estate men do appreciate artists.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

DESIGN No. 231 — 1134 Sq. Ft. Gar. 240

Blueprints now include plan for a full basement under the Living-Dining-Kitchen Area.

Here the designers have captured all the simplicity of colonial styling and combined it with the convenience of modern split level construction. There are no long flights of stairs in this attractive home. The partial basement, beneath the sleeping area houses the garage, utility room, with Living-Dining-Kitchen area on the middle (entrance) level. Upstairs are three bedrooms, with ample cupboard space plus a four piece bathroom. While not shown on the illustration, the Blueprints now include a fireplace (with chimney) on the right hand end wall, and a full basement with a recreation room, including an additional fireplace, under the living area. Construction is frame with stone accent.

Standard Builders Blueprints for this design No. 231 cost $15.00 for the first set, and $5.00 for additional sets They are available in Canada by return mail. RCAF to Buy 16 Hercules Cargo Planes

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCAF will purchase 16 American made C-130 E Hercules aircraft, an advanced version of the long range transport planes already in service here, the defence department said Thursday.

Cost of the planes is estimated at $55,000,000 and arrangements are being made within the framework of the Canada-United States production sharing program whereby the cost will be offset by U.S. defence purchases in Canada. The planes will be purchased from Lockheed Aircraft Corporation.

The aircraft will be based at RCAF stations in Namao, near Edmonton, Downsview, near Toronto, and at Trenton, Ont.

Four of the earlier-type Hercules now are being used in airlifting Canadian troops and equipment to Cyprus.

Successful Living

Aging Romancer Brings Many Problems to Wife

DEAR DORIS — I thought the requirements for a wife included eating a white dress, knowing how to keep house and how to care for children. These things were taught to me by my parents.

However, the man I married cared nothing for these things. He would call me too old fashioned, an old grandmother and so many other things that finally I tried to make myself over into a regular vamp and tramp. I learned to drink and smoke with him. Still this did not help. I found out later he only wanted excuses to show responsibilities; to go out with other women and to be brutal.

Now I have heard that we are supposed to be separated. That is his story, but to me he never lets on. He sits and weeps and sighs, and his latest flame must look like a girl on the magazine cover he keeps on the table. You could imagine this with our 16-year-old son, but with a 55-year-old man don't you think it's a little too much?

I have asked him to go and leave us alone, but he is still using excuses. What would you do? — M.E.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR M.E. — Your aging romancer may be the bread-winner, but "him cannot live by bread alone." You only harm yourself and your sons by continuing to take his insults. It's time you saw a lawyer.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I hear my classmates talk behind my back quite often and at nights I just cry myself to sleep about it.

They say that the teacher picks me to do everything (seeing I'm top of the class); they say I act too smart, etc. Please give me some advice. — E. F.

DEAR E. F. — Do you suppose you appear a bit smug? Talk with your teacher about what is being said. Being friendly is just as important as good grades. And next time you hear your friends talking, break in and tell them that you do not mean to be high hat.

• • •

Confidential to DISILLUSIONED SCOTTIE — Your husband's drinking problem will get worse before it's better.

I would suggest that you get in touch with The Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Research Foundation, 34 Harbord Street, Toronto 5, Ont.

• • •

To TERRY — Your letter simply must have gone astray, as every single request which comes to me is taken care of. I would have mailed you the information this time, but it seems there is no address nor envelope with your letter. How about that? Would you like to write me yet once again?

Budget for County Well Over Million Council Is Told

PICTON (Staff) — The County of Prince Edward still rate will be set on Friday in the afternoon session. It is expected that it will be down slightly from last year.

Picton's Reeve Barney Heyburn, Chairman of Finance for the County Council conducted the committee as a whole on finance, which lasted almost the entire third day of the county meeting.

The discussion of the 1964 grants took up the best part of the meeting with each and every grant being closely scrutinized by all members of council. When they were finished, they had lopped $300 off the Chamber of Commerce grant of $1000. They had added $100 to Wellington Minor Hockey, and added a new grant, that of $100 to the Prince Edward Boy Scouts Council.

The total of all grants came to $8,650 which is up $800 from the 1963 budget, but only $10 over the actual expenditure last year.

The total budget for the county for 1964 is estimated at $802,813 of which $456,750 is for roads, $70,000 for child welfare, another $30,000 for welfare and $80,000 for the Home for the Aged.

The administration of Justice budget is $36,362. The Health unit is the 7th Assessment Dept., $37,433. A sum of $4,000 was placed in the budget for the Homes for the Aged committee planned here in September.

To raise this money, the County Rates are set at 4453.313. Last year's surplus is $22,591. Revenue from the Prince Edward County Home is set at $70,000, this together with other subsidies makes up the grand total of $802,813.

"The budget estimate for 1963 will be well over the million dollar mark," Tom Walker, Clerk of the County told the council. "Don't forget we have to add in about $800,000 for development roads next year."

EXPRESSES CONCERN

Tom Walker also expressed some concern over the road expenditures. "I cannot get the engineer to present proper bills from roads, I have no idea what the stock is. I have asked the engineer several times for these figures, but I have never received them. You cannot continue to run a business like this, it is simply not good business. It is the responsibility of the Road Committee to check these things out and come up with some answers," he added.

Reeve Hepburn paid tribute to Mr. Walker for what he termed a most outstanding job during the past year. He also had nothing but praise for the committee chairmen, who worked so hard and have apparently kept within their budgets.

Mrs. Ellsworth, who has lived in the rooms in the basement of Shire Hall for the past 26 years, has been told that she will have to vacate by April first.

Mrs. Ellsworth has done the cleaning in the Shire Hall for the past 26 years." Last year she was pensioned off, and advised that when the county needed the rooms, she would have to move.

A visit to the spacious basement locker showed that Mrs. Ellsworth was not exaggerating when she said, "You certainly accumulate a lot of things in 26 years,'where on earth I will put them is beyond me."

Reeve Robert Boyce of Wellington returned to Council Thursday morning with word that after battling with his council for an hour and a half, they had reluctantly agreed to go along with the rest of the county in the Shire Hall- Registry Office Centennial Project.

When this word was received by county council, the following motion was passed, with Deputy Reeve John Fox of Hallowell being the only dissenter: "That the county apply to the Centennial Grants Program Dept. of Municipal Affairs for approval for grant to make renovations and restorations at the Shire Hall and additions to the Registry Office."

Centenary

CENTENARY — The Bayside A.O.E. Men's Club held their annual ladies' night at Johnny's Restaurant. A group of 39 enjoyed a turkey supper and an evening of bowling and progressive games. The meeting was under the direction of president Doug Plumpton during which Mr. and Mrs. Roy McGrath presented Mr. Edgar Ray with a past president's pin.

Mr. and Mrs. George Cunningham of Consecon accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Mac Nobes to Gananoque and visited with Mr. and Mrs. Grant Babcock and family recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Hicks of Niagara Falls were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vern Herrington.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Lorenson recently visited their sons Dave and Bob and his wife in Schenectady, N Y.

Mrs. Alan Wells is convalescing at her home here following surgery in Civic Hospital.

Misses Susan and Kim Baxter have returned to their home in Paris.

Warm-up Between Spain And Soviet Union Noticed

By HAROLD K. MILKS

MADRID (AP)—A warm-up between Spain and the Soviet Union is not the result of a sudden change, knowledgeable Spaniards say it has been developing for a decade or so.

"Ten years ago in Switzerland we noticed the first change," said one Spanish diplomat. "Switzerland was one country in which encounters between Communist and Spanish envoys were inevitable.

"For a long time the Russian diplomats looked through us as though we didn't exist. And we did the same to them. Then we noticed an occasional change. Sometimes the Kremlin representative would nod, or the blank stare would be replaced by a little smile. Before too long we were actually speaking when we met."

From that beginning may come in time the day when a Soviet ambassador will be welcomed in Madrid and a Spanish envoy will take his place in Moscow. Neither of the two countries have had no diplomatic relations since the Franco victory of 1939.

"We see no reason why such an exchange should not come at an opportune time," a highly placed Spanish official said. "After all, the Soviet Union and Spain both really exist, and we must face realities.

"This does not mean that Spain and its government will be any less anti-Communist, nor that we expect the Soviet to be any less opposed to our present national regime. But many things have changed in Europe, and in the world, in the last 25 years. Both the Kremlin and Madrid must recognize these changes."

Spanish diplomatic experts pick out instances where contacts have been opposite to a bit less rigid.

There were contacts at official levels in 1956 during a series of repatriations of Spaniards, as a result of the Hungarian revolt. Included were members of a Spanish ship, the return of survivors from Spain's Blue Legion which fought with the Germans against Russia in the Second World War, and repatriation of Spaniards who as children had been taken to the Soviet Union during the Spanish Civil War.

With the passing of the former rightist Spanish minister of information, Spanish newspapers no longer were required to report happenings from the Soviet capital under Stockholm or Helsinki datelines.

Last year, basketball teams of the two countries played a home-and-home series.

Economics relations between Spain and the Communist bloc appear to be running far ahead of a formal diplomatic exchange. Spain gets oil from Russia, bottled beer from Czechoslovakia and Poland, cement from Romania, vehicles from Yugoslavia.

4th Thurlow

4TH THURLOW — Mr. and Mrs. George Ackerman and Julia of Milford were Sunday afternoon callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Martin.

Mrs. Wilfred Clare, 5th line is spending a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Tummon.

Mrs. Douglas Tummon returned home on Sunday from Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs Roy Rockstuhl of Milbridge spent a week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Borden Forsyth.

Miss Diane Tummon spent Friday evening with the Misses Carolyn and Gladys Brenton of Corbyville.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Crawford, Belleville spent Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Grant Cole.

Congratulations are extended to Mr .and Mrs. David Martin who were married on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stuart, Mr. Frank Reid, Trent Rd. spent Wednesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Bert Martin.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Carscallen of Belleville were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Garrison.

Four-Legged Rights Bill

MONTREAL (CP) — General Ian, director of the Montreal Zoo in England for 36 years before coming here in 1907, says he wants a bill of rights for animals.

He came here at the city's invitation to administer nowshelved plans for a zoo in Angrignon Park. He objects strongly to the way animals are treated in captivity in Canada and to the people who handle them.

He would not abolish zoos and pet shops, nor is he screaming that experiments on animals cease or that blood sport be abolished.

"What I want is entirely within reason, and I intend to get it if possible. It is a question of exposing the situation to people."

Mr. Iles wrote to Prime Minister Nehru of India last year.

"Mr. Nehru is well known to be interested in this cause and I received a very encouraging reply. He sympathized with my views and asked to be kept informed of my progress."

He also wrote to Prime Minister Pearson. What he hopes to obtain is Mr. Pearson's sponsorship of his plan at the next Commonwealth prime ministers' conference. Before any legislation is passed, he wants a federal investigation of the animal problem.

Specific points Mr. Iles wants considered for his bill of rights include government control over the handling of wild animals and rigid standards, set by a government - appointed panel, for the housing of wild animals.

He says there are many examples of deliberate cruelty and mistreatment of all types of animals.

"It is not always that people want to be cruel, but just that they don't understand. Wild animals can be kept in captivity and can lead perfectly happy lives if the right steps are taken."

Map and figures cover the mid-March to mid-April period.

Moderate to light precipitation will cover most of the country. Precipitation is given in inches of water: 10 inches of snow melts into one inch of rain.

Other normal temperatures: New York 46, New Orleans 63, San Francisco 54. Other normal precipitation: New York 3.9, New Orleans 5.0, San Francisco 2.0.

Opposition Members Criticize Plans Placed on Canadian Troops Serving in Cyprus

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition members pressed in the Commons Thursday that Canadian troops with the UN peacekeeping force in Cyprus won't be allowed to disarm civilians.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said this would "emasculate" the force and put it in grave danger.

External Affairs Minister Martin said the purpose of the force is to keep the peace. It could defend itself if attacked but it had been felt that it should not "contribute to the lack of harmony in the island."

"Do you defend yourself only after you're killed?" asked George Nowlan, former conservative finance minister. He said the restriction would make the UN force "a position absolutely hopeless."

Mr. Martin said the situation is improving. Since the UN force had been set up, "the situation has become calmer."

RAISED BY DOUGLAS

The question was first raised by New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas, who asked what guidelines had been set up for the force, and, in particular, whether it was true the UN troops would not be allowed to disarm weapon - carrying Cypriots.

Mr. Martin said that would "not be a function of the UN force." Its function would be its best efforts to prevent a recurrence of fighting.

Canada had agreed with the stipulation that armed civilians could not be disarmed by the force. But this did not mean it wouldn't be allowed, as any police force, to defend itself.

Wallace Nesbitt (PC — Oxford) asked whether there have been any more clear directives from the UN command.

Mr. Martin said the commander of the force will take over March 31. The UN had decided the force would not become operational until it had been built up to an adequate size.

TO PRESERVE ORDER

Mr. Martin said UN policy is not there as an occupational force, but to preserve law and order and the UN wanted to emphasize that this was its primary purpose.

Mr. Douglas said it was difficult to see how a police force such as the UN force can set in a civil government. It has always the power to disarm guerrillas.

"What is the objection?" he asked.

Mr. Martin said the situation in Cyprus was very dissimilar to the powers granted the United Nations Emergency Force in the Gaza Strip and in the Congo. A mediator in the Cyprus dispute will be appointed "and it is thought the responsibility of disarming should be left to the authorities."

The Canadian contingent was "to the authorities," he added.

BRANTFORD (CP) — Undue delay in improving the political situation in strife-torn Cyprus could quickly lead to a new deterioration in security and a possible erosion of United Nations influence, External Affairs Minister Martin warned here Thursday.

He said no time can be lost in appointing a UN mediator to resolve the conflict between Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots.

"There are elements in the situation which could lead to further disturbances even if the opposing factions have the best will in the world to co-operate," he added in a speech to the Canadian Club.

Mr. Martin said voluntary laying down of arms may be the principal requisite for the easing of basic tensions on the island, thus leading to stability under the UN peacekeeping force.

But he warned that the presence of a UN force on Cyprus—including a Canadian contingent—will not in itself provide a lasting solution.

MUST COURSE

"A solution will be best pursued by a process of accommodation between the opposing factions with the assistance of a United Nations mediator," he said.

"The military force is expected to contribute to this process — by demonstrating the United Nations impartiality, by setting an example of restraint and by its very presence helping calm, by instilling confidence among the Cypriots generally that they will not be subjected to further violence and bloodshed, and by reserving interested powers outside the island that negotiation can yield a solution without the United Nations maintains order."

Mr. Martin said UN soldiers in Cyprus will be exposed to risks and provocations but must discharge their duties with skill, restraint and courage.

The minister also renewed his proposal that the UN should take steps to limit the spread and power to disarm guerrillas.

Gambling Said Main Vice in Niagara Falls

TORONTO (CP) — Gambling is the main vice in Niagara Falls, the Ontario Police Commission's report on organized crime said Thursday.

The report, named five men "who appear to be active in gambling: Albert and Louis Tannuzzi, Peter Gerace, Felix Borelli and Ernest Reinhart."

No syndicate control seems existent in Niagara Falls, according to Police Chief J. L. Cunningham, who said gambling is closely checked in cooperation with the Ontario Provincial Police.

But the commission report declares that "fairly close relations exist among Canadian gamblers despite their appearance of independent operation."

Checks made on long distance telephone calls by police officials showed that Niagara Falls gamblers were laying off bets with U.S. gamblers regarded as financial backers.

Laying off bets refers to a procedure followed by bookies who have become overloaded with similar bets, usually on a horse. To protect themselves against financial disaster, they transfer some of their bets to richer gambling rings.

DISAPPEARANCE LINKED

The report says Mafia-like tactics were apparent in the disappearance October in 1959 of Peter (Scrip) Mitchell, a Niagara Falls gambler alleged to have been making payoffs to local police.

Mitchell had failed to receive a police warning of a raid on a gambling club in which he had a $25,000 interest in August of that year. He was accused of not making the proper payoff, the RCMP had introduced another gambler to his police contact. It was decided he was a danger of any sort to the gamblers.

One night he left the gambling club, known as the Ramsey Club, with a man and a woman in a car. He was never seen again.

The police commission report also says:

A matter of interest to note that a recent marriage party in Niagara Falls attracted the attendance of many well - known Mafiosi from New York State as well as suspects resident in Canada.

Prostitution was linked to Niagara Falls through Philip and Lawrence Chiesa. The report says it also attaches Phillip Chiesa to prostitution in the Hamilton area.

Legislatures Deal With Hydro Power

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hydro-electric power was on the minds of legislators in three provinces Thursday.

Premier Joseph Smallwood said Newfoundland was planning a $3,000,000 hydro - electric power development on Labrador's Hamilton River, 180 miles downstream from the proposed 6,000,000 horsepower Hamilton Falls project.

In the Quebec house, Premier Lesage said it was imperative that his province's interests be considered with as much care as those of other parties in the complex negotiations surrounding development of the original Hamilton Falls proposal.

He said development of the Falls is "eminently desirable for everyone, including with the people of Newfoundland and Quebec." But he gave no indication that when an agreement to develop the falls might be signed.

British Columbia Premier Bennett said legal fees in connection with the expropriation of the B.C. Electric system have cost the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority 1,048,361 all of which has been paid.

IS FIRST FIGURE

It was the first time the government has given a figure for legal costs involved in the 1961 takeover and court proceedings that followed.

In other legislatures:

New Brunswick — A temporary 9 to 7 Progressive Conservative majority during the legislature's public accounts committee was able to obtain adoption of a motion requesting the Liberal government for alleged conflicts-of-interest and several counties in road work.

Quebec—Bill 60, the government's legislation creating an Order of Quebec, received given royal assent and became law as the House recessed for Easter.

Manitoba—The Manitoba legislature voted $7.25 to 15 to set up a special legislature committee to examine the proper role of hydrometallurgy and dentistry in the province.

Dentistry is the label applied to a group of technical technicians who want to sell false teeth directly to the public without a dentist's prescription. The Manitoba Dental Society opposes this practice.

Thursday's resolution urging Canada and the United States to work towards an early start to the paving of the Alaska Highway was passed unanimously.

Report Points at Several Residents of Windsor Area As Connected With Mafia

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Police Commission has pointed at several residents of the Windsor area as connected with the Mafia in its organized crime report tabled in the legislature Thursday.

The commission noted evidence given to the United States senate crime committee last year by then Detroit Police Commissioner George H. Edwards describing Windsor segment of the Detroit-run Mafia as including Nicholas Cicchini, Onofrio (Nonno) Minicone just deported to Italy — and Guiseppe (Cockeyed Joe) Catalanotte.

...chini was convicted in 1963 of a narcotics offence at Windsor and sentenced to 12 years. Minicone, who had been deported from the U.S., was convicted with a Windsor bakery.

Mr. Edwards—now a U.S. judge — said Calanotte's home was raided in Detroit during the 1930s and yielded 54 guns including weapons identified as having been smuggled into Canada in 1932—as a nonimmigrant visitor, and in 1961 as a six-months visitor.

The commission said there is a warrant out for the arrest of Catalanotte, believed interested in a Windsor bakery.

SET SPORTS ODDS

The commission said that Edward Kurd, a recent Windsor resident, while not connected with the Mafia, is alleged to set the odds in football, basketball and baseball gambling "and hence is a valuable man in organized gambling."

"It would appear he is endeavoring to establish a permanent domicile," the report said.

George Nunes, alias Frank Smith, of Detroit, living in Essex county, was recently sentenced to a year on the Canadian side for possessing $12,000 worth of stolen Detroit merchandise.

The police commission noted that the Roach royal commission on crime last year had established that Vito Giacalone of Detroit was Mafia and a gambling "kingpin" and had owned a piece of the Roseland gambling club near Windsor. He also had an interest in a juice company believed active in Ontario.

"Other residents of the area connected with such Detroit activities," the report said, "are Earl Cozzone of Dover Canard, Dominic Corrade who owns farm land in Essex and Sam Pizzano who has a summer cottage at Kingsville."

The commission suggested that increased efficiency in the Essex area would result from a single police force in the metropolitan Windsor area. It found the Windsor force very good but others handicapped by lack of specialist services and identification facilities.

Chevrier Says Majority Of Both Big Language Groups Are 'Inseparable'

LONDON (CP) — Lionel Chevrier, first French speaking Canadian to be commissioned in Britain, said Thursday the vast majority of Canadians of both big language groups regard themselves as "inseparable."

Quebec's French Canadian community and loyalty to the Queen were hailed by Chevrier in an address prior for delivery at a Canada Club dinner.

British newspapers have given considerable prominence to threats that trouble might arise from extremists when Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip visit Canada later this year The high commissioner made a point of referring to the sovereign as Queen of Canada.

Tackling the problem of separatism, Chevrier said many Canadians were dissatisfied with the working of Canada's constitution and some of these, in Quebec, advocated secession.

"You have read too much in your newspapers of the criminal actions and unbalanced statements of extremists," Chevrier added.

CAPTIONS HEADLINES

"It is a pity that the activities of the extremists capture the headlines but it is an even greater pity that, for instance, speeches of ministers of the Crown and of members of the upper house and others from the province of Quebec, roundly condemning the extremists, expressing their loyalty to the Queen and declaring their faith in the unity of Canada, should receive so little attention."

Chevrier, working his first major speech since becoming high commissioner, was introduced by T. R. Armstrong, lieutenant-general for Ontario, who said that in honoring Chevrier the Club "is also paying great tribute to the French-speaking peoples of Canada who have contributed so much to our cultural and economic development."

Armstrong said there was "much talk about the English and French in Canada but little mention of the others, the collection of people from every country in the world who "will never accept the threats or irresponsible minority attempting to divide the nation or rock the boat by claiming special privileges."

"You should make no mistake where the loyalty and pride of the Canadian people stand on the ill-conceived question of separatism," he added, "all responsible Canadians are solidly against it and that includes those of French origin."

Chevrier said that in the last two or three years a "quiet revolution" has been going on in Quebec.

SEES OPPOSITION

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)— Armand Leroux, president of the Sherbrooke diocesan council of the St. Jean Baptiste Society, said Thursday night a majority of the council's members "seem to be against Queen Elizabeth's visit to Quebec," but that they believe Quebecers will receive her "with dignity and courtesy."

Parliamentary Notebook

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — "By command of the Queen . . . we do command you that, all difficulties and answer whatsoever laying aside, you be and appear . . . at all times wheresoever our Parliament may be in Canada convoked and holden . . . for the purpose of obtaining your advice and assistance in all weighty and arduous affairs which may the state and defence of Canada concern . . ."

So runs the injunction that members of Parliament are supposed to be present when ever Parliament is sitting.

It is expressed in Commons rule No. 3 this way: "Every member is bound to attend the service of the House, and to leave of absence has been given him by the House."

The rule hasn't been invoked —and has rarely been observed in its stringency—for decades.

But because of MPs' growing role and sometimes protest loudly when parliamentary press gallery reporters note any marked degree of absenteeism in the Commons.

This week the rule was cited by some members against the absence of Parliament Creditiste Real Caouette.

Caouette was absent last Friday night during the Commons' emergency session called to approve the dispatch of Canadian troops to Cyprus.

HOLD UP BUSINESS

Creditiste leader Real Caouette and his lieutenant, Gilles Gregoire (Lapointe), held up House business for days on end testing the baste with which the Commons decided, in their absence, to dispatch the troops.

They said Mr. Caouette, on Friday afternoon, had clearly objected to the Commons holding a special night sitting to take up the Cyprus question. Later, when they were absent from the chamber, the Commons decided to hold an unusual night sitting. By that time, many MPs had left town.

Mr. Gregoire later admitted only three of the 13 Creditistes were on hand Friday night. But he said a total of 150 MPs were absent that night. The House has 263 members and two vacancies.

Attendance of members has always been a stricture of the law and one of the most troublesome laws to enforce. As far back as 1322 in Britain an act was passed compelling attendance.

In the 1600s Parliament decided on a system of fines to enforce not only attendance but prompt attendance. Any MP who arrived after prayers were said had to pay a shilling.

Even that ran into immediate troubles. The Speaker himself was late for the sitting the day after the fines were imposed.

The Speaker paid his shilling to the sergeant-at-arms for being late. And in those days six rings of the House began at 9 a.m. Now in Ottawa they normally begin at 2:30 p.m.

Civil Servant Not Sure Of Testimony in Coffin Case

QUEBEC (CP) — The royal commission into the Coffin affair has been adjourned until next Tuesday after what Mr. Justice Roger Brossard, the lone commissioner, called an "ambiguous" day.

Thursday a Quebec civil servant who had volunteered to testify suddenly became uncertain about what he had "positively" had to say earlier.

Joseph Slythe, 47, secretary to former solicitor - general Antonio Talbot, testified that he had never talked to Henri Doyon about expenses and said that Mr. Doyon had testified to former Quebec Provincial Police sergeant to charge aircraft expenses to Mr. Talbot's office.

Mr. Doyon, 54, took the stand after Mr. Slythe left the court room and testified just as firmly that he had talked with Mr. Slythe several times in Mr. Talbot's office about expenses.

Brought back to the witness box, Mr. Slythe finally said under stiff questioning by commission counsel Jules Deschenes that he wasn't certain about what he had said before. He might have met Mr. Doyon and forgotten about it.

WAS CONTRADICTORY

Mr. Justice Brossard had advised him that he was being contradictory to Mr. Doyon and would affect everything Mr. Doyon had told the royal commission in six days of testimony.

When Mr. Slythe said he wasn't positive about his earlier testimony, Mr. Justice Brossard asked why he had volunteered to give testimony he wasn't sure about.

Mr. Slythe replied that he

De Gaulle Again on French Soil

POINTE - A - PITRE, Guadeloupe (Reuters) — President Charles de Gaulle was back on French soil in this sunny Caribbean island today following a four-day visit to Mexico.

With international affairs temporarily behind him, de Gaulle was expected to turn to essentially domestic matters, for this island of 270,000 inhabitants is one of France's overseas departments.

Guadeloupe was de Gaulle's first stop on a four-day tour of French departments in and around the Caribbean—nearby Martinique and French Guiana on the eastern shoulder of South America.

He returns to Paris next Tuesday.

U. S. Approach to Latin America Undergoes Change

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The U.S. administration's approach to the multiple hardships Latin America has undergone a sharp reversal since the death of President Kennedy.

The new approach is adding to Latin American concern about their big neighbor and increasing desire by Canada to join the Organization of American States to help balance and offset United States influence in the Western Hemisphere.

When President Eisenhower was in the White House, the Latin Americans were worried — the "Big Stick" policy of Secretary of State Secretary John Foster Dulles. That concern was lessened by Kennedy, who announced dictatorships; committed himself to discourage the reappearance of dictators like Trujillos in the Caribbean and promised to promote the growth of freedom and democracy.

Now the Johnson administration apparently concludes that kind of idealism doesn't work. A meeting of U.S. ambassadors from the Latin American countries has been told there no longer will be "good guys" and "bad guys" as far as Latin America is concerned. Except for blocking the threat of communism, it would be best for the U.S. to stop meddling in Latin American local politics and allow them to work out their own destinies.

JOHNSON CRITICIZED

This indifference to Latin American problems has been accentuated by President Johnson's cold approach to the goals of the OAS membership at last Monday. Many U.S. newspapers criticized the President's lustre speech while French President de Gaulle was receiving a tumultuous welcome in Mexico.

Wherever de Gaulle went, he spoke of the joy of being closer to Mexico; of his desire that Mexico and France increase their relations and friendship. He likely will repeat this kind of speech in other planned forays into Latin America.

Meanwhile, Latin American diplomats and some U.S. newspapers said Johnson's approach appear to be bringing U.S.-Latin American relations to their lowest point in history.

The contrast between de Gaulle and Johnson is apparent, but it is somewhat visionary; for France is many miles away and has no Negro problem to matter how warm and emotional Latin American ties with France may be, many people know that through trade and other intercourse, their main concern must be self-help.

DIPLOMATS SHOCKED

Latin American diplomats were shocked when Johnson announced an OAS committee statement announcing that the U.S. and Panama had agreed to resume diplomatic relations and attempted to resolve their differences caused by the Panama Canal.

Latin Americans are trying to pick up the pieces of that shattered diplomatic operation. But there is growing awareness among them that they cannot expect much from Johnson and that another John Foster Dulles approach may be coming.

For them to analyze the reasons for this reversal may be futile. But many are beginning to suspect that one reason is that Johnson wants payment for generosity—he wants their help to oust Fidel Castro from Cuba. Castro took over from the beaten dictator, Fulgencio Batista. Now the Johnson administration appears to suggest that there isn't much difference between a dictator and a government elected by free ballot. This may encourage aspiring dictators but it may not be helpful for the flowering of Latin American freedom.

No Suspects And No Leads In Shooting

KITCHENER (CP) — Provincial Police were joined by five municipal police forces Thursday as they continued a search for clues in Wednesday's shooting death of Joseph A. Armstrong, 65, of Waterloo, Anglican clergyman turned insurance salesman.

Mr. Armstrong was found shot to death early Wednesday in the front seat of his car, parked on a side road at the outskirts of Kitchener.

Police said they knew little of the details surrounding the death of the man, who became an insurance salesman after he resigned from his minister's charge at Milverton, Oct., 18 last year. The father of five children had said he could not afford to keep his family on a clergyman's salary.

Provincial police were joined by Kitchener, Waterloo Township and Galt and Waterloo municipal forces in the search.

Police Chief James Lautenslager said Thursday: "We have no suspects or no leads.

"We are working on the possibility of murder, nor can we rule out the possibility of self-inflicted wounds."

Inspector Wilfred Hendrich, head of the Kitchener detective division, said there are at least two bullet wounds in Mr. Armstrong's neck. No gun was found at the scene and Mr. Armstrong's wallet was missing.

Two Stowaways Aboard Bonne Going to Cyprus

HALIFA X(CP)—Two stowaways have been discovered aboard the aircraft carrier Bonaventure, headed for Cyprus with men and equipment for the United Nations peacekeeping force.

Cpl. Michael Lane, 31, of nearby Shubenacadie Point, and Pte. Charles Bell, 22, of Halifax, were discovered hiding in the ship's hold about three hours after the Bonaventure left here Wednesday.

Both were court-martialed and had been serving as cooks with the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps.

The men were put to work in the ship's galley.

They said they boarded the aircraft carrier because they wanted to serve with the Canadian contingent of the UN force on Cyprus.

Lane and Bell will be disciplined and they will be returned to Canada, an army spokesman said. But when, how and where is not yet known. The two had been selected with the UN in Egypt.

WORK FOR NAVY

The stowaways aboard the Bonaventure said the men will work for the navy, at least at first, on the ship.

Lane promised: "There'll be trice promised: "There'll be another Cyprus when he gets back.

"I'll start another war right here," he said. "I'll see that she was told that her husband was aboard the Bonne."

The Lane's have six children, and are expecting another any day.

"He was speaking about going to Cyprus but I thought he was only kidding," she said.

She said her husband was a friend of Bell, who has four children.

No Leads

Armstrong's widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Armstrong, said Thursday night a majority of the council's members "seem to be against Queen Elizabeth's visit to Quebec," but that they believe Quebecers will receive her "with dignity and courtesy."

When Three Men Prayed

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

"Three men coming between heaven and earth, their bodies fastened, nailed, to wooden uprights, writhing, slow, torturous death. In those awful, final hours, each prayed, and in each case the prayer revealed the inner thoughts of the man. One prayed for others. One prayed to escape. One prayed to be remembered. One's death blessed the world. One received no answer to his prayer. One received as assurance that eternal him to face death with new hope.

The wooden uprights were crosses. The person on the centre cross was Jesus. Even the last days of His trial had publicly declared Him to be guilty of no crime. (Luke 23:14) Librarians of books have been written to explain why He was put to death. The reason for the other men's deaths was obvious. They were thieves, perhaps thieves who had killed in pursuit of their robberies. They were paying the supreme penalty for their crimes.

Not content with having the death sentence imposed on their prisoners, the enemies of Jesus hung around to watch His agony, and to mock him, taunting Him to come down from the cross. (Mark 15:30) At first, even the thieves who were dying with Him joined in the mocking. Matthew says, "The thieves also, which were crucified with Him, cast the same in his teeth." (Matthew 27:44).

A TRIFF SEES LIGHT

Then something happened. Jesus spoke. And His voice softened a prayer for those who were putting Him to death: "Father, forgive them: for they know what what they do." (Luke 23:34) One thief was unimpressed. The attitude of the other thief was completely changed. What kind of person was this who could pray for His persecutors at a time like this? One man spoke to God could do that. So the one thief shouted across to the other, "Dost thou not fear God, seeing thou art in the same condemnation?" and we indeed justly; for we receive the due reward of our deeds: but this man hath done nothing amiss. (Luke 23:40-41).

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for March 25: "The Two Thieves." Luke 23:33-47.

The first thief was not convinced. "If," he groaned to Jesus — and the "If" revealed the dark doubt in his soul — "If thou be the Christ, save Thyself and us." (Luke 23:40). No admission of his guilt. No hint that he was sorry for his crimes. Only the desire to escape the punishment. He died as he had lived. And so there was no response from Jesus. There could be no pleasing.

The other thief turned with tremendous faith and said, "Lord, remember me when Thou comest into Thy kingdom." (Luke 23:42). This time there was no plea for escape. The man had already admitted he was receiving just punishment for his crimes. He asked only to be remembered when Jesus came into His Kingdom. This required tremendous faith. In a moment of time, both men would be united in death. But evidently this man believed in the immortality of the soul. He believed that they would survive as persons even after their death. And Jesus rewarded his faith by replying, "Today thou shalt be with Me in Paradise." (Luke 23:43).

LIFE'S BIGGEST QUESTION

There is no question to which men crave an answer more earnestly than this: does God remember us in death? Is there any hope left after the body dies, we will continue as persons? Christianity answers with a ringing, "Yes". And Jesus answer in the thief given added assurance to that faith. It gives us added reason to believe that even in death God does not forget us. The Psalmist had said, "Yea, though I walk through the valley of death, I will fear no evil for thou art with me." (Psalm 23:4) Death is not oblivion. For those who seek God's love, it is passing into His eternal Presence. It is to be with Him in Paradise.

The penitent thief of the second thief was that he waited till the last minute to seek God's love after his life had been given to crime. His soul was saved, but his life was lost. He missed joy he might have known and shared through serving God.

The crises of life do reveal our need for faith in God. A high - school girl said, "I'd read the Bible more if I knew as interesting as the Reader's Digest." She had not yet faced up to what someone has called "the triple tragedy of sin, suffering, and death." When she does, she will need more than the ephemeral message of a monthly magazine. She will need the eternal verities of the scriptures. She will need faith in God who alone can give life its true meaning, and redeem us in death.

2,000-Mile Canoe Trip Only Cost $60

WINNIPEG (CP)—Late last year, two young Winnipeggers showed a canoe into the Red River here and pointed its bow due south.

Two months, two days and almost 2,000 miles later, the two were in New Orleans. They made the trip on $60.

In an interview back home Alan Maclean, 21, talked about his trip with Gary Newsham, 22.

They took with them a tent nine feet square and two sleeping bags.

They paddled up to 10 and 13 hours a day and both lost weight.

People along the inland water route were good to them, and they were made honorary citizens of New Orleans.

They followed the Red River to Grand Forks, N.D., then shipped the canoe to Minneapolis on a potato truck. They hitch-hiked.

At Minneapolis, the canoe was put in the Upper Mississippi River. They followed it south past Cairo, Ill., Memphis, Vicksburg and Baton Rouge to their destination.

On their return journey, they took a bus as far as Minneapolis and hitch-hiked home from there.

Maclean's most exciting recollection is of hunting in the swamps near Baton Rouge. Newsham got caught in quicksand up to his armpits. Once, they became lost in a fog.

"I wouldn't have missed it for the world," said Maclean, but he added he "wouldn't want to do it again."

2nd Mortgage Loans

An announcement from the newly formed Realty Division of Superior Discount Limited — A MEMBER OF THE SUPERIOR GROUP OF FINANCIAL COMPANIES

LOWER COST FINANCING. If you're a homeowner, lower-cost financing is available to you. You can obtain immediate cash to pay all your bills; pay off an existing mortgage; pay for your children's university education; make home improvements; travel, or for any worthwhile purpose.

LOANS AVAILABLE TO $10,000. Depending upon the property involved and the amount of your equity in it, (the difference between the value of your property and the amount owing on it) you can borrow up to $10,000.

MONTHLY INTEREST RATES FROM 1% TO 1¼%. Depending on the location of your home, its value, and the amount of your equity, interest rates are from 1% to 1¼% per month (12% to 15% per annum) on the unpaid balance.

NO HIDDEN CHARGES! NO BONUS! NO BROKERAGE FEES! There are never any hidden charges in a SUPERIOR loan. You will know, before you sign, exactly how much you receive, how much you repay, and the true interest rate.

Your fixed monthly payments cover all principal and interest. There is never any balance owing at the end of the term.

PAYMENTS TO SUIT YOUR BUDGET. You can take up to ten years to repay your loan in low monthly payments. However, you can prepay all or part of the loan at any time, without notice or penalty. Since interest is charged only on the unpaid balance, this means that each payment made reduces the amount of interest being charged.

SUPERIOR SERVICE. No matter where you go, you can't beat the personalized financial service available to you in any SUPERIOR office. As the fastest growing all-Canadian Loan Company, our advice and facilities are available to you at all times. There is never any obligation when you drop in to discuss your Mortgage Financing.

CASH AVAILABLE TO SECOND MORTGAGE HOLDERS. If you hold a second mortgage on a property, we will buy the mortgage from you and give you the cash now.

LIFE INSURANCE. Life insurance is available on all SUPERIOR mortgage loans.

BROCHURE AVAILABLE. If you would like more information and details on SUPERIOR second mortgage financing, phone or write today for your free booklet, entitled "2nd Mortgage Loans". If it is convenient, visit the SUPERIOR Office nearest you. You will be under no obligation and the information could save you money.

Must Beat Toronto Twice

Wings Eye 3rd Spot; Belt Blues 9-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York and Boston are out of the playoffs.

That's not news but it's the only conclusion that has been reached in the National Hockey League after 205 games. Everything else is still up in the air.

To the delight of the NHL's six promoters, none of the top four positions in the standings are received as the 210-game schedule heads into the last weekend. And it's conceivable that this situation will still exist at game time Sunday night.

Detroit Red Wings could have partially settled the issue Thursday night but declined a fourth-place finish, thank you. The Wings belted New York 9-3 to remain in contention for third place, where Toronto currently is lodged.

It was the only game.

CLOSER TO LEAFS

The Detroit win moved them to within a point of the Leafs of Maple Leafs with each club having two games left—a head-on clash between the two contestants in a home-and-home series this weekend. Montreal and Chicago, of course, have yet to settle their differences over rights to first place.

The Canadiens are home to the Bruins Saturday night and play in New York Sunday while Chicago visits Boston in their only remaining game. Montreal can take first place with two wins or one victory and a Chicago loss.

The Wings, however, face a stiffer task. They must beat Toronto twice to take third spot.

WINGS FLYING

It's a mighty task but the way Detroit is flying these days anything can happen. The Wings have won four straight games and the win over the Rangers was their ninth in their last 10 home starts.

Parker MacDonald sparked Detroit with two goals and two assists. His two markers were part of a four-goal splurge in a 196-second span in the first period that gave the Wings a 5-3 lead.

Alex Delvecchio also scored twice for Detroit and the others were contributed by Floyd Smith, Doug Barkley, Gordie Howe, Paul Ronty and Jack Stewart. Dra Pronovost, Phil Goyette scored his 22nd and 24th goals for New York and Camille Henry tallied once, his 29th this season.

A crowd of 10,289 watched the Wings bombard Jacques Plante with 39 shots while the Rangers replied Terry Sawchuk 28 times.

FERRARIS SET PACE

SEBRING, Fla. (AP) — The Italian Ferrari team will set the hot new power plants, swept the first five starting positions Thursday for the 12th annual 12-hour Sebring Grand Prix of Endurance road race. Four Ferraris smacked the old one-lap mark of 3:11.4 for the tough 3.2-mile Sebring course. It was set by last year's winner, with Surtees of London. Surtees himself led the assault, with a 3:04.2 clocking.

Softballers To Meet On Sunday

The newly-elected Belleville and District Softball League executive, under President Harold Bowden, will hold another important meeting at Club Camara, on Sunday afternoon at 2.30.

The executive could find itself in quite a strange position unless something happens to happen team-wise. The loop may well find itself with a strong executive, but with no teams to govern.

Only two definite entries and a possible third turned up for the executive's first meeting last weekend.

Joyce Healy and Trudeau Motors are apparently ready to operate again and word has it that there will also be a junior team from this city. There have been indications that two separate sponsors are prepared to enter a junior club and this may be one of the matters ironed out Sunday.

Bawden and his executive of vice-president Frank Instant, secretary Cliff Chisholm and treasurer Al Sills would like to see entries from Picton, Trenton Town, CIAF and Cobourg, as well as the Bobcats here in Belleville. If any of the above clubs are interested to operate they are expected to turn out Sunday and see them just might not be a league.

A number of Belleville fans will be attending the OAHA Canadian Juniors at Owen Sound on April 4, including Ralph Lowe and Ed Bowen, both nominated for executive positions. The convention will also open up for discussion Sunday.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gordie Howe scored once and helped set up two goals in Detroit's 9-3 win over New York in Thursday night's only NHL game to move into fifth place in the individual scoring race.

It was Howe's 24th goal of the season and 44th and 45th assists for 71 points, marking the ninth consecutive season in which he has reached that plateau.

The only movement in the big seven was Phil Goyette's climb into a second place tie with Murray Oliver. The New York centre scored twice—his 23rd and 24th goals of the season—in New York's losing cause.

The leaders:

	G	A	Pts
Milkie, Chicago	39	30	69
Hull, Chicago	43	43	86
Beliveau, Montreal	25	49	74
Bathgate, Toronto	19	55	74
Howe, Detroit	26	45	71
Wharram, Chicago	32	39	70
Goyette, New York	24	41	65
Oliver, Boston	23	42	65

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

There will be shining eyes and shining faces at the Memorial Arena next Wednesday night as young Belleville gathers to pay homage to collective and individual hockey champions.

It is the annual "Presentation Night" of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association co-sponsored this year by the Belleville Youth Centre Committee.

While the young champions and teams take the spotlight the committee have added colorful sports touches to the event.

They've dug up a lot of pack-chasing relics from the C.N.R. and the ranks of the Minor Hockey Association. The "greybeards" will line up in an exhibition tilt with crewcuttings and frownings that will probably be heard as far east as Montreal.

CNE manager George Bishop and coach Fred Carmichael have dug big Vera Goyne out of the mothballs and the former hockey, baseball and basketball star will lead his vets into battle plentifully bolstered with young blood.

With Goyer on defence will be Bill Nolan, Doug Mareau, and Hugh Petrie. Doing their tricks in the goalmouth will be Ray Mortimer and Frank Pringle.

Goyer's check troops will be spearheaded by Stu Muirhead and Buck Ridder at the centre ice, aided and abetted by Bob Hurst, George Crabbe, Ken Lapicatie, Gerry Moher, Junior Day, Bill Coughlin, Dan Bishop and Don Conway.

And you'll see hockey as "she is played" by the wee-wee stars of the future when the Belleville peewee All-Stars tangle with their counterparts from Napanee. If you haven't seen these young fellows in pack action, don't miss this one. The kids play hockey for keeps and the way they go into action will make you think they're battling for the Stanley Cup.

And a special added attraction and by special permission of the Canadian Figure Skating Association, will be an exhibition of pairs by the colorful figure-skating sweethearts, Peg and Jack McCutcheon.

The attractive youngsters, plugging for secondary school examinations kindly consented to help the MMHA out and they will put on a show that should be worth the price of admission alone. They recently captured the senior pairs championship of the Toronto Granite Club.

The fun starts at 5.30 and your purchase of a twenty-five cent ticket will get you an evening of fine entertainment. Besides you will be aiding a very worthy cause.

BILL COOK MEMORIAL

Speaking of presentations, in the near future a member of the Belleville Junior "B" Hockey Club will be one of the proudest youngsters in town. He will receive the handsome Bill Cook Memorial Trophy with a miniature for his very own at a function to be announced later.

The trophy perpetuates the memory of one of the finest sportsmen and hockey men this city ever produced. The late Bill Cook was "Mr. Junior Hockey" here for many years. He brought many fine young teams to championship stature and his efforts along these lines will never be forgotten by those who knew him well.

The trophy has been donated to theplayer "combining ability with sportsmanship" by Mrs. Kate Cook, and daughters Mary Lou (Mrs. Brum Dobbs of Toronto) and Betty (Mrs. Bob Guthrie) of this city.

It will be presented to the player selected by a panel of club officials along with the Bobby Hull Trophy.

* * *

"PETER PAN"

And don't forget the Quinte Figure Skating Club's fine spectacular "Peter Pan," which makes its bow tonight at Memorial Arena. Club president Dr. W. E. Bestile, and his executive, in fact, all members of the club have gone all out to offer the public what is regarded as the finest annual Ice Show in years.

The club pros, Paul Tatten and Mrs. Bonny Boundy, have fashioned an extravaganza that is colorful to the extreme. Costumes, music with individual and collective stars round out a delightful ice classic that should not be missed. If you can't make it tonight catch it tomorrow evening. You won't be sorry.

Doral Open
Snead Tops Big Field

MIAMI (AP) — Sam Snead, pace still booming his shots off the tees at the age of 51, led the year's strongest golf field into second round of the $50,000 Doral Open Tournament today.

Racking up a four-under-par 67 in the opening round despite his usual putting difficulties, Slammin' Sam staked a first-round claim on the $7,500 first prize awaiting the winner Sunday.

One stroke behind were Mike Souchak, Dave Hill, Bob Shave Jr Bert Yancey, Joe Lopez Sr and Ken Venturi. Ten others Snead, who plays in only a few tournaments but continues to add substantially each year to one of golf's biggest bank rolls, complained that he missed five birdie putts.

This is his first start on the Florida winter circuit. West Virginian started his only 51 put of 45 tournaments in 1941, but still collected money than $20,000.

PRIMARY INDUSTRY

Agriculture is the most important primary industry in Canada, with 272,000 square miles used for food production.

Western Fours Tied For Lead
White Rink Drops 8-7 Thriller

TORONTO (CP) — Manitoba and British Columbia clash in what could be the deciding game of the national mixed curling championship here today.

Saskatchewan, however, currently sitting in third spot with a 5-2 record, could upset the apple cart in the remaining four rounds of the 11-rink round-robin tournament.

The British Columbia rink skipped by Gil LeMoel of Trail took a pair of crucial wins in Thursday's two rounds to move from third position to a first-place tie with the Winnipeg rink skipped by Ernie Boushy.

LeMoel edged Dean Miller of Weyburn, Sask., in the sixth round 9-7 and walloped Alberta skipped by Glenn Gray of Edmonton 14-5 in the seventh round.

The back - to - back triumphs gave British Columbia a 5-1 record, good enough for a first-place tie with the Boushy skipped rink which had a 7-4 decision to Saskatchewan—their first of the bonspiel—in the seventh round.

QUEBEC FOURTH

Quebec, with two wins Thursday, moved into fourth position. Prince Edward Island and Northern Ontario are fifth with 3-4 records and New Brunswick is seventh with three wins in seven games.

Alberta and Ontario follow with 2-5, Newfoundland is 2-5, and Nova Scotia is in the cellar with one win in seven games.

Bill Tracy of Bagotville, Que., came up with a perfect day Thursday, defeating Gray 14-5 in the opener and edging Mac White of Belleville 8-7 in an ex-tiresend thriller. Tracy's final draw in the extra end had to be measured for the win.

Northern Ontario's Will Biron of Sudbury, came to life Thursday, trouncing Bill Allen of St. John's NfId., 8-5 and whipping Karl Stronach of Kingston, N.S., 11-4.

Cliff Macdonald of Charlottetown lost to Irving Mitton of Moncton, N.B., 9-4 and drew a bye in the seventh round.

While downed Stronach 10-4 in the sixth round and Mitton edged Newfoundland 10-8 in an extra end in the other games of the day.

GOOD NEWS FOR LISTON

DENVER (AP) — The State of Colorado won't attempt to send former heavyweight boxing champion Sonny Liston to prison for carrying a concealed weapon. Attorney-General Duke Dunbar said Thursday the only questionable whether Liston could be charged with a serious crime—punishable by a penitentiary sentence—under a state law forbidding former convicts to carry concealed weapons.

Aces Take Eastern AHL Title

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Aces captured their first Eastern Division title in the American Hockey League when they rolled to a 7-3 win Thursday over Buffalo Bisons.

The victory gave the Aces 31 points with five games left in the regular schedule while second place Hershey has 72 points but only four games remaining.

Wayne Hicks led the Aces with two goals. The other Quebec goal-getters were Jim Morrison, Leon Rochefort and Cliff Pennington.

Scoring for Buffalo were Doug Robinson, Gerry Melnyk and Billy Dea.

Rangers See Three Goals Disallowed

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Minneapolis Bruins regained second place in the Central Professional Hockey League Thursday by edging St. Paul 4-3 in a game that saw three goals disallowed for the losing Rangers.

The Bruins regained a one-point edge in second place after losing 11 by a 5-4 loss to St. Paul Wednesday.

Of the three disallowed goals, one was scored by Ranger Ken Ore overruled the goal judge on the second and the third was ruled scored after a whistle had blown.

Minneapolis scorers were Moe Bertrand, Bill Knibbs, Jean Pariseau and Pete Panagabko. Scoring for St. Paul were Ted Taylor and Bob Pilger.

The Trots

Rebertson's mink tracker, entered the winner's circle after the first race to greet his Grattan Colonel, $3,500 purse chase last year.

The chestnut gelding was a 5-2 pick.

Tapdean, the 65 choice, owned by Ross Latimer of Oshawa, finished third behind Ottawa Duke, owned and driven by Ken Galbraith of Chesley.

TREE GROWS TREES

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet news agency Tass says there is a giant oak tree—28 feet around beginning near Vilnius in Lithuania that has century-old pines and birches sprouting from its branches.

Ottawa Nips Morrisburg

MORRISBURG, Ont. (CP) — Ottawa Montagnards edged Morrisburg Combines 3-2 Thursday to take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven series finals in the Ottawa - St. Lawrence Senior Hockey League.

Rely Anderson scored the winning goal in the final period after earlier goals by Gaetan Secours and Bill Crawford.

Bob Gillard and Wayne Brown scored for Morrisburg.

Third game will be in Ottawa tonight and the fourth here Tuesday.

Arranges Novel Bowling Tournament

K. 'KING' PINN

Rising to the challenge of an out-of-town friend, Mr. Pinn spurred his Bowling League to have a 200-mile jaunt to meet the challengers in a tournament. To keep enthusiasm high—and expenses low — Pinn chose a Canadian National Group Plan and chartered a private coach for the trip. "The group is really looking forward to 'owning' a roomy, air-conditioned CN coach! It's certainly the ideal way for a gang to travel. For example, 63 of my teammates travelling in our 'own' coach, save as much as 35%— you can't beat that!" Pinn and his pals can also charter a sleeping car for long distance group travel. If the team is smaller, 10 or more, 'King' takes advantage of all the rock-bottom Red 'Bargain' Days—and uses CN's Party Fare Plan for up to 50% discount. 'King' says, "It's become such a habit now, I wouldn't travel to the corner drugstore without consulting my friends at Canadian National."

Canada Wins World Curling Crown

Dagg Beats Scots

By JOHN SHORT

CALGARY (CP)—Lyall Dagg of Vancouver, a brilliant shotmaker all week, spearheaded Canada's drive to its sixth consecutive international curling championship Saturday and Thursday and admitted afterwards that he was lucky to win.

Dagg and his partners edged the Alex D. Torrance rink of Scotland 19-18 in an extra end after the Scots had become sentimental favorites of the crowd.

"We played better tonight than we did against Scotland Wednesday," Dagg said, "and I guess we had to."

Dagg, born in Tisdale, Sask., is a 36-year-old public relations officer.

He said Torrance's rink, beaten 9-7 by Canada in the final round of the preliminary section when Dagg clinched first place, was much improved in their second meeting.

SCOTS CURLING WELL

"They are curling exceptionally well," he said. "I'm happy with the way we played. If we'd played badly, we would have been the first Canadian rink to lose."

Ernie Richardson of Regina won the competition four times and Hector Gervais of Edmonton won the other.

The result of Thursday's final was in doubt until Torrance, a 30-year-old farmer from Hamilton, threw his last rock heavily and watched it slide harmlessly through the house. Dagg with two counting, did not throw his last rock.

Scotland trailed 6-4 after the 8th end, 8-6 after the ninth and 10-8 after the 11th. Each time Torrance bounced back with a deuce.

An extra end became necessary when Torrance drew neatly to the back of the eighth ring for two coming home.

Dagg's front end—third Leo Hebert, second Fred Britton and lead Barry Naimark — curled the 13th end perfectly to leave Canada in command as the skips came to shoot.

Dagg accepted the Scotch Cup from R. S. Cumming, chairman of the Scotch Whisky Association, which sponsored the event.

The colorful Hitts Scottish skip had help from Alex Torrance, a cousin, at third, Bob Kirkland at second and Jim Waddell at lead in his gallant bid for the title.

The competition attracted 20,342 fans in four days, by far the biggest attendance in the history of the event. The competition was highlighted by the appearance of Switzerland and Norway for the first time. Both newcomers missed the playoffs.

The final game was set up when Canada trounced Sweden, skipped by Kurt Jonsson of Arty, 14-3 and Scotland downed United States, led by Bob Magie of Duluth, Minn., 13-6 in semi-finals Thursday to meet 9:00 fans.

International officials declined to predict when the 1965 competition would be held, although indications were it was slated to return to Scotland.

A formal decision was expected before the official windup banquet tonight.

Badminton Championships

Canadian Wins 'Close' Title

TORONTO (CP) — It takes a bit of explaining, but Wayne Macdonnell of Vancouver had to beat two Japanese players to win the Canadian close badminton championship.

And if he gets past a third Japanese and either a fourth or Thailander, he'll win the Canadian open title.

The internationally - flavored close tournament arose out of a Canadian Badminton Association ruling that this year's close title would be awarded to the Canadian who advances two rounds farther than any of his rivals in the open competition. In previous years two separate tournaments were held.

Macdonnell won his title Thursday by defeating Japan's fifth-rated player, Eiichi Nagai 15-6, 15-6 in a quarter-final. He had outlasted all his Canadian rivals Wednesday by ousting Eiichi Sakai 15-7, 15-8 in the third round.

In his bid for the open title, Macdonnell meets Yoshio Komiya, the top-rated Japanese singles player, in one of tonight's semi-finals. The other pits top-seeded Chan - Yiong Ratanasenguang of Thailand against Yoshinori Hagaki of Japan.

Rolf and Ed Paterson of Vancouver, 22 and 20 respectively, defeated Bruce Rollick of Vancouver and Jim Carswath of Woodstock, 15-9, 15-4 in the men's doubles to qualify for tonight's semi-final against the No. 1 Japanese pair of Nagai and Sakai.

Dodgers Stop Spahn, Braves

Cards A Big Deal In Grape Fruit Loop

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

They still insist around St. Louis that the Cardinals lost the 1963 National League pennant when Ray Washburn hurt his arm last spring.

The strapping right hander won his first five games before the arm trouble developed. He never won another and spent most of the season in the minors. Even without him, the Cards gave it a good try and finished second to Los Angeles Dodgers.

Washburn's first test of the current spring training season began calmingly Thursday as he walked the first batter and then gave up three straight hits for two runs.

Then he settled down and his teammates began to look like pennant - winners again. He struck out four in his three-inning stint as the Cardinals went on to defeat Cincinnati Reds 9-2.

That gave St. Louis a 5-1 record in exhibition play, exceeded only by the Dodgers, unbeaten in three games, and San Francisco Giants, who have lost one of 11.

The Dodgers, using second-line pitching, produced 14 hits including a triple and double by Willie Davis and three singles by Lee Walls as they beat Warren Spahn 5-4 to end a four-game winning streak for Milwaukee Braves.

GIANTS8 BATS HOT

The Giants racked up 15 runs for the second straight day as Willie McCovey ran his hitting streak to straight for a .520 average in their 15-12 conquest of Los Angeles Angels.

He was matched in his hitting streak and topped in average by Bob Bailey of Pittsburgh, who was batting .786 after going four-for-four against New York Yankees. But none of his teammates did much at the plate and the Pirates bowed 2-0 with Roger Mark driving in the first run and scoring the second on a passed ball in the first inning.

Eddie Kasko drove in the only run in the 12th inning as Houston Colts downed Chicago White Sox 1-0. Nellie Fox produced a single and a sparkling fielding play in his first appearance for the Colts against his old mates.

New York Mets received three - hit pitching from Carl Willey, Craig Anderson and Ron Locke, played errorless ball for the second straight day and put a two-run homer from rookie Billy Haas to defeat Detroit Tigers 5-0.

Art Mahaffey and Gary Kroll struck out seven batters apiece for Philadelphia as the Phillies whipped Washington Senators 3-1.

Homers by Dick Brown, Boog Powell and Willie Kirkland gave Baltimore Orioles a 6-2 decision over Minnesota Twins and Cleveland Indians mounted a 23-hit attack to outslug Boston Red Sox 17-10.

Wellington Edged 6-5 By Stinsons

Stinson Construction stayed out of elimination by edging Wellington 6-5 in a very close Prince Edward North Shore Hockey League finals game last night.

Wellington still leads the best-of-seven three games to two. The next game is slated for Wellington on Tuesday night at eight o'clock.

The largest crowd of the playoffs saw Stinson's with their backs to the wall, score the winning goal with less than two minutes to play.

Big Ell broke the 5-5 tie with his second goal of the game at 18.46. Ell had opened the game's scoring in the first period and was the only two-goal man of the night.

Other Stinson markers were scored by Paul Stinson, John Emmerson, Pete Mitchell and Elgin Harris. George Daniels earned a pair of assists.

Al Fettingill, Joe Scott, Gary Pyke and Terry Wannamaker were the goals counted one apiece and assist for Wellington. Norm Hodgson notched the other goal.

Stinson's led 3-1 at the end of the first period but Wellington stepped back to tie it 4-4 after two heats. The losers moved ahead 5-4 early in the third but Stinson's tied it less than a minute later and the clubs fought tooth and nail until Ell's winner.

There were six penalties called, three to each team.

Yvan Cournoyer struck for three goals to bring his total to five playoff games to 11, as Montreal Junior Canadiens wrapped up their best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Junior A quarter-final with an 8-2 win over Peterborough Petes Thursday.

St. Catharines Black Hawks came within one game of the semi-finals when they shutout Oshawa Generals 3-0 in the fifth game of their quarter-finals.

The sixth game of the St. Catharines - Oshawa series is scheduled for Saturday at Bowmanville with a seventh game, if necessary, at St. Catharines Sunday.

The winner will meet the Canadiens in the semi-finals.

Andre Boudrias shared honors with Cournoyer in the Montreal win with a goal and five assists. Other markamen for the Junior Canadiens were Leo Thiffault, Andre Lacroix, Bob Lemieux and Jacques Lemaire.

Dan Grant and Jim Paterson replied for Petes.

Doug Jarrett was the big gun in the Black Hawks' victory, tieing two goals. Ken Hodge got the other.

Lost Wallet Comes Back, With Bonus

BOWIE, Md. (AP)—Who says you can't win at a race track? Not Al Abraham.

Two weeks ago he felt he was a real loser at Bowie. He lost his wallet with $195 in it.

He returned this week smiling. Not only was his wallet mailed to him—money and all—but there was an extra $50.

"There was no signature on the accompanying note," Abrahams related to Edward McMahon, the track security officer.

"Just a thank you message for the use of the money.

"The finder said that he, or maybe it was a she, had a lucky day using my money and was including a $50 bonus."

AGAINST TICKET ROLE

CHATHAM (CP) — Judge W. B. Beardall, chairman of the police commission said Thursday city police should be relieved of the duty of handing out parking tickets because it harms their public image. The commission took no immediate action on the suggestion.

Grand National

Mud Favors Long Shots

AINTREE, England (AP) — It could be a race for a long shot in the Grand National steeplechase on Saturday just like it was in 1928.

That was the year Tipperary Tim plodded his way around a mud-soaked turf course and won at odds of 100 to 1. He was the only one to finish.

Rain has soaked the four-mile, 856-yard track again this year and today the going undenly turned soft.

If the rain keeps up, the cavalry charge of 35 expected runners could turn into a mud bath. ..ything could happen. A horse you've never heard of could stay on its feet and win.

COURSE TOUGH

That's the magic of the National. The horses have to negotiate 30 tough obstacles. That's enough for any jumper at the best of times. If it's a muddy course, a horse can lose his footing and bring another one down with him—and the one brought down might be the favorite.

Thursday 14 horses set out in the Topham Trophy over a course of two miles and six furlongs. Only six finished.

Rookies have made Time the 10-to-1 favorite with Sean Normand and Tim Norris second choices at 14 to 1.

Other odds: 16 to 1 Flying Wild, Springbok, Border Flight; 18 to 1 Lizawaka, Laffy, Pappagino's Cottage; 20 to 1 Purple Silk; 22 to 1 Pas Seul; 25 to 1 Team Spirit; 28 to 1 Ayala, April Rose, John O'Grats, Out and About, Willow King. No odds are quoted for the other entries.

Two horses were pulled out Thursday because of injuries. They were Treepwood and Lovely Record.

This is not intended as a plug for the Canadian Olympic Association which needs $150,000 to send a team to the Summer Games at Tokyo next Oct. 10-24. The COA won't have much trouble getting it from the federal, provincial and municipal governments, business interests and sports-governing bodies.

As far as the general public is concerned, it probably never has heard of the COA's campaign for funds. This also applies to fund-raising campaigns by the British Empire and Pan-American Games Associations.

Canada is one of the few countries in the world that depends entirely on government assistance to get its athletes to these international competitions.

Now, the idea is being kicked around about going directly to the public for money, much as Olympic games do in the United States, Britain, Australia and New Zealand. They have all sorts of gimmicks to raise money.

'BUY A TOWEL'

In the U.S. for instance, car stickers are sold to help defray expenses and the latest is "buy a towel and help beat the Russians." The red, white and blue towels bearing the Olympic torch have been placed in department stores throughout the U.S. They sell for $3.95 each and the Olympic treasury gets $1 for every one sold.

"All of these things sound like good ideas," says Jim Worrall of Toronto, president of the Canadian Olympic Association. "We are not averse to using this type project, or similar project, to raise funds to support Canada's teams.

"Our annual meeting has been set for Saturday, April 4, in Toronto and the necessity of raising funds will be brought home forcibly to sports delegates at that time. I personally feel that appealing to the public for support would generate more interest in this country in our teams.

"However, we do need the assistance of the sports organizations themselves to supply the workers. The COA is a comparatively small organization in numbers and it is composed entirely of volunteers. . . .

"We want to bring this message of financial support to the public and it must be remembered that this requires a lot of help from a lot of people."

PASS THE HAT

Last week, the British government announced a grant of $650,000 as a subsidy for the British team at Tokyo, the first time Britain's Olympic team has received government aid. But nearly $450,000 is required to send 300 competitors and officials to Japan and the general public will be asked to find the money.

The athletes themselves in Australia and New Zealand pitch in to raise funds to get teams to Olympic and British Empire Games. Sports carnivals such as swimming and track meets are held in various towns and cities and the athletes go into the stands and pass the hat.

Olympic and British Empire Games athletes also pass the hat among spectators at rugger games and other big sports events. Sale promotions in these countries make contributions but nearly all the necessary money is raised by the sports organizations.

Maybe the groundwork for such an undertaking will be laid at the COA April meeting.

'Asterisks' Are Out
No 'Tie' Records In NHL

MONTREAL (CP) — Should Toronto's Andy Bathgate set a National Hockey League record for assists this season, it will go into the record book unqualified by an asterisk even though he may have played one more than the regulation 70 games.

Ron Andrews, NHL publicist-statistician, announced the league ruling Thursday saying "It wouldn't be his fault that he played an extra game and if you started putting asterisks in the book for cases like this, it would soon be riddled with them."

Montreal's Jean Beliveau set the record with 58 assists in 1960-61 and Bathgate himself holds the mark of 56 for a right winger, a total he racked up in 1961-62. He has 35 so far this season.

The Maple Leafs have two more games to play and if Bathgate appears in both that would give him 71 for the season because New York Rangers had played one more game than Toronto when they traded him Feb. 22.

Andrews also announced the league has decided that if two goaltenders are tied in the Vezina Trophy competition they will both get $1,000. The names of both will be inscribed on the trophy.

There would be no $500 award for second place.

Allan Sherman, Producer Of Show, Turns Comedian

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Allan Sherman, a round-faced, crew-cut funnyman with an earnest air, will be a guest star on Tuesday night's CBS Garry Moore Show. Three nights later he'll be a guest on NBC's That Was The Week That Was.

That is an extraordinarily heavy schedule for a free-lance performer, especially one who has been a professional entertainer less than 15 months.

Sherman until 1951 was well known inside television as a comedy writer. Then he struck a mother lode as co-creator of I've Got a Secret, and became its producer.

"My partner, Howard Merrill, and I were out of work," he recalled. "We got the idea, walked across the street to Goodson and Todman's office and sold it for $25 a week. The deal, though, was that one of us would produce the show."

Secret went on the air the next year.

"I happened to be the producer," Sherman said, "because meanwhile Merrill had found a job and I was still unemployed."

Sherman through the years had been a compulsive amateur entertainer, Harpo Marx heard his satiric topical songs at a Hollywood soiree and suggested to a record company that they make a Sherman album. Result was My Son, the Folk Singer, which broke sales records and transformed Sherman into a successful comedian.

Both are CinemaScope productions. Continuous show Saturday from 1.00 p.m., doors open at 12.30 p.m.

At the Belle

Unusual Group of Extras In New Jerry Lewis Film

Never let it be said that a Jerry Lewis film is lacking. In Jerry's new Technicolor film "Who's Minding The Store?" showing today and Saturday at the Belle Theatre, there is "romance, comedy, prizes, girls, handsome men — and 36 poodles. That's right 36 poodles (count them), all sizes, all shapes and all colors. Included are toy poodles, miniature poodles, standard poodles and even four in the large economy size.

In this new hilarious comedy Jerry Lewis plays Norman Pfaiffiler, a reformed poodle-walker, now working in Tuttle's Department Store. Unknown to Norman, Barbara Tuttle (Jill St. John), the girl he loves, is heiress to the store.

This romance between Barbara and Norman promises to be perfect until Mrs. Tuttle (Agnes Moorehead) finds out about it. To make Norman seem inefficient Mrs. Tuttle tells Mr. Quimby (Ray Walston), the store manager, to give Norman unthinkable chores to do. The results of this decision are catastrophic and it forces Norman to return to poodle walking, and that's where the dog tale's over . . . all 36 of them.

Picton, Napanee Play 3-3 Overtime Tie

PICTON (Staff) — With 1,212 fans on their way to the rink and the Picton Merchants all but crowned OHA Eastern Junior "C" group champions in Napanee last night, Allan Stinson scored for the Napanee Red Wings at 19.20 of the third period to give his club a 3-3 tie with Picton.

The clubs fought a scoreless ten - minute overtime bout before settling for the split in points.

Picton leads the best-of-seven total or three games to one with one tied. The next game is slated for Picton on Monday night at 8.30.

Napanee outshot the Merchants 58-30 overall but with Larry Holmes in the Picton nets turning in another great effort, this club never trailed.

Harold Haddock was the Picton scoring star, netting all three of his club's goals. He built a 3-0 lead midway through the second heat but Napanee's Mike Cruik scored twice to deadlock the game. Haddock made it 3-3 and it stayed that way until Holmes made all-important marker. Tom Mercer, although he did not serve as much as Holmes, was a star in the Napanee nets.

There was . . . only seven minor penalties called in the hard-fought contest, all of them coming in the first two periods.

BUSY MAN

Pierre Berton appears five nights a week on his own CTV show, once a week on CBC-TV's Front Page Challenge and has a daily five-minute topical commentary on 16 radio stations.

Daughter of Bob Hope Debuts on Father's Show

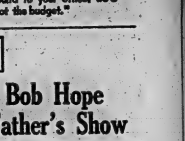
By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—There's a new hope on the television screen and her name is Linda.

The daughter of Bob Hope makes her debut tonight on her father's show. She plays Miss November in Her School for Bachelors, in which Bob plays the owner of a girlie magazine and night club.

Linda, 23, explained why she had waited so long to make her debut: "I wasn't sure show business was ready for any more Hopes. Look at all the Crosbys it had taken!"

Besides, in keeping with her parents' wishes, she went to college first. She graduated from St. Louis University in Missouri and taught English a couple of years at a Los Angeles high school.



STILL TEACHES

She still teaches one day a week, but now she is giving serious thought to a career in entertainment. She saw her chance for a break when she found the script of Her School for Bachelors at the Hope manse.

She landed the part, nine lines and everything. Linda confessed it was not really her acting debut. She appeared in one of Bob's films, That Uncertain Feeling.

"No lines in that one," she admitted. "In fact, no face. I was standing at a filing cabinet with my back to the camera."

Linda's hoping for bigger things, especially in the field of light comedy or drama. But she said her interest leans more toward direction. She plans to go to Europe this spring to study the methods of Ingmar Bergman, Tony Richardson and others.

"Oh, yes, Mr. Trimble was expecting you — he's gone for the day."

"Psychology With Fangs Bared!"

Vancouver's Police Dogs

By DAVE STOCKAND

VANCOUVER (CP) — "The suspect was standing as if frozen."

This line with its chill of fear is from the annual report of the Vancouver police department's dog squad. It is a theme that pads softly through all reports on police dogs on duty.

"The suspect was at the time of arrest co-operating to the extent that he readily gave the names of the other two escapees."

"Police dog Joker was used to clear the street, some of the youths leaving on the run."

You get the idea—psychology with fangs bared.

Dogs, police dogs, have a certain manner about them that gives recurring nightmares to pirates and dirties the tough guy into a timid soul.

But this does not mean that Joker, Rinty, Major or any of the other German Shepherds which make up the Vancouver police dog squad (authorized strength 15) are a bunch of bully boys with a canine caste blanche.

NOT VICIOUS

The dog squad's creed is that the dogs are an extra weapon or aid to be used when needed, never exceeding the commands of their handlers, and absolute in their obedience to orders.

A vicious or self-willed dog would find itself on the way to the pound, instead of making friends with its master in a patrol car as is done under the Vancouver system.

About 100 dogs a year are offered to the Vancouver police as potential dog squad recruits. Only seven were accepted for training last year, and of these, three were flunked. It's no wonder the force is so choosy about to start its own breeding program.

"We get offers from people who have bought cute puppies that have grown into 100-pound Alsatians and from people who think we want an extremely vicious dog," said Inspector F. C. Errington of the police force.

"This, of course, is not true. But we wouldn't accept a known bully as a police recruit, we would not accept a known bully as a police dog."

SELF-TAUGHT

Inspector Errington supervises operations of the dog squad as inspector in charge of the special details branch. He was instrumental in organizing the self-taught squad from the start in 1958.

"We prefer the German Shepherd—or Alsatian as we call him—because by his breeding he has all the requirements necessary for a good police dog," said Inspector Errington. "But a vicious German Shepherd —or a vicious dog of any kind—no.

"Our dogs are part of the policeman's family. If he can't be trusted to become part of a family there is something wrong with his temperament, and if there is something wrong there this automatically disqualifies him as a police dog."

A curl of an Alsatian's lip, with a back-of-the-throat rumble, is usually enough to make a suspect think twice about attacking either dog or master.

A dog will attack with mincemeat-making capability if it is ordered to, if the dog's master is in trouble or if it is attacked itself—but orders to desist must be obeyed.

"We do know that assigning dogs to any given area, that is having a given problem does almost immediately show a reduction in the immediate problem," said Inspector Errington.

A properly trained police dog is a boon to fielding searches, an ace in the hot pursuit of suspects, a great equalizer when a policeman is outnumbered by the suspects he is trying to hold, and a contributor without peer to the art of crowd control.

With rare exceptions, the German Shepherd is a one-man dog. The career ends when the dog master who trained it—and has been trained with it—retires or leaves the force.

PRIZE PERFORMER

The Vancouver dogs are demonstrating their prowess at finding suspects in close pursuit and holding them at bay, barking, delaying, circling, barking, threatening, but not biting.

Tiger, now, is a real cutie. The summary of a case that involved Tiger says:

"Across the street, the dog master saw one suspect being held against a fence by Tiger, who was jumping up and hitting him with his head, although at no time biting him. The suspect was standing as if frozen.

"About 40 feet away the second suspect was standing in a similar manner. When he saw the dog master, he called, "O.K. tiger," he said.

You got me. Put the cuffs on and get the dog off."

The dogs' exploits have been well-publicized. Calls in which they played a part last year included everything from rescuing a soccer referee from irate fans to helping save would-be suicides.

Inspector Errington said he found it amazing how quickly citizens accepted the use of the dogs, and more than that, became personally interested in them.

"The misuse of dogs could change this acceptance overnight," he said.

PSYCHOLOGY WITH FANGS — There are no questions asked when Vancouver police back up their operations with their dog squad. Police reports indicate that the threat of the dogs' fangs usually takes the fight out of lawbreakers. Here a dog is used in crowd control during the 1963 Grey Cup weekend.

Astrological Forecasts

For the week MARCH 31
By SYDNEY OMAR

Aries (Mar. 21 - Apr. 19)—Stress upon domestic affairs, security. Take steps which increase comfort. Make gesture which promotes family harmony. Get details out of way early. Relax tonight!

Taurus (Apr. 20 - May 20)—Activity in connection with neighbors indicated. Highlight harmony, co-operation. Fine for becoming interested in new persons, projects. Emphasis research, original approach.

Gemini (May 21 - June 21)—Key is sharing. Includes activity in connection with hobby, gift or exciting project. Avoid being bogged down with unpleasant details. Fine for an evening on the town.

Cancer (June 22 - July 21)—Spotlight on personality, personal convictions. Be decisive, dynamic. Say what you mean—others will respond. Key is being willing to expand point of view. Keep mind open.

Leo (July 23 - Aug. 21)—Fine evening for attending theatre. Become a part of creative endeavor, personal or otherwise. Enlarge horizons. Become more familiar with emotions others feel.

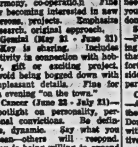
Virgo (Aug. 23 - Sept. 23)—Exchange ideas. Make new friends by being outgoing. Express opinions. Fine for change, variety. Be willing to experiment. Better to plan evening than act on impulse.

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)—Emphasis on achievement. Push forward in direction where ideals can be fulfilled. Take a chance on your abilities. Don't be timid, doubtful. Maintain positive attitude.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)—Fine for business dealings, making future plans. Avoid petty actions, thoughts. Be generous. Analyze personal needs, motives. Time when you can obtain greater wisdom.

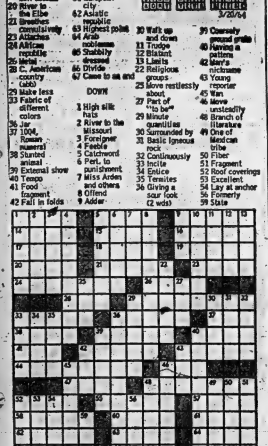
Sagittarius (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)—Transient indications regarding security due. Important that you give of yourself — put forth ideas. Be especially considerate of marital or business partner.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 - Jan. 20)—Adventure indicated. Even the "adventure" of debate. Don't feel you have to agree with everyone, ask provocative questions. Feel out the opposition. Let ships sail where they may.



Aquarius (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19)—Dig beyond surface indications. Many around you require praise, recognition. Give it! You'll be surprised at favorable response. Take initiative in being kind, understanding.

Pisces (Feb. 20 - March 20)—Excellent for entertaining. Emphasis on romance, sentiment. Also, great stress on need for self-expression. Make others aware of your unique way of putting ideas across.



If Today is Your Birthday—you are capable of achieving much—but first you must seek out ambitions.

General Tendencies — Cycle high for Cancer. Special word to Aquarius. Social contact with fellow worker proves rewarding.

Rylstone

RYLSTONE—Carol Heath attended a girls' shower for her friend, Judy Wickens, bride-elect, at the home of Marlene Holden, Stirling on Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Spencer, Johnny, Douglas, Philip and Mark spent Wednesday evening with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Spencer and Sherry.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pethericke were guests of their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Roly Jackson and family at Springbrook on Friday evening, on the occasion of their granddaughter Dawne's fourth birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Morton and Reed visited their daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Runnalls, Chris, Stevie and Mary Ellen, at Harold recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Berger Payne and family, Lindsay, were Sunday visitors with her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Don Stewart, Donna and Maureen.

Weekend and Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Spencer were: Mr. and Mrs. Gery Lounsbury, Sandra and Lynn Spencer, Kingston, and Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Lounsbury, Hastings.

Tommie Mckleiohn spent Saturday with his school chum, Read Morton.

Mr. and Mrs. Harper Bateman, Springforest, were Sunday guests with their daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Spencer and son.

FORMER RESIDENT DIES

Word was received here on Sunday of the passing of Mr. T. Alfred Heath, father of Mrs. Vernie Heath, Stirling, and grandfather of Ralph Heath, Rylstone. Mr. Heath was a native of Campbellford, where he lived for many years before going west. He had lived for several years at Brandon, Manitoba, where he died, at the grand old age of 94. Mr. Hall made several trips east, where he visited relatives and friends at Campbellford and community. He enjoyed exceptionally good health until a few months ago. Mr. Alfred Heath's friends and old neighbors at Rylstone extend sincere sympathy to Mrs. Heath and her family.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Reid, Springbrook, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Morton.

Jim Morton called on Sun Reed, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Sharpe and family in Campbellford.

Teen-Age Canada

National Youth Orchestra Auditioning New Talent

By JACK HUTTON

Eugene Cash, general manager of the National Youth Orchestra, was talking recently with 18-year-old Roderick Dignan, one of Canada's finest trombonists, in Edmonton, Alta.

"What are you doing in school this year?" asked Mr. Cash after he heard the young man play his horn with the usual finesse.

"Oh, same old thing," replied Roderick.

Jack Hutton

"I guess that means you're majoring in music, does it?" said Mr. Cash, who was midway through a cross Canada tour interviewing some 200 applicants for the NYO.

"No, aeronautical engineering," said Roderick.

Mr. Cash has been telling this story frequently. He believes — and I agree — that the anecdote gives a better picture of the 90 young musicians, who will perform with the NYO this summer, than several thousand words.

Fifth season for an orchestra only

This summer will mark the fifth season (ages 14 to 24) that has almost literally set this country on its listening ear every year since 1960.

This year's crop will meet in Toronto July 5 to rehearse and study nine or 10 days a day with some of the continent's finest teachers. On Aug. 2 they leave on a concert tour that will include Kingston, Ottawa, Montreal, Quebec City, Fredericton, Charlottetown and Halifax.

Anyone who figures the tour schedule will be filled with bespectacled, sour-faced introverts clutching their musical cases should never mention this loudly. If I mention that Roderick Dignan is a weightlifter, you will get the idea.

I asked Mr. Cash, who took this job last September, for his impressions of applicants he heard in Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Regina, Calgary, Edmonton, Vancouver, Victoria, Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal, Quebec City and Halifax.

Final selections won't be announced for some time. But the general manager wasn't able to restrain his enthusiasm about several "finds" of the cross-Canada expedition.

"I heard the most wonderful pair of cellists in Montreal. A 16-year-old boy and a 15-year-old girl," he said. "And in Vancouver we heard a 14-year-old boy who was a fine violinist. Just excellent."

Others will contribute a 16 year-old oboe player. Winnipeg will contribute a 15-year-old cellist whom Mr. Cash described as "exciting," playing for the first time with the NYO. Average age of the musicians is 18.

Twenty-year-old Margaret Norton of Stoney Creek, Ont., so impressed listeners with her oboe-playing last summer that she spent the winter with the Halifax Symphony Orchestra. She's coming back to the NYO this summer.

"Some people may wonder what motivates young people to pay $60 registration fee for the hard work of rehearsing nine or 10 hours a day," said Mr. Cash. "Are they egoheads, or the usual image of introverted types?"

A VARIED GROUP

"Walk through the train that carries the orchestra," he said, "and you'll find a varied group. "We have two weight-lifters, probably five or six excellent chess players, but all good, wholesome young people.

"We don't expect all or most to become professional musicians. Just seeing the other half of their country is one heck of a worthwhile experience. How many people realize that we'll be the first orchestra ever to tour from Toronto to the east coast?

"And just the thought of young people from every part of the country — the west coast, east coast, French Canada or the prairies — making harmony together makes me rather proud. I hope the contacts made in the NYO won't end there."

Somehow I think we'll be hearing the effects of our NYO for many years to come.

HOME, TRIPS

Since it has been impossible to answer everyone asking about trips planned by the Canadian Youth Hostels Association, here is the nation-al address for further information: Canadian Youth Hostels Association, National Office, Prescott Highway, Ottawa, Ont. You still have plenty of time to plan a cycling, climbing or driving trip for this summer.

CRAZY TUNE

Here's another tidbit for your scrapbook.

What did Tarzan say when he heard the elephants humming in the forest? Answer: Nothing. He thought he heard the Beatles.

TOP 20 TUNES

1. I want to hold your hands, Beatles; 2. Can't buy me love, Beatles; 3. Dawn, Four Seasons; 4. Please, please me, Beatles; 5. Java, Al Hirt; 6. Navy Blue, Diane Renay; 7. "Police State" Bill Is Pulled Back

Appears Headed For Waste Basket After Opposition

Premier Robarts Acts Quickly After Protests

By BOB EXELL

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government's proposed new police legislation appeared headed for the waste basket today with only the formality of committee crumpling awaiting it — perhaps on Monday.

Premier Robarts pulled back the legislation under fire Friday, telling the legislature that he personally would not tolerate "any legislation which infringes or jeopardizes the personal right and freedom of an individual."

That spelled death for the so-called "police state" bill that would have given the Ontario Police Commission the power to incarcerate a person without a trial.

But still confronting the government was the committee post-mortem. Opposition members may get their chance to publicly decry the bill when the legislature's committee on legal bills meets Monday. Mr. Robarts said he wants the bill to receive the "closest scrutiny" in committee.

There is no certainty, however, the bill will go to committee Monday. The committee's agenda was drawn up before the Police Act tempest blew up in the province. WOULD GIVE POWERS

The original design of the bill was to give the police commission powers to interrogate a person thought to have knowledge of organized or syndicated crime.

Attorney-General Cass introduced the bill in the legislature November 14 along with seven other pieces of legislation—one of them a measure providing for a crackdown on unscrupulous used-car dealers. This act itself would have provided headlines, but the seven other statutes fell

Millhaven To Be Site New Prison

OTTAWA (CP) — A complex of maximum security institutions costing $18,000,000 will be started this summer at Millhaven, Ont., to relieve overcrowding at nearby Kingston penitentiary, it was announced today.

Justice Minister Favreau said in a statement that a special detention unit will be built first for 140 hardened prisoners who make it difficult to carry out a comprehensive training program.

Work will start this summer also on the construction of roads and a water supply system at the Mill Haven site, purchased recently by the government.

The second stage, to be launched in 1965, will comprise

Canadians Are Beginning to Show Flag of UN Throughout Cyprus

NICOSIA (CP) — Canadian soldiers today began to show the United Nations flag throughout Cyprus.

It will be the first time Cyprus riots outside Nicosia will have seen the flag and the Canadians who serve under it.

Even though the UN force is not yet operational, and may not be until next week at the earliest, Lt.-Col. Andrew Woodcock, commander of the 1st Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, wants his men and those of the Royal Canadian Dragoons to get acquainted with the island which is half again as big as Prince Edward Island and has highlands like those of Quebec's eastern townships or of Cape Breton Island.

Col. Woodcock told reporters Friday at the Canadian camp here that his patrols will be careful to avoid any incidents which may occur between Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots.

"If we are invited to stop for coffee at any of the villages we will drink an equal amount with each side," he said with a smile.

The veteran of the UN Congo operation said two patrols will go out today, one north to the port of Kyrenia and another west to Troodos. Another will go to Kyrenia Sunday and two will strike out Monday on overnight visits, one east to Famagusta where the aircraft carrier Bonaventure will arrive March 29 with more vehicles and men for the Canadian contingent, the other south to the port of Limassol.

Today's patrols will each comprise about 50 men in jeeps and trucks and three Dragoon scout cars. The later patrols will have some 150 men each.

Col. Woodcock said the patrols will also give his men a chance to be introduced to persons in authority in the towns and villages. There are more than 600 villages in Cyprus.

UN headquarters here has approved the patrols.

"I hear we will be well received," the Van Doos commander said. "I hope we are not too well received with the local wines."

Col. Woodcock said his battalion's communications are carried on in French but that he does not foresee any language difficulties. The Cypriots speak English but no French. The colonel said one-third of his 920 men speak no English but that each patrol will include at least some English - speaking members.

Bricks Lobbed At Que.

OTTAWA (CP) — On the second day of the Commons budget debate, some MPs got tired of discussing the budget and lobbed verbal bricks at the Quebec government instead.

Gerald A. Regan (L — Halifax) said Friday that if "powerful provincialists" like his fellow Liberal, Quebec Resources Minister Rene Levesque, have their way, the have-not provinces will have even less.

Gerald W. Baldwin (PC — Peace River) said Quebec's partial ban on lumber exports to other provinces violates the constitution and could lead to other barriers to inter-provincial trade. This would threaten Canada's survival as "a viable economic unit."

The two lawyer-MPs spoke before their parties combined to crush a New Democratic non-confidence motion by a vote of 180 to 20.

The motion expressed regret that the government did not cut defence spending to provide money for economic development and foreign aid.

ONLY 16 VOTES

The 12 NDP members present drew their only support from eight Creditistes. Lining up with the government were 102 Liberals, 70 Conservatives, seven Social Credit MPs and Frank Howard (ND P — Skeena), pledged to vote for the minority government on such motions for its first two years in office.

Mr. Regan said people in the Atlantic provinces take a dim view of Quebec's demands, supported by Ontario, for a larger share of direct taxes.

If the federal government was stripped of too many taxation powers, it would no longer be able to make tax equalization payments to the poorer provinces and support national programs.

"Fuzzy - thinking empire builders of the Rene Levesque ilk" should know, he said, that Nova Scotia, Newfoundland and other have-not provinces would leave Confederation if the central government was weakened unduly.

Mr. Regan said Quebec's legitimate aspirations of Quebec residents to improve their economic position must preserve their French culture. But they became perturbed when these aims were used as a guise by Quebec to obtain "unfair commercial advantage."

Mr. Baldwin said Quebec's announced clamp-down on lumber shipments to Ontario sawmills beginning next fall is an infraction of Section 121 of the British - North America Act, which provided for free movement of products from the less-developed nations.

Canada to Be Self-Righteous At U.N. Trade Conference

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada can afford to be a little self righteous in its attitude at the United Nations trade and development conference opening in Geneva Monday, informed observers here believe.

Main object of the conference is an economic transfusion for the less-developed tropical countries, not so much by increasing loans, give-aways and technical aid as by making it easier for them to find work markets for their products.

The conference has attracted 113 UN members and nine non-member nations. Canada's delegation will be led by External Affairs Minister Martin but the permanent Canadian spokesman for the sessions, expected to last well into June, will be career diplomat Dana Wilgress.

Informants here made these points Friday:

Canada is ready to join the industrialized nations in cutting tariffs on tropical foods and raw materials. But in fact this country has relatively little left to offer in concessions. It already is virtually an open market, officials say.

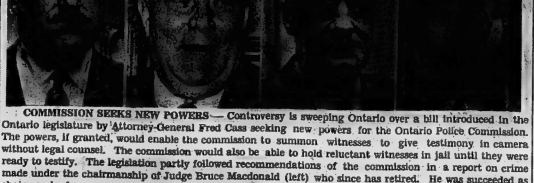
For example, all Canadian import duties on tea were lifted last Jan. 1. Green coffee beans come into Canada under a free British preferential tariff, though there is a two-cents-a-pound duty for most others. Beans intended for instant coffee enter free from all countries. Tin enters free. So does bauxite, and lumber up to a certain stage of processing. Sugar duties are low, though the rates are complicated.

Another problem is the so-called "internal taxing" of these tropical raw materials and foods, especially the consumption taxes in parts of Europe. Canada has none. For example, coffee and tea are exempted from federal sales tax in Canada.

The conference is also expected to seek some way to iron out the sharp swings in world prices for such commodities. The Canadian position is that we are ready to co-operate. Canada played a leading role in the international agreements on coffee prices.

For Canada, the most difficulty may come with the conference's attempts to open up the world markets for the narrow range of low-priced manufactured products from the less-developed nations.

Russians Release U.S. Flyer



BERLIN (AP)—Soviet authorities have announced they will release Lieut. Harold F. Welch, one of three American flyers shot down over Communist East Germany March 10, to U.S. Air Force spokesman said today.

The 24-year-old native of Detroit, who was injured when the three airmen parachuted, is expected to be turned over to Allied authorities later today, the spokesman said.

Welch suffered fractures of one arm and a leg and has been in a Russian military hospital at Magdeburg, East Germany. U.S. Air Force physicians have been allowed to visit him three times.

There was no word of the fate of the other two Americans, Capt. David I. Holland, 35, of Holland, Minn., and Capt. Melvin J. Kessler, 30, of Philadelphia. They were held by the Soviets at an undisclosed location.

The Soviets have admitted that a Russian fighter shot down the unarmed RB-66B reconnaissance plane and charged that it was on a spying mission.

COMMISSION SEEKS NEW POWERS — Controversy is sweeping Ontario over a bill introduced in the Ontario legislature by Attorney-General Fred Cass seeking new powers for the Ontario Police Commission. The powers, if granted, would enable the commission to summon witnesses to give testimony in camera without legal counsel. The commission would also be able to hold reluctant witnesses in jail until they were ready to testify. The legislation partly followed recommendations of the commission in a report on crime made under the chairmanship of Judge Bruce Macdonald (left) who since has retired. He was succeeded as chairman by former crown prosecutor Percy Milligan of Cornwall. Other members of the three-man commission are Magistrate T. J. Graham (second from right) and Maj.-Gen. H. A. Sparling (right). As the result of protests the bill has been withdrawn for re-examination. (CP Wirephoto)

Mrs. M. Niles Holds Ticket On 2nd Horse

Her Horse Is Beaten Neck In Driving Finish

A Belleville widow — working as a seamstress to support her three children — today won $60,000 in a classic finish to the Grand National Irish Sweepstakes.

Mrs. Margaret Niles, 22 Charlotte Street, held a ticket on Purple Silk — nosed out by Team Spirit in one of the most dazzling finishes in Grand National history.

* * *

Purple Silk leading in the final dash to the post, lost by only a neck to Team Spirit in the last seconds of the historic four-mile steeplechase.

Holders of the winning ticket get $150,000 from the Sweepstakes treasure chest.

Mrs. Niles heard the news at work — in the drapery department of McIntosh Bros. store on Front Street.

The Niles children heard the race at home.

Clustered tensely round the radio when they realized instant riches were Donald, 17, Linda, 16, and nine-year-old Ricky.

Their father, Charles Niles, drowned in the Trent River about six years ago, when he fell from a dam while fishing.

Two other horses were drawn by local residents — one a 7-year-old Roslin girl.

ROSLIN GIRL WINNER

Deidre Baldwin, daughter of Lord Mayor and Mrs. R. Baldwin, R.R. 1 Roslin, drew a ticket on "Out-and-About" which got off to a promising start, holding second place for much of the first lap.

He began dropping behind as the race entered its second and final run.

Deirdre, on the ticket purchased by her father, still wins a consolation prize for drawing a starter.

A third district ticket-holder, still known only under the non-de-plume of "Tap" of Belleville, drew Lisnavan placed far back at the finish although an 18-1 shot.

But the centre of excitement as the race neared the post for the last time was the drapery department at McIntosh Store.

With the radio tuned in and her fellow employees pressed around with crossed fingers, Mrs. Niles followed the race's course that led her to sudden fame.

HOUSE HER DREAM

"Oh, if only I could just win enough to be able to buy a house," she exclaimed after the horse, Purple Silk, pounded into third place.

Then from third to second.

Mrs. Niles grew more agitated and was barely able to stem her emotions.

Into first place and down the home stretch.

"This is too good to be true."

5 Canadians Each Win $150,000

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Five Canadians won prizes of $150,000 each today in the first Irish Sweepstakes in two years as Team Spirit won the Grand National steeplechase at Aintree, England. Four Canadians won prizes of $60,000 each on Purple Silk, second in the Grand National, and one won $20,000 on third-place Peacetown.

American-owned Team Spirit won the 132rd running of the race.

Purple Silk was second only a neck behind in a driving finish. Peacetown was third, six lengths back.

The race, staged over a four-mile, 856-yard course with 30 tough obstacles, was called one of the most exciting in the long history of the event.

Peacetown, a 40-1 shot, led most of the way and appeared to have the race won when Team Spirit, 18 - 1, smallest horse in the field of 32, and Purple Silk, 100 - 7, made a powerful surge in the stretch.

Four of the top winners were from Ontario and the fifth was from Edmonton. Two of the second winners were from Toronto, one was from Calgary and the fourth from Belleville. The third place winner was from Stouffville, Ont., near Toronto.

Only one of the $150,000 winners was named on the ticket purchased in Dublin in the Irish Hospitals lottery earlier this week. He was J. Rohacheck of Kitchener. The other tickets carried noms-de-plume as follows: 'Let Go, Brockville, Golden Girl, Edmonton, Fruits, Stoney Creek, Ont., and Green River, Toronto.

The second place tickets were listed as Now Is It, Toronto, Harry, Calgary, Horses, Toronto, and Mrs. M. Niles, Belleville.

In all, 170 Canadians held tickets on the 33 horses that started in the Grand National. Some of the tickets in horses that ran out of the money will win prizes of about $1,300 each. In addition, there are some 1,500 consolation and residual prizes totalling about $300,000.

Radiation Can Help Lung Cancer Victims Cheat Death -- Scientist

PALM BEACH SHORES, Fla. (AP) — New evidence was reported today that medicine's heavy artillery against cancer — super - voltage radiation—can help certain victims of inoperable lung cancer cheat death for years beyond the usual expectancy.

Dr. Ruth Guttmann of Columbia University told about it in a report to the annual seminar for science writers sponsored by the American Cancer Society.

She said that at present, many surgeons and radiologists do not offer their lung cancer patients any treatment at all after an exploratory operations shows cure is impossible—and if the patients are free of symptoms for the time being.

But new studies on her own indicate, she related, "that it might be worthwhile to revise this attitude."

Describing use of high doses of super-voltage x-ray in 82 patients who had undergone an exploratory operation and were found to be inoperable, she said 58.5 per cent lived more than a year. She added that in appreciable numbers survival ranged as high as eight years, with eight patients still alive between three and eight years after the completion of treatment.

The average survival time so far has been 21 months—compared with between six and six months for patients who receive no treatment, the scientist said.

Underwriters Admit Member To Association

The monthly meeting of the Bay of Quinte Life Underwriters Association was held on March 20th, 1964 combining both business and lunch at Johnny's Restaurant in the shopping plaza.

President Sid Martin officiated reading the oath of allegiance to Doug Prosser, a new member.

Bob Wright membership chairman, presented the 100% agency award certificates to Jim Wells.

Ralph Knowlson introduced the speaker, Mr. Don Fowlie, C.L.U., assistant superintendent of Agencies, Canada Life, who spoke to us on the subject "Increased Cost Through Sale Analysis". Mr. Fowlie pointed out that the first quarter is the most finished and we as underwriters should take inventory on what we have been doing for 3 months. Have we been putting maximum effort on our job, are we taking advantage of the expanding economy. Repeat business passing on policies to clients and are we using this avenue to increase sales. Never underestimate the value and power of your prospect.

In closing Mr. Fowlie said the greatest asset an underwriter must have is enthusiasm because if you are enthused it is contagious to the prospect.

The speaker was thanked by Gordon Ackerman and presented with a product of our fair city.

The meeting was adjourned by President Sid Martin.

Traffic Change At Intersection Starts Monday

Evening rush-hour drivers whose destination is across the Bay Bridge are asked to note a traffic-route change starting Monday in Belleville.

Police today issued a reminder that from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. there will be no left turn off the Bridge Street West onto Coleman Street.

Southbound motorists now are advised to use the James St. - a block further west of Coleman.

Brass Quintet Closes Community Concerts

By STANLEY C. WIGGINS.

Last night in the Belleville Collegiate Auditorium the last concert of the season was staged for the local Community Concert Association, and it ended with the excellent presentation of the unique "New York Brass Quintet".

This smooth and well co-ordinated group of professional brass instrumentalists played a broad variety of selection, ranging from 17th and 18th century composers such as Johann Sebastion Bach to the 20th century writers like Alec Wilder and Eugene Bozza.

The instrumental combination used in this new approach to the concert world produced a well balanced sound with two trumpets (Robert Nagel and Robert Heinrich); French horn (Paul Ingraham); trombone (John Swallow); and tuba (Harvey Phillips).

WELL REHEARSED

Undoubtedly these gentlemen have spent enough hours together in rehearsal to have such fine co-ordination without the help of a conductor or rhythm section.

With the usual string quartet or woodwind quintet, the addition of a central leader is not so great because of the softness of the instruments, but with the more triumphant and heralding brass instruments the sound produced is so much greater that much greater by the increased intensity of the sound. Undoubtedly these men have mastered that problem as there were very few incidents of any rhythmical difference.

The rendition of "Scherzo and Liedi" composed by Ludwig Van Beethoven was a splendid and harmonious selection of the old masters. In this selection alone this number for the quintet by giving a definite tempo to the opening and ending back and forth with a predominating theme. At times the trumpets played in little more of the German band sound prevailing — but instead the work ended in a bright tone, with a happy air.

"Quintet in E flat minor, Opus 67" by Alec Wilder featured Mr. Harvey Phillips opening the selection on his tuba, which was very pleasing to the ears. Here born. This presentation had a great deal of substance and imitation with the intervening theme being taken by all of the various instruments in their turn. It also apparently provided a few problems at times as tuning for the group should have been better with the continual rising and falling of the pasages. The French horn entry would be flat and the most noticeable trumpet entry at the evening occurred when Mr. Nagel missed "that" A flat. However, I should mention that a small blurb of this kind is as easy to come by as the blink of an eye and very often unnoticed by the casual expected. I am sure it was not noticed by many and I know by very few but Mr. Nagel's pride more than the ears of the audience.

LIKED NUMBERS

The finale to Part I of the program was "Quintet, Opus 71" composed by Malcolm Arnold and the audience seemed to enjoy this more than the others. This suite displayed some really difficult syncopation with accents on off beats of the bar, and provided, in addition, the first evidence of triple tonguing by the brass players. Notes were also used by the trumpets during this number and added a great deal to the evening's delightful listening. At times the French horn and trombone blended very well they could hardly be distinguished from the trumpet tones, an excellent achievement in this small group.

Part II of the program proved to be better received by the audience which seemed to lack some conditioning at first to its appreciation of this fine ensemble.

"Impression of a Parade," a descriptive piece consisting of variations on the familiar tune "When Johnny Comes Marching Home" by 20th century writer Samuel Baron was the most catchy composition of the evening. Trumpets with their silver colored straight mutes and the muted trombone provided the color for the parade. The variations on the theme often sounded like a dispatcher sending his message by morse code, but the overall effect was excellent.

"Intermezzo" by Dahl provided a wonderful opportunity for trumpet co-ordination and could be classed as possibly the most difficult of the evening's performance.

"Three Pieces" by Wilder and "Sonatina" by Bozza were rich with 20th century brass ideas. Mr. Swallow on his trombone provided many a laugh as he

Brendan Behan, a Rebel Against Authority, Dies

CP Cable from AP-Reuters

DUBLIN — Brendan Behan, boisterous, bibulous Irish playwright-author, and ex-British terrorist and incorrigible rebel against authority, died Friday. He was 41.

At the end he was a bureaucut cripple, leaving a relatively small body of published and dramatized works. His literary career had promised to be his flaut rather than merely spectacular.

The chubby, pear-shaped little Irishman with the twisted grin and the puckish rebound from every punishment disaster long had suffered from diabetes and other infirmities that either arose from excesses or dictated a more austere life for survival.

Behan would periodically ignore the cautions and go on a bender with often spectacular results. His last major collapse in a diabetic seizure with complications of jaundice began a week before St. Patrick's Day.

Behan sank into a coma on the evening of St. Patrick's Day and this afternoon began a deepairing series of bulletins—condition very grave, extremely grave.

END COMES

The end came at 8:40 p.m. for the former revolutionary, reformatory inmate and Irish prison convict. He had been in a coma for five days in Meath Hospital, with his wife, Beatrice, at his side. One of his latest binges began with the birth last November of their first child, a daughter.

Physicians performed two emergency operations in a final vain effort to help Behan's labored breathing and prolong his life, but the wild man of the pale stage failed to regain consciousness.

Behan was given the last rites of Roman Catholic Church Monday, on the eve of St. Patrick's Day, an occasion he often had celebrated with carousing. He called himself a Catholic but a bad one.

A hospital spokesman said after the death:

"Behan was admitted March 10 and was in and out of a coma almost the whole time.

"There was really never any hope for him."

EXCESSES FABULOUS

Behan's excesses were as fabulous as and even more widely publicized than the escapades of the late Welsh poet Dylan Thomas, who died in New York in 1953 at age 39 after prolonged bouts in Greenwich Village bars. It was often said that Behan might have equalled Thomas's record of the prolific, brooding Eugene O'Neill, another hard-drinking writer who died in the earlier Greenwich Village.

Two of Behan's plays, The Quare Fellow and The Hostage, attained resounding success but his standout effor in the last few years overshadowed his literary production in the public eye.

In Hostage, Behan, who was invited to give two lectures at McGill University in Montreal, flu arrived at the first letter spending the day in "convivial company" and began to deliver a tirade against France's Algerian policy. His lectures were cancelled.

In March, 1961, he went to Toronto to appear in a play review. He was arrested at a hotel for allegedly assaulting a security officer and a detective.

He spent several days in a hospital and when he appeared in court was fined $200.

LEFT HOSPITAL

His next trip to North America landed him in a New York hospital for tests of a liver disorder, but he left the hospital abruptly after a few days because he could not "stand the bother any longer."

He returned to Ireland, was in the hospital in August of 1963 for liver trouble, again in November and shortly after discharge was picked up from Dublin street with a head injury and pneumonia.

At 13 Behan was a member of the Irish Republican Army as an explosives carrier. At 16 he was caught in Liverpool and sentenced to three years in the Borstal reformatory and went to jails in England and Ireland at various times in his adult life. A 14-year sentence was commuted by amnesty in 1946. He wrote his first book, Borstal Boy, about his reformatory experience.

Behan was married in 1955 to Beatrice Salkeld.

The couple's first and only child, a girl, was born last November and, characteristically, the baby's father turned up late for the christening.

EXPRESS SYMPATHY

After the bulletin announcing Behan's death, hundreds of persons telephoned the hospital to express their sympathy. Many of the calls came from North America, British and Russian.

Brendan was born in 1923 in the slums of north Dublin as the first child of a remarkable family.

A brother, Dominic, has much of Brendan's writing talent and the taste for what Brendan called "the gargle." Another, Brian, is a professional revolutionary and has been expelled in turn from the Roman Catholic Church and leftist groups.

For Brendan, the break to fame came when he sent The Quare Fellow to Joan Littlewood's theatre workshop—then a struggling idealistic attempt to make a playhouse pay in a London area.

GOES ON TV

Behan later took the play to London and made himself an international name with a celebrated television appearance for the British BBC.

He arrived at the studio spruce and punctual and for hour and a half, he said, some one left a bottle in the room where he awaited the call to the studio. When he finished the bottle it was empty.

So Dublin he lived simply on a quiet street near the home where he was reared but he learned he drank less there than he did abroad.

The new work was completely accepted by the Dublin intellectual set. They said he drank too much. He said they were jealous of his success.

He was widely quoted. As examples: "My wife and I drink because it tastes so good. But I wish I could scale it down and become just a heavy drinker."

construction of a maximum security prison for 450 prisoners and central services for the complex — heating and power, disposal plants, stores, kitchen and laundry.

PLAN CENTRE

The third stage, likely to start in 1966, will involve construction of a regional reception centre for 200 prisoners. All Ontario convicts sentenced to two years or more will be sent there initially for classification, and later be transferred to one of the other institutions in Ontario.

Also in the third stage, a regional medical centre will be built to treat Ontario prisoners in the early stages of mental illness and others requiring advanced medical treatment.

Mr. Favreau said that a second maximum security institution for 450 prisoners is scheduled for construction "sometime between 1967 and 1973."

He announced earlier that the Kingston women's prison will be converted to other use. Female narcotics addicts will be sent to a new treatment centre in interior British Columbia and female convicts from Eastern Canada will be sent to a new cottage - type institution to be built in Cornwall.

Maple Syrup Is On Market In Quantity

Few vendors were seen on the local market square here this morning, possibly due to the cold, damp weather. The square looked a familiar sight as stands were set up along the sidewalks, after their absence during the winter months.

Good old-fashioned maple syrup took the limelight this morning. Prize winner Edward County farmer's wife said that it looks as though it will be a good year for syrup, and this is the first time in a long time they were able to produce light amber syrup which would indicate the maples were producing the choices sap.

Prices however remain in the same price range as last year. A gallon container brought $6.40, while half gallons sold for $3.25. Quart containers were offered at $1.75 and pint tins sold for 90 cents.

And, as always, a treat for the children as well as adults, maple sugar candy was offered at two pieces for 25 cents.

Quality however remained the same as last year. Some of the vendors were on hand to explain why his party opposed the NDP motion. The NDP amendment sought to delete most of the main nonconfidence motion, introduced by the leader of the Quebec forestry provision.

The Conservative motion, due to be voted on Tuesday, attacked the government for its high spending and substantial deficit. The NDP returned the favor by charging it will oppose the Conservative motion.

The six-day budget debate is expected to continue Monday and Tuesday and be concluded before Thursday, after other measures will be considered for Thursday's business. This would appear to be the only possibility under which the pension legislation could come before the Commons again before recess.

(Photo by Tweed News)

Mrs. John Houston, former Belleville woman now living in Tweed, celebrated her 91st birthday on Wednesday when she was guest of honor at a party at the Tweedmill Hotel in Tweed.

Attending the party were Mrs. Houston's son and three daughters and also a schoolboy friend, Miss Ida Wood-cock.

Born in Tweed, Mrs. Houston was the former Miss Elizabeth Brock and was married in 1898. She and her husband moved to Belleville in 1923 where her husband operated the Houston Lumber Company.

Mr. Bert Houston of this city is a son, while Mrs. Harry (Maude) Rollins, also of Belleville, Mrs. William C. (Doris) Burgoyne of Egansville and Mrs. C. R. (Grace) Porritt of Tweed are daughters.

Trade Minister Sharp replied that he had discussed the matter with members of the Quebec government and had concluded that it was entirely within the province's jurisdiction.

Mr. Baldwin said the issue should be referred to the Senate or the Tariff Board by the federal government to determine the validity of the Quebec forestry provision.

Retarded Children Enjoy First Ride On Train

TRENTON—At the Trenton-Brighton and District School for the Retarded, the air was static with excitement for the first day the children were going on their train trip from Brighton to Belleville.

Lunches were hastily consumed. Dishes were hurriedly done. All was in order when the bus arrived to take the children to Brighton to board the train. On the way to the station it began to snow but even bad weather could not dampen the spirits of the children.

It was hard to be patient as they sat in the waiting room at the station, but soon the train chugged in, ground to a stop and the children started to go aboard. The older children were eager, but those of the younger children dissolved into tears and had to be coaxed aboard.

During the journey some shed of eyes was glued to the window. All were anxious to cram as many sights as possible into the trip. They were unable to see their school as the train passed behind it, but the floats, which had assumed blizzard proportions, but they did see Principal Jay Wanless' house and they waved gaily to it as they whizzed by.

On arrival in Belleville, the children and their teachers learned that the bus which was to take them back to Brighton had developed mechanical trouble.

In dramatic fashion, the station master rushed out to signal the Toronto bound train. The train stopped, and the children, delighted at the turn of events, crowded aboard. As crowded it was. The train was already full, but passengers moved over, and the children made room for a child to wedge himself into the corner. The children were models of good behavior and one gentleman remarked that had they been normal children, the train pus raised would have made the trip miserable for the adults in the car.

Last week's trip resulted in a greater understanding for the children of the various modes of travel, (some of them had never been on a train), etiquette while travelling, manners and the kindness of human nature. Their polite response to their fellow-travellers reflected the attitude of the travellers themselves. The teachers hope the trip improved the "image" of the retarded child in the eyes of the people they met along the way.

Mrs. Mary Reid and Mrs. Irma Plunkett, who accompanied the children, helped to give them an enriching experience which they will long remember.

Each day, since the trip, the 1.15 train blows its whistle as it passes the school near Smithfield, and the children turn to each other and say, "Here comes our train."

Brighton Man Killed In Crash Near Trenton

TRENTON — A two-car crash on Highway 2 last night took the life of a 28-year-old father of four children. Gordon Murray Christman, R. R. 2, Brighton was killed when his small European automobile was heavily damaged in the collision at the Barcoven Beach road intersection, five miles west of here.

Police have not released full details on the mishap and say its cause is still under investigation.

The second driver was identified as 19-year-old Donald Gordon Hanthorn, also of R. R. 2 Brighton. He and a passenger, Thomas Perkins, R. R. 2, Brighton, escaped injury.

Holy Week To Be Observed

TRENTON — Trenton ministers are planning Easter services for all next week, Holy Week. Many of the churches will be open for services Wednesday and Thursday nights, with all churches holding services on Good Friday.

Tuesday night, Bishop C. K. Nelson of Bay of Quinte, will conduct a confirmation service at St. George's Anglican Church.

At King Street United Church, new members will be received into full membership and the King St. choirs will perform portions from Stainer's "Crucifixion" and Handel's "Messiah," Good Friday evening, starting at 7.30 p.m.

Woman Hurt At Cannifton

A Cannifton woman was hospitalized early today after a three-car crash on Highway 27 in Cannifton.

Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Fisher, 22, of Cannifton, was admitted to Belleville General Hospital with face and leg lacerations.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Roy Anderson of Cannifton. 'On the rebound," officers said, "his automobile struck a car being driven by Mrs. William McCaffrey, Corbyville.

Total damage was $2,000.

She was taken to hospital by LaSalle ambulance.

The CNR station in downtown Trenton, a landmark for more than 80 years, is to be torn down to make way for an A. & P. supermarket, with offices upstairs. The building is to be up by July 1, according to report. The bricks in the old station have been sold, they say, because, "they don't make bricks like that nowadays." The CNR office operations will be moved to a former freight shed east of the station, and the Victorian Order of Nurses is looking for a new office. The VON has rented an office in the station for $5 a month for the past few years.

One Is Killed, Four Injured, Train Hits Car

STURGEON FALLS, Ont. (CP)—One person was killed and four others seriously injured Friday when a car in which they were riding was struck by a train at a level crossing in this town 22 miles west of North Bay.

Dead is Claudette Lavallee, 18, of Sturgeon Falls.

Her sister Estelle, 19, Colette Tanguay, 18, of Sturgeon Falls, and August Real Ross, 21, and his brother Yves, 23, both of Montreal, were taken to hospital here with undetermined injuries. The car was hit by the westbound Canadian, the Canadian Pacific Railway's transcontinental passenger train.

Ontario Answers Cass

Drastic, dangerous, new and terrible.

That's what Attorney-General Frederick M. Cass called legislation he introduced in the Legislature to combat organized crime, discovered in Ontario despite a long list of earlier denials of its existence. The legislation would have made it possible to jail a man without trial and without access to legal advice, for refusing to testify before the Ontario Police Commission.

Well, Ontario's reaction proved that, while parts of the body politic may be diseased, the heart is sound.

It took less than twenty four hours for an aroused public to make it plain it was not going to submit meekly to legislation patterned after the chains of a police state, just because Mr. Cass had been frightened by a gang of criminals.

One of the greatest shocks, for many Ontario residents, must have been that such legislation as Mr. Cass proposed could have been introduced by a government headed by Premier John Robarts.

It was good to have one's faith in Mr. Robarts at least partially restored within hours of it being shaken. He did not shilly-shally or beat around the bush, but came out bluntly and plainly with the declaration that the proposed legislation would not be enacted if re-examination showed it interfered with the rights of individuals.

Of course it would so interfere. Mr. Cass is authority for that. "The rights of a few individuals may have to be over-ridden for the public good", he declared. The Toronto Globe and Mail had the right answer to that: "These rights, which belong to every individual, are the public good."

The reasons advanced by Mr. Cass made a sorry showing. We have seen them paraded before, in every country where arbitrary measures have been introduced under the excuse of necessity.

Mr. Cass admitted that this could happen and that that could happen under the law, as proposed, but added that in practice people would not be treated in the objectionable manner suggested. In that case, why not word the law so that such abuses could not possibly occur? Is there nobody in the Attorney-General's department capable of writing in the necessary safeguards? Or, even more frightening and at the same time more probable, is there nobody in that department who regards such safeguards as important?

If that was the attitude, the people of Ontario feel differently. So, too, does Premier Robarts. Enough to cause him to discover that, such an obviously deplorable law could pass his first scrutiny. He cannot escape all responsibility for the proposal.

The premiers of Ontario have been singularly ill served by some of their cabinet ministers in late years. Those who are continually essaying to imitate, while they may preserve their reputation for integrity, are likely to find their reputation for shrewdness suffering.

After Hon. Kelso Roberts, who maintained there was no organized crime in Ontario, and Hon. Fred Cass, who found so much organized crime that he wished to erase the memory of Magna Carta and treated the recently enacted Canadian Bill of Rights as a scrap of paper, Ontario needs an Attorney-General who can recognize organized crime when he sees it — and is prepared to fight it without himself resorting to methods which closely regards as inadmissible, if not actually illegal.

An Excellent Proposal

Federal and provincial officials are studying a plan to subsidize interprovincial youth travel as a centennial project.

Centennial Commissioner John Fisher says the plan "can well be the most lasting and beneficial part of all proposed centennial observances."

We think he is right.

It is hard to, Canada could wait another hundred years before celebrating Confederation, but it could easily be that without some program to enable Canadians to understand each other the occasion for observing our second century of "togetherness" may never arise.

If the partners of Confederation were still here, we think they would have no hesitation in placing the improvement of future prospects ahead of the celebration of past achievements.

This is one proposal which gives meaning to all the centennial plans and it is the sort of program which ought to be undertaken even if the centennial did not provide a reason for proposing it at this time.

Ottawa Offbeat

Eskimos Being Unwillingly Railroaded by Government

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The splintered Opposition is beginning to suspect that perhaps it may have stumbled across just the elusive and politically magical issue which could unite it.

Magic, that is, because nothing else in the past year — taxes, the Canada Pension Plan, defence policy, or even the nuclear arms issue which only last spring was so politically explosive — has compelled the four Opposition groups to stand together in the voting when the minority Liberal Government's appropriations bills hung in the balance on successive want-of-confidence challenges.

The issue, at first glance, might appear to be a dreary one, far afield, yet close to home.

It is the fate of the 2,500 Eskimos of Northern Quebec. They have long been the responsibility of the Federal Government, but now the province wants to claim them — and Ottawa and Quebec City have been working out a deal for what they hoped would be a quiet transfer that few would notice, much less care about.

SQUEEZE PLAY

Perhaps the basic complication is that these Eskimos largely are English-speaking Anglicans, and the very Federal officials in the Northern Affairs and National Resources Department who have been maximum to be transferred to an administration that is overwhelmingly French-speaking and of a different faith.

But Quebec Resources Minister Rene Levesque, a bold outspoken Canadien who has sworn off English in the continuing struggle to be on the hot bilingual and bicultural issue, has demanded that they be handed over, and he has met little obvious reluctance, is obliging.

The Opposition has been charged with a lack of any other part of the price — or "ransom," as some people call it — Quebec MPs have to pay to get that the Federal Government must and has been paying for the upkeep and the luxury of the Quebec support in the minority House of Commons.

There would be nothing wrong with an Eskimo transfer — not even in suspicions Opposition minds — if the Eskimos were given the choice and made it.

But they are only to be "consulted" before any final transfer agreement is made.

This could be so far no more — has been promised by Prime Minister Pearson in answer to questions from the dis the Eskimos, regarded by the two governments, at Ottawa and Quebec City, as "citizens" — were to be transferred regardless of their own wishes.

"RECOGNIZE" ISSUE

The Government stubbornly, if obviously uneasily, has promised only "consultation" — and this remains ambiguous — on Opposition demands that:

1. An Eskimo referendum be held;

2. Any transfer be approved by Parliament; and

3. The referendum — unless the Federal Government changes its mind and burns its talk on Quebec — because Rene Levesque wants it held.

"He rejected it out of hand on grounds that the Eskimos have reached the political stage where they are capable of having an opinion, and that referendums, however would be, as Mr. Levesque has put it, going between quotes: 'An abuse of the democratic process.'"

Now here is the catch.

This Government has stood up and been counted many times at the United Nations on the democratic principle of self - determination of nations.

It is for that it has campaigned for such peoples as the revolutionaries of Zanzibar and the other African states, some of which have won their political independence, a few by violence, from Great Britain.

Self - determination, apparently, is fine for some of the backward populations of newly-emerging Africa, but too rich for the political blood of simple Canadian Eskimos.

For that is what the Eskimos are — Canadiens — the outstandingly mature enough, educated enough to be able to vote in Federal elections.

EMOTIONAL APPEAL

But not at that "cultural stage," Mr. Levesque says, to decide the Federal Government where a referendum — which it would be — on the issue of political fate would be justified.

In Southeast Asia, in fact, almost anywhere in the world but Northern Quebec, self-determination is simple democracy.

But in Rene Levesque's backyard it is "an abuse of the democratic process."

Now how backward are the Eskimos?

Not so backward that they can't vote and don't vote.

Not so unenlightened that they haven't developed a remarkably productive carving-and-whittling industry in soapstone carvings, ivory and bone and caribou-hide objects of art.

Not so uninvolved that they haven't just come to the big souvenir or collectors' fad-of-the-year, that fuzzy little but-tons-eyed cuddly-toy, the hottest item on the gift shop shelves.

This denial of democracy to these 2,500 Canadians seems a small thing.

But so, in the huge Federal financial picture, was that $35,000,000 loan the Federal Government made personally to the Texas millionaire Murchison brothers to build the Trans-Canada natural gas pipeline from Alberta to the markets of the East.

There was nothing wrong with the pipeline. In fact, it was then a good economic thing and getting grocer-ies cheaper since. What was wrong was the way the Government went about it. There is nothing wrong, really, either, with transferring the Eskimos from Federal to Quebec jurisdiction. It is just the way they're trying to do it.

The Opposition, wondering about issues, is thinking in terms of the explosive emotional political power of what they are beginning to suspect just might be another pipeline.

Eyelection Analysis

Montreal Star

The Laurier and St. Denis by-elections have shown two things — first, Quebec voters — in an ones, at least — far prefer the formula of co-operative federalism to woolly-headed separatism; second, the public's unhealthy mood of disillusion with Canadian politics in general persists.

Letter to the Editor

Opposes Teaching French in Any School

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

We definitely resent ideas like Mr. Kells and Dr. Scott, who take such a firm stand in keeping French from being taught in the public schools.

Were we all so fortunate as to be able to vote on such a plebiscite—then make one for the high schools while you are at it. Then French would be thrown out with a resounding "No." The number of children who fail French is terrific.

At age 15 in grade XI, 1962, Christmas, my son was sent home with a French textbook and given two weeks on his own to know the English version of it. A feat that was most impossible and also leaving him precious little time to study for Latin and music exams.

Therefore I hired a wonderful man to teach him evenings and Saturdays and Sundays, but this was terribly expensive. We got an extra in French but how many mothers have the courage to help them this way. Not all can afford it either.

The thing we need to get rid of most is the Bi and Bi Fault! They and the members of the executive took Christmas away from the children themselves by playing the Christmas Nativity scene at King George School one year and how absolutely ridiculous as Christmas is for children, not adults. This event was even described in The Ontario Intelligencer.

Why not try to lighten the children's homework load instead of increasing it? They need a time for playing and relaxation.

By all means let's vote. Mine will be a large no. Keep up the good work Mr. Kells.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Thelma Guay,
95 Lemoine Street,
Belleville, Ont.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

March 21st, 1944.

That the Belleville Municipal Band need not lack for recruits when seeking replacements for band personnel enlisting in the armed forces or otherwise retiring from the organization was indicated at Belleville Collegiate Institute when the school band filled its customary role in providing the musical background for the regular assembly period. Several of the members of the already depleted ranks of the senior organization, and, undoubtedly the experience gained here assists them in giving leadership qualities to the young school band members.

Digressing from the customary assembly period program, students of the Belleville Collegiate were treated to an exhibition of gymnastics at the regular Wednesday morning period when selected students, Pte. Bill ... from the K-F Form ... in the awards of physical training instructor, staged an interesting 15-minute program of pyramid building, horizontal bar and horse work.

Seventeen boys took part in the exhibition and turned in a really creditable performance, considering the fact that they had only five practices and rehearsals for their act. And that their efforts were appreciated by their fellow - student audience was indicated by the wellforces applause heard following each number.

Mr. John Clark, Albert Street, is spending a few days in Toronto.

Notices were posted at the city hall and at Zwick's Island today im...ming relief working on the island. The work will be discontinued tomorrow evening at five o'clock. Mayor Ponton states that the decision to stop relief work ten days earlier than intended, was made at a meeting of the Advisory Relief Committee as circumstances are such that the stopping of this work now is absolutely necessary. The committee has been advised to affect 400 local men, most of whom are married or have dependents. Two hundred men were at work on their alloted time today.

Heart-Beat Does Not Slap But Merely Changes Rhythm

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Doctor: What happens when the heart skips a beat? Could an aneurysm occur the heart cause this? — F.C.P.

Not much of anything happens when the heart "skips a beat," because "skipping" is quite frequent and it isn't really a "skip," but a change in rhythm.

Ordinarily the heart goes thump - pause - thump - pause - thump - pause.

Sometimes it goes thump - pause - thump - thump - pause.

The heart beats once a second or thereabout. As you have probably read, hearts can be stopped for a few minutes and be started again without any permanent harm. So a pause of a second or so is of no consequence.

I don't want to get too technical, but yes, an aneurysm might have some effect in causing a "skip," but that would be rather rare. Let your doctor decide.

These "skips" are usually from some other and often extremely inconsequential cause such as drinking too much coffee and excessive smoking.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have diverticulosis, but I can't see any bulge. Please explain. — A.C.

The bulge is in the intestine. It is tiny and does not show on the outside of the body. If you want to understand the problem, I suggest that you send 25c in coin and an unstamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, 211 West Wacker Drive, Ill., and ask for a copy of my booklet, "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You."

Dear Dr. Molner: I am heartbroken after finding that my 10-year-old boy sniffs glue. He denies it but I can smell it on his breath and his clothes reek of it. What makes a bright boy do such a disgusting thing? — DISCOURAGED MOM."

Glue-sniffing doesn't seem to me to be disgusting. It is just dumb and hardy. Damage to the liver is the most immediate danger, and the damage is often lifelong. If the boy can be made to realize that this can shorten his life, and perhaps make him an invalid, he will probably stop. It is important to find where he picked up this trick and how many of his friends are doing the same thing.
